For necessary expenses of the Forest Service, not otherwise provided for, for management, protection, improvement, and utilization of the National Forest System, for ecosystem planning, inventory, and monitoring, and for administrative expenses associated with the management of funds provided under the heads "Forest Research", "State and Private Forestry", "National Forest System", "Construction", "Fire Protection and Emergency Suppression", and "Land Acquisition", $1,256,253,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 1997, and including 65 per centum of all monies received during the prior fiscal year as fees collected under the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965, as amended, in accordance with section 4 of the Act (16 U.S.C. 4601–6a(i)): Provided, That unobligated and unexpended balances in the National Forest System account at the end of fiscal year 1995, shall be merged with and made a part of the fiscal year 1996 National Forest System appropriation, and shall remain available for obligation until September 30, 1997: Provided further, That up to $5,000,000 of the funds provided herein for road maintenance shall be available for the planned obliteration of roads which are no longer needed.

WILDLAND FIRE MANAGEMENT

For necessary expenses for forest fire presuppression activities on National Forest System lands, for emergency fire suppression on or adjacent to National Forest System lands or other lands under fire protection agreement, and for emergency rehabilitation of burned over National Forest System lands, $385,485,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That unexpended balances of amounts previously appropriated under any other headings for Forest Service fire activities may be transferred to and merged with this appropriation: Provided further, That such funds are available for repayment of advances from other appropriations accounts previously transferred for such purposes.

CONSTRUCTION

For necessary expenses of the Forest Service, not otherwise provided for, $163,500,000, to remain available until expended, for construction and acquisition of buildings and other facilities, and for construction and repair of forest roads and trails by the Forest Service as authorized by 16 U.S.C. 532–538 and 23 U.S.C. 101 and 205: Provided, That funds becoming available in fiscal year 1996 under the Act of March 4, 1913 (16 U.S.C. 501) shall be transferred to the General Fund of the Treasury of the United States: Provided further, That not to exceed $50,000,000, to remain available until expended, may be obligated for the construction of forest roads by timber purchasers: Provided further, That $2,500,000 of the funds appropriated herein shall be available for a grant to the "Non-Profit Citizens for the Columbia Gorge Discovery Center" for the construction of the Columbia Gorge Discovery Center: Provided further, That the Forest Service is authorized to grant the unobligated balance of funds appropriated in fiscal year 1995 for the construction of the Columbia Gorge Discovery Center to the "Non-Profit Citizens for the Columbia Gorge Discovery Center" to be used for the same purpose: Provided further, That the Forest Service is authorized to convey the land needed for the construction of the Columbia Gorge Discovery Center without cost to the "Non-Profit Citizens for the Columbia Gorge Discovery Center": Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds originally appropriated under this head in Public Law 101–512 for the Forest Service share of a new research facility at the University of Missouri, Columbia, shall be available for a grant to the University of Missouri, as the Federal share in the construction of the new facility: Provided further, That agreed upon lease of space in the new facility shall be provided to the Forest Service without charge for the life of the building.

LAND ACQUISITION

For expenses necessary to carry out the provisions of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965, as amended (16 U.S.C. 4601–4–11), including administrative expenses, and for acquisition of land or waters, or interest therein, in accordance with statutory authority applicable to the Forest Service, $24,200,000, to be derived from the Land and Water Conservation Fund, to remain available until expended.

ACQUISITION OF LANDS FOR NATIONAL FORESTS SPECIAL ACTS

For acquisition of lands within the exterior boundaries of the Cache, Uinta, and Wasatch National Forests, Utah; the Toiyabe National Forest, Nevada; and the Angeles, San Bernardino, Sequoia, and Cleveland National Forests, California, as authorized by law, $1,069,000, to be derived from forest receipts.

ACQUISITION OF LANDS TO COMPLETE LAND EXCHANGES

For acquisition of lands, to be derived from funds deposited by State, county, or municipal governments, public school districts, or other public school authorities pursuant to the Act of December 4, 1967, as amended (16 U.S.C. 484a), to remain available until expended.

RANGE BETTERMENT FUND

For necessary expenses of range rehabilitation, protection, and improvement, 50 per centum of all moneys received during the prior fiscal year, as fees for grazing domestic livestock on lands in National Forests in the sixteen Western States, pursuant to section 401(b)(1) of Public Law 94–579, as amended, to remain available until expended, of which not to exceed 6 per centum shall be available for administrative expenses associated with on-the-ground range rehabilitation, protection, and improvements.

GIFTS, DONATIONS AND BEQUESTS FOR FOREST AND RANGELAND RESEARCH

For expenses authorized by 16 U.S.C. 1643(b), $92,000, to remain available until expended, to be derived from the fund established pursuant to the above Act.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS, FOREST SERVICE

Appropriations to the Forest Service for the current fiscal year shall be available for: (a) purchase of not to exceed 183 passenger motor vehicles of which 32 will be used primarily for law enforcement purposes and of which 151 shall be for replacement; acquisition of 22 passenger motor vehicles from excess sources, and hire of such vehicles; operation and maintenance of aircraft, the purchase of not to exceed two for replacement only, and acquisition of 20 aircraft from excess sources; notwithstanding other provisions of law, existing aircraft being replaced may be sold, with proceeds derived or trade-in value used to offset the purchase price for the replacement aircraft; (b) services pursuant to the second sentence of section 706(a) of the Organic Act of 1944 (7 U.S.C. 2225), and not to exceed $100,000 for employment under 5 U.S.C. 3109; (c) purchase, erection, and alteration of buildings and other public improvements (7 U.S.C. 2250); (d) acquisition of land, waters, and interests therein, pursuant to the Act of August 3, 1956 (7 U.S.C. 428a); (e) for expenses pursuant to the Volunteers in the National Forest Act of 1972 (16 U.S.C. 558a, 558d, 558a note); and (f) for debt collection contracts in accordance with 31 U.S.C. 3718(c).

None of the funds made available under this Act shall be obligated or expended to change the boundaries of any region, to abolish any region, to move or close any regional office for research, State and private forestry, or National Forest System administration of the Forest Service, Department of Agriculture, or to implement any reorganization, "reinvention" or other type of organizational restructuring of the Forest Service, other than the relocation of the Regional Office for Region 5 of the Forest Service from San Francisco to excess military property at Mare Island, Vallejo, California, without the consent of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations and the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry and the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources in the United States Senate and the Committee on Agriculture and the Committee on Resources in the United States House of Representatives.

Any appropriations or funds available to the Forest Service may be advanced to the Fire and Emergency Suppression appropriation and may be used for forest firefighting and the emergency rehabilitation of burned-over lands under its jurisdiction: Provided, That no funds shall be made available under this authority until funds appropriated to the "Emergency Forest Service Firefighting Fund" shall have been exhausted.

Any funds available to the Forest Service may be used for retrofitting Mare Island facilities to accommodate the relocation: Provided, That funds for the move must come from funds otherwise available to Region 5: Provided further, That any funds to be provided for such purposes shall only be available upon approval of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations.

Funds appropriated to the Forest Service shall be available for assistance to or through the Agency for International Development and the Foreign Agricultural Service in connection with forest and rangeland research, technical information, and assistance in foreign countries, and shall be available to support forestry and related natural resource activities outside the United States and its territories and possessions, including technical assistance, education and training, and cooperation with United States and international organizations.

None of the funds made available to the Forest Service under this Act shall be subject to transfer under the provisions of section 702(b) of the Department of Agriculture Organic Act of 1944 (7 U.S.C. 2257) or 7 U.S.C. 147b unless the proposed transfer is approved in advance by the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations in compliance with the reprogramming procedures contained in House Report 103–551.

No funds appropriated to the Forest Service shall be transferred to the Working Capital Fund of the Department of Agriculture without the approval of the Chief of the Forest Service.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any appropriations or funds available to the Forest Service may be used to disseminate program information to private and public individuals and organizations through the use of nonmonetary items of nominal value and to provide nonmonetary awards of nominal value and to incur necessary expenses for the nonmonetary recognition of private individuals and organizations that make contributions to Forest Service programs.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, money collected, in advance or otherwise, by the Forest Service under authority of section 101 of Public Law 93–153 (30 U.S.C. 185(1)) as reimbursement of administrative and other costs incurred in processing pipeline right-of-way or permit applications and for costs incurred in monitoring the construction, operation, maintenance, and termination of any pipeline and related facilities, may be used to reimburse the applicable appropriation to which such costs were originally charged.

Funds available to the Forest Service shall be available to conduct a program of not less than $1,000,000 for high priority projects within the scope of the approved budget which shall be carried out by the Youth Conservation Corps as authorized by the Act of August 13, 1970, as amended by Public Law 93–408.

None of the funds available in this Act shall be used for timber sale preparation using clearcutting in hardwood stands in excess of 25 percent of the fiscal year 1989 harvested volume in the Wayne National Forest, Ohio: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to hardwood stands damaged by natural disaster: Provided further, That landscape architects shall be used to maintain a visually pleasing forest.

Any money collected from the States for fire suppression assistance rendered by the Forest Service on non-Federal lands not in the vicinity of National Forest System lands shall be used to reimburse the applicable appropriation and shall remain available until expended as the Secretary may direct in conducting activities authorized by 16 U.S.C. 2101 (note), 2101–2110, 1606, and 2111.

Of the funds available to the Forest Service, $1,500 is available to the Chief of the Forest Service for official reception and representation expenses.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Forest Service is authorized to employ or otherwise contract with persons at regular rates of pay, as determined by the Service, to perform work occasioned by emergencies such as fires, storms, floods, earthquakes or any other unavoidable cause without regard to Sundays, Federal holidays, and the regular workweek.

To the greatest extent possible, and in accordance with the Final Amendment to the Shawnee National Forest Plan, none of the funds available in this Act shall be used for preparation of timber sales using clearcutting or other forms of even aged management in hardwood stands in the Shawnee National Forest, Illinois.

Funds appropriated to the Forest Service shall be available for interactions with and providing technical assistance to rural communities for sustainable rural development purposes.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, eighty percent of the funds appropriated to the Forest Service in the National Forest System and Construction accounts and planned to be allocated to activities under the "Jobs in the Woods" program for projects on National Forest land in the State of Washington may be granted directly to the Washington State Department of Fish and Wildlife for accomplishment of planned projects. Twenty percent of said funds shall be retained by the Forest Service for planning and administering projects. Project selection and prioritization shall be accomplished by the Forest Service with such consultation with the State of Washington as the Forest Service deems appropriate.

For one year after enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall continue the current Tongass Land Management Plan (TLMP) and may accommodate commercial tourism (if an agreement is signed between the Forest Service and the Alaska Visitors' Association) except that during this period, the Secretary shall maintain at least the number of acres of suitable available and suitable scheduled timber lands, and Allowable Sale Quantity, as identified in the Preferred Alternative (Alternative P) in the Tongass Land and Resources Management Plan and Final Environmental Impact Statement (dated October 1992) as selected in the Record of Decision Review Draft #3–2/93.

Nothing in this section shall be interpreted to mandate clear-cutting or require the sale of timber and nothing in this section, including the ASQ identified in Alternative P, shall be construed to limit the Secretary's consideration of new information or prejudice future revision, amendment or modification of TLMP based upon sound, verifiable scientific data.

If the Forest Service determines in a Supplemental Evaluation to an Environmental Impact Statement that no additional analysis under the National Environmental Policy Act or section 810 of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act is necessary for any timber sale or offering which has been prepared for acceptance by, or award to, a purchaser after December 31, 1988, that has been subsequently determined by the Forest Service to be available for sale or offering to one or more other purchaser, the change of purchasers for whatever reason shall not be considered a significant new circumstance, and the Forest Service may offer or award such timber sale or offering to a different purchaser or offeree, notwithstanding any other provision of law. A determination by the Forest Service pursuant to this paragraph shall not be subject to judicial review.

None of the funds appropriated under this Act for the Forest Service shall be made available for the purpose of applying paint to rocks, or rock colorization: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Forest Service shall not require of any individual or entity, as part of any permitting process under its authority, or as a requirement of compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4231 et seq.), the painting or colorization of rocks.

DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY

FOSSIL ENERGY RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

For necessary expenses in carrying out fossil energy research and development activities, under the authority of the Department of Energy Organization Act (Public Law 95–91), including the acquisition of interest, including defeasible and equitable interests in any real property or any facility or for plant or facility acquisition or expansion, and for promoting health and safety in mines and the mineral industry through research (30 U.S.C. 3, 861(b), and 951(a)), for conducting inquiries, technological investigations and research concerning the extraction, processing, use, and disposal of mineral substances without objectionable social and environmental costs (30 U.S.C. 3, 1602, and 1603), and for the development of methods for the disposal, control, prevention, and reclamation of waste products in the mining, minerals, metal, and mineral reclamation industries (30 U.S.C. 3 and 21a), $416,943,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That no part of the sum herein made available shall be used for the field testing of nuclear explosives in the recovery of oil and gas.

ALTERNATIVE FUELS PRODUCTION

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

Monies received as investment income on the principal amount in the Great Plains Project Trust at the Norwest Bank of North Dakota, in such sums as are earned as of October 1, 1995, shall be deposited in this account and immediately transferred to the General Fund of the Treasury. Monies received as revenue sharing from the operation of the Great Plains Gasification Plant shall be immediately transferred to the General Fund of the Treasury.

NAVAL PETROLEUM AND OIL SHALE RESERVES

For necessary expenses in carrying out naval petroleum and oil shale reserve activities, $148,786,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That the requirements of 10 U.S.C. 7430(b)(2)(B) shall not apply to fiscal year 1996: Provided further, That section 501 of Public Law 101–45 is hereby repealed.

ENERGY CONSERVATION

For necessary expenses in carrying out energy conservation activities, $553,137,000, to remain available until expended, including, notwithstanding any other provision of law, the excess amount for fiscal year 1996 determined under the provisions of section 3003(d) of Public Law 99–509 (15 U.S.C. 4502), and of which $16,000,000 shall be derived from available unobligated balances in the Biomass Energy Development account: Provided, That $140,696,000 shall be for use in energy conservation programs as defined in section 3008(3) of Public Law 99–509 (15 U.S.C. 4507) and shall not be available until excess amounts are determined under the provisions of section 3003(d) of Public Law 99–509 (15 U.S.C. 4502): Provided further, That notwithstanding section 3003(d)(2) of Public Law 99–509 such sums shall be allocated to the eligible programs as follows: $114,196,000 for the weatherization assistance program and $26,500,000 for the State energy conservation program.

ECONOMIC REGULATION

For necessary expenses in carrying out the activities of the Economic Regulatory Administration and the Office of Hearings and Appeals, $6,297,000, to remain available until expended.

STRATEGIC PETROLEUM RESERVE

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For necessary expenses for Strategic Petroleum Reserve facility development and operations and program management activities pursuant to the Energy Policy and Conservation Act of 1975, as amended (42 U.S.C. 6201 et seq.), $287,000,000, to remain available until expended, of which $187,000,000 shall be derived by transfer of unobligated balances from the "SPR petroleum account" and $100,000,000 shall be derived by transfer from the "SPR Decommissioning Fund": Provided, That notwithstanding section 161 of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act, the Secretary shall draw down and sell up to seven million barrels of oil from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve: Provided further, That the proceeds from the sale shall be deposited into a special account in the Treasury, to be established and known as the "SPR Decommissioning Fund", and shall be available for the purpose of removal of oil from and decommissioning of the Weeks Island site and for other purposes related to the operations of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

SPR PETROLEUM ACCOUNT

Notwithstanding 42 U.S.C. 6240(d) the United States share of crude oil in Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1 (Elk Hills) may be sold or otherwise disposed of to other than the Strategic Petroleum Reserve: Provided, That outlays in fiscal year 1996 resulting from the use of funds in this account shall not exceed $5,000,000.

ENERGY INFORMATION ADMINISTRATION

For necessary expenses in carrying out the activities of the Energy Information Administration, $72,266,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That notwithstanding section 4(d) of the Service Contract Act of 1965 (41 U.S.C. 353(d)) or any other provision of law, funds appropriated under this heading hereafter may be used to enter into a contract for end use consumption surveys for a term not to exceed eight years: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, hereafter the Manufacturing Energy Consumption Survey shall be conducted on a triennial basis.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS, DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY

Appropriations under this Act for the current fiscal year shall be available for hire of passenger motor vehicles; hire, maintenance, and operation of aircraft; purchase, repair, and cleaning of uniforms; and reimbursement to the General Services Administration for security guard services.

From appropriations under this Act, transfers of sums may be made to other agencies of the Government for the performance of work for which the appropriation is made.

None of the funds made available to the Department of Energy under this Act shall be used to implement or finance authorized price support or loan guarantee programs unless specific provision is made for such programs in an appropriations Act.

The Secretary is authorized to accept lands, buildings, equipment, and other contributions from public and private sources and to prosecute projects in cooperation with other agencies, Federal, State, private, or foreign: Provided, That revenues and other moneys received by or for the account of the Department of Energy or otherwise generated by sale of products in connection with projects of the Department appropriated under this Act may be retained by the Secretary of Energy, to be available until expended, and used only for plant construction, operation, costs, and payments to cost-sharing entities as provided in appropriate cost-sharing contracts or agreements: Provided further, That the remainder of revenues after the making of such payments shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts: Provided further, That any contract, agreement, or provision thereof entered into by the Secretary pursuant to this authority shall not be executed prior to the expiration of 30 calendar days (not including any day in which either House of Congress is not in session because of adjournment of more than three calendar days to a day certain) from the receipt by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the Senate of a full comprehensive report on such project, including the facts and circumstances relied upon in support of the proposed project.

No funds provided in this Act may be expended by the Department of Energy to prepare, issue, or process procurement documents for programs or projects for which appropriations have not been made.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

INDIAN HEALTH SERVICE

INDIAN HEALTH SERVICES

For expenses necessary to carry out the Act of August 5, 1954 (68 Stat. 674), the Indian Self-Determination Act, the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, and titles II and III of the Public Health Service Act with respect to the Indian Health Service, $1,747,842,000, together with payments received during the fiscal year pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 300aaa–2 for services furnished by the Indian Health Service: Provided, That funds made available to tribes and tribal organizations through contracts, grant agreements, or any other agreements or compacts authorized by the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act of 1975 (88 Stat. 2203; 25 U.S.C. 450), shall be deemed to be obligated at the time of the grant or contract award and thereafter shall remain available to the tribe or tribal organization without fiscal year limitation: Provided further, That $12,000,000 shall remain available until expended, for the Indian Catastrophic Health Emergency Fund: Provided further, That $350,564,000 for contract medical care shall remain available for obligation until September 30, 1997: Provided further, That of the funds provided, not less than $11,306,000 shall be used to carry out the loan repayment program under section 108 of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, as amended: Provided further, That funds provided in this Act may be used for one-year contracts and grants which are to be performed in two fiscal years, so long as the total obligation is recorded in the year for which the funds are appropriated: Provided further, That the amounts collected by the Secretary of Health and Human Services under the authority of title IV of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act shall be available for two fiscal years after the fiscal year in which they were collected, for the purpose of achieving compliance with the applicable conditions and requirements of titles XVIII and XIX of the Social Security Act (exclusive of planning, design, or construction of new facilities): Provided further, That of the funds provided, $7,500,000 shall remain available until expended, for the Indian Self-Determination Fund, which shall be available for the transitional costs of initial or expanded tribal contracts, grants or cooperative agreements with the Indian Health Service under the provisions of the Indian Self-Determination Act: Provided further, That funding contained herein, and in any earlier appropriations Acts for scholarship programs under the Indian Health Care Improvement Act (25 U.S.C. 1613) shall remain available for obligation until September 30, 1997: Provided further, That amounts received by tribes and tribal organizations under title IV of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, as amended, shall be reported and accounted for and available to the receiving tribes and tribal organizations until expended.

INDIAN HEALTH FACILITIES

For construction, repair, maintenance, improvement, and equipment of health and related auxiliary facilities, including quarters for personnel; preparation of plans, specifications, and drawings; acquisition of sites, purchase and erection of modular buildings, and purchases of trailers; and for provision of domestic and community sanitation facilities for Indians, as authorized by section 7 of the Act of August 5, 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2004a), the Indian Self-Determination Act and the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, and for expenses necessary to carry out the Act of August 5, 1954 (68 Stat. 674), the Indian Self-Determination Act, the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, and titles II and III of the Public Health Service Act with respect to environmental health and facilities support activities of the Indian Health Service, $238,958,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds appropriated for the planning, design, construction or renovation of health facilities for the benefit of an Indian tribe or tribes may be used to purchase land for sites to construct, improve, or enlarge health or related facilities.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS, INDIAN HEALTH SERVICE

Appropriations in this Act to the Indian Health Service shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109 but at rates not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the maximum rate payable for senior-level positions under 5 U.S.C. 5376; hire of passenger motor vehicles and aircraft; purchase of medical equipment; purchase of reprints; purchase, renovation and erection of modular buildings and renovation of existing facilities; payments for telephone service in private residences in the field, when authorized under regulations approved by the Secretary; and for uniforms or allowances therefor as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901–5902); and for expenses of attendance at meetings which are concerned with the functions or activities for which the appropriation is made or which will contribute to improved conduct, supervision, or management of those functions or activities: Provided, That in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, non-Indian patients may be extended health care at all tribally administered or Indian Health Service facilities, subject to charges, and the proceeds along with funds recovered under the Federal Medical Care Recovery Act (42 U.S.C. 2651–53) shall be credited to the account of the facility providing the service and shall be available without fiscal year limitation: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other law or regulation, funds transferred from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to the Indian Health Service shall be administered under Public Law 86–121 (the Indian Sanitation Facilities Act) and Public Law 93–638, as amended: Provided further, That funds appropriated to the Indian Health Service in this Act, except those used for administrative and program direction purposes, shall not be subject to limitations directed at curtailing Federal travel and transportation: Provided further, That the Indian Health Service shall neither bill nor charge those Indians who may have the economic means to pay unless and until such time as Congress has agreed upon a specific policy to do so and has directed the Indian Health Service to implement such a policy: Provided further, That, notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds previously or herein made available to a tribe or tribal organization through a contract, grant or agreement authorized by title I of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act of 1975 (88 Stat. 2203; 25 U.S.C. 450), may be deobligated and reobligated to a self-governance funding agreement under title III of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act of 1975 and thereafter shall remain available to the tribe or tribal organization without fiscal year limitation: Provided further, That none of the funds made available to the Indian Health Service in this Act shall be used to implement the final rule published in the Federal Register on September 16, 1987, by the Department of Health and Human Services, relating to eligibility for the health care services of the Indian Health Service until the Indian Health Service has submitted a budget request reflecting the increased costs associated with the proposed final rule, and such request has been included in an appropriations Act and enacted into law: Provided further, That funds made available in this Act are to be apportioned to the Indian Health Service as appropriated in this Act, and accounted for in the appropriation structure set forth in this Act: Provided further, That the appropriation structure for the Indian Health Service may not be altered without advance approval of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

OFFICE OF ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY EDUCATION

TITLE III—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 301. The expenditure of any appropriation under this Act for any consulting service through procurement contract, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 3109, shall be limited to those contracts where such expenditures are a matter of public record and available for public inspection, except where otherwise provided under existing law, or under existing Executive order issued pursuant to existing law.

SEC. 302. No part of any appropriation under this Act shall be available to the Secretary of the Interior or the Secretary of Agriculture for the leasing of oil and natural gas by noncompetitive bidding on publicly owned lands within the boundaries of the Shawnee National Forest, Illinois: Provided, That nothing herein is intended to inhibit or otherwise affect the sale, lease, or right to access to minerals owned by private individuals.

SEC. 303. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for any activity or the publication or distribution of literature that in any way tends to promote public support or opposition to any legislative proposal on which congressional action is not complete.

SEC. 304. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 305. None of the funds provided in this Act to any department or agency shall be obligated or expended to provide a personal cook, chauffeur, or other personal servants to any officer or employee of such department or agency except as otherwise provided by law.

SEC. 306. No assessments may be levied against any program, budget activity, subactivity, or project funded by this Act unless notice of such assessments and the basis therefor are presented to the Committees on Appropriations and are approved by such Committees.

SEC. 307. (a) COMPLIANCE WITH BUY AMERICAN ACT.—None of the funds made available in this Act may be expended by an entity unless the entity agrees that in expending the funds the entity will comply with sections 2 through 4 of the Act of March 3, 1933 (41 U.S.C. 10a–10c; popularly known as the "Buy American Act").

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS; REQUIREMENT REGARDING NOTICE.—

(1) PURCHASE OF AMERICAN-MADE EQUIPMENT AND PRODUCTS.—In the case of any equipment or product that may be authorized to be purchased with financial assistance provided using funds made available in this Act, it is the sense of the Congress that entities receiving the assistance should, in expending the assistance, purchase only American-made equipment and products.

(2) NOTICE TO RECIPIENTS OF ASSISTANCE.—In providing financial assistance using funds made available in this Act, the head of each Federal agency shall provide to each recipient of the assistance a notice describing the statement made in paragraph (1) by the Congress.

(c) PROHIBITION OF CONTRACTS WITH PERSONS FALSELY LABELING PRODUCTS AS MADE IN AMERICA.—If it has been finally determined by a court or Federal agency that any person intentionally affixed a label bearing a "Made in America" inscription, or any inscription with the same meaning, to any product sold in or shipped to the United States that is not made in the United States, the person shall be ineligible to receive any contract or subcontract made with funds made available in this Act, pursuant to the debarment, suspension, and ineligibility procedures described in sections 9.400 through 9.409 of title 48, Code of Federal Regulations.

SEC. 308. None of the funds in this Act may be used to plan, prepare, or offer for sale timber from trees classified as giant sequoia (sequoiadendron giganteum) which are located on National Forest System or Bureau of Land Management lands in a manner different than such sales were conducted in fiscal year 1995.

SEC. 309. None of the funds made available by this Act may be obligated or expended by the National Park Service to enter into or implement a concession contract which permits or requires the removal of the underground lunchroom at the Carlsbad Caverns National Park.

SEC. 310. Where the actual costs of construction projects under self-determination contracts, compacts, or grants, pursuant to Public Laws 93-638, 103-413, or 100-297, are less than the estimated costs thereof, use of the resulting excess funds shall be determined by the appropriate Secretary after consultation with the tribes.

SEC. 311. Notwithstanding Public Law 103-413, quarterly payments of funds to tribes and tribal organizations under annual funding agreements pursuant to section 108 of Public Law 93-638, as amended, may be made on the first business day following the first day of a fiscal quarter.

SEC. 312. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act may be used for the AmeriCorps program, unless the relevant agencies of the Department of the Interior and/or Agriculture follow appropriate reprogramming guidelines: Provided, That if no funds are provided for the AmeriCorps program by the VA-HUD and Independent Agencies fiscal year 1996 appropriations bill, then none of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act may be used for the AmeriCorps programs.

SEC. 313. (a) On or before April 1, 1996, the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation shall—

(1) transfer and assign in accordance with this section all of its rights, title, and interest in and to all of the leases, covenants, agreements, and easements it has executed or will execute by March 31, 1996, in carrying out its powers and duties under the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation Act (40 U.S.C. 871-885) and the Federal Triangle Development Act (40 U.S.C. 1101-1109) to the General Services Administration, National Capital Planning Commission, or the National Park Service; and

(2) except as provided by subsection (d), transfer all rights, title, and interest in and to all property, both real and personal, held in the name of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation to the General Services Administration.

(b) The responsibilities of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation transferred to the General Services Administration under subsection (a) include, but are not limited to, the following:

(1) Collection of revenue owed the Federal Government as a result of real estate sales or lease agreements entered into by the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation and private parties, including, at a minimum, with respect to the following projects:

(A) The Willard Hotel property on Square 225.

(B) The Gallery Row project on Square 457.

(C) The Lansburgh's project on Square 431.

(D) The Market Square North project on Square 407.

(2) Collection of sale or lease revenue owed the Federal Government (if any) in the event two undeveloped sites owned by the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation on Squares 457 and 406 are sold or leased prior to April 1, 1996.

(3) Application of collected revenue to repay United States Treasury debt incurred by the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation in the course of acquiring real estate.

(4) Performing financial audits for projects in which the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation has actual or potential revenue expectation, as identified in paragraphs (1) and (2), in accordance with procedures described in applicable sale or lease agreements.

(5) Disposition of real estate properties which are or become available for sale and lease or other uses.

(6) Payment of benefits in accordance with the Uniform Relocation Assistance and Real Property Acquisitions Policies Act of 1970 to which persons in the project area squares are entitled as a result of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation's acquisition of real estate.

(7) Carrying out the responsibilities of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation under the Federal Triangle Development Act (40 U.S.C. 1101-1109), including responsibilities for managing assets and liabilities of the Corporation under such Act.

(c) In carrying out the responsibilities of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation transferred under this section, the Administrator of the General Services Administration shall have the following powers:

(1) To acquire lands, improvements, and properties by purchase, lease or exchange, and to sell, lease, or otherwise dispose of real or personal property as necessary to complete the development plan developed under section 5 of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation Act of 1972 (40 U.S.C. 874) if a notice of intention to carry out such acquisition or disposal is first transmitted to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure and the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Environment and Public Works and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate and at least 60 days elapse after the date of such transmission.

(2) To modify from time to time the plan referred to in paragraph (1) if such modification is first transmitted to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure and the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Environment and Public Works and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate and at least 60 days elapse after the date of such transmission.

(3) To maintain any existing Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation insurance programs.

(4) To enter into and perform such leases, contracts, or other transactions with any agency or instrumentality of the United States, the several States, or the District of Columbia or with any person, firm, association, or corporation as may be necessary to carry out the responsibilities of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation under the Federal Triangle Development Act (40 U.S.C. 1101-1109).

(5) To request the Council of the District of Columbia to close any alleys necessary for the completion of development in Square 457.

(6) To use all of the funds transferred from the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation or income earned on Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation property to complete any pending development projects.

(d)(1)(A) On or before April 1, 1996, the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation shall transfer all its right, title, and interest in and to the property described in subparagraph (B) to the National Park Service, Department of the Interior.

(B) The property referred to in subparagraph (A) is the property located within the Pennsylvania Avenue National Historic Site depicted on a map entitled "Pennsylvania Avenue National Historic Park", dated June 1, 1995, and numbered 840-82441, which shall be on file and available for public inspection in the offices of the National Park Service, Department of the Interior. The Pennsylvania Avenue National Historic Site includes the parks, plazas, sidewalks, special lighting, trees, sculpture, and memorials.

(2) Jurisdiction of Pennsylvania Avenue and all other roadways from curb to curb shall remain with the District of Columbia but vendors shall not be permitted to occupy street space except during temporary special events.

(3) The National Park Service shall be responsible for management, administration, maintenance, law enforcement, visitor services, resource protection, interpretation, and historic preservation at the Pennsylvania Avenue National Historic Site.

(4) The National Park Service may enter into contracts, cooperative agreements, or other transactions with any agency or instrumentality of the United States, the several States, or the District of Columbia or with any person, firm, association, or corporation as may be deemed necessary or appropriate for the conduct of special events, festivals, concerts, or other art and cultural programs at the Pennsylvania Avenue National Historic Site or may establish a nonprofit foundation to solicit funds for such activities.

(e) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the responsibility for ensuring that development or redevelopment in the Pennsylvania Avenue area is carried out in accordance with the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation Plan—1974, as amended, is transferred to the National Capital Planning Commission or its successor commencing April 1, 1996.

(f) SAVINGS PROVISIONS.—

(1) REGULATIONS.—Any regulations prescribed by the Corporation in connection with the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation Act of 1972 (40 U.S.C. 871-885) and the Federal Triangle Development Act (40 U.S.C. 1101-1109) shall continue in effect until suspended by regulations prescribed by the Administrator of the General Services Administration.

(2) EXISTING RIGHTS, DUTIES, AND OBLIGATIONS NOT AFFECTED.—Subsection (a) shall not be construed as affecting the validity of any right, duty, or obligation of the United States or any other person arising under or pursuant to any contract, loan, or other instrument or agreement which was in effect on the day before the date of the transfers under subsection (a).

(3) CONTINUATION OF SUITS.—No action or other proceeding commenced by or against the Corporation in connection with administration of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation Act of 1972 (40 U.S.C. 871-885) and the Federal Triangle Development Act (40 U.S.C. 1101-1109) shall abate by reason of enactment and implementation of this Act, except that the General Services Administration shall be substituted for the Corporation as a party to any such action or proceeding.

"(b) The Corporation shall be dissolved on or before April 1, 1996. Upon dissolution, assets, obligations, indebtedness, and all unobligated and unexpended balances of the Corporation shall be transferred in accordance with the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996.".

SEC. 314. (a) Except as provided in subsection (b), no part of any appropriation contained in this Act or any other Act shall be obligated or expended for the operation or implementation of the Interior Columbia Basin Ecosystem Management Project (hereinafter "Project").

(b) From the funds appropriated to the Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management: a sum of $4,000,000 is made available for the Executive Steering Committee of the Project to publish, and submit to the Congress, by May 31, 1996, an assessment of the National Forest System lands and lands administered by the Bureau of Land Management within the area encompassed by the Project. The assessment shall be accompanied by two draft Environmental Impact Statements that: are not decisional and not subject to judicial review; contain a range of alternatives, without the identification of a preferred alternative or management recommendation; and provide a methodology for conducting any cumulative effects analysis required by section 102(2) of the National Environmental Policy Act (42 U.S.C. 433(2)) in the preparation of amendments to resource management plans pursuant to subsection (c). The assessment shall incorporate all existing relevant scientific information including, but not limited to, information on landscape dynamics, forest and rangeland health conditions, fisheries, and watersheds and the implications of each as they relate to federal forest and rangeland health. The assessment and draft Environmental Impact Statements shall not be: the subject of consultation or conferencing pursuant to section 7 of the Endangered Species Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1536); accompanied by any record of decision or other National Environmental Policy Act documentation; or applied or used to regulate non-federal lands. The Executive Steering Committee shall release the draft Environmental Impact Statements for a ninety day public comment period and include a summary of the public comments received in the Submission to Congress.

(c)(1) From the funds appropriated to the Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management, based on the documents prepared pursuant to subsection (b) and any other guidance or policy issued prior to the date of enactment of this section, and in consultation with the affected Governor, and county commissioners, each Forest Supervisor and District Manager with responsibility for a national forest or a unit of land administered by the Bureau of Land Management (hereinafter "forest") within the area encompassed by the Project shall review the resource management plan (hereinafter "plan") for such forest and develop, by an amendment to such plan, a modification of or alternative to any policy which is applicable to such plan upon the date of enactment of this section (whether or not such policy has been added to such plan by amendment), including any policy which is, or is intended to be, of limited duration, and which the Project addresses, to meet the specific conditions of such forest. Each amendment shall: contain the modified or alternative policy developed pursuant to this paragraph, be directed solely to and affect only such plan; address the specific conditions of the forest to which the plan applies and the relationship of the modified or alternative policy to such conditions; and, to the maximum extent practicable, establish site-specific standards in lieu of imposing general standards applicable to multiple sites.

(2)(A) Each amendment prepared pursuant to paragraph (1) shall comply with any applicable requirements of section 102(2) of the National Environmental Policy Act, except that any cumulative effects analysis conducted in accordance with the methodology provided pursuant to subsection (b) shall be deemed to meet any requirements of such Act for such analysis.

(B) Any policy adopted in an amendment prepared pursuant to paragraph (1) which is a modification of or alternative to a policy referred to in paragraph (1) upon which consultation or conferencing has occurred pursuant to section 7 of the Endangered Species Act of 1973 shall not again be subject to the consultation or conferencing provisions of such section 7. Any other consultation or conferencing required by such section 7 shall be conducted separately on each amendment prepared pursuant to paragraph (1): Provided, That, except as provided in this subparagraph, no other consultation shall be undertaken on such amendments, or any project or activity which is consistent with an applicable amendment, on any policy referred to in paragraph (1), or on any portion of any plan related to such policy or the species to which such policy applies.

(3) Each amendment prepared pursuant to paragraph (1) shall be adopted on or before March 31, 1997, and no policy referred to in paragraph (1), or any provision of a plan or other planning document incorporating such policy, shall be effective in any forest subject to the Project on or after such date, or after an amendment to the plan which applies to such forest is adopted pursuant to this subsection, whichever occurs first.

(4) On the signing of a record of decision or equivalent document making an amendment for the Clearwater National Forest pursuant to paragraph (1), the requirement for revision referred to in this Stipulation of Dismissal dated September 13, 1993, applicable to such forest is deemed to be satisfied, and the interim management direction provisions contained in the Stipulation of Dismissal shall be of no further effect with respect to such forest.

SEC. 315. RECREATIONAL FEE DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM.—(a) The Secretary of the Interior (acting through the Bureau of Land Management, the National Park Service and the United States Fish and Wildlife Service) and the Secretary of Agriculture (acting through the Forest Service) shall each implement a fee program to demonstrate the feasibility of user-generated cost recovery for the operation and maintenance of recreation areas or sites and habitat enhancement projects on Federal lands.

(b) In carrying out the pilot program established pursuant to this section, the appropriate Secretary shall select from areas under the jurisdiction of each of the four agencies referred to in subsection (a) no fewer than 10, but as many as 50, areas, sites or projects for fee demonstration. For each such demonstration, the Secretary, notwithstanding any other provision of law—

(1) shall charge and collect fees for admission to the area or for the use of outdoor recreation sites, facilities, visitor centers, equipment, and services by individuals and groups, or any combination thereof;

(2) shall establish fees under this section based upon a variety of cost recovery and fair market valuation methods to provide a broad basis for feasibility testing;

(3) may contract, including provisions for reasonable commissions, with any public or private entity to provide visitor services, including reservations and information, and may accept services of volunteers to collect fees charged pursuant to paragraph (1);

(4) may encourage private investment and partnerships to enhance the delivery of quality customer services and resource enhancement, and provide appropriate recognition to such partners or investors; and

(5) may assess a fine of not more than $100 for any violation of the authority to collect fees for admission to the area or for the use of outdoor recreation sites, facilities, visitor centers, equipment, and services.

(A) Of the amount in excess of 104% of the amount collected in fiscal year 1995, and thereafter annually adjusted upward by 4%, eighty percent to a special account in the Treasury for use without further appropriation, by the agency which administers the site, to remain available for expenditures in accordance with paragraph (2)(A).

(B) Of the amount in excess of 104% of the amount collected in fiscal year 1995, and thereafter annually adjusted upward by 4%, twenty percent to a special account in the Treasury for use without further appropriation, by the agency which administers the site, to remain available for expenditure in accordance with paragraph (2)(B).

(C) For agencies other than the Fish and Wildlife Service, up to 15% of current year collections of each agency, but not greater than fee collection costs for that fiscal year, to remain available for expenditure without further appropriation in accordance with paragraph (2)(C).

(D) For agencies other than the Fish and Wildlife Service, the balance to the special account established pursuant to subparagraph (A) of section 4(i)(1) of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act, as amended.

(E) For the Fish and Wildlife Service, the balance shall be distributed in accordance with section 201(c) of the Emergency Wetlands Resources Act.

(2)(A) Expenditures from site specific special funds shall be for further activities of the area, site or project from which funds are collected, and shall be accounted for separately.

(B) Expenditures from agency specific special funds shall be for use on an agency-wide basis and shall be accounted for separately.

(C) Expenditures from the fee collection support fund shall be used to cover fee collection costs in accordance with section 4(i)(1)(B) of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act, as amended: Provided, That funds unexpended and unobligated at the end of the fiscal year shall not be deposited into the special account established pursuant to section 4(i)(1)(A) of said Act and shall remain available for expenditure without further appropriation.

(3) In order to increase the quality of the visitor experience at public recreational areas and enhance the protection of resources, amounts available for expenditure under this section may only be used for the area, site or project concerned, for backlogged repair and maintenance projects (including projects relating to health and safety) and for interpretation, signage, habitat or facility enhancement, resource preservation, annual operation (including fee collection), maintenance, and law enforcement relating to public use. The agencywide accounts may be used for the same purposes set forth in the preceding sentence, but for areas, sites or projects selected at the discretion of the respective agency head.

U.S.C. 869-4), chapter 69 of title 31, United States Code, section 401 of the Act of June 15, 1935 (16 U.S.C. 715s), the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965 (16 U.S.C. 460l), and any other provision of law relating to revenue allocation.

(2) Fees charged pursuant to this section shall be in lieu of fees charged under any other provision of law.

(e) The Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of Agriculture shall carry out this section without promulgating regulations.

(f) The authority to collect fees under this section shall commence on October 1, 1995, and end on September 30, 1998. Funds in accounts established shall remain available through September 30, 2001.

SEC. 316. Section 2001(a)(2) of Public Law 104-19 is amended as follows: Strike "September 30, 1997" and insert in lieu thereof "December 31, 1996".

SEC. 317. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for any program, project, or activity when it is made known to the Federal entity or official to which the funds are made available that the program, project, or activity is not in compliance with any applicable Federal law relating to risk assessment, the protection of private property rights, or unfunded mandates.

SEC. 318. None of the funds provided in this Act may be made available for the Mississippi River Corridor Heritage Commission.

SEC. 319. GREAT BASIN NATIONAL PARK.—Section 3 of the Great Basin National Park Act of 1986 (16 U.S.C. 410mm-1) is amended—

(1) in the first sentence of subsection (e) by striking "shall" and inserting "may"; and

(2) in subsection (f)—

"(1) EXCHANGES.—At the request";

(B) by striking "grazing permits" and inserting "grazing permits and grazing leases"; and

(C) by adding after "Federal lands." the following:

"(2) ACQUISITION BY DONATION.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may acquire by donation valid existing permits and grazing leases authorizing grazing on land in the park.

(B) TERMINATION.—The Secretary shall terminate a grazing permit or grazing lease acquired under subparagraph (A) so as to end grazing previously authorized by the permit or lease.".

SEC. 320. None of the funds made available in this Act shall be used by the Department of Energy in implementing the Codes and Standards Program to propose, issue, or prescribe any new or amended standard: Provided, That this section shall expire on September 30, 1996: Provided further, That nothing in this section shall preclude the Federal Government from promulgating rules concerning energy efficiency standards for the construction of new federally-owned commercial and residential buildings.

SEC. 321. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used (1) to demolish the bridge between Jersey City, New Jersey, and Ellis Island; or (2) to prevent pedestrian use of such bridge, when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that such pedestrian use is consistent with generally accepted safety standards.

SEC. 322. (a) None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available pursuant to this Act shall be obligated or expended to accept or process applications for a patent for any mining or mill site claim located under the general mining laws.

(b) The provisions of subsection (a) shall not apply if the Secretary of the Interior determines that, for the claim concerned: (1) a patent application was filed with the Secretary on or before September 30, 1994, and (2) all requirements established under sections 2325 and 2326 of the Revised Statutes (30 U.S.C. 29 and 30) for vein or lode claims and sections 2329, 2330, 2331, and 2333 of the Revised Statutes (30 U.S.C. 35, 36, and 37) for placer claims, and section 2337 of the Revised Statutes (30 U.S.C. 42) for mill site claims, as the case may be, were fully complied with by the applicant by that date.

(c) PROCESSING SCHEDULE.—For those applications for patents pursuant to subsection (b) which were filed with the Secretary of the Interior, prior to September 30, 1994, the Secretary of the Interior shall—

(1) Within three months of the enactment of this Act, file with the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations and the Committee on Resources of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources of the United States Senate a plan which details how the Department of the Interior will make a final determination as to whether or not an applicant is entitled to a patent under the general mining laws on at least 90 percent of such applications within five years of the enactment of this Act and file reports annually thereafter with the same committees detailing actions taken by the Department of the Interior to carry out such plan; and

(2) Take such actions as may be necessary to carry out such plan.

(d) MINERAL EXAMINATIONS.—In order to process patent applications in a timely and responsible manner, upon the request of a patent applicant, the Secretary of the Interior shall allow the applicant to fund a qualified third-party contractor to be selected by the Bureau of Land Management to conduct a mineral examination of the mining claims or mill sites contained in a patent application as set forth in subsection (b). The Bureau of Land Management shall have the sole responsibility to choose and pay the third-party contractor in accordance with the standard procedures employed by the Bureau of Land Management in the retention of third-party contractors.

SEC. 323. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act may be used for the purposes of acquiring lands in the counties of Lawrence, Monroe, or Washington, Ohio, for the Wayne National Forest.

SEC. 324. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act or any other Act shall be expended or obligated to fund the activities of the Office of Forestry and Economic Development after December 31, 1995.

SEC. 325. Amend section 2001(k) of Public Law 104-19 by striking "in fiscal years 1995 and 1996" in paragraph (1) and adding paragraph (4) to read:

"(4) TIMING AND CONDITIONS OF ALTERNATIVE VOLUME.—For any sale subject to paragraph (2) of this subsection, the Secretary concerned shall, and for any other sale subject to this subsection, the Secretary concerned may, within 45 days of the date of enactment of this paragraph, reach agreement with the purchaser to provide by a date agreed to by the purchaser, a volume, value and kind of timber satisfactory to the purchaser to substitute for all or a portion of the timber subject to the sale, which shall be subject to the original terms of the contract except as otherwise agreed, and shall be subject to paragraph (1). After the agreed date for providing alternative timber the purchaser may operate the original sale under the terms of paragraph (1) until the Secretary concerned designates and the purchaser accepts alternative timber under this paragraph. Any sale subject to this subsection shall be awarded and released and may be operated under the terms of paragraph (1) until completed and shall not count against current allowable sale quantities or timber sales to be offered under subsection (b) and (d)."

SEC. 326. (a) LAND EXCHANGE.—The Secretary of the Interior (hereinafter referred to as the "Secretary") is authorized to convey to the Boise Cascade Corporation (hereinafter referred to as the "Corporation"), a corporation formed under the statutes of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business at Boise, Idaho, title to approximately seven acres of land, more or less, located in sections 14 and 23, township 36 north, range 37 east, Willamette Meridian, Stevens County, Washington, further identified in the records of the Bureau of Reclamation, Department of the Interior, as Tract No. GC-19860, and to accept from the Corporation in exchange therefor, title to approximately one hundred and thirty-six acres of land located in section 19, township 37 north, range 38 east and section 33, township 38 north, range 37 east, Willamette Meridian, Stevens County, Washington, and further identified in the records of the Bureau of Reclamation, Department of the Interior, as Tract No. GC-19858 and Tract No. GC-19859, respectively.

(b) APPRAISAL.—The properties so exchanged either shall be approximately equal in fair market value or if they are not approximately equal, shall be equalized by the payment of cash to the Corporation or to the Secretary as required or in the event the value of the Corporation's lands is greater, the acreage may be reduced so that the fair market value is approximately equal: Provided, That the Secretary shall order appraisals made of the fair market value of each tract of land included in the exchange without consideration for improvements thereon: Provided further, That any cash payment received by the Secretary shall be covered in the Reclamation Fund and credited to the Columbia Basin project.

(c) ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS.—Costs of conducting the necessary land surveys, preparing the legal descriptions of the lands to be conveyed, performing the appraisals, and administrative costs incurred in completing the exchange shall be borne by the Corporation.

(d) LIABILITY FOR HAZARDOUS SUBSTANCES.—(1) The Secretary shall not acquire any lands under this Act if the Secretary determines that such lands, or any portion thereof, have become contaminated with hazardous substances (as defined in the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (42 U.S.C. 9601)).

(2) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the United States shall have no responsibility or liability with respect to any hazardous wastes or other substances placed on any of the lands covered by this Act after their transfer to the ownership of any party, but nothing in this Act shall be construed as either diminishing or increasing any responsibility or liability of the United States based on the condition of such lands on the date of their transfer to the ownership of another party. The Corporation shall indemnify the United States for liabilities arising under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (42 U.S.C. 9601), and the Resource Conservation Recovery Act (42 U.S.C. 6901 et seq.).

(e) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act.

SEC. 327. TIMBER SALES PIPELINE RESTORATION FUNDS.—(a) The Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of the Interior shall each establish a Timber Sales Pipeline Restoration Fund (hereinafter "Agriculture Fund" and "Interior Fund" or "Funds"). Any revenues received from sales released under section 2001(k) of the fiscal year 1995 Supplemental Appropriations for Disaster Assistance and Rescissions Act, minus the funds necessary to make payments to States or local governments under other law concerning the distribution of revenues derived from the affected lands, which are in excess of $37,500,000 (hereinafter "excess revenues") shall be deposited into the Funds. The distribution of excess revenues between the Agriculture Fund and Interior Fund shall be calculated by multiplying the total of excess revenues times a fraction with a denominator of the total revenues received from all sales released under such section 2001(k) and numerators of the total revenues received from such sales on lands within the National Forest System and the total revenues received from such sales on lands administered by the Bureau of Land Management, respectively: Provided, That revenues or portions thereof from sales released under such section 2001(k), minus the amounts necessary for State and local government payments and other necessary deposits, may be deposited into the Funds immediately upon receipt thereof and subsequently redistributed between the Funds or paid into the United States Treasury as miscellaneous receipts as may be required when the calculation of excess revenues is made.

(b)(1) From the funds deposited into the Agriculture Fund and into the Interior Fund pursuant to subsection (a)—

(A) seventy-five percent shall be available, without fiscal year limitation or further appropriation, for preparation of timber sales, other than salvage sales as defined in section 2001(a)(3) of the fiscal year 1995 Supplemental Appropriations for Disaster Assistance and Rescissions Act, which—

(i) are situated on lands within the National Forest System and lands administered by the Bureau of Land Management, respectively; and

(ii) are in addition to timber sales for which funds are otherwise available in this Act or other appropriations Acts; and

(2) Expenditures under this subsection for preparation of timber sales may include expenditures for Forest Service activities within the forest land management budget line item and associated timber roads, and Bureau of Land Management activities within the Oregon and California grant lands account and the forestry management area account, as determined by the Secretary concerned.

(c) Revenues received from any timber sale prepared under subsection (b) or under this subsection, minus the amounts necessary for State and local government payments and other necessary deposits, shall be deposited into the Fund from which funds were expended on such sale. Such deposited revenues shall be available for preparation of additional timber sales and completion of additional recreation projects in accordance with the requirements set forth in subsection (b).

(d) The Secretary concerned shall terminate all payments into the Agriculture Fund or the Interior Fund, and pay any unobligated funds in the affected Fund into the United States Treasury as miscellaneous receipts, whenever the Secretary concerned makes a finding, published in the Federal Register, that sales sufficient to achieve the total allowable sales quantity of the National Forest System for the Forest Service or the allowable sales level for the Oregon and California grant lands for the Bureau of Land Management, respectively, have been prepared.

(e) Any timber sales prepared and recreation projects completed under this section shall comply with all applicable environmental and natural resource laws and regulations.

(f) The Secretary concerned shall report annually to the Committees on Appropriations of the United States Senate and the House of Representatives on expenditures made from the Fund for timber sales and recreation projects, revenues received into the Fund from timber sales, and timber sale preparation and recreation project work undertaken during the previous year and projected for the next year under the Fund. Such information shall be provided for each Forest Service region and Bureau of Land Management State office.

(g) The authority of this section shall terminate upon the termination of both Funds in accordance with the provisions of subsection (d).

SEC. 328. Of the funds provided to the National Endowment for the Arts:

(a) The Chairperson shall only award a grant to an individual if such grant is awarded to such individual for a literature fellowship, National Heritage Fellowship, or American Jazz Masters Fellowship.

(b) The Chairperson shall establish procedures to ensure that no funding provided through a grant, except a grant made to a State or regional group, may be used to make a grant to any other organization or individual to conduct activity independent of the direct grant recipient. Nothing in this subsection shall prohibit payments made in exchange for goods and services.

(c) No grant shall be used for seasonal support to a group, unless the application is specific to the contents of the season, including identified programs and/or projects.

SEC. 329. DELAY IN IMPLEMENTATION OF THE ADMINISTRATION'S RANGELAND REFORM PROGRAM.—None of the funds made available under this or any other Act may be used to implement or enforce the final rule published by the Secretary of the Interior on February 22, 1995 (60 Fed. Reg. 9894), making amendments to parts 4, 1780, and 4100 of title 43, Code of Federal Regulations, to take effect August 21, 1995, until November 21, 1995. None of the funds made available under this or any other Act may be used to publish proposed or enforce final regulations governing the management of livestock grazing on lands administered by the Forest Service until November 21, 1995.

(1) in subsection (b)—

(A) in paragraph (2), by striking "twenty" and inserting "40";

(B) in paragraph (3), by striking "ten" and inserting "20";

(C) in paragraph (4), by striking "if damage exceeding $10,000 to the property of any individual results," and inserting "if damage to the property of any individual results or if avoidance costs have been incurred exceeding $10,000, in the aggregate,"; and

(D) in paragraph (4), by striking "ten" and inserting "20";

(2) in subsection (c) by striking "ten" and inserting "20";

(3) in subsection (d), by—

(A) striking "and" at the end of paragraph (2);

(B) striking the period at the end of paragraph (3) and inserting "; and"; and

(C) adding at the end the following:

"(4) the term 'avoidance costs' means costs incurred by any individual for the purpose of—

"(A) detecting a hazardous or injurious device; or

"(B) preventing death, serious bodily injury, bodily injury, or property damage likely to result from the use of a hazardous or injurious device in violation of subsection (a)."; and

(4) by adding at the end thereof the following:

"(e) Any person injured as the result of a violation of subsection (a) may commence a civil action on his own behalf against any person who is alleged to be in violation of subsection (a). The district courts shall have jurisdiction, without regard to the amount in controversy or the citizenship of the parties, in such civil actions. The court may award, in addition to monetary damages for any injury resulting from an alleged violation of subsection (a), costs of litigation, including reasonable attorney and expert witness fees, to any prevailing or substantially prevailing party, whenever the court determines such award is appropriate.".

SEC. 331. (a) PURPOSES OF NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE ARTS.—Section 2 of the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities Act of 1965, as amended (20 U.S.C. 951), sets out findings and purposes for which the National Endowment for the Arts was established, among which are—

(1) "The arts and humanities belong to all the people of the United States";

(2) "The arts and humanities reflect the high place accorded by the American people . . . to the fostering of mutual respect for the diverse beliefs and values of all persons and groups";

(3) "Public funding of the arts and humanities is subject to the conditions that traditionally govern the use of public money [and] such funding should contribute to public support and confidence in the use of taxpayer funds"; and

(4) "Public funds provided by the Federal Government must ultimately serve public purposes the Congress defines".

(b) ADDITIONAL CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS.—Congress further finds and declares that the use of scarce funds, which have been taken from all taxpayers of the United States, to promote, disseminate, sponsor, or produce any material or performance that—

(1) denigrates the religious objects or religious beliefs of the adherents of a particular religion, or

(2) depicts or describes, in a patently offensive way, sexual or excretory activities or organs,

is contrary to the express purposes of the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities Act of 1965, as amended.

(c) PROHIBITION ON FUNDING THAT IS NOT CONSISTENT WITH THE PURPOSES OF THE ACT.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, none of the scarce funds which have been taken from all taxpayers of the United States and made available under this Act to the National Endowment for the Arts may be used to promote, disseminate, sponsor, or produce any material or performance that—

(1) denigrates the religious objects or religious beliefs of the adherents of a particular religion, or

(2) depicts or describes, in a patently offensive way, sexual or excretory activities or organs,

and this prohibition shall be strictly applied without regard to the content or viewpoint of the material or performance.

(d) SECTION NOT TO AFFECT OTHER WORKS.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to affect in any way the freedom of any artist or performer to create any material or performance using funds which have not been made available under this Act to the National Endowment for the Arts.

SEC. 332. For purposes related to the closure of the Bureau of Mines, funds made available to the United States Geological Survey, the United States Bureau of Mines, and the Bureau of Land Management shall be available for transfer, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, among the following accounts: United States Geological Survey, Surveys, investigations, and research; Bureau of Mines, Mines and minerals; and Bureau of Land Management, Management of lands and resources. The Secretary of Energy shall reimburse the Secretary of the Interior, in an amount to be determined by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, for the expenses of the transferred functions between October 1, 1995 and the effective date of the transfers of function. Such transfers shall be subject to the reprogramming guidelines of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations.

SEC. 333. No funds appropriated under this or any other Act shall be used to review or modify sourcing areas previously approved under section 490(c)(3) of the Forest Resources Conservation and Shortage Relief Act of 1990 (Public Law 101-382) or to enforce or implement Federal regulations 36 CFR part 223 promulgated on September 8, 1995. The regulations and interim rules in effect prior to September 8, 1995 (36 CFR 223.48, 36 CFR 223.87, 36 CFR 223 Subpart D, 36 CFR 223 Subpart F, and 36 CFR 261.6) shall remain in effect. The Secretary of Agriculture or the Secretary of the Interior shall not adopt any policies concerning Public Law 101-382 or existing regulations that would restrain domestic transportation or processing of timber from private lands or impose additional accountability requirements on any timber. The Secretary of Commerce shall extend until September 30, 1996, the order issued under section 491(b)(2)(A) of Public Law 101-382 and shall issue an order under section 491(b)(2)(B) of such law that will be effective October 1, 1996.

SEC. 334. The National Park Service, in accordance with the Memorandum of Agreement between the United States National Park Service and the City of Vancouver dated November 4, 1994, shall permit general aviation on its portion of Pearson Field in Vancouver, Washington until the year 2022, during which time a plan and method for transitioning from general aviation aircraft to historic aircraft shall be completed; such transition to be accomplished by that date. This action shall not be construed to limit the authority of the Federal Aviation Administration over air traffic control or aviation activities at Pearson Field or limit operations and airspace of Portland International Airport.

SEC. 335. The United States Forest Service approval of Alternative site 2 (ALT 2), issued on December 6, 1993, is hereby authorized and approved and shall be deemed to be consistent with, and permissible under, the terms of Public Law 100-696 (the Arizona-Idaho Conservation Act of 1988).

SEC. 336. Obligations for travel expenses in fiscal year 1996, for each appropriation account in this Act, may not exceed 90 percentum of fiscal year 1995 obligations for administrative travel and for travel by supervisory and non-career personnel and may not exceed 100 percentum of fiscal year 1995 obligations for program-essential travel.

SEC. 337. The number of employees detailed to and within Departmental Management in the Department of the Interior may not exceed the number of employees detailed to and within the Office of the Secretary in fiscal year 1995.

SEC. 338. Upon enactment of this Act, all funds obligated in fiscal year 1996 under "Salaries and expenses", Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation are to be offset by unobligated balances made available under this Act under the account "Public development", Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation and all funds obligated in fiscal year 1996 under "International forestry", Forest Service are to be offset by funds made available under this Act under the account "National forest system", Forest Service.

SEC. 339. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, in order to avoid or minimize the need for involuntary separations due to a reduction in force, reorganizations, transfer of function, or other similar action, the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution may pay, or authorize the payment of, voluntary separation incentive payments to Smithsonian Institution employees who separate from Federal service voluntarily during fiscal years 1996 and 1997 (whether by retirement or resignation).

(b) A voluntary separation incentive payment—

(1) shall be paid in a lump sum after the employee's separation in an amount to be determined by the Secretary, but shall not exceed $25,000;

(2) shall not be a basis for payment, and shall not be included in the computation, of any other type of benefit; and

(3) shall be paid from appropriations available for the payment of the basic pay of the employee.

(c)(1) An employee who has received a voluntary separation incentive payment under this section and accepts employment with any agency or instrumentality of the United States within 5 years after the date of the separation on which the payment is based shall be required to repay the entire amount of the incentive payment to the Smithsonian Institution.

(2) The repayment required by paragraph (1) may be waived only by the Secretary.

(3) For purposes of paragraph (1) (but not paragraph (2)), the term "employment" includes employment under a personal services contract with the United States.

(d) In addition to any other payments which it is required to make under subchapter III of chapter 83 of title 5, United States Code, the Smithsonian shall remit to the Office of Personnel Management for deposit in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund an amount equal to 15 percent of the final basic pay of each employee of the Smithsonian to whom a voluntary separation incentive payment has been paid.

This Act may be cited as the "Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996".

(c) Such amounts as may be necessary for programs, projects or activities provided for in the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996, at a rate of operations and to the extent and in the manner provided for, the provisions of such Act to be effective as if it had been enacted into law as the regular appropriations Act, as follows:

AN ACT

Making appropriations for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, and for other purposes.

TITLE I—DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

EMPLOYMENT AND TRAINING ADMINISTRATION

TRAINING AND EMPLOYMENT SERVICES

For expenses necessary to carry into effect the Job Training Partnership Act, as amended, including the purchase and hire of passenger motor vehicles, the construction, alteration, and repair of buildings and other facilities, and the purchase of real property for training centers as authorized by the Job Training Partnership Act; title II of the Civil Rights Act of 1991; the Women in Apprenticeship and Nontraditional Occupations Act; National Skill Standards Act of 1994; and the School-to-Work Opportunities Act; $3,108,978,000 plus reimbursements, of which $2,891,759,000 is available for obligation for the period July 1, 1996 through June 30, 1997; of which $121,467,000 is available for the period July 1, 1996 through June 30, 1999 for necessary expenses of construction, rehabilitation, and acquisition of Job Corps centers; and of which $95,000,000 shall be available from July 1, 1996 through September 30, 1997, for carrying out activities of the School-to-Work Opportunities Act: Provided, That $52,502,000 shall be for carrying out section 401 of the Job Training Partnership Act, $69,285,000 shall be for carrying out section 402 of such Act, $7,300,000 shall be for carrying out section 441 of such Act, $8,000,000 shall be for all activities conducted by and through the National Occupational Information Coordinating Committee under such Act, $745,700,000 shall be for carrying out title II, part A of such Act, $126,672,000 shall be for carrying out title II, part C of such Act and $5,000,000 shall be for employment-related activities of the 1996 Paralympic Games: Provided further, That no funds from any other appropriation shall be used to provide meal services at or for Job Corps centers: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Labor may waive any of the requirements contained in sections 4, 104, 105, 107, 108, 121, 164, 204, 253, 254, 264, 301, 311, 313, 314, and 315 of the Job Training Partnership Act in order to assist States in improving State workforce development systems, pursuant to a request submitted by a State that has prior to the date of enactment of this Act executed a Memorandum of Understanding with the United States requiring such State to meet agreed upon outcomes: Provided further, That funds used from this Act to carry out title III of the Job Training Partnership Act shall not be subject to the limitation contained in subsection (b) of section 315 of such Act; that the waiver allowing a reduction in the cost limitation relating to retraining services described in subsection (a)(2) of such section 315 may be granted with respect to funds from this Act if a substate grantee demonstrates to the Governor that such waiver is appropriate due to the availability of low-cost retraining services, is necessary to facilitate the provision of needs-related payments to accompany long-term training, or is necessary to facilitate the provision of appropriate basic readjustment services and that funds used from this Act to carry out the Secretary's discretionary grants under part B of such title III may be used to provide needs-related payments to participants who, in lieu of meeting the requirements relating to enrollment in training under section 314(e) of such Act, are enrolled in training by the end of the sixth week after funds have been awarded: Provided further, That service delivery areas may transfer funding provided herein under authority of title II–C of the Job Training Partnership Act to the program authorized by title II–B of that Act, if such transfer is approved by the Governor: Provided further, That service delivery areas and substate areas may transfer funding provided herein under authority of title II and title III of the Job Training Partnership Act between the programs authorized by those titles of the Act, if such transfer is approved by the Governor: Provided further, That, notwithstanding any other provision of law, any proceeds from the sale of Job Corps Center facilities shall be retained by the Secretary of Labor to carry out the Job Corps program.

COMMUNITY SERVICE EMPLOYMENT FOR OLDER AMERICANS

To carry out the activities for national grants or contracts with public agencies and public or private nonprofit organizations under paragraph (1)(A) of section 506(a) of title V of the Older Americans Act of 1965, as amended, or to carry out older worker activities as subsequently authorized, $227,500,000.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 301. No funds appropriated in this Act may be used for the transportation of students or teachers (or for the purchase of equipment for such transportation) in order to overcome racial imbalance in any school or school system, or for the transportation of students or teachers (or for the purchase of equipment for such transportation) in order to carry out a plan of racial desegregation of any school or school system.

SEC. 302. None of the funds contained in this Act shall be used to require, directly or indirectly, the transportation of any student to a school other than the school which is nearest the student's home, except for a student requiring special education, to the school offering such special education, in order to comply with title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. For the purpose of this section an indirect requirement of transportation of students includes the transportation of students to carry out a plan involving the reorganization of the grade structure of schools, the pairing of schools, or the clustering of schools, or any combination of grade restructuring, pairing or clustering. The prohibition described in this section does not include the establishment of magnet schools.

SEC. 303. No funds appropriated under this Act may be used to prevent the implementation of programs of voluntary prayer and meditation in the public schools.

SEC. 304. No funds appropriated under this Act shall be made available for opportunity to learn standards or strategies.

SEC. 305. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds available under section 458 of the Higher Education Act shall not exceed $260,000,000 for fiscal year 1996. The Department of Education shall use such funds as follows: (i) $100,000,000 for the indirect administrative expenses of the loan programs under part B and part D of the Higher Education Act; (ii) $95,000,000 for administrative cost allowances owed to guaranty agencies for fiscal year 1995 estimated at $95,000,000; and (iii) administrative cost allowances to guaranty agencies, to be paid quarterly, calculated on the basis of 0.85 percent of the total principal amount of loans upon which insurance was issued on or after October 1, 1995 by such guaranty agency. Receipt of such funds and uses of such funds by guaranty agencies shall be in accordance with section 428(f) of the Higher Education Act.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, for fiscal year 1996 there shall be available to the Secretary from funds not otherwise appropriated, funds to be obligated for subsidy costs for the William D. Ford Direct Loan Program which represent the estimated long-term cost to the Federal Government of direct administrative expenses calculated on a net present value basis.

Notwithstanding section 458 of the Higher Education Act, the Secretary may not use funds available under that section or any other section for subsequent fiscal years for administrative expenses of the William D. Ford Direct Loan Program. The Secretary may not require the return of guaranty agency reserve funds during fiscal year 1996, except after consultation with both the chairman and ranking member of the House Economic and Educational Opportunities Committee and the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee. Any reserve funds recovered by the Secretary shall be returned to the Treasury of the United States for purposes of reducing the Federal debt.

No funds available to the Secretary may be used for (1) marketing, advertising or promotion of the William D. Ford Direct Loan Program, or for the hiring of advertising agencies or other third parties to provide advertising services, or (2) payment of administrative fees relating to the William D. Ford Direct Loan Program to institutions of higher education, or (3) for purposes of conducting an evaluation of the William D. Ford Direct Loan Program except as administered by the Advisory Committee on Student Financial Assistance.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, for academic year 1996–1997 and for each succeeding academic year, loans made under part D of the Higher Education Act, including Federal Direct Consolidation Loans, shall represent not more than 40 percent of the new student loan volume for such year, except that the Secretary shall not enter into an agreement with an eligible institution that has not applied and been accepted for participation in the direct loan program on or before September 30, 1995.

SEC. 306. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be obligated or expended to carry out sections 727, 932, and 1002 of the Higher Education Act of 1965, section 621(b) of Public Law 101–589, the President's Advisory Commission on Educational Excellence for Hispanic Americans, and the President's Board of Advisors on Historically Black Colleges and Universities.

(TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 307. Not to exceed 1 percent of any appropriation made available for the current fiscal year for the Department of Education in this Act may be transferred between such appropriations, but no such appropriation shall be increased by more than 3 percent by any such transfers: Provided, That the Appropriations Committees of both Houses of Congress are notified at least fifteen days in advance of any transfers.

This title may be cited as the "Department of Education Appropriations Act, 1996".

TITLE V—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 501. The Secretaries of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education are authorized to transfer unexpended balances of prior appropriations to accounts corresponding to current appropriations provided in this Act: Provided, That such transferred balances are used for the same purpose, and for the same periods of time, for which they were originally appropriated.

SEC. 502. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 503. (a) No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used, other than for normal and recognized executive-legislative relationships, for publicity or propaganda purposes, for the preparation, distribution, or use of any kit, pamphlet, booklet, publication, radio, television, or film presentation designed to support or defeat legislation pending before the Congress, except in presentation to the Congress itself.

(b) No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used to pay the salary or expenses of any grant or contract recipient, or agent acting for such recipient, related to any activity designed to influence legislation or appropriations pending before the Congress.

SEC. 504. The Secretaries of Labor and Education are each authorized to make available not to exceed $15,000 from funds available for salaries and expenses under titles I and III, respectively, for official reception and representation expenses; the Director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service is authorized to make available for official reception and representation expenses not to exceed $2,500 from the funds available for "Salaries and expenses, Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service"; and the Chairman of the National Mediation Board is authorized to make available for official reception and representation expenses not to exceed $2,500 from funds available for "Salaries and expenses, National Mediation Board".

SEC. 505. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, no funds appropriated under this Act shall be used to carry out any program of distributing sterile needles for the hypodermic injection of any illegal drug unless the Secretary of Health and Human Services determines that such programs are effective in preventing the spread of HIV and do not encourage the use of illegal drugs.

SEC. 506. (a) PURCHASE OF AMERICAN-MADE EQUIPMENT AND PRODUCTS.—It is the sense of the Congress that, to the greatest extent practicable, all equipment and products purchased with funds made available in this Act should be American-made.

(b) NOTICE REQUIREMENT.—In providing financial assistance to, or entering into any contract with, any entity using funds made available in this Act, the head of each Federal agency, to the greatest extent practicable, shall provide to such entity a notice describing the statement made in subsection (a) by the Congress.

SEC. 507. When issuing statements, press releases, requests for proposals, bid solicitations and other documents describing projects or programs funded in whole or in part with Federal money, all grantees receiving Federal funds, including but not limited to State and local governments and recipients of Federal research grants, shall clearly state (1) the percentage of the total costs of the program or project which will be financed with Federal money, (2) the dollar amount of Federal funds for the project or program, and (3) percentage and dollar amount of the total costs of the project or program that will be financed by nongovernmental sources.

SEC. 508. None of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be expended for any abortion except when it is made known to the Federal entity or official to which funds are appropriated under this Act that such procedure is necessary to save the life of the mother or that the pregnancy is the result of an act of rape or incest.

SEC. 509. Effective October 1, 1993, and applicable thereafter, and notwithstanding any other law, each State is and remains free not to fund abortions to the extent that the State in its sole discretion deems appropriate, except where the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term.

SEC. 510. Notwithstanding any other provision of law—

(1) no amount may be transferred from an appropriation account for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education except as authorized in this or any subsequent appropriation act, or in the Act establishing the program or activity for which funds are contained in this Act;

(2) no department, agency, or other entity, other than the one responsible for administering the program or activity for which an appropriation is made in this Act, may exercise authority for the timing of the obligation and expenditure of such appropriation, or for the purposes for which it is obligated and expended, except to the extent and in the manner otherwise provided in sections 1512 and 1513 of title 31, United States Code; and

(3) no funds provided under this Act shall be available for the salary (or any part thereof) of an employee who is reassigned on a temporary detail basis to another position in the employing agency or department or in any other agency or department, unless the detail is independently approved by the head of the employing department or agency.

SEC. 511. LIMITATION ON USE OF FUNDS.—None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for the expenses of an electronic benefit transfer (EBT) task force.

SEC. 512. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to enforce the requirements of section 428(b)(1)(U)(iii) of the Higher Education Act of 1965 with respect to any lender when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that the lender has a loan portfolio under part B of title IV of such Act that is equal to or less than $5,000,000.

SEC. 513. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for Pell Grants under subpart 1 of part A of title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 to students attending an institution of higher education that is ineligible to participate in a loan program under such title as a result of a default determination under section 435(a)(2) of such Act, unless such institution has a participation rate index (as defined at 34 CFR 668.17) that is less than or equal to 0.0375.

SEC. 514. (a) HIGH COST TRAINING EXCEPTION.—Section 428H(d)(2) of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1078–8(d)(2)) is amended by striking out the period at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof a semicolon and the following: "except in cases where the Secretary determines that a higher amount is warranted in order to carry out the purpose of this part with respect to students engaged in specialized training requiring exceptionally high costs of education, but the annual insurable limit per student shall not be deemed to be exceeded by a line of credit under which actual payments by the lender to the borrower will not be made in any years in excess of the annual limit.".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall be effective for loans made to cover the cost of instruction for periods of enrollment beginning on or after July 1, 1996.

SEC. 515. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to carry out any Federal program, or to provide financial assistance to any State, when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that—

(1) such Federal program or State subject any health care entity to discrimination on the basis that—

(A) the entity refuses to undergo training in the performance of induced abortions, to provide such training, to perform such abortions, or to provide referrals for such abortions;

(B) the entity refuses to make arrangements for any of the activities specified in subparagraph (A); or

(C) the entity attends (or attended) a postgraduate physician training program, or any other program of training in the health professions, that does not (or did not) require or provide training in the performance of induced abortions, or make arrangements for the provision of such training; or

(2) in granting a legal status to a health care entity (including a license or certificate), or in providing to the entity financial assistance, a service, or another benefit, such Federal program or State require that the entity be an accredited postgraduate physician training program, or that the entity have completed or be attending such a program, if the applicable standards for accreditation of the program include the standard that the program must require or provide training in the performance of induced abortions, or make arrangements for the provision of such training.

EXTENSION OF PERIOD OF HOME HEALTH AGENCY RECERTIFICATION SURVEYS

SEC. 516. Section 1891(c)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395bbb(c)(2)(A)) is amended—

(1) by striking "15 months" and inserting "36 months", and

(2) by striking the second sentence and inserting the following: "The Secretary shall establish a frequency for surveys of home health agencies within this 36-month interval commensurate with the need to assure the delivery of quality home health services.".

TITLE VI—ADDITIONAL APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 601. In addition to amounts otherwise provided in this Act, the following amounts are hereby appropriated as specified for the following appropriation accounts: Health Care Financing Administration, "Program Management", $396,000,000; Office of the Secretary, "Office of Inspector General", $43,000,000; and Social Security Administration, "Limitation on Administrative Expenses", $111,000,000.

SEC. 602. Appropriations and funds made available pursuant to section 601 of this Act shall be available until enactment into law of a subsequent appropriation for fiscal year 1996 for any project or activity provided for in section 601.

This Act may be cited as the "Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996".

(d) Such amounts as may be necessary for programs, projects or activities provided for in the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996, at a rate of operations and to the extent and in the manner provided for, the provisions of such Act to be effective as if it had been enacted into law as the regular appropriations Act, as follows:

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 101. Any appropriation for 1996 for "Compensation and pensions", "Readjustment benefits", and "Veterans insurance and indemnities" may be transferred to any other of the mentioned appropriations.

SEC. 102. Appropriations available to the Department of Veterans Affairs for 1996 for salaries and expenses shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

SEC. 103. No part of the appropriations in this Act for the Department of Veterans Affairs (except the appropriations for "Construction, major projects", "Construction, minor projects", and the "Parking revolving fund") shall be available for the purchase of any site for or toward the construction of any new hospital or home.

SEC. 104. No part of the foregoing appropriations shall be available for hospitalization or examination of any persons except beneficiaries entitled under the laws bestowing such benefits to veterans, unless reimbursement of cost is made to the appropriation at such rates as may be fixed by the Secretary of Veterans Affairs.

SEC. 105. Appropriations available to the Department of Veterans Affairs for fiscal year 1996 for "Compensation and pensions", "Readjustment benefits", and "Veterans insurance and indemnities" shall be available for payment of prior year accrued obligations required to be recorded by law against the corresponding prior year accounts within the last quarter of fiscal year 1995.

SEC. 106. Appropriations accounts available to the Department of Veterans Affairs for fiscal year 1996 shall be available to pay prior year obligations of corresponding prior year appropriations accounts resulting from title X of the Competitive Equality Banking Act, Public Law 100–86, except that if such obligations are from trust fund accounts they shall be payable from "Compensation and pensions".

SEC. 107. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs is authorized to transfer, without compensation or reimbursement, the jurisdiction and control of a parcel of land consisting of approximately 6.3 acres, located on the south edge of the Department of Veterans Affairs Medical and Regional Office Center, Wichita, Kansas, including buildings Nos. 8 and 30 and other improvements thereon, to the Secretary of Transportation for the purpose of expanding and modernizing United States Highway 54: Provided, That if necessary, the exact acreage and legal description of the real property transferred shall be determined by a survey satisfactory to the Secretary of Veterans Affairs and the Secretary of Transportation shall bear the cost of such survey: Provided further, That the Secretary of Transportation shall be responsible for all costs associated with the transferred land and improvements thereon, and compliance with all existing statutes and regulations: Provided further, That the Secretary of Veterans Affairs and the Secretary of Transportation may require such additional terms and conditions as each Secretary considers appropriate to effectuate this transfer of land.

TITLE II

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

HOUSING PROGRAMS

ANNUAL CONTRIBUTIONS FOR ASSISTED HOUSING

For assistance under the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended ("the Act" herein) (42 U.S.C. 1437), not otherwise provided for, $10,155,795,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That of the total amount provided under this head, $160,000,000 shall be for the development or acquisition cost of public housing for Indian families, including amounts for housing under the mutual help homeownership opportunity program under section 202 of the Act (42 U.S.C. 1437bb): Provided further, That of the total amount provided under this head, $2,500,000,000 shall be for modernization of existing public housing projects pursuant to section 14 of the Act (42 U.S.C. 14371), including up to $20,000,000 for the inspection of public housing units, contract expertise, and training and technical assistance, directly or indirectly, under grants, contracts, or cooperative agreements, to assist in the oversight and management of public and Indian housing (whether or not the housing is being modernized with assistance under this proviso) or tenant-based assistance, including, but not limited to, an annual resident survey, data collection and analysis, training and technical assistance by or to officials and employees of the Department and of public housing agencies and to residents in connection with the public and Indian housing program: Provided further, That of the total amount provided under this head, $400,000,000 shall be for rental subsidy contracts under the section 8 existing housing certificate program and the housing voucher program under section 8 of the Act, except that such amounts shall be used only for units necessary to provide housing assistance for residents to be relocated from existing federally subsidized or assisted housing, for replacement housing for units demolished or disposed of (including units to be disposed of pursuant to a homeownership program under section 5(h) or title III of the United States Housing Act of 1937) from the public housing inventory, for funds related to litigation settlements, for the conversion of section 23 projects to assistance under section 8, for public housing agencies to implement allocation plans approved by the Secretary for designated housing, for funds to carry out the family unification program, and for the relocation of witnesses in connection with efforts to combat crime in public and assisted housing pursuant to a request from a law enforcement or prosecution agency: Provided further, That of the total amount provided under this head, $4,350,862,000 shall be for assistance under the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437) for use in connection with expiring or terminating section 8 subsidy contracts, such amounts shall be merged with all remaining obligated and unobligated balances heretofore appropriated under the heading "Renewal of expiring section 8 subsidy contracts": Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, assistance reserved under the two preceding provisos may be used in connection with any provision of Federal law enacted in this Act or after the enactment of this Act that authorizes the use of rental assistance amounts in connection with such terminated or expired contracts: Provided further, That the Secretary may determine not to apply section 8(o)(6)(B) of the Act to housing vouchers during fiscal year 1996: Provided further, That of the total amount provided under this head, $610,575,000 shall be for amendments to section 8 contracts other than contracts for projects developed under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, as amended; and $261,000,000 shall be for section 8 assistance and rehabilitation grants for property disposition: Provided further, That 50 per centum of the amounts of budget authority, or in lieu thereof 50 per centum of the cash amounts associated with such budget authority, that are recaptured from projects described in section 1012(a) of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Amendments Act of 1988 (Public Law 100–628, 102 Stat. 3224, 3268) shall be rescinded, or in the case of cash, shall be remitted to the Treasury, and such amounts of budget authority or cash recaptured and not rescinded or remitted to the Treasury shall be used by State housing finance agencies or local governments or local housing agencies with projects approved by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development for which settlement occurred after January 1, 1992, in accordance with such section: Provided further, That of the total amount provided under this head, $171,000,000 shall be for housing opportunities for persons with AIDS under title VIII, subtitle D of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act; and $65,000,000 shall be for the lead-based paint hazard reduction program as authorized under sections 1011 and 1053 of the Residential Lead-Based Hazard Reduction Act of 1992: Provided further, That the Secretary may make up to $5,000,000 of any amount recaptured in this account available for the development of performance and financial systems.

Of the total amount provided under this head, $624,000,000, plus amounts recaptured from interest reduction payment contracts for section 236 projects whose owners prepay their mortgages during fiscal year 1996 (which amounts shall be transferred and merged with this account), shall be for use in conjunction with properties that are eligible for assistance under the Low Income Housing Preservation and Resident Homeownership Act of 1990 (LIHPRHA) or the Emergency Low-Income Housing Preservation Act of 1987 (ELIHPA): Provided, That prior to July 1, 1996, funding to carry out plans of action shall be limited to sales of projects to non-profit organizations, tenant-sponsored organizations, and other priority purchasers: Provided further, That of the amount made available by this paragraph, up to $10,000,000 shall be available for preservation technical assistance grants pursuant to section 253 of the Housing and Community Development

Act of 1987, as amended: Provided further, That with respect to amounts made available by this paragraph, after July 1, 1996, if the Secretary determines that the demand for funding may exceed amounts available for such funding, the Secretary (1) may determine priorities for distributing available funds, including giving priority funding to tenants displaced due to mortgage prepayment and to projects that have not yet been funded but which have approved plans of action; and (2) may impose a temporary moratorium on applications by potential recipients of such funding: Provided further, That an owner of eligible low-income housing may prepay the mortgage or request voluntary terminaton of a mortgage insurance contract, so long as said owner agrees not to raise rents for sixty days after such prepayment: Provided further, That an owner of eligible low-income housing who has not timely filed a second notice under section 216(d) prior to the effective date of this Act may file such notice by March 1, 1996: Provided further, That such developments have been determined to have preservation equity at least equal to the lesser of $5,000 per unit or $500,000 per project or the equivalent of eight times the most recently published fair market rent for the area in which the project is located as the appropriate unit size for all of the units in the eligible project: Provided further, That the Secretary may modify the regulatory agreement to permit owners and priority purchasers to retain rental income in excess of the basic rental charge in projects assisted under section 236 of the National Housing Act, for the purpose of preserving the low and moderate income character of the housing: Provided further, That the Secretary may give priority to funding and processing the following projects provided that the funding is obligated not later than August 1, 1996: (1) projects with approved plans of action to retain the housing that file a modified plan of action no later than July 1, 1996 to transfer the housing; (2) projects with approved plans of action that are subject to a repayment or settlement agreement that was executed between the owner and the Secretary prior to September 1, 1995; (3) projects for which submissions were delayed as a result of their location in areas that were designated as a Federal disaster area in a Presidential Disaster Declaration; and (4) projects whose processing was, in fact or in practical effect, suspended, deferred, or interrupted for a period of twelve months or more because of differing interpretations, by the Secretary and an owner or by the Secretary and a State or local rent regulatory agency, concerning the timing of filing eligibility or the effect of a presumptively applicable State or local rent control law or regulation on the determination of preservation value under section 213 of LIHPRHA, as amended, if the owner of such project filed notice of intent to extend the low-income affordability restrictions of the housing, or transfer to a qualified purchaser who would extend such restrictions, on or before November 1, 1993: Provided further, That eligible low-income housing shall include properties meeting the requirements of this paragraph with mortgages that are held by a State agency as a result of a sale by the Secretary without insurance, which immediately before the sale would have been eligible low-income housing under LIHPRHA: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, subject to the availability of appropriated funds, each unassisted low-income family residing in the housing on the date of prepayment or voluntary termination, and whose rent, as a result of a rent increase occurring no later than one year after the date of the prepayment, exceeds 30 percent of adjusted income, shall be offered tenant-based assistance in accordance with section 8 or any successor program, under which the family shall pay no less for rent than it paid on such date: Provided further, That any family receiving tenant-based assistance under the preceding proviso may elect (1) to remain in the unit of the housing and if the rent exceeds the fair market rent or payment standard, as applicable, the rent shall be deemed to be the applicable standard, so long as the administering public housing agency finds that the rent is reasonable in comparison with rents charged for comparable unassisted housing units in the market or (2) to move from the housing and the rent will be subject to the fair market rent of the payment standard, as applicable, under existing program rules and procedures: Provided further, That up to $10,000,000 of the amount made available by this paragraph may be used at the discretion of the Secretary to reimburse owners of eligible properties for which plans of action were submitted prior to the effective date of this Act, but were not executed for lack of available funds, with such reimbursement available only for documented costs directly applicable to the preparation of the plan of action as determined by the Secretary, and shall be made available on terms and conditions to be established by the Secretary: Provided further, That, notwithstanding any other provision of law, effective October 1, 1996, the Secretary shall suspend further processing of preservation applications which do not have approved plans of action.

Of the total amount provided under this head, $780,190,000 shall be for capital advances, including amendments to capital advance contracts, for housing for the elderly, as authorized by section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, as amended, and for project rental assistance, and amendments to contracts for project rental assistance, for supportive housing for the elderly under section 202(c)(2) of the Housing Act of 1959; and $233,168,000 shall be for capital advances, including amendments to capital advance contracts, for supportive housing for persons with disabilities, as authorized by section 811 of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act; and for project rental assistance, and amendments to contracts for project rental assistance, for supportive housing for persons with disabilities as authorized by section 811 of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act: Provided, That the Secretary may designate up to 25 percent of the amounts earmarked under this paragraph for section 811 of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act for tenant-based assistance, as authorized under that section, which assistance is five-years in duration: Provided further, That the Secretary may waive any provision of section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959 and section 811 of the National Affordable Housing Act (including the provisions governing the terms and conditions of project rental assistance) that the Secretary determines is not necessary to achieve the objectives of these programs, or that otherwise impedes the ability to develop, operate or administer projects assisted under these programs, and may make provision for alternative conditions or terms where appropriate.

For grants to public housing agencies for the purposes of enabling the demolition of obsolete public housing projects or portions thereof, the revitalization (where appropriate) of sites (including remaining public housing units) on which such projects are located, replacement housing which will avoid or lessen concentrations of very low-income families, and tenant-based assistance in accordance with section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 for the purpose of providing replacement housing and assisting tenants to be displaced by the demolition, $280,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall award such funds to public housing agencies by a competition which includes among other relevant criteria the local and national impact of the proposed demolition and revitalization activities and the extent to which the public housing agency could undertake such activities without the additional assistance to be provided hereunder: Provided further, That eligible expenditures hereunder shall be those expenditures eligible under section 8 and section 14 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437f and l): Provided further, That the Secretary may impose such conditions and requirements as the Secretary deems appropriate to effectuate the purposes of this paragraph: Provided further, That the Secretary may require an agency selected to receive funding to make arrangements satisfactory to the Secretary for use of an entity other than the agency to carry out this program where the Secretary determines that such action will help to effectuate the purpose of this paragraph: Provided further, That in the event an agency selected to receive funding does not proceed expeditiously as determined by the Secretary, the Secretary shall withdraw any funding made available pursuant to this paragraph that has not been obligated by the agency and distribute such funds to one or more other eligible agencies, or to other entities capable of proceeding expeditiously in the same locality with the original program: Provided further, That of the foregoing $280,000,000, the Secretary may use up to .67 per centum for technical assistance, to be provided directly or indirectly by grants, contracts or cooperative agreements, including training and cost of necessary travel for participants in such training, by or to officials and employees of the Department and of public housing agencies and to residents: Provided further, That any replacement housing provided with assistance under this head shall be subject to section 18(f) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended by section 201(b)(2) of this Act.

FLEXIBLE SUBSIDY FUND

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

From the fund established by section 236(g) of the National Housing Act, as amended, all uncommitted balances of excess rental charges as of September 30, 1995, and any collections during fiscal year 1996 shall be transferred, as authorized under such section, to the fund authorized under section 201(j) of the Housing and Community Development Amendments of 1978, as amended.

RENTAL HOUSING ASSISTANCE

(RESCISSION)

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

EXTEND ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS FROM THE RESCISSION ACT

SEC. 201. (a) PUBLIC AND INDIAN HOUSING MODERNIZATION.—

(1) EXPANSION OF USE OF MODERNIZATION FUNDING.—Subsection 14(q) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended to read as follows:

"(q)(1) In addition to the purposes enumerated in subsections (a) and (b), a public housing agency may use modernization assistance provided under section 14, and development assistance provided under section 5(a) that was not allocated, as determined by the Secretary, for priority replacement housing, for any eligible activity authorized by this section, by section 5, or by applicable Appropriations Acts for a public housing agency, including the demolition, rehabilitation, revitalization, and replacement of existing units and projects and, for up to 10 percent of its allocation of such funds in any fiscal year, for any operating subsidy purpose authorized in section 9. Except for assistance used for operating subsidy purposes under the preceding sentence, assistance provided to a public housing agency under this section shall principally be used for the physical improvement or replacement of public housing and for associated management improvements, except as otherwise approved by the Secretary. Public housing units assisted under this paragraph shall be eligible for operating subsidies, unless the Secretary determines that such units or projects have not received sufficient assistance under this Act or do not meet other requirements of this Act.

"(2) A public housing agency may provide assistance to developments that include units for other than very low-income families ('mixed income developments'), in the form of a grant, loan, operating assistance, or other form of investment which may be made to—

"(A) a partnership, a limited liability company, or other legal entity in which the public housing agency or its affiliate is a general partner, managing member, or otherwise participates in the activities of such entity; or

"(B) any entity which grants to the public housing agency the option to purchase the development within 20 years after initial occupancy in accordance with section 42(i)(7) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended. Units shall be made available in such developments for periods of not less than 20 years, by master contract or by individual lease, for occupancy by low-income families referred from time to time by the public housing agency. The number of such units shall be:

"(i) in the same proportion to the total number of units in such development that the total financial commitment provided by the public housing agency bears to the value of the total financial commitment in the development, or

"(ii) not be less than the number of units that could have been developed under the conventional public housing program with the assistance involved, or

"(iii) as may otherwise be approved by the Secretary.

"(3) A mixed income development may elect to have all units subject only to the applicable local real estate taxes, notwithstanding that the low-income units assisted by public housing funds would otherwise be subject to section 6(d) of the Housing Act of 1937.

"(4) If an entity that owns or operates a mixed-income project under this subsection enters into a contract with a public housing agency, the terms of which obligate the entity to operate and maintain a specified number of units in the project as public housing units in accordance with the requirements of this Act for the period required by law, such contractual terms may provide that, if, as a result of a reduction in appropriations under section 9, or any other change in applicable law, the public housing agency is unable to fulfill its contractual obligations with respect to those public housing units, that entity may deviate, under procedures and requirements developed through regulations by the Secretary, from otherwise applicable restrictions under this Act regarding rents, income eligibility, and other areas of public housing management with respect to a portion or all of those public housing units, to the extent necessary to preserve the viability of those units while maintaining the low-income character of the units, to the maximum extent practicable.".

(2) APPLICABILITY.—Section 14(q) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended by subsection (a) of this section, shall be effective only with respect to assistance provided from funds made available for fiscal year 1996 or any preceding fiscal year.

(3) APPLICABILITY TO IHAS.—In accordance with section 201(b)(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, the amendment made by this subsection shall apply to public housing developed or operated pursuant to a contract between the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development and an Indian housing authority.

(b) ONE-FOR-ONE REPLACEMENT OF PUBLIC AND INDIAN HOUSING.—

(1) EXTENDED AUTHORITY.—Section 1002(d) of Public Law 104–19 is amended to read as follows:

"(d) Subsections (a), (b), and (c) shall be effective for applications for the demolition, disposition, or conversion to homeownership of public housing approved by the Secretary, and other consolidation and relocation activities of public housing agencies undertaken, on, before, or after September 30, 1995 and before September 30, 1996.".

(2) Section 18(f) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence:

"No one may rely on the preceding sentence as the basis for reconsidering a final order of a court issued, or a settlement approved by, a court.".

(3) APPLICABILITY.—In accordance with section 201(b)(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, the amendments made by this subsection and by sections 1002 (a), (b), and (c) of Public Law 104–19 shall apply to public housing developed or operated pursuant to a contract between the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development and an Indian housing authority.

CONVERSION OF CERTAIN PUBLIC HOUSING TO VOUCHERS

SEC. 202. (a) IDENTIFICATION OF UNITS.—Each public housing agency shall identify any public housing developments—

(1) that are on the same or contiguous sites;

(2) that total more than—

(A) 300 dwelling units; or

(B) in the case of high-rise family buildings or substantially vacant buildings; 300 dwelling units;

(3) that have a vacancy rate of at least 10 percent for dwelling units not in funded, on schedule modernization programs;

(4) identified as distressed housing that the public housing agency cannot assure the long-term viability as public housing through reasonable revitalization, density reduction, or achievement of a broader range of household income; and

(5) for which the estimated cost of continued operation and modernization of the developments as public housing exceeds the cost of providing tenant-based assistance under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 for all families in occupancy, based on appropriate indicators of cost (such as the percentage of total development cost required for modernization).

(b) IMPLEMENTATION AND ENFORCEMENT.—

(1) STANDARDS FOR IMPLEMENTATION.—The Secretary shall establish standards to permit implementation of this section in fiscal year 1996.

(2) CONSULTATION.—Each public housing agency shall consult with the applicable public housing tenants and the unit of general local government in identifying any public housing developments under subsection (a).

(3) FAILURE OF PHAS TO COMPLY WITH SUBSECTION (a).—Where the Secretary determines that—

(A) a public housing agency has failed under subsection (a) to identify public housing developments for removal from the inventory of the agency in a timely manner;

(B) a public housing agency has failed to identify one or more public housing developments which the Secretary determines should have been identified under subsection (a); or the Secretary may designate the developments to be removed from the inventory of the public housing agency pursuant to this section.

(C) one or more of the developments identified by the public housing agency pursuant to subsection (a) should not, in the determination of the Secretary, have been identified under that subsection;

(c) REMOVAL OF UNITS FROM THE INVENTORIES OF PUBLIC HOUSING AGENCIES.—

(1) Each public housing agency shall develop and carry out a plan in conjunction with the Secretary for the removal of public housing units identified under subsection (a) or subsection (b)(3), over a period of up to five years, from the inventory of the public housing agency and the annual contributions contract. The plan shall be approved by the relevant local official as not inconsistent with the Comprehensive Housing Affordability Strategy under title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992, including a description of any disposition and demolition plan for the public housing units.

(2) The Secretary may extend the deadline in paragraph (1) for up to an additional five years where the Secretary makes a determination that the deadline is impracticable.

(3) The Secretary shall take appropriate actions to ensure removal of developments identified under subsection (a) or subsection (b)(3) from the inventory of a public housing agency, if the public housing agency fails to adequately develop a plan under paragraph (1), or fails to adequately implement such plan in accordance with the terms of the plan.

(4) To the extent approved in appropriations Acts, the Secretary may establish requirements and provide funding under the Urban Revitalization Demonstration program for demolition and disposition of public housing under this section.

(5) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, if a development is removed from the inventory of a public housing agency and the annual contributions contract pursuant to paragraph (1), the Secretary may authorize or direct the transfer of—

(A) in the case of an agency receiving assistance under the comprehensive improvement assistance program, any amounts obligated by the Secretary for the modernization of such development pursuant to section 14 of the United States Housing Act of 1937;

(B) in the case of an agency receiving public and Indian housing modernization assistance by formula pursuant to section 14 of the United States Housing Act of 1937, any amounts provided to the agency which are attributable pursuant to the formula for allocating such assistance to the development removed from the inventory of that agency; and to the tenant-based assistance program or appropriate site revitalization of such agency.

(C) in the case of an agency receiving assistance for the major reconstruction of obsolete projects, any amounts obligated by the Secretary for the major reconstruction of the development pursuant to section 5 of such Act,

(6) CESSATION OF UNNECESSARY SPENDING.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, if, in the determination of the Secretary, a development meets or is likely to meet the criteria set forth in subsection (a), the Secretary may direct the public housing agency to cease additional spending in connection with the development, except to the extent that additional spending is necessary to ensure decent, safe, and sanitary housing until the Secretary determines or approves an appropriate course of action with respect to such development under this section.

(d) CONVERSION TO TENANT-BASED ASSISTANCE.—

(1) The Secretary shall make authority available to a public housing agency to provide tenant-based assistance pursuant to section 8 to families residing in any development that is removed from the inventory of the public housing agency and the annual contributions contract pursuant to subsection (b).

(2) Each conversion plan under subsection (c) shall—

(A) require the agency to notify families residing in the development, consistent with any guidelines issued by the Secretary governing such notifications, that the development shall be removed from the inventory of the public housing agency and the families shall receive tenant-based or project-based assistance, and to provide any necessary counseling for families; and

(B) ensure that all tenants affected by a determination under this section that a development shall be removed from the inventory of a public housing agency shall be offered tenant-based or project-based assistance and shall be relocated, as necessary, to other decent, safe, sanitary, and affordable housing which is, to the maximum extent practicable, housing of their choice.

(e) IN GENERAL.—

(1) The Secretary may require a public housing agency to provide such information as the Secretary considers necessary for the administration of this section.

(2) As used in this section, the term "development" shall refer to a project or projects, or to portions of a project or projects, as appropriate.

(3) Section 18 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 shall not apply to the demolition of developments removed from the inventory of the public housing agency under this section.

STREAMLINING SECTION 8 TENANT-BASED ASSISTANCE

SEC. 203. (a) "TAKE-ONE, TAKE-ALL".—Section 8(t) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is hereby repealed.

(b) EXEMPTION FROM NOTICE REQUIREMENTS FOR THE CERTIFICATE AND VOUCHER PROGRAMS.—Section 8(c) of such Act is amended—

(1) in paragraph (8), by inserting after "section" the following: "(other than a contract for assistance under the certificate or voucher program)"; and

(2) in the first sentence of paragraph (9), by striking "(but not less than 90 days in the case of housing certificates or vouchers under subsection (b) or (o))" and inserting ", other than a contract under the certificate or voucher program".

(c) ENDLESS LEASE.—Section 8(d)(1)(B) of such Act is amended—

(1) in clause (ii), by inserting "during the term of the lease," after "(ii)"; and

(2) in clause (iii), by striking "provide that" and inserting "during the term of the lease,".

(d) APPLICABILITY.—The provisions of this section shall be effective for fiscal year 1996 only.

PUBLIC HOUSING/SECTION 8 MOVING TO WORK DEMONSTRATION

SEC. 204. (a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this demonstration is to give public housing agencies and the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development the flexibility to design and test various approaches for providing and administering housing assistance that: reduce cost and achieve greater cost effectiveness in Federal expenditures; give incentives to families with children where the head of household is working, seeking work, or is preparing for work by participating in job training, educational programs, or programs that assist people to obtain employment and become economically self-sufficient; and increase housing choices for low-income families.

(b) PROGRAM AUTHORITY.—The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall conduct a demonstration program under this section beginning in fiscal year 1996 under which up to 30 public housing agencies (including Indian housing authorities) administering the public or Indian housing program and the section 8 housing assistance payments program, administering a total number of public housing units not in excess of 25,000, may be selected by the Secretary to participate. The Secretary shall provide training and technical assistance during the demonstration and conduct detailed evaluations of up to 15 such agencies in an effort to identify replicable program models promoting the purpose of the demonstration. Under the demonstration, notwithstanding any provision of the United States Housing Act of 1937 except as provided in subsection (e), an agency may combine operating assistance provided under section 9 of the United States Housing Act of 1937, modernization assistance provided under section 14 of such Act, and assistance provided under section 8 of such Act for the certificate and voucher programs, to provide housing assistance for low-income families, as defined in section 3(b)(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, and services to facilitate the transition to work on such terms and conditions as the agency may propose and the Secretary may approve.

(c) APPLICATION.—An application to participate in the demonstration—

(1) shall request authority to combine assistance under sections 8, 9, and 14 of the United States Housing Act of 1937;

(2) shall be submitted only after the public housing agency provides for citizen participation through a public hearing and, if appropriate, other means;

(3) shall include a plan developed by the agency that takes into account comments from the public hearing and any other public comments on the proposed program, and comments from current and prospective residents who would be affected, and that includes criteria for—

(A) families to be assisted, which shall require that at least 75 percent of the families assisted by participating demonstration public housing authorities shall be very low-income families, as defined in section 3(b)(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, and at least 50 percent of the families selected shall have incomes that do not exceed 30 percent of the median family income for the area, as determined by the Secretary with adjustments for smaller and larger families, except that the Secretary may establish income ceilings higher or lower than 30 percent of the median for the area on the basis of the Secretary's findings that such variations are necessary because of unusually high or low family income;

(B) establishing a reasonable rent policy, which shall be designed to encourage employment and self-sufficiency by participating families, consistent with the purpose of this demonstration, such as by excluding some or all of a family's earned income for purposes of determining rent;

(C) continuing to assist substantially the same total number of eligible low-income families as would have been served had the amounts not been combined;

(D) maintaining a comparable mix of families (by family size) as would have been provided had the amounts not been used under the demonstration; and

(E) assuring that housing assisted under the demonstration program meets housing quality standards established or approved by the Secretary; and

(4) may request assistance for training and technical assistance to assist with design of the demonstration and to participate in a detailed evaluation.

(d) SELECTION.—In selecting among applications, the Secretary shall take into account the potential of each agency to plan and carry out a program under the demonstration, the relative performance by an agency under the public housing management assessment program under section 6(j) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, and other appropriate factors as determined by the Secretary.

(e) APPLICABILITY OF 1937 ACT PROVISIONS.—

(1) Section 18 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 shall continue to apply to public housing notwithstanding any use of the housing under this demonstration.

(2) Section 12 of such Act shall apply to housing assisted under the demonstration, other than housing assisted solely due to occupancy by families receiving tenant-based assistance.

(f) EFFECT ON SECTION 8, OPERATING SUBSIDIES, AND COMPREHENSIVE GRANT PROGRAM ALLOCATIONS.—The amount of assistance received under section 8, section 9, or pursuant to section 14 by a public housing agency participating in the demonstration under this part shall not be diminished by its participation.

(g) RECORDS, REPORTS, AND AUDITS.—

(1) KEEPING OF RECORDS.—Each agency shall keep such records as the Secretary may prescribe as reasonably necessary to disclose the amounts and the disposition of amounts under this demonstration, to ensure compliance with the requirements of this section, and to measure performance.

(2) REPORTS.—Each agency shall submit to the Secretary a report, or series of reports, in a form and at a time specified by the Secretary. Each report shall—

(A) document the use of funds made available under this section;

(B) provide such data as the Secretary may request to assist the Secretary in assessing the demonstration; and

(C) describe and analyze the effect of assisted activities in addressing the objectives of this part.

(3) ACCESS TO DOCUMENTS BY THE SECRETARY.—The Secretary shall have access for the purpose of audit and examination to any books, documents, papers, and records that are pertinent to assistance in connection with, and the requirements of, this section.

(4) ACCESS TO DOCUMENTS BY THE COMPTROLLER GENERAL.—The Comptroller General of the United States, or any of the duly authorized representatives of the Comptroller General, shall have access for the purpose of audit and examination to any books, documents, papers, and records that are pertinent to assistance in connection with, and the requirements of, this section.

(h) EVALUATION AND REPORT.—

(1) CONSULTATION WITH PHA AND FAMILY REPRESENTATIVES.—In making assessments throughout the demonstration, the Secretary shall consult with representatives of public housing agencies and residents.

(2) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 180 days after the end of the third year of the demonstration, the Secretary shall submit to the Congress a report evaluating the programs carried out under the demonstration. The report shall also include findings and recommendations for any appropriate legislative action.

(i) FUNDING FOR TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE AND EVALUATION.—From amounts appropriated for assistance under section 14 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 for fiscal years 1996, 1997, and 1998, the Secretary may use up to a total of $5,000,000—

(1) to provide, directly or by contract, training and technical assistance—

(A) to public housing agencies that express an interest to apply for training and technical assistance pursuant to subsection (c)(4), to assist them in designing programs to be proposed for the demonstration; and

(B) to up to 10 agencies selected to receive training and technical assistance pursuant to subsection (c)(4), to assist them in implementing the approved program; and

(2) to conduct detailed evaluations of the activities of the public housing agencies under paragraph (1)(B), directly or by contract.

EXTENSION OF MULTIFAMILY HOUSING FINANCE PROGRAM

SEC. 205. (a) The first sentence of section 542(b)(5) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992 (12 U.S.C. 1707 note) is amended by striking "on not more than 15,000 units over fiscal years 1993 and 1994" and inserting "on not more than 7,500 units during fiscal year 1996".

(b) The first sentence of section 542(c)(4) of the Housing and Community Development

Act of 1992 (12 U.S.C. 1707 note) is amended by striking "on not to exceed 30,000 units over fiscal years 1993, 1994, and 1995" and inserting "on not more than 10,000 units during fiscal year 1996".

FORECLOSURE OF HUD-HELD MORTGAGES THROUGH THIRD PARTIES

SEC. 206. During fiscal year 1996, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development may delegate to one or more entities the authority to carry out some or all of the functions and responsibilities of the Secretary in connection with the foreclosure of mortgages held by the Secretary under the National Housing Act.

RESTRUCTURING OF THE HUD MULTIFAMILY MORTGAGE PORTFOLIO THROUGH STATE HOUSING FINANCE AGENCIES.

SEC. 207. During fiscal year 1996, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development may sell or otherwise transfer multifamily mortgages held by the Secretary under the National Housing Act to a State housing finance agency in connection with a program authorized under section 542 (b) or (c) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992 without regard to the unit limitations in section 542(b)(5) or 542(c)(4) of such Act.

TRANSFER OF SECTION 8 AUTHORITY

SEC. 208. Section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by adding the following new subsection at the end:

"(bb) TRANSFER OF BUDGET AUTHORITY.—If an assistance contract under this section, other than a contract for tenant-based assistance, is terminated or is not renewed, or if the contract expires, the Secretary shall, in order to provide continued assistance to eligible families, including eligible families receiving the benefit of the project-based assistance at the time of the termination, transfer any budget authority remaining in the contract to another contract. The transfer shall be under such terms as the Secretary may prescribe.".

DOCUMENTATION OF MULTIFAMILY REFINANCINGS

SEC. 209. Notwithstanding the 16th paragraph under the item relating to "administrative provisions" in title II of the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1995 (Public Law 103-327; 108 Stat. 2316), the amendments to section 223(a)(7) of the National Housing Act made by the 15th paragraph of such Act shall be effective during fiscal year 1996 and thereafter.

FHA MULTIFAMILY DEMONSTRATION AUTHORITY

SEC. 210. (a) On and after October 1, 1995, and before October 1, 1997, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall initiate a demonstration program with respect to multifamily projects whose owners agree to participate and whose mortgages are insured under the National Housing Act and that are assisted under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 and whose present section 8 rents are, in the aggregate, in excess of the fair market rent of the locality in which the project is located. These programs shall be designed to test the feasibility and desirability of the goal of ensuring, to the maximum extent practicable, that the debt service and operating expenses, including adequate reserves, attributable to such multifamily projects can be supported with or without mortgage insurance under the National Housing Act and with or without above-market rents and utilizing project-based assistance or, with the consent of the property owner, tenant-based assistance, while taking into account the need for assistance of low- and very low-income families in such projects. In carrying out this demonstration, the Secretary may use arrangements with third parties, under which the Secretary may provide for the assumption by the third parties (by delegation, contract, or otherwise) of some or all of the functions, obligations, and benefits of the Secretary.

(1) GOALS.—The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall carry out the demonstration programs under this section in a manner that—

(A) will protect the financial interests of the Federal Government;

(B) will result in significant discretionary cost savings through debt restructuring and subsidy reduction; and

(C) will, in the least costly fashion, address the goals of—

(i) maintaining existing housing stock in a decent, safe, and sanitary condition;

(ii) minimizing the involuntary displacement of tenants;

(iii) restructuring the mortgages of such projects in a manner that is consistent with local housing market conditions;

(iv) supporting fair housing strategies;

(v) minimizing any adverse income tax impact on property owners; and

(vi) minimizing any adverse impact on residential neighborhoods.

In determining the manner in which a mortgage is to be restructured or the subsidy reduced, the Secretary may balance competing goals relating to individual projects in a manner that will further the purposes of this section.

(2) DEMONSTRATION APPROACHES.—In carrying out the demonstration programs, subject to the appropriation in subsection (f), the Secretary may use one or more of the following approaches:

(A) Joint venture arrangements with third parties, under which the Secretary may provide for the assumption by the third parties (by delegation, contract, or otherwise) of some or all of the functions, obligations, and benefits of the Secretary.

(B) Subsidization of the debt service of the project to a level that can be paid by an owner receiving an unsubsidized market rent.

(C) Renewal of existing project-based assistance contracts where the Secretary shall approve proposed initial rent levels that do not exceed the greater of 120 percent of fair market rents or comparable market rents for the relevant metropolitan market area or at rent levels under a budget-based approach.

(D) Nonrenewal of expiring existing project-based assistance contracts and providing tenant-based assistance to previously assisted households.

(b) For purposes of carrying out demonstration programs under subsection (a)—

(1) the Secretary may manage and dispose of multifamily properties owned by the Secretary as of October 1, 1995 and multifamily mortgages held by the Secretary as of October 1, 1995 for properties assisted under section 8 with rents above 110 percent of fair market rents without regard to any other provision of law; and

(2) the Secretary may delegate to one or more entities the authority to carry out some or all of the functions and responsibilities of the Secretary in connection with the foreclosure of mortgages held by the Secretary under the National Housing Act.

(c) For purposes of carrying out demonstration programs under subsection (a), subject to such third party consents (if any) as are necessary including but not limited to (i) consent by the Government National Mortgage Association where it owns a mortgage insured by the Secretary; (ii) consent by an issuer under the mortgage-backed securities program of the Association, subject to the responsibilities of the issuer to its security holders and the Association under such program; and (iii) parties to any contractual agreement which the Secretary proposes to modify or discontinue, and subject to the appropriation in subsection (c), the Secretary or one or more third parties designated by the Secretary may take the following actions:

(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, and subject to the agreement of the project owner, the Secretary or third party may remove, relinquish, extinguish, modify, or agree to the removal of any mortgage, regulatory agreement, project-based assistance contract, use agreement, or restriction that had been imposed or required by the Secretary, including restrictions on distributions of income which the Secretary or third party determines would interfere with the ability of the project to operate without above market rents. The Secretary or third party may require an owner of a property assisted under the section 8 new construction/substantial rehabilitation program to apply any accumulated residual receipts toward effecting the purposes of this section.

(2) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development may enter into contracts to purchase reinsurance, or enter into participations or otherwise transfer economic interest in contracts of insurance or in the premiums paid, or due to be paid, on such insurance to third parties, on such terms and conditions as the Secretary may determine.

(3) The Secretary may offer project-based assistance with rents at or below fair market rents for the locality in which the project is located and may negotiate such other terms as are acceptable to the Secretary and the project owner.

(4) The Secretary may offer to pay all or a portion of the project's debt service, including payments monthly from the appropriate Insurance Fund, for the full remaining term of the insured mortgage.

(5) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary may forgive and cancel any FHA-insured mortgage debt that a demonstration program property cannot carry at market rents while bearing full operating costs.

(6) For demonstration program properties that cannot carry full operating costs (excluding debt service) at market rents, the Secretary may approve project-based rents sufficient to carry such full operating costs and may offer to pay the full debt service in the manner provided in paragraph (4).

(d) COMMUNITY AND TENANT INPUT.—In carrying out this section, the Secretary shall develop procedures to provide appropriate and timely notice to officials of the unit of general local government affected, the community in which the project is situated, and the tenants of the project.

(e) LIMITATION ON DEMONSTRATION AUTHORITY.—The Secretary may carry out demonstration programs under this section with respect to mortgages not to exceed 15,000 units. The demonstration authorized under this section shall not be expanded until the reports required under subsection (g) are submitted to the Congress.

(f) APPROPRIATION.—For the cost of modifying loans held or guaranteed by the Federal Housing Administration, as authorized by this subsection (a)(2) and subsection (c), $30,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 1997: Provided, That such costs shall be as defined in section 502 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, as amended.

(g) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary shall submit to the Congress every six months after the date of enactment of this Act a report describing and assessing the programs carried out under the demonstrations. The Secretary shall also submit a final report to the Congress not later than six months after the end of the demonstrations. The reports shall include findings and recommendations for any legislative action appropriate. The reports shall also include a description of the status of each multifamily housing project selected for the demonstrations under this section. The final report may include—

(1) the size of the projects;

(2) the geographic locations of the projects, by State and region;

(3) the physical and financial condition of the projects;

(4) the occupancy profile of the projects, including the income, family size, race, and ethnic origin of current tenants, and the rents paid by such tenants;

(5) a description of actions undertaken pursuant to this section, including a description of the effectiveness of such actions and any impediments to the transfer or sale of multifamily housing projects;

(6) a description of the extent to which the demonstrations under this section have displaced tenants of multifamily housing projects;

(7) a description of any of the functions performed in connection with this section that are transferred or contracted out to public or private entities or to States;

(8) a description of the impact to which the demonstrations under this section have affected the localities and communities where the selected multifamily housing projects are located; and

(9) a description of the extent to which the demonstrations under this section have affected the owners of multifamily housing projects.

ASSESSMENT COLLECTION DATES FOR OFFICE OF FEDERAL HOUSING ENTERPRISE OVERSIGHT

SEC. 211. Section 1316(b) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992 (12 U.S.C. 4516(b)) is amended by striking paragraph (2) and inserting the following new paragraph:

"(2) TIMING OF PAYMENT.—The annual assessment shall be payable semiannually for each fiscal year, on October 1 and April 1.".

MERGER LANGUAGE FOR ASSISTANCE FOR THE RENEWAL OF EXPIRING SECTION 8 SUBSIDY CONTRACTS AND ANNUAL CONTRIBUTIONS FOR ASSISTED HOUSING

SEC. 212. All remaining obligated and unobligated balances in the Renewal of Expiring Section 8 Subsidy Contracts account on September 30, 1995, shall immediately thereafter be transferred to and merged with the obligated and unobligated balances, respectively, of the Annual Contributions for Assisted Housing account.

DEBT FORGIVENESS

SEC. 213. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall cancel the indebtedness of the Hubbard Hospital Authority of Hubbard, Texas, relating to the public facilities loan for Project Number PFL–TEX–215, issued under title II of the Housing Amendments of 1955. Such hospital authority is relieved of all liability to the Government for the outstanding principal balance on such loan, for the amount of accrued interest on such loan, and for any fees and charges payable in connection with such loan.

(b) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall cancel the indebtedness of the Groveton Texas Hospital Authority relating to the public facilities loan for Project Number TEX–41–PFL0162, issued under title II of the Housing Amendments of 1955. Such hospital authority is relieved of all liability to the Government for the outstanding principal balance on such loan, for the amount of accrued interest on such loan, and for any fees and charges payable in connection with such loan.

(c) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall cancel the indebtedness of the Hepzibah Public Service District of Hepzibah, West Virginia, relating to the public facilities loan for Project Number WV–46–PFL0031, issued under title II of the Housing Amendments of 1955. Such public service district is relieved of all liability to the Government for the outstanding principal balance on such loan, for the amount of accrued interest on such loan, and for any fees and charges payable in connection with such loan.

(d) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall cancel indebtedness of Sheehan Memorial Hospital of Buffalo, New York, relating to the Federal Housing Administration insurance for Project Number 014–13002 issued under section 242 of the National Housing Act. Such hospital is relieved of all liability to the Government for the outstanding principal balance on such loan, for the amount of accrued interest on such loan, and for any fees and charges payable in connection with such loan.

CLARIFICATIONS

SEC. 214. For purposes of Federal law, the Paul Mirabile Center in San Diego, California, including areas within such Center that are devoted to the delivery of supportive services, has been determined to satisfy the "continuum of care" requirements of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and shall be treated as—

(a) consisting solely of residential units that (i) contain sleeping accommodations and kitchen and bathroom facilities, (ii) are located in a building that is used exclusively to facilitate the transition of homeless individuals (within the meaning of section 103 of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 11302), as in effect on December 19, 1989) to independent living within 24 months, (iii) are suitable for occupancy, with each cubicle constituting a separate bedroom and residential unit, (iv) are used on other than a transient basis, and (v) shall be originally placed in service on November 1, 1995; and

(b) property that is entirely residential rental property, namely, a project for residential rental property.

EMPLOYMENT LIMITATIONS

SEC. 215. (a) By the end of fiscal year 1996 the Department of Housing and Urban Development shall employ no more than seven Assistant Secretaries, notwithstanding section 4(a) of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act.

(b) By the end of fiscal year 1996 the Department of Housing and Urban Development shall employ no more than 77 schedule C and 20 non-career senior executive service employees.

USE OF FUNDS

OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL

For necessary expenses of the Office of the Inspector General in carrying out the provisions of the Inspector General Act of 1978, as amended, $16,000,000.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

Notwithstanding the limitation on the availability of funds appropriated for "Human space flight", "Science, aeronautics and technology", or "Mission support" by this appropriations Act, when any activity has been initiated by the incurrence of obligations for construction of facilities as authorized by law, the amount available for such activity shall remain available until expended. This provision does not apply to the amounts appropriated in "Mission support" pursuant to the authorization for repair, rehabilitation and modification of facilities, minor construction of new facilities and additions to existing facilities, and facility planning and design.

Notwithstanding the limitation on the availability of funds appropriated for "Human space flight", "Science, aeronautics and technology", or "Mission support" by this appropriations Act, the amounts appropriated for construction of facilities shall remain available until September 30, 1998.

Notwithstanding the limitation on the availability of funds appropriated for "Mission support" and "Office of Inspector General", amounts made available by this Act for personnel and related costs and travel expenses of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration shall remain available until September 30, 1996 and may be used to enter into contracts for training, investigations, cost associated with personnel relocation, and for other services, to be provided during the next fiscal year.

The unexpired balances of prior appropriations to NASA for activities for which funds are provided under this Act may be transferred to the new account established for the appropriation that provides funds for such activity under this Act. Balances so transferred may be merged with funds in the newly established account and thereafter may be accounted for as one fund to be available for the same purposes and under the same terms and conditions.

Upon the determination by the Administrator that such action is necessary, the Administrator may, with the approval of the Office of Management and Budget, transfer not to exceed $50,000,000 of funds made available in this Act to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration between such appropriations or any subdivision thereof, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes, and for the same time period, as the appropriation to which transferred: Provided, That such authority to transfer may not be used unless for higher priority items, based on unforeseen requirements, than those for which originally appropriated: Provided further, That the Administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration shall notify the Congress promptly of all transfers made pursuant to this authority.

NATIONAL CREDIT UNION ADMINISTRATION

CENTRAL LIQUIDITY FACILITY

During fiscal year 1996, gross obligations of the Central Liquidity Facility for the principal amount of new direct loans to member credit unions as authorized by the National Credit Union Central Liquidity Facility Act (12 U.S.C. 1795) shall not exceed $600,000,000: Provided, That administrative expenses of the Central Liquidity Facility in fiscal year 1996 shall not exceed $560,000.

MAJOR RESEARCH EQUIPMENT

For necessary expenses in carrying out major construction projects, and related expenses, pursuant to the purposes of the National Science Foundation Act of 1950, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1861–1875), $70,000,000, to remain available until expended.

ACADEMIC RESEARCH INFRASTRUCTURE

For necessary expenses in carrying out an academic research infrastructure program pursuant to the purposes of the National Science Foundation Act of 1950, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1861–1875), including services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109 and rental of conference rooms in the District of Columbia, $100,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 1997.

EDUCATION AND HUMAN RESOURCES

For necessary expenses in carrying out science and engineering education and human resources programs and activities pursuant to the purposes of the National Science Foundation Act of 1950, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1861–1875), including services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109 and rental of conference rooms in the District of Columbia, $599,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 1997: Provided, That to the extent that the amount of this appropriation is less than the total amount authorized to be appropriated for included program activities, all amounts, including floors and ceilings, specified in the authorizing Act for those program activities or their subactivities shall be reduced proportionally.

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary salaries and expenses in carrying out the purposes of the National Science Foundation Act of 1950, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1861–1875); services authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109; hire of passenger motor vehicles; not to exceed $9,000 for official reception and representation expenses; uniforms or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901–5902); rental of conference rooms in the District of Columbia; reimbursement of the General Services Administration for security guard services; $127,310,000: Provided, That contracts may be entered into under salaries and expenses in fiscal year 1996 for maintenance and operation of facilities, and for other services, to be provided during the next fiscal year.

OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL

For necessary expenses of the Office of Inspector General in carrying out the provisions of the Inspector General Act of 1978, as amended, $4,490,000, to remain available until September 30, 1997.

NATIONAL SCIENCE FOUNDATION HEADQUARTERS RELOCATION

For necessary support of the relocation of the National Science Foundation, $5,200,000: Provided, That these funds shall be used to reimburse the General Services Administration for services and related acquisitions in support of relocating the National Science Foundation.

NEIGHBORHOOD REINVESTMENT CORPORATION

PAYMENT TO THE NEIGHBORHOOD REINVESTMENT CORPORATION

For payment to the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation for use in neighborhood reinvestment activities, as authorized by the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation Act (42 U.S.C. 8101–8107), $38,667,000.

SELECTIVE SERVICE SYSTEM

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses of the Selective Service System, including expenses of attendance at meetings and of training for uniformed personnel assigned to the Selective Service System, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 4101–4118) for civilian employees; and not to exceed $1,000 for official reception and representation expenses; $22,930,000: Provided, That during the current fiscal year, the President may exempt this appropriation from the provisions of 31 U.S.C. 1341, whenever he deems such action to be necessary in the interest of national defense: Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated by the Act may be expended for or in connection with the induction of any person into the Armed Forces of the United States.

TITLE IV

CORPORATIONS

Corporations and agencies of the Department of Housing and Urban Development which are subject to the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended, are hereby authorized to make such expenditures, within the limits of funds and borrowing authority available to each such corporation or agency and in accord with law, and to make such contracts and commitments without regard to fiscal year limitations as provided by section 104 of the Act as may be necessary in carrying out the programs set forth in the budget for 1996 for such corporation or agency except as hereinafter provided: Provided, That collections of these corporations and agencies may be used for new loan or mortgage purchase commitments only to the extent expressly provided for in this Act (unless such loans are in support of other forms of assistance provided for in this or prior appropriations Acts), except that this proviso shall not apply to the mortgage insurance or guaranty operations of these corporations, or where loans or mortgage purchases are necessary to protect the financial interest of the United States Government.

RESOLUTION TRUST CORPORATION

OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL

For necessary expenses of the Office of Inspector General in carrying out the provisions of the Inspector General Act of 1978, as amended, $11,400,000.

TITLE V
GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 501. Where appropriations in titles I, II, and III of this Act are expendable for travel expenses and no specific limitation has been placed thereon, the expenditures for such travel expenses may not exceed the amounts set forth therefor in the budget estimates submitted for the appropriations: Provided, That this section shall not apply to travel performed by uncompensated officials of local boards and appeal boards of the Selective Service System; to travel performed directly in connection with care and treatment of medical beneficiaries of the Department of Veterans Affairs; to travel performed in connection with major disasters or emergencies declared or determined by the President under the provisions of the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act; to travel performed by the Offices of Inspector General in connection with audits and investigations; or to payments to interagency motor pools where separately set forth in the budget schedules: Provided further, That if appropriations in titles I, II, and III exceed the amounts set forth in budget estimates initially submitted for such appropriations, the expenditures for travel may correspondingly exceed the amounts therefor set forth in the estimates in the same proportion.

SEC. 502. Appropriations and funds available for the administrative expenses of the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Selective Service System shall be available in the current fiscal year for purchase of uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901–5902); hire of passenger motor vehicles; and services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

SEC. 503. Funds of the Department of Housing and Urban Development subject to the Government Corporation Control Act or section 402 of the Housing Act of 1950 shall be available, without regard to the limitations on administrative expenses, for legal services on a contract or fee basis, and for utilizing and making payment for services and facilities of Federal National Mortgage Association, Government National Mortgage Association, Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, Federal Financing Bank, Resolution Trust Corporation, Federal Reserve banks or any member thereof, Federal Home Loan banks, and any insured bank within the meaning of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Act, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1811–1831).

SEC. 504. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 505. No funds appropriated by this Act may be expended—

(1) pursuant to a certification of an officer or employee of the United States unless—

(A) such certification is accompanied by, or is part of, a voucher or abstract which describes the payee or payees and the items or services for which such expenditure is being made, or

(B) the expenditure of funds pursuant to such certification, and without such a voucher or abstract, is specifically authorized by law; and

(2) unless such expenditure is subject to audit by the General Accounting Office or is specifically exempt by law from such audit.

SEC. 506. None of the funds provided in this Act to any department or agency may be expended for the transportation of any officer or employee of such department or agency between his domicile and his place of employment, with the exception of any officer or employee authorized such transportation under title 31, United States Code, section 1344.

SEC. 507. None of the funds provided in this Act may be used for payment, through grants or contracts, to recipients that do not share in the cost of conducting research resulting from proposals not specifically solicited by the Government: Provided, That the extent of cost sharing by the recipient shall reflect the mutuality of interest of the grantee or contractor and the Government in the research.

SEC. 508. None of the funds provided in this Act may be used, directly or through grants, to pay or to provide reimbursement for payment of the salary of a consultant (whether retained by the Federal Government or a grantee) at more than the daily equivalent of the rate paid for Level IV of the Executive Schedule, unless specifically authorized by law.

SEC. 509. None of the funds in this Act shall be used to pay the expenses of, or otherwise compensate, non-Federal parties intervening in regulatory or adjudicatory proceedings. Nothing herein affects the authority of the Consumer Product Safety Commission pursuant to section 7 of the Consumer Product Safety Act (15 U.S.C. 2056 et seq.).

SEC. 510. Except as otherwise provided under existing law or under an existing Executive order issued pursuant to an existing law, the obligation or expenditure of any appropriation under this Act for contracts for any consulting service shall be limited to contracts which are (1) a matter of public record and available for public inspection, and (2) thereafter included in a publicly available list of all contracts entered into within twenty-four months prior to the date on which the list is made available to the public and of all contracts on which performance has not been completed by such date. The list required by the preceding sentence shall be updated quarterly and shall include a narrative description of the work to be performed under each such contract.

SEC. 511. Except as otherwise provided by law, no part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be obligated or expended by any executive agency, as referred to in the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 401 et seq.) for a contract for services unless such executive agency (1) has awarded and entered into such contract in full compliance with such Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder, and (2) requires any report prepared pursuant to such contract, including plans, evaluations, studies, analyses and manuals, and any report prepared by the agency which is substantially derived from or substantially includes any report prepared pursuant to such contract, to contain information concerning (A) the contract pursuant to which the report was prepared, and (B) the contractor who prepared the report pursuant to such contract.

SEC. 512. Except as otherwise provided in section 506, none of the funds provided in this Act to any department or agency shall be obligated or expended to provide a personal cook, chauffeur, or other personal servants to any officer or employee of such department or agency.

SEC. 513. None of the funds provided in this Act to any department or agency shall be obligated or expended to procure passenger automobiles as defined in 15 U.S.C. 2001 with an EPA estimated miles per gallon average of less than 22 miles per gallon.

SEC. 514. Such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 1996 pay raises for programs funded by this Act shall be absorbed within the levels appropriated in this Act.

SEC. 515. None of the funds appropriated in title I of this Act shall be used to enter into any new lease of real property if the estimated annual rental is more than $300,000 unless the Secretary submits, in writing, a report to the Committees on Appropriations of the Congress and a period of 30 days has expired following the date on which the report is received by the Committees on Appropriations.

SEC. 516. (a) PURCHASE OF AMERICAN-MADE EQUIPMENT AND PRODUCTS.—It is the sense of the Congress that, to the greatest extent practicable, all equipment and products purchased with funds made available in this Act should be American-made.

(b) NOTICE REQUIREMENT.—In providing financial assistance to, or entering into any contract with, any entity using funds made available in this Act, the head of each Federal agency, to the greatest extent practicable, shall provide to such entity a notice describing the statement made in subsection (a) by the Congress.

SEC. 517. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to implement any cap on reimbursements to grantees for indirect costs, except as published in Office of Management and Budget Circular A–21.

SEC. 518. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for any program, project, or activity, when it is made known to the Federal entity or official to which the funds are made available that the program, project, or activity is not in compliance with any Federal law relating to risk assessment, the protection of private property rights, or unfunded mandates.

SEC. 519. In fiscal year 1996, the Director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall sell the disaster housing inventory of mobile homes and trailers, and the proceeds thereof shall be deposited in the Treasury.

SEC. 520. Such funds as may be necessary to carry out the orderly termination of the Office of Consumer Affairs shall be made available from funds appropriated to the Department of Health and Human Services for fiscal year 1996.

This Act may be cited as the "Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996".

SEC. 102. Unless otherwise provided for in this title of this Act or in the applicable appropriations Act, appropriations and funds made available and authority granted pursuant to this title of this Act shall be available until (a) the enactment into law of an appropriation for any project or activity provided for in this title of this Act, or (b) the enactment into law of the applicable appropriations Act by both Houses without any provision for such project or activity, or (c) September 30, 1996, whichever first occurs.

SEC. 103. Appropriations made and authority granted pursuant to this title of this Act shall cover all obligations or expenditures incurred for any program, project, or activity during the period for which funds or authority for such project or activity are available under this title of this Act.

SEC. 104. Expenditures made pursuant to this title of this Act shall be charged to the applicable appropriation, fund, or authorization whenever a bill in which such applicable appropriation, fund, or authorization is contained is enacted into law.

SEC. 105. Upon enactment of this Act, the following provisions of Public Law 104–99, Public Law 104–92, and Public Law 104–91 that would continue to have effect after March 15, 1996, are superseded: section 101 of Public Law 104-92; section 101(a) of Public Law 104-91, as amended, except the paragraphs dealing with funding of National Institutes of Health activities and Centers for Disease Control and Prevention activities, and except for the general provisions enacted in the amendment to Public Law 104-91 included in Public Law 104-99; and sections 123, 124, and 201 of Public Law 104-99.

SEC. 107. Title I of Public Law 104-52 is hereby amended by deleting ", not to exceed $1,406,000," under the heading "CUSTOMS SERVICES AT SMALL AIRPORTS".

SEC. 108. Title I of Public Law 104-52 is hereby amended by adding the following new section under the heading "ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS—INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE":

"SEC. 3. The funds provided in this Act shall be used to provide a level of service, staffing, and funding for Taxpayer Services Division operations which is not less than that provided in fiscal year 1995.".

SEC. 109. Title III of Public Law 104-52 is hereby amended by adding the following proviso before the last period under the heading "OFFICE OF NATIONAL DRUG CONTROL POLICY, SALARIES AND EXPENSES": ": Provided, That of the amounts available to the Counter-Drug Technology Assessment Center no less than $1,000,000 shall be dedicated to conferences on model state drug laws".

SEC. 110. Subsection (b) of section 347 of Public Law 104-50 is hereby amended by inserting after "(4) section 7204, relating to antidiscrimination;" the following: "(5) chapter 71, relating to labor-management relations;" and by renumbering items (5), (6), and (7) as items (6), (7), and (8) respectively.

SEC. 111. EXPORTATION OF DRUGS AND DEVICES.

(a) REFERENCE.—Whenever in this section (other than subsection (f)) an amendment or repeal is expressed in terms of an amendment to, or repeal of, a section or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to a section or other provision of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act.

"(3) No component, part, or accessory of a drug (including a biological product or a drug in bulk form), device, food, or food additive shall be excluded from importation into the United States under subsection (a), if such component, part, or accessory will be incorporated into the drug, device, food, or food additive that will be exported from the United States in accordance with subsection (e)(1) or section 802 or section 351(h) of the Public Health Service Act. A person shall maintain a record of the import and export of such drug, device, food, or food additive.".

(c) SECTION 801(e)(1).—Section 801(e)(1) (21 U.S.C. 381(e)(1)) is amended—

(1) by amending the matter preceding subparagraph (A) to read as follows:

"(e)(1) A food, drug (including a biological product), device, or cosmetic intended for export shall not be deemed to be adulterated or misbranded, to be in violation of section 404, 505, or 512, or to be an unlicensed biological product under section 351 of the Public Health Service Act if—"; and

(2) by striking the second sentence.

(d) SECTION 801(e)(2).—Section 801(e)(2) (21 U.S.C. 381(e)(2)) is amended to read as follows:

"(2) Any person who exports a drug or device under this subsection or section 802 may request that the Secretary certify in writing that the export is legal upon a showing that the requirements for the export of such drug or device have been satisfied. The Secretary shall issue such a written export certification within 10 days of the receipt of a request for such certification. A fee for such certification may be charged but shall not exceed $100 for each. The fees shall be retained by the agency to be used to cover expenses.

(e) SECTION 802.—Section 802 (21 U.S.C. 382) is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 802. (a) A drug (including a biological product) intended for human or animal use or a device intended for human use—

"(1) which, in the case of a drug—

"(A)(i) requires approval by the Secretary under section 505 or section 512 before it may be introduced or delivered for introduction into interstate commerce; or

"(ii) requires licensing by the Secretary under section 351 of the Public Health Service Act or by the Secretary of Agriculture under the Act of March 4, 1913 (known as the Virus-Serum Toxin Act) before it may be introduced or delivered for introduction into interstate commerce; and

"(B) does not have such approval or license, which is not exempt from such sections or Act, and which is introduced or delivered for introduction into interstate commerce, or

"(2) which, in the case of a device—

"(A) does not comply with an applicable requirement under section 514 or 515,

"(B) is exempt from section 514 or 515 under section 520(g), or may only be exported under subsection (b) or (c).

"(b) Except as otherwise provided in this section, a drug (including a biological product) or device, referred to in subsection (a), may be exported to any country, if the drug or device complies with the laws in any of the following—

"(1) Australia, Canada, Israel, Japan, New Zealand, Switzerland, or South Africa; or

"(2) a country in the European Union or a country in the European Economic Area (the countries in the European Union and the European Free Trade Association and where such drug, device, food or food additive is exported for the purpose of marketing, the drug, device, food or food additive has valid marketing authorization by the appropriate approval authority from the country in which it shall be marketed.

"(c)(1) A person who intends to export an unapproved drug (including a biological product) or device not eligible for export under subsection (b) shall submit to the Secretary a notification of intent to export which shall—

"(A) identify the drug or device to be exported and the intended use of the product in the county to which it is to be exported; and

"(B) contain a certification by such person that such person will export the drug or device only to a country where the drug or device is permitted for general use, investigational research, or non-clinical experimental research.

"(2) Within 45 days of the receipt under paragraph (1) of a notification of an intent to export, the Secretary shall issue to the person who submitted such notice an order denying the request for export if—

"(A) the notification does not meet the requirements of paragraph (1); or

"(B) the proposed intended use of the exported drug or device poses an imminent hazard to the health of individuals, taking into account the risks of not using the product in diagnosis or treatment, and the finding of such hazard is based upon credible scientific evidence.

If the Secretary does not respond to such a notice within 45 days of its receipt, the person who submitted such notice may proceed with the export of the drug or device covered by such notice.

"(3) if the Secretary denies a request for export of a drug or device under paragraph (2), the Secretary shall immediately prohibit the export of the drug or device and afford such person an opportunity for an informal hearing on the denial. If the denial is based upon a finding of imminent hazard, such informal hearing shall be before the Commissioner and the Secretary may not delegate the authority of the Commissioner.

"(d) A drug or device intended for formulation, filling, packaging, labeling, or other processing in anticipation of market authorization in any country described in subsection (b) may be exported in accordance with the laws of that country.".

(f) PARTIALLY PROCESSED BIOLOGICAL PRODUCTS.—Subsection (h) of section 351 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 262) is amended to read as follows:

"(h) A partially-processed biological product which—

"(1) is not in a form applicable to the prevention, treatment, or cure of diseases or injuries of man;

"(2) is not intended for sale in the United States; and

"(3) is intended for further manufacture into final dosage form outside the United States, shall be subject to no restriction on the export of the product under this Act or the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 321 et seq.) if the product meets the requirements of section 801(e)(1) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 381(e)(1)).".

CHAPTER IV

GENERAL PROVISIONS—THIS TITLE

SEC. 4001. No part of any appropriation contained in this title shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 4002. Amounts appropriated in this title are available for obligation only if and when reconciliation legislation is enacted that expressly makes available for obligation these amounts and that (1) makes available or causes to be made available to the Committees on Appropriations of the House and Senate increased budget authority and outlays for fiscal year 1996 under the provisions of section 302(a) or 602(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 in at least the amounts included in this title, (2) credits to or causes to be credited to the budget authority and outlays for fiscal year 1996 of the Committees on Appropriations of the House and Senate under the provisions of section 302(a) or 602(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 offsetting savings or receipts in at least the amounts included in this title, or (3) includes any combination of increased budget authority and outlays or crediting of offsetting savings or receipts to the spending authority for fiscal year 1996 of the Committees on Appropriations of the House and Senate under the provisions of section 302(a) or 602(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 in at least the amounts included in this title. Any amounts appropriated in this title that have not been made available for obligation by the end of the fiscal year 1996 are hereby rescinded.

This Act may be cited as the "Balanced Budget Down Payment Act, II."

The CHAIRMAN. No further amendment is in order except the amendments printed in House Report 104-474 which may be offered only in the order printed in the report and by the Member designated in the report, shall be considered as read, shall not be subject to amendment except as specified in the report, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question. Debate time for each amendment shall be equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent of the amendment.

It is now in order to consider amendment No. 1 printed in House Report 104-474.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MRS. LOWEY

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

Page 372, strike section 509 (relating to State discretion to not fund abortions under Medicaid).

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from New York [Mrs. LOWEY] and a Member opposed each will be recognized for 10 minutes.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to divide my time equally with the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GREENWOOD], and that he be permitted to control that time.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today to strike the extreme provision in this bill that would allow States to deny Medicaid-funded abortions to victims of rape and incest. I understand that there may be some confusion about what this amendment does, so let me be very clear. This amendment preserves current law by leaving the underlying Hyde amendment in place.

It is this bill that changes current law by giving States the right not to fund abortions in the case of rape and incest. Quite simply, this bill gives States the green light to eliminate Medicaid funding of abortions for the most vulnerable members of our society, impoverished victims of rape and incest. This provision callously victimizes victims and subjects women who have been raped to further indignity. It is draconian and it is unfair.

Let me be very clear, this provision has nothing to do with States' rights. The States right argument is just a smoke screen. This is not about the rights of States. It is about the rights of women, the right to choose.

The Medicaid statute does not give States the right to pick and choose which procedures they will cover and which they will not. A State's participation in Medicaid is voluntary, but once a State chooses to participate, it must comply with Federal statutory and regulatory requirements.

Time after time, in case after case, the Federal courts have ruled that States must fund abortions in cases of rape and incest. Since 1993, Federal courts in 13 States have rejected challenges brought by States that did not want to comply with the rape and incest language. There is not a single case in which a court has sided with States that did not want to comply.

It is very simple. Under current law, States must fund Medicaid abortion in the case of rape, incest, and life of the pregnant woman. Just so we are clear, this is not just the way the Clinton administration has interpreted the law, it is the law, and it has been interpreted by the courts.

This provision does not clarify existing law as its proponents claim. It overturns existing law. Mr. Chairman, American women have watched in horror as this extreme Congress has eroded their rights. This will be the 22d vote we have taken on the abortion issue, a new record, and of all these votes, of all the restrictions this Congress has imposed on American women, this one is the most cruel.

This bill says to rape victims, you must have your rapist's child. It tells incest victims, you must have your father's child.

This Congress must not turn its back on American women in their hour of greatest need. Let us have the decency to ensure that impoverished victims of rape and incest will have the right to choose. I urge support for the Lowey-Greenwood-Morella amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there a Member in opposition to the amendment?

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I am opposed to the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. ISTOOK] is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1½ minutes.

Mr. Chairman, I was surprised to hear the statements of Bill Clinton and AL GORE attacked as extremist. For when Bill Clinton was Governor of Arkansas, he sent this letter in which he said he supported a constitutional amendment for the people of Arkansas to say abortion should not be funded with public money unless the life of the mother were at risk, and he wrote in the letter, "I am opposed to abortion and to government funding of abortions."

AL GORE voted repeatedly for the same type of amendment that is in the bill that the gentlewoman from New York [Mrs. LOWEY] seeks to strike. When he was a Senator in 1987, he wrote, "During my 11 years in Congress, I have consistently opposed Federal funding for abortion."

Why is this now being attacked as extremist? We have had this vote before. We voted on this identical issue, this identical language, in August. Some people are not willing to abide by that decision and they are out here to try again.

But 36 States have had their State laws overturned by a Clinton administration directive misinterpreting what Congress has done, and there is no other remedy to uphold the States which have provisions in their statutes and their constitutions against using public money for abortion except to save the life of the mother.

The language which we desire to keep in the bill is the language that simply says if they wish to fund those rape and incest abortions, they may do so. If they do not wish to do so, they are not compelled to do so. I ask a "no" vote on the motion to strike.

Mr. GREENWOOD. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Maryland [Mrs. MORELLA].

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to vote for our amendment.

Let me clarify just what we are doing here—we are simply confirming the interpretation of the 1993 Hyde language regarding Medicaid funding for rape and incest only. That language requires States to provide Medicaid abortion coverage in rape and incest cases. This interpretation has been upheld in each and every Federal court that has considered the issue—including Federal courts in 13 States.

The States rights plank is a facade; make no mistake about it. This is about Medicaid funding in cases of rape and incest only—in 1994, Federal funding covered only two abortions. These circumstances are very tragic and rare—but they are the result of violent, brutal crimes against women.

We cannot all call for an end to violence against women in one breath and then in the next breath, vote to prevent victims of rape and incest, brutally violent crimes, to lose their rights to end such pregnancies.

I urge my colleagues to vote for the Lowey-Greenwood-Morella amendment.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentlewoman from Connecticut [Ms. DELAURO].

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, the crimes of rape and incest are not about abortion, they are about violence and brutality. The language in this continuing resolution is cruel and it is senseless punishment for thousands of women who are victims of rape and incest.

I only wish that this body would spend as much time working to prevent sexual assault, domestic violence, and tougher criminal prosecution of rapists as they do on the issue of choice. We should consider ways in which we can heal young girls and women who fall victim to these horrifying acts with the same ferociousness and vigilance as this body attacks a woman's right to choose.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the Lowey amendment, which strikes language in the bill that protects States from being forced to alter their State laws or constitutions to pay for abortions. We defeated this motion last August and I urge defeat of it again today.

At least 12 States have been sued by the abortionists because of the administration's twisted interpretations of the 1993 Hyde amendment, which Members should recall allowed but did not require taxpayer funding for abortions in cases of rape and incest. A dozen more States acquiesced rather than face litigation from the abortion industry.

The Clinton order has had some disastrous consequences in some States. For example, in Arkansas the people voted and approved a State constitutional amendment endorsed by then Gov. Bill Clinton to prohibit State funding of abortion except to save the life of the mother. A Federal judge, however, has set aside the entire constitutional amendment because in the view of the judge it conflicts with Federal law, thus ordering that State to pay for abortions on demand.

I do not think anybody wants to be part of that, having that State being forced to underwrite and subsidize the cost for all abortions. The Clinton order has also invalidated the State laws of Iowa, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming that contained a requirement that rape or incest be reported to a law enforcement agency. I happen to believe that that is a modest request when the death of the baby is being procured. We should be trying to apprehend and hopefully prosecute these people who commit these heinous crimes of rape, rather than let them get off the hook in terms of the reporting requirement.

I would hope all States that have any kind of rape or incest would have that kind of requirement. These have been nullified by the Clinton order.

Mr. GREENWOOD. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Delaware [Mr. CASTLE].

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Chairman, it has been argued this is not an abortion issue, and it is true that the law today allows for abortion in cases of rape or incest. People argue it is a States rights issue. Let us take a look at that. If you are poor, a very poor woman in the middle of a large State, let us say Oklahoma, and you have a State law which does not allow you to get an abortion, if you have gone through rape or incest, it means that individual must live with having that child, having to raise that child in that society. If you are in another State, say Kansas, which does allow for that abortion to take place in cases of rape or incest, it means that they would be allowed to have an abortion. Is that fair to that poor woman in the first State, in the State of Oklahoma, in that particular instance? I think the answer is no.

This is not a matter of States rights. This is a matter of the rights of the individual woman, the poor defenseless woman, to be able to live her life as she pleases, and I believe we need to support this amendment. It comes down to the issue of fairness.

I urge everyone to support the amendment.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from California [Ms. WATERS].

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, to force a woman who has been raped, violated, brutalized, to carry a pregnancy to term is unconscionable.

This amendment is consistent with Hyde. To punish a poor woman simply because she is poor is absolutely the kind of public policy that we do not want to support.

I would urge my colleagues in the name of fairness to support this amendment. It is only fair that we say to the States, do not make a woman suffer more, do not make a woman who has been violated in the worst way suffer more by carrying a pregnancy to term.

I ask for an "aye" vote on this amendment.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentlewoman from Nevada [Mrs. VUCANOVICH], a very respected Member of this House.

Mrs. VUCANOVICH. Mr. Chairman, I wish to address the issue of State sovereignty. The Hyde amendment of 1993 allowed Federal reimbursement for Medicaid abortions in cases of rape and incest. The Clinton administration, however, has twisted the original intent of this amendment by forcing States to use Medicaid funds to pay for such procedures. In many cases, States are forced to violate their own constitutions or lose Federal Medicaid funding. We in the 104th Congress have labored mightily to restrain the power of the Federal Government and return power to the States. Let us not stand idly by while one of the most basic principles of State sovereignty is threatened.

I call upon the President of the United States to respect the wishes of millions of Americans who oppose the use of their tax dollars to destroy innocent human life. I urge my fellow Members of Congress to support the omnibus appropriations bill and oppose the Lowey amendment. Colleagues, you are to decide the important questions upon which rest the happiness and liberty of millions yet unborn. Act worthy of yourselves.

Mr. GREENWOOD. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, this is not about States rights. This is about State funds.

We offered an amendment to this provision that would have, in fact, provided 100 percent Federal funds to take care of this small handful of abortions, and that offer was rejected by the proponents of this measure.

What this is about is what becomes of young girls after they are sexually abused by their fathers and their stepfathers and become pregnant. What this is about is what becomes of women after they are brutally raped and become pregnant.

Now, the authors of this provision do not believe that abortion is an appropriate response to becoming pregnant as a result of rape or incest, and I respect their right to hold that view.

I also suspect, though, that the decision comes more easily to the authors because they are not the victims of these unspeakable crimes and it is not they who are forced to give birth to the children of their assailants.

This vote is about who makes the decision in these tragic circumstances, the politicians or the victims. Eighty-four percent of Americans believe that this decision belongs in the hands of the victims and not the politicians.

I would submit that any of us who put the term "Representative" before our names in this body have a duty to represent the 84 percent of the Americans who hold that view and support this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. ALLARD], which, because its people have twice voted not to fund abortions except in the case of life of the mother, may have to lose $700 million a year in Federal funding unless we defeat this motion and keep this language in the bill.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. Chairman, I oppose the Lowey amendment and rise in support of the Istook language guaranteeing States the right to determine appropriate restrictions on the use of Medicaid funds for abortion.

Recently, the State of Colorado was denied this right in Federal court, presenting a substantial problem for our State. The Colorado Constitution prohibits the use of public funds for abortions, unless the life of the mother is threatened. Therefore, the State is put in the position of violating our State constitution or discontinuing the use of Medicaid funds.

At a time when we are shifting power back to the States, we should guarantee States the right to place restrictions on the use of Medicaid funds for abortion. This is particularly appropriate in light of the Federal-State matching grant nature of Medicaid. The Istook language simply reiterates Congress' intent in the Hyde amendment.

Colorado is not the only State that challenges the Clinton administration's interpretation of the Hyde amendment. The States of Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, and Utah also prohibit the use of Medicaid funds for abortion in all cases except when the life of the mother is endangered.

The funds involved are taxpayer dollars, and the people of Colorado and other States should determine whether Federal abortion funding restrictions are adequate or need to be strengthened.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from New York [Mrs. MALONEY].

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Chairman, I call on colleagues to support the Lowey amendment.

If this is the new majority's idea of family values, then count me out.

I think an overwhelming majority of the American people believe our government should help crime victims, not leave them to their own devices, especially with such horrible crimes as rape and incest.

My Republican colleagues bristle when we use the word "extreme."

But there is no other word to describe this policy.

Support the Lowey amendment.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 20 seconds to the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. HUTCHINSON].

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. Chairman, it is interesting, back on March 30, 1993, George Stephanopolos, said the President's proposal would try to preserve flexibility of the States to make these tough decisions, but, in fact, they issued an Executive order that resulted in the striking of a constitutional provision in our Arkansas Constitution, voted on by the people of the State of Arkansas, stripped because of a bureaucrat's order out of Washington, DC. That is wrong. That is why we need this provision.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 20 seconds to the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. DICKEY].

Mr. DICKEY. Mr. Chairman, lives are at stake. There is no question about it. We in Arkansas have approved a constitutional amendment where we said we could not use Federal funds or State funds to take the lives of innocent children who are not represented in this discussion and who we need to protect.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 45 seconds to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. WELDON], a freshman Member.

Mr. WELDON of Florida. Mr. Chairman, we are debating a continuing resolution that will keep the Government open through the rest of the year.

Unfortunately, some have chosen to complicate this bill by offering an amendment to strike the Istook language. The Istook language allows States to make the decision as to whether they will use the State portion of their Medicare funding to pay for abortions in the case of rape or incest.

Mr. Chairman, not only does the Istook amendment protect States rights, but specifically a particular State. We have already heard today the impact this will have on the State of Colorado.

I strongly urge all of my colleagues to vote "no" on this Lowey amendment and support the original Istook language.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to my fellow colleague, the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. LARGENT], from the First Congressional District.

Mr. LARGENT. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding this time to me.

I listened to the passionate but wrongheaded arguments for this Lowey amendment, and I rise in strong opposition to that argument. It is not a compelling argument.

Folks, understand that the children that are being destroyed through the funding of abortions are not the perpetrators of the crime of rape and incest. They are the innocent, and by voting against this amendment we provide the protection that they need in the sanctity the womb.

I urge a "no" vote on the Lowey amendment.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the great gentleman from, Illinois [Mr. HYDE], well known and esteemed in this body.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Chairman, we have just been called extremists, and list me in the front ranks of the extreme, if by earning that appellation I can defend the innocent unborn.

It seems to me 1½ million abortions every year is pretty extreme. The U.S. Supreme Court has held in a Georgia case that you may not execute the rapist. The words of the court were that is a disproportionate penalty for the crime; disproportionate, do not execute the rapist, but you can execute the unborn in the womb.

Nobody says a rape victim has an easy matter of it. That is tragic, and it is heart-rending.

But why visit on the innocent unborn life execution that the court will not let you do to the rapist? That is a tragedy, and it calls for love and compassion and help, and we ought to provide that, but do not add insult to injury by executing the most innocent of human beings, an unborn child.

I do not think we should be proud of the fact that we have a million and a half abortions. But most of the people arguing for the Lowey amendment I find supported the partial-birth abortion process. That is what is extreme. That is the edge of the envelope.

If you want to protect human life, if you think abortions ought to be safe, legal, and rare, as the President says, how are you making them rare by forcing States to pay for them when the States do not want to and their laws do not want them to and even their constitution forbids it? That is extreme.

□ 1515

Mr. GREENWOOD. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. TORKILDSEN].

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. TORKILDSEN] is recognized for 1½ minutes.

Mr. TORKILDSEN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania for yielding me time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the Lowey-Greenwood-Morella motion to strike. As Yogi Berra said, it is deja vu all over again. This House is once again debating one of the most personal decisions any woman could ever have to make in this country, and this House really should not be interfering in that process.

The Medicaid statute is crystal clear on the issue. Once a State elects to participate in the Medicaid Program, all necessary medical services must be covered. That is very clear and to the point.

A rape is reported in our country every 5 minutes. It is a very sad statistic. Fortunately, most of these rapes do not result in pregnancies. But on the times that they do, when the woman is a victim of a crime, why make things worse with the adoption of the language that is in this bill?

We should be voting to strike. We should be voting to keep our own motto of keeping government out of people's lives, and allowing people to make decisions that affect them more than any other individual.

I urge all Members to vote for the motion to strike, and vote to put some sanity back in this most personal of decisions.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 45 seconds to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. DURBIN].

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. Chairman, I wish those who take this floor and so casually dismiss the rights of victims of rape and incest could have sat with me across a table at a home for abused children to meet two 17-year-old young women who had been victims of rape and incest, their young lives shattered by the violent and vicious crimes they had been subjected to.

I pray to God that a young woman in that situation would have the strength to carry her baby and put it up for adoption. But neither the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. ISTOOK] nor any member of the Republican majority has the right to say that she must do so under all circumstances. That is mean, it is extreme, it is wrong. We must be sensitive to the fact that many people, young women in particular, face shattering experiences because of these violent, vicious crimes. To take away their right to terminate that pregnancy early on, their right to choose, is wrong. This a decision for a woman, her doctor, and her conscience.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair wishes to inform the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GREENWOOD] that he has 15 seconds remaining.

Mr. GREENWOOD. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, let me just close by asking the Members of this body to consider what weighs in the balance: The fertilized egg on the one hand, and, on the other hand, the lives of victims of the most unspeakable crimes. Who should make the decision in this instance? A Solomonic decision should be made by the victim.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. ISTOOK] has 1½ minutes remaining, and is entitled to close.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, we are not here to talk about whether someone, no matter where they live, will have the ability to obtain an abortion under any circumstances. We are here solely on the question of whether taxpayers in different States will be compelled to use taxpayers' money to pay for abortions or whether the States can decide for themselves in a case of rape or incest if taxpayer money is to be used.

Thirty-six States, through their people, many through public votes, have made the decision they do not wish taxpayer money to be used in those circumstances. I stand here on behalf of the people of those 36 States that do not want to be dictated to from Washington, that want to be able to make those decisions.

So, Mr. Chairman, the people in the States of Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Iowa, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming, say they should not be dictated to from Washington. If you are from one of those States and you vote for this motion to strike, you have voted to overturn the decision of your State. You have voted against the decision made by your people. If you are from any other State, it does not matter; this amendment does not affect you. But Members from those States should vote against the amendment, against the motion to strike, and uphold the authority of their people to determine where their tax money will be spent.

Mr. FAZIO of California. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Lowey amendment that deletes the Istook abortion riders that are included in this continuing resolution. These riders would not allow State to fund abortions via Medicaid in cases of rape and incest. In addition, the riders contain a provision that will reverse the policy that resident training programs for OB–GYN's include education about abortion techniques.

Policies that force rape and incest victims to continue a resulting pregnancy to term threaten the health of the most vulnerable women. A Medicaid-eligible woman facing a pregnancy caused by rape and incest must be permitted to protect her health and to exercise her fundamental right to choose in whatever State she calls home.

Under the guise of State's rights, the callous and discriminatory effect of the Istook riders will cause additional suffering for women who must already overcome poverty and sexual violence.

In States that have funded coverage for abortion under the extreme circumstances of rape or incest, very few abortions have been funded.

Women who have been raped often face additional victimization caused by the insensitivity of the police, medical personnel, and the criminal justice system. Now the sponsors of this rider want to allow States to force these women to continue these pregnancies and bear children against the will of the affected women.

These riders are another example of legislation that, if considered on its own merits, would not pass muster. We should send a clean CR to the President, not one loaded down with questionable public policy like this. These policy riders are bad public policy. I urge my colleagues to support the Lowey amendment to strike the Istook riders.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Lowey amendment to H.R. 3019 that would delete the provision of the bill that allows States to eliminate Medicaid funding of abortions for victims of rape and incest.

The proponents of the provision argue that it gives the States the right to choose which abortion procedures it will fund, when this issue has already been settled by the Federal courts. The courts have held that the States participating in Medicaid must provide funding for abortions in case of rape and incest. I support this amendment because States should not be given the options of providing coverage of these services under the guise of States rights.

As a woman, a mother, and Member of Congress, I strongly believe that anyone faced with making the decision to abort a fetus conceived during rape or incest has a tremendous burden to bear—but it is the woman's decision that must be made solely by her and in consultation with her family and physician. The Federal Government should have nothing to do with it.

Consider the story of an 18-year-old high school senior from St. Paul, MN. Kristine G. became pregnant for the first time as a result of a date rape, which she did not report because the family of the man who raped her threatened her life. In addition, her attacker was a gang member and she feared for her life. Should she be denied the opportunity to get an abortion?

To be a poor woman in America is difficult enough, to be raped and then denied access to medical services to end an unwanted pregnancy is the greatest injustice I can imagine. The majority of the American people believe that Medicaid funding of abortions for victims of rape and incest is appropriate.

In 1993 Congress revised the Hyde amendment to title XIX funding for Medicaid Program making their intention clear that it should cover all "medically necessary services." I cannot imagine a service more necessary than an abortion for a victim of rape or incest.

I urge my colleagues to stand up for American women. I urge my colleagues to do the right thing and vote in favor of this amendment.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, this Member rises today in opposition to the amendment by the gentlewoman from New York [Mrs. LOWEY] that would strike the language in the bill that clarifies the congressional intent regarding the interpretation of the Hyde amendment.

This Member was one of the first Members of Congress to speak against the 1993 Clinton administration directive that required States to fund Medicaid abortions in cases of rape or incest. This directive is an unjustified and incorrect interpretation of the law and of congressional intent. It is certainly not the intent of Congress to mandate States to fund Medicaid abortions in the case of rape or incest, regardless of State law. The 1993 Hyde amendment to public law is clearly not a mandate, but an enlargement on the limitation on the use of Federal funds, allowing States to use Medicaid funds to finance abortions in the case of rape or incest and of course to save the life on an indigent mother. The language in the bill we are considering today, once and for all, clarifies the original congressional intent in statute.

Mr. Chairman, this Member urges his colleagues to oppose the Lowey amendment.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the Lowey amendment, which deletes the provision in this legislation permitting States to decide whether to use Medicaid funds for abortions in the case of rape or incest.

This provision is cruel, unfair, and has no place in any legislation, but most particularly not in this already troubled omnibus appropriations bill.

States should not be given the option of providing coverage of these services under the guise of States' rights. States have the choice whether or not to participate in the Medicaid Program—they do not and should not have the option to pick and choose which procedures they will cover.

The provision in this bill clearly discriminates against victims of crime. It blames the victim and forces her to accept the responsibility and consequences resulting from the violent crime perpetrated against her. Indigent women who are victims of rape or incest have already been brutally assaulted once by their attacker—this provision will make them victims of a second brutal assault, this time by the Government that pledges to assist and protect them.

I urge my colleagues to protect the rights of poor and vulnerable victims and vote "yes" on the Lowey amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from New York [Ms. LOWEY].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 198, noes 222, not voting 11, as follows:

Mr. COOLEY changed his vote from "aye" to "no."

So the amendment was rejected.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. EWING. Mr. Chairman, on Rollcall No. 51, I was unavoidably detained. Had I been present, I would have voted "no."

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, on Thursday, March 7, 1996, during consideration of H.R. 3019, the Balanced Budget Downpayment Act, I mistakenly voted "nay" on the Lowey amendment.

This amendment would have deleted the bill's provision permitting States to decide whether to use Medicaid funds to pay for an abortion in the case of rape or incest. Had the amendment passed, it would have retained the current law which requires that States fund abortions in cases of rape, incest, or to save the life of the woman.

My vote against the Lowey amendment was purely accidental. I have always been and will continue to be 100 percent supportive of a woman's right to choose.

The CHAIRMAN. The Committee will rise informally in order that the House may receive a message.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will receive a message.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Committee will resume its sitting.

BALANCED BUDGET DOWN PAYMENT ACT, II

The Committee resumed its sitting.

The CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 2 printed in House Report 104–1474.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ISTOOK

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

TITLE V—DISCLOSURE OF LOBBYING ACTIVITIES BY FEDERAL GRANTEES

DISCLOSURE OF LOBBYING ACTIVITIES BY FEDERAL GRANTEES

SEC. 5001. (a) DISCLOSURE REQUIREMENTS.—Not later than December 31 of each year, each organization receiving a Federal grant shall provide (via either electronic or paper medium) to each Federal entity that awarded or administered its grant an annual report for the previous Federal fiscal year, certified by the organization's chief executive officer of equivalent person of authority, setting forth—

(1) the organization's name and grantee identification number;

(2) the amount or value of each grant (including all administrative and overhead costs awarded), and the description of each such grant and the name of the Federal agency awarding such grant; and

(3) a good faith estimate of the organization's actual expenses on lobbying activities in the most recent taxable year.

(b) EXEMPTIONS.—This section shall not apply to an individual or a State, local, or Indian tribal government.

(c) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section:

(1) FEDERAL GRANT.—The term "Federal grant" means money or real property that is paid or provided by the Federal Government to any organization. Such term does not include (A) any assistance described in section 6302(2) of title 31, United States Code; (B) any amount paid under a procurement contract described in section 6303(1) of such title; or (C) and payment or assistance described in clause (ii), (iii), (iv), or (vii) of section 6501(4)(C) of such title.

(2) LOBBYING ACTIVITY.—The term "lobbying activity" means any activity that is either (A) a lobbying activity within the meaning of section 3 of the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995; or (B) an activity influencing legislation within the meaning of section 4911 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986. Such term shall also include advocating the election or defeat of any candidate for public office, or the passage or non-passage of any ballot proposition.

(D) PUBLIC ACCOUNTABILITY.—

(1) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY OF LOBBYING DISCLOSURE FORMS.—Each Federal entity awarding a Federal grant shall make publicly available the grant application, and any annual report provided under subsection (a) by the organization receiving the grant.

(2) ACCESSIBILITY TO PUBLIC.—The public's access to the documents identified in paragraph (1) shall be facilitated by the Federal entity by—

(A) placement of such documents in the Federal entity's public document reading room;

(B) expediting any requests under section 552 of title 5, United States Code (the Freedom of Information Act), ahead of any requests for other information pending at such Federal entity; and

(C) submitting to the Bureau of the Census a report (standardized by the Office of Management and Budget) setting forth the information provided in such documents, which the Bureau of the Census shall make available to the public through the Internet.

(3) WITHHOLDING PROHIBITED.—Records described in paragraph (1) shall not be subject to withholding, except under the exemption set forth in subsection (b)(7)(A) of section 552 of title 5, United States Code.

(4) FEES PROHIBITED.—No fees for searching for or copying such documents shall be charged to the public.

(e) CONSTRUCTION.—No provision of this section may be construed to affect whether any organization is exempt from, or subject to, tax under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(f) REGULATIONS.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall issue any regulations necessary to carry out this section.

(g) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—This section shall take effect January 1, 1996, and apply thereafter.

(2) PRIOR ACTIVITIES NOT TAKEN INTO ACCOUNT.—In applying this section, only expenditures made after December 31, 1995, in taxable years ending after such date shall be taken into account.

(3) ANNUALIZATION FOR PARTIAL TAXABLE YEARS.—in the case of a taxable year that ends after December 31, 1995, and begins before January 1, 1996, each of the dollar amounts applicable under this section shall be proportionally reduced to reflect the portion of such taxable year after December 31, 1995.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. ISTOOK] is recognized for 10 minutes, and a Member opposed, the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SKAGGS], is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1½ minutes.

Mr. Chairman, the amendment that is at the desk is a very simple disclosure amendment. It specifies that recipients of grants from the taxpayers, groups that have asked for and received taxpayers' money in the form of grants, should simply make an annual disclosure of the total amount that they have spent in that year on lobbying. It is not a detailed disclosure, it is not a restriction of any sort on how their money is spent, it is not a restriction of any sort on eligibility. It simply says that once a year they shall disclose the total amount they have spent on lobbying.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Mr. Chairman, I have a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Mr. Chairman, I do not even know what the gentleman's lapel button reads, but there is a House rule against speaking while wearing a button other than a Member's button.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. ISTOOK] is responding by taking his button off, and the Chair thanks the gentleman from Mississippi for raising the point of order.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, we have had debate previously in this Chamber about the activity of different groups that receive Federal taxpayer's money, sometimes in hundreds of millions or tens of millions of dollars, and their lobbying activity. Previously this body voted, on two different occasions, passing legislation that would put some commonsense limitations on the scope of lobbying by groups dependent upon the taxpayer's money. The Senate also had a similar vote, adopting that in principle as well.

This amendment, however, Mr. Chairman, does not go that far. It simply says that groups that are recipients of taxpayers' money will make a disclosure of the total amount once a year that they have spent on lobbying. That will certainly help both sides in that debate, Mr. Chairman. Some have said oh, they are not doing big time lobbying. Others have said, yes, they are. But the problem is we have never required them to report that, along with the other information grant recipients report. This will give us the information so that both sides may consider this issue based upon the facts. I urge its adoption.

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 2¼ minutes.

Mr. Chairman, I will stipulate at the outset this particular rendition of this redtape-filled, burdensome, bureaucratic reporting requirement on America's charities is less bad than the last time we had this debate, but it does not make it good. To the contrary, this will impose a scheme that will force charities and nonprofit and many businesses, small businesses included, to keep a whole new set of records about the activities of their employees and volunteers and their expenditures in order to file a whole new set of annual reports to the Federal Government, to Washington, letting us know what they may be doing to try to influence legislation by their city councils, by their county commissions, by their State legislatures, if they happen to get some Federal money by way of a grant.

What in the world are we doing, Mr. Chairman? What is the evil here? Who are the bad guys? What is the problem? It is already illegal to use Federal grant moneys to lobby. That law works very well. There have been no demonstrated problems. What is this amendment about? What will the impacts be? Let me just give a couple of examples.

The Red Cross of America, trying to get the county that it may be operating in to develop an emergency preparedness plan, will have to keep track of the activities involved with that, so it can be part of this report. The YMCA in your local community that gets a child care grant, that is trying to get a citizen council to pass an ordinance about child care, will have to keep track of its activities in order to be accounted for in the reports required under this amendment.

The State chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, trying to toughen DUI laws, will have to keep track of all of that so as to be able to report under this amendment. Even, if Members can believe it, the local electrical contractor getting an SBA technical grant will have to keep track of its donations in connection with a referendum about a local recreation district in order to be able to report under the requirements imposed under this amendment.

What in the world are we doing? The current law works just fine. We have a hard time figuring out why the folks that want to bring us less burdensome regulation from Washington, less paperwork, would indulge in this kind of activity.

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SKAGGS. I yield to the gentlewoman from New Jersey.

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman. I just want to echo the gentleman's comments and associate myself with the gentleman's remarks. I would say, For heaven's sakes, I thought we had a bipartisan agreement, led by my Republican Party, that said the era of big government was over. Here we have not a simple disclosure; it is a Big Brother regulatory morass, and it does not even pass the commonsense test.

This puts mindless bureaucracy in a position to demand reports from the YMCA, your local church, the Red Cross, the charity groups helping provide meals for senior citizens.

This is also completely contradictory to our stated and loudly proclaimed purpose of encouraging the private sector and the charities to shoulder a great share of welfare costs.

Again lets get back to reality and vote "no" on this senseless bureaucratic, big government intrusion.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 20 seconds.

Mr. Chairman, I would certainly invite anyone that has been misled that somehow this is some sort of regulatory scheme, frankly, to read the bill. The only thing it requires is a listing of a good faith estimate of the total amount they spent on lobbying that year. I think it is kind of silly if somebody is thinking that this is a regulatory scheme. It is very plain and simple disclosure.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. GUTKNECHT].

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

First of all, I want to respond to the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SKAGGS]. He has said that the law that we have today is working fine. As far as we know, Mr. Chairman, there has never been enforcement under this law. As a matter of fact, in testimony before our subcommittee, we heard of examples of groups receiving as much as 96 percent of their money from the Federal Government in various grants. And what do they do with most of that money? They turn right around, come back here, and lobby for more.

This is pernicious, Mr. Chairman. It needs to stop. As a matter of fact, our estimates are, it could be as little as $200 million. It could be into the billions of dollars.

All this little amendment does is require disclosure. This is a sunshine amendment. Members have probably heard this said before, that the single most important antiseptic sometimes is just a little sunshine. Only those who have something to hide fear sunshine. This is a good amendment. It ought to have unanimous support. We ought to find out exactly how much taxpayer money is flowing through some of these special interest groups and being used to lobby for more taxpayer money. It is a good amendment. We ought to have unanimous support.

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. FRANK].

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I have noticed a very consistent lack of consistency on the Republican side. This bill carries it out. We are worried that people will get Federal money and use it to lobby us, so we have to ask them to report it, except we exempt the vast majority of recipients. Contractors are exempted from this.

Members will remember that the U.S. Senate, in a rare demonstration of an ability to pass legislation, made a mistake last year, because they passed a version of this and they included contractors, and Blue Cross went into cardiac arrest. Fortunately, they waived their own rules so they could be treated. But they then got into the CR, in a very inappropriate legislative way, an amendment to that bill, and contractors are not covered, and they are not covered here.

If people want to lobby us to build a B-2 and get more money, this bill does not touch them. If people want to lobby us to build the space station or to raise provider payments or do anything like that, this bill does not touch them. Apparently, the new Republican view is if you are engaged in charity, you are suspect.

We hear a lot on that side about how the private, voluntary sector should do more, but they are treated as suspects, because if you are in the private, voluntary sector and you get Federal funds lawfully to carry out a program, we are going to check up on you. But if you are a contractor and you are going to get money and then lobby for more, if you are a housing developer, if you are an aircraft contractor, if you are a medical provider, if you are an HMO, you will get money and not be reporting. What is the difference? The difference is that the people who do not report get an enormously greater amount of money than the people who do report.

This looks at the gnats and ignores the camels. By the way, the tobacco companies are probably also included in the exemption, while we are at it. So you penalize the voluntary sector, who you otherwise like. When it comes to shifting important jobs from the Federal Government, you are all for the voluntary sector. But here you discriminate against them, because if this were not a problem, you would not have given it to Blue Cross when they came for an exemption and you would not continue to exempt the private contractors.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Idaho [Mrs. CHENOWETH].

Mrs. CHENOWETH. Mr. Chairman, I want to say that the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. FRANK] is a great debater, but he is greatly wrong on one point. That is that on Federal contractors, the rules governing Federal contractors are about a foot thick. So they exist under their own special rules.

Mr. Chairman, I do rise in strong support of the Istook amendment. This amendment, Mr. Chairman, is a simple disclosure requirement. In a free society, the people have the right to know that their tax dollars may be going to organizations that then lobby the Federal Government. The amendment offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma would go a long way in extending that basic right. I urge my colleagues to vote yes on the Istook amendment.

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentlewoman from New York [Ms. SLAUGHTER].

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Chairman, if the purpose for this amendment today is to find out how much Federal money is being used to lobby by nonprofit groups, I can give the answer right now. Zero. It has been against the law here for years. The IRS has never had a single complaint. We brought this up at committee meeting after committee meeting, because we debate this thing once a week, almost.

The truth of the matter is that the only thing anybody could ever come up with even a hint of a notion that somebody had misused money, was that the beer wholesalers were mad at the Mother Against Drunk Driving. This amendment tries to demonize the Girl Scouts, the Boy Scouts, the Salvation Army, the Red Cross, Catholic charities, and all other groups out there who are doing work for the Federal Government. It is absolutely nonsense that we waste our time on this.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 15 seconds.

Mr. Chairman, contrary to what may have been represented to the gentlewoman from New York, many nonprofit groups are major lobbyists. They are required to make a disclosure of that through an IRS regulation, which is adopted here. Many of their disclosures reveal that they spend substantial funds. But this is talking about Federal grantees, what they spend on lobbying.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. EHRLICH].

Mr. EHRLICH. Mr. Chairman, it is always interesting to hear the spin on this one. We hear so much spin on this one, Mr. Chairman. When you are acting in your capacity as a Federal grantee, you are covered under this amendment. When you are not, regardless of your profit or nonprofit status, everybody knows that. We have debated that on the floor may times.

Mr. Chairman, this is full disclosure. Full disclosure is good government. It is very interesting to hear arguments against full disclosure and good government coming from the other side. This just makes common sense. It is the first step in the right direction. I rise in enthusiastic support for the Istook amendment.

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, I yield one-half minute to the gentleman from New York [Mr. HOUGHTON].

Mr. HOUGHTON. Mr. Chairman, I would like to talk against this amendment. I have been in the foundation field all my life. I frankly feel this is a smokescreen to curtail their activities. There is not a single shred of evidence from the GAO, the Inspector General, any of the accounting offices, or the IRS to say that any Federal money has been used for lobbying, period.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Arizona, Mr. J.D. HAYWORTH.

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of this amendment. It is interesting, as my colleague, the gentleman from Maryland, noted, the juxtaposition that has gone on here. In previous days when we have debated this issue, statements from the other side have been that this was an effort to restrict free speech.

Mr. Chairman, free speech is not free when you and I are paying for it, when the taxpayers of this country repeatedly are called upon to let folks come up here and lobby, and take that money and lobby for more and more money. The fact is, this is a very simple requirement, simply calling for disclosure; not itemization not red tape nothing of the sort.

The fact is we know this lobbying has gone on. We know taxpayers' dollars have gone for this, and this must stop, or at the very least, as this amendment says, it should be accounted for and simply disclosed. My colleague, the gentleman from Minnesota, said it eloquently. Sunshine is the best disinfectant. Let us let the sunshine in and have disclosure of these funds.

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, I yield ½ minute to the gentlewoman from Florida [Mrs. MEEK].

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to this amendment. As I have told my good friend, the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. ISTOOK], this amendment discriminates against charities. It puts the reporting burden on charities getting Federal grants, but it does not put the same burden on businesses getting Federal grants. From that, you can make your decision on that.

Why should one group, the charities, which help so many people, be hurt by this amendment, and the other people who are getting Federal contracts are not? It is not fair. Vote against it.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment discriminates against charities. It puts a reporting burden on charities getting Federal grants but does not put the same burden on businesses getting Federal contracts.

In his "Dear Colleague," Mr. ISTOOK says we should support his amendment because, "there is no data kept that covers all federal grantees' lobbying." I ask the gentleman from Oklahoma whether there are data on lobbying by those who receive Federal contracts?

He knows the answer is "no." If he is really interested in sunshine, why not have it fall on everyone.

Stop picking on our charities.

☐ 1600

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I would like to inquire as to remaining time.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. ISTOOK] has 3¾ minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SKAGGS] has 4¼ minutes remaining.

The Chair informs the Members that the gentleman from Colorado, Mr. STAGGS, representing the committee's position, is entitled to close debate.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY], the ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I would simply say again, you cannot now use Federal dollars to lobby the Federal Government. That is existing law. All the Istook proposition says is that to the Red Cross, the Boy Scouts, the Farmers' Union, Alzheimer's Association, Girl Scouts, the Epilepsy Foundation, churches and charities, you have got to go through this paperwork joke. It says to the giant contractors who spend billions of dollars in contracts with the Federal Government, no Washington ink is exempt. You do not have to worry about it, big boys.

Mr. Chairman, I think the selectivity of this amendment is pernicious and it is cynical. It just seems to me that the best way to deal with this is to keep an even playing field, turn down this amendment. I think every Member of this House is a big enough boy or a big enough girl to handle a tough lobbying job from the Boy Scouts without having this kind of wasteful proposition intervene.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Chairman, there are always people that do not want to reveal to the public how Washington works or how much people spend on trying to lobby in Washington or anyplace else, especially groups that are dependent upon the taxpayers for their money.

Contrary to what several speakers have claimed, there is no distinction made in this simple disclosure legislation between a business and a charity, none whatsoever. It says any organization that receives a Federal grant will make the disclosure. The only exceptions are for individuals and for entities of State, local and tribal government.

There is no exemption for big business. There is no exemption for big charity. There is no exemption for big anybody except for government itself. Any group whatsoever, what are they afraid of? What is it they are trying to conceal when they come to us and say, We want the taxpayers' money but we just do not want to tell you how much we spent on lobbying?

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 15 seconds.

Mr. Chairman, I just would inquire of the sponsor of this amendment, what business is it of the Federal Government whether Regis College in Denver, CO spends some of its funds lobbying Denver city council over a land-use matter? Why should they have to report to Washington that kind of activity?

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SKAGGS. I yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I say to the gentleman, if a group does not ask for taxpayers' money, this legislation does not mean beans to them. It is only groups that ask to get in the taxpayers' pocket.

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, why should a local college have to report to Washington their local activities with their city council?

Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 seconds to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY].

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman is wrong. The gentleman indicates we do not want people to know how Washington works. I quite disagree. I think the gentleman is a perfect example, and so is his amendment, of exactly how Washington works: Protect the big boys and go after the little people.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. MCINTOSH].

Mr. MCINTOSH. Mr. Chairman, I want to praise the gentleman from Oklahoma for bringing forth this disclosure amendment. In fact, the amendment does not provide additional requirements for information to be disclosed, but consolidates a lot of disclosure requirements that are already there for these grant recipients in various current legislation. The more important issue in this debate, I think, is what direction do we want to go in?

Are we going to continue to have the taxpayers subsidizing large lobbying outfits here in Washington, or are we going to build a record and continue the progress that we started last fall in protecting the taxpayer interest, in saying if you want to be a lobbying organization, you can lobby, that is your right, but do it with your own dime and on your own time.

This amendment moves in that direction. There are many other things that should be done to strengthen that, to say lobbying groups cannot use loopholes in the lobbying bill to allow affiliates to take the money and then come in and lobby on their own. These matters are not covered here today in this amendment. Those we will have to do in future legislative activity.

This amendment today begins that process of saying let us fully disclose so that the American taxpayer knows groups who are receiving taxpayer money, how much lobbying they do, when they do it, what they do with that money, so that the taxpayer can hold them accountable.

Mr. Chairman, I commend the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment is simple. It is straightforward. It is plain vanilla. It affects one group of organizations and only one: groups that have made up their mind that they want financing from the taxpayers. If they do not want taxpayers' money, this amendment does not affect anyone. If they want taxpayers' money, it simply says give us the bottom line. The details are not even covered here. Just give us the bottom line once a year, how much did you spend on lobbying?

Mr. Chairman, they are already required to keep records of this. If they were, for example, a 501(c)(3), they are already required by the IRS to keep records of it. They are already subject to auditing. They do not want people to know. There are groups that receive tens of millions and hundreds of millions of dollars from the taxpayers, that are some of the major lobbying groups in Washington, and they try to claim we are letting the big boys off.

If the group is a big boy, it does not matter if it is a charity or business. This amendment treats it the same. It says, If you want taxpayers' money, tell us one simple thing: How much are you spending on lobbying?

Then if the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SKAGGS] thinks the results show that it is not a problem, he can use that as his evidence. If it shows more things with problems, that too can be evidence. Let us get simple and to the facts.

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, this is no trivial matter. Contrary to the representations made by the proponents of this, it will require all affected organizations, large and small, charitable and for-profit, to set up a new system of recordkeeping in order to be able to make that good faith estimate, because without accounting for the time and money spent by both paid and volunteer staff, things that now are not covered by any Federal requirement, they will not be able to make that report, however simply it may be.

I again ask my colleagues, why in the world is it the business of the U.S. Government to require a private university getting an NSF grant to report to us, to Washington, about their efforts to work with the local county commissioners over a matter involving transportation in their area? Why is it of concern to Washington if a veterans' group that happens to be getting a job training grant wants to lobby their State legislature for a veterans' cemetery? Why should we require them to keep track of those activities and report to us?

This amendment would create a paperwork burden, tons of redtape in addition to filing the report that would be required, again, because these organizations would have to account for the time spent by their employees and volunteers beyond what is now required under the Internal Revenue Code. It will bring tens of thousands of businesses, charities, and schools under new reporting requirements. Forty-seven thousand grants go to businesses, 43,000 grants to private colleges and universities. Again, what business is it of ours what they do at the State and local level?

This is just the first step, as the gentleman from Maryland's comments suggested, in the ongoing assault that the advocates of this amendment wish to make on the free-speech rights of many Americans and their organizations. The original amendment offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma has been divided into parts, and this happens to be the first part. But we should say no to this part lest we have to deal with the others.

This proposal comes to us from the folk who promised to lighten the regulatory burdens, imposed from Washington, to reduce Federal paperwork. This amendment comes to us from the people who expect private charity to try to pick up the slack as the Federal Government does less.

Mr. Chairman, give me a break. More importantly, give them a break and vote "no."

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I must rise in opposition to the Istook amendment to H.R. 3019. This amendment is designed to send a chilling effect to groups who are attempting to express their opinions on the important issues confronting our Nation. While some proponents of this amendment argue that it is just a disclosure requirement. Many of us know the real motivation of this amendment.

The amendment requires organizations to list each Federal grant that they receive, a description of each grant, the name of the agency awarding the grant, and an estimate of lobbying expenses. Why is this information necessary? Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to vote against this amendment and stand up for the true meaning of our democratic principles which encourages free speech, encourages citizens to participate in government, and the right to impact public policy.

This amendment is a bad amendment. It is also mean spirited. I urge my colleagues to defeat this amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. ISTOOK].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 211, noes 209, not voting 12, as follows:

□ 1630

The CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 3 printed in House Report 104-474.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. CRAPO

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

TITLE V—DEFICIT REDUCTION LOCK-BOX

SEC. 501. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the "Deficit Reduction Lock-box Act of 1996".

SEC. 502. DEFICIT REDUCTION LOCK-BOX LEDGER.

"DEFICIT REDUCTION LOCK-BOX LEDGER

"SEC. 314. (a) ESTABLISHMENT OF LEDGER.—The Director of the Congressional Budget Office (hereinafter in this section referred to as the "Director") shall maintain a ledger to be known as the "Deficit Reduction Lock-box Ledger". The Ledger shall be divided into entries corresponding to the subcommittees of the Committees on Appropriations. Each entry shall consist of three parts: the 'House Lock-box Balance'; the 'Senate Lock-box Balance'; and the 'Joint House-Senate Lock-box Balance'.

"(b) COMPONENTS OF LEDGER.—Each component in an entry shall consist only of amounts credited to it under subsection (c). No entry of a negative amount shall be made.

"(c) CREDIT OF AMOUNTS TO LEDGER.—(1) The Director shall, upon the engrossment of any appropriation bill by the House of Representatives and upon the engrossment of that bill by the Senate, credit to the applicable entry balance of that House amounts of new budget authority and outlays equal to the net amounts of reductions in new budget authority and in outlays resulting from amendments agreed to by that House to that bill.

"(2) The Director shall, upon the engrossment of Senate amendments to any appropriation bill, credit to the applicable Joint House-Senate Lock-box Balance the amounts of new budget authority and outlays equal to—

"(A) an amount equal to one-half of the sum of (i) the amount of new budget authority in the House Lock-box Balance plus (ii) the amount of new budget authority in the Senate Lock-box Balance for that bill; and

"(B) an amount equal to one-half of the sum of (i) the amount of outlays in the House Lock-box Balance plus (ii) the amount of outlays in the Senate Lock-box Balance for that bill.

"(3) CALCULATION OF LOCK-BOX SAVINGS IN SENATE.—For purposes of calculating under this section the net amounts of reductions in new budget authority and in outlays resulting from amendments agreed to by the Senate on an appropriation bill, the amendments reported to the Senate by its Committee on Appropriations shall be considered to be part of the original text of the bill.

"(d) DEFINITION.—As used in this section, the term 'appropriation bill' means any general or special appropriation bill, and any bill or joint resolution making supplemental, deficiency, or continuing appropriations through the end of a fiscal year.".

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of contents set forth in section 1(b) of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 313 the following new item:

"Sec. 314. Deficit reduction lock-box ledger.".

SEC. 503. TALLY DURING HOUSE CONSIDERATION.

There shall be available to Members in the House of Representatives during consideration of any appropriations bill by the House a running tally of the amendments adopted reflecting increases and decreases of budget authority in the bill as reported.

SEC. 504. DOWNWARD ADJUSTMENT OF 602(a) ALLOCATIONS AND SECTION 602(b) SUBALLOCATIONS.

"(5) Upon the engrossment of Senate amendments to any appropriation bill (as defined in section 314(d)) for a fiscal year, the amounts allocated under paragraph (1) or (2) to the Committee on Appropriations of each House upon the adoption of the most recent concurrent resolution on the budget for that fiscal year shall be adjusted downward by the amounts credited to the applicable Joint House-Senate Lock-box Balance under section 314(c)(2). The revised levels of budget authority and outlays shall be submitted to each House by the chairman of the Committee on the Budget of that House and shall be printed in the Congressional Record.".

(b) SUBALLOCATIONS.—Section 602(b)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: "Whenever an adjustment is made under subsection (a)(5) to an allocation under that subsection, the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations of each House shall make downward adjustments in the most recent suballocations of new budget authority and outlays under subparagraph (A) to the appropriate subcommittees of that committee in the total amounts of those adjustments under section 314(c)(2). The revised suballocations shall be submitted to each House by the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations of that House and shall be printed in the Congressional Record.".

SEC. 505. PERIODIC REPORTING OF LEDGER STATEMENTS.

Section 308(b)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: "Such reports shall also include an up-to-date tabulation of the amounts contained in the ledger and each entry established by section 314(a).".

SEC. 506. DOWNWARD ADJUSTMENT OF DISCRETIONARY SPENDING LIMITS.

The discretionary spending limits for new budget authority and outlays for any fiscal year set forth in section 601(a)(2) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, as adjusted in strict conformance with section 251 of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, shall be reduced by the amounts set forth in the final regular appropriation bill for that fiscal year or joint resolution making continuing appropriations through the end of that fiscal year. Those amounts shall be the sums of the Joint House-Senate Lock-box Balances for that fiscal year, as calculated under section 602(a)(5) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974. That bill or joint resolution shall contain the following statement of law: "As required by section 6 of the Deficit Reduction Lock-box Act of 1995, for fiscal year [insert appropriate fiscal year] and each out-year, the adjusted discretionary spending limit for new budget authority shall be reduced by $ [insert appropriate amount of reduction] and the adjusted discretionary limit for outlays shall be reduced by $ [insert appropriate amount of reduction] for the budget year and each out-year." Notwithstanding section 904(c) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, section 306 of that Act as it applies to this statement shall be waived. This adjustment shall be reflected in reports under sections 254(g) and 254(h) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985.

SEC. 507. EFFECTIVE DATE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—This title shall apply to all appropriation bills making appropriations for fiscal year 1996 or any subsequent fiscal year.

(b) FY96 APPLICATION.—In the case of any appropriation bill for fiscal year 1996 engrossed by the House of Representatives after August 4, 1995 and before the date of enactment of this bill, the Director of the Congressional Budget Office, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, and the Committees on Appropriations and the Committees on the Budget of the House of Representatives and of the Senate shall, within 10 calendar days after that date of enactment of this Act, carry out the duties required by this title and amendments made by it that occur after the date this Act was engrossed by the House of Representatives.

(c) FY96 ALLOCATIONS.—The duties of the Director of the Congressional Budget Office and of the Committees on the Budget and on Appropriations of the House of Representatives pursuant to this title and the amendments made by it regarding appropriation bills for fiscal year 1996 shall be based upon the revised section 602(a) allocations in effect on August 4, 1995.

(d) DEFINITION.—As used in this section, the term "appropriation bill" means any general or special appropriation bill, and any bill or joint resolution making supplemental, deficiency, or continuing appropriations through the end of a fiscal year.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Idaho [Mr. CRAPO] is recognized for 10 minutes, and a Member in opposition will be recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. Chairman, before we begin the debate, I ask unanimous consent to modify the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Idaho?

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I object.

The CHAIRMAN. Objection is heard.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 30 seconds.

Mr. Chairman, this is the third time that we will have had the lockbox provision before us. It is one of the most critical reform issues with regard to the budget that will face in this Congress. It makes sure that when we make cuts on the floor of this House to the discretionary budget, that those cuts are real and that they are not then shifted into other spending programs.

Mr. Chairman, we have debated this many times. I suspect that we will continue debating it until it becomes law. I encourage Members to stay the course on the lockbox. We are going to have a lot of people here in support of it today, but the point that must be recognized is we will stick with this amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there a Member opposed to the amendment?

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I am opposed to the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. LIVINGSTON] is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. BEILENSON].

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Louisiana for yielding me time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the gentleman's amendment. On the face of it, the lockbox proposal is an appealing idea. As proponents describe it, it is a way to ensure that the savings produced in spending cut amendments to appropriations bills are used to reduce the deficit, not to increase spending for other purposes.

But what the procedure actually does is to reduce the amount of funds available to the Committee on Appropriations by the amount saved by spending cut amendments adopted on the House and Senate floor. Thus, it is a tool to force total discretionary spending below the level that Congress has already decided through its budget resolution and through statutory caps as the appropriate level for the coming fiscal year.

So the question we should be considering is do we need to adopt an additional budget procedure to force deeper cuts in discretionary spending than we are already on the path toward achieving?

For those of us who think that we are already making more than enough cuts in discretionary spending, for those of us who oppose the substantial cuts in education and environmental protection that would result from this bill, and for those of us who are worried about future cuts in those areas, as well as cuts in transportation, housing, science and health research, national parks, crime control and many of the other programs that comprise the discretionary spending category that will be imposed if we eventually agree to a plan to balance the budget, it makes little sense to endorse a procedure that will likely lead to even deeper cuts and fewer opportunities to restore funds to these very programs.

Even Members who do wish to cut discretionary spending further cannot dispute the fact we already have an extremely effective process in place for controlling that kind of spending. Those controls have enabled Congress to restrain the growth of discretionary spending to such an extent that its share of GDP has declined from 10.5 percent in 1980, to 8.2 percent in 1994, and if the Congress complies with the current discretionary spending caps that are in the budget resolution that was adopted last year, that spending will decline to just 6.8 percent in 1998. Domestic discretionary spending will decline from 5.1 percent of GDP in 1980, down to 3.1 percent in 1998.

Last, Mr. Chairman, if our goal is to establish procedures that will help us to reduce the deficit, this measure obviously aims at the wrong target. Like other procedures Congress has considered in recent years to apply further controls to discretionary spending, such as expedited rescission, line-item veto, separation of emergency and nonemergency appropriations, the lockbox proposal addresses the one part of the budget that is already the most strictly controlled.

If our budget process is inadequate in any way, it is that it provides comparatively little control for the mandatory spending, the entitlement programs, that are driving the growth of the Federal budget deficit.

If we are ever to succeed in eliminating deficit spending, Congress has got to change its focus with respect to budget process matters. Rather than devoting our time and effort to devising ways to apply more controls to the part of the budget that is already strictly controlled, we should devote that same kind of effort to addressing other parts of the budget that are under less effective control.

In addition, the Appropriations Committee will have to operate under a significantly more complicated process for figuring out how much funding they have to work with. And, this new procedure is likely to generate more conflict between the Senate and the House, and between Congress and the President, toward the end of each year's appropriations season when new, reduced allocations of spending are parcelled out to the appropriations subcommittees to accommodate whatever lockbox savings are finally achieved.

Popular as the lockbox proposal is, I urge my colleagues to consider carefully whether Congress needs a new procedure that increases the complexity of the budget process, and the difficulty of reaching final agreement on appropriations bills, and that focuses our deficit-reduction efforts on an area of the budget that is already contributing more than its fair share to the cause.

Mr. Chairman, I urge members to vote "no" on the Crapo amendment.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON], the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Rules, who has been so gracious to be a strong supporter of this measure and bring the amendment forward.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Chairman, in spite of my great admiration and respect and friendship for the greatest chairman of the Committee on Appropriations that this body has ever known, I rise in the strongest possible support for this legislation.

Do my colleagues know why? I have been here for 18 years, not quite as long as the gentleman who is the chairman. In those 18 years, except for perhaps the retiring gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WALKER], I guess I have offered more amendments on this floor successfully passed than any other Member. Most of them were cutting amendments, even cutting sacrosanct things like foreign aid, which was unheard of. And lo and behold, over the 18-year career, all of the money was reprogrammed and respent.

This puts a stop to it today. This means when JERRY SOLOMON, or the gentleman from Florida, Mr. FOLEY, or the gentleman from Idaho, Mr. CRAPO, or any others, offer an amendment, if we do not offset it with other spending, that means that money is going to deficit deduction.

We are going to get this deficit under control one way or another. This is the best possible way to do it. I urge all Members to get over here and vote for this. We will make sure the Senate passes it, and, by golly, we will have some fiscal responsibility around here.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment will make the budget process more user friendly for Members who wish to offer spending cut amendments on the floor of the House and Senate. When a spending cut amendment is adopted, savings from that amendment will be credited to deficit reduction.

This amendment is identical to the bill H.R. 1162 which passed the House under an open rule on September 13, 1995 by a bipartisan vote of 364 to 59. A similar amendment was also adopted on August 2, 1995 as an amendment to the Labor, HHS and Education Appropriations bill for fiscal year 1996 with 373 Members supporting that amendment. With such vast support for the amendment last year it follows that it should once again be included with these funding bills.

This bill reported by the Rules Committee represents a truly bipartisan effort culminating only after extensive consultation with CBO, OMB, CRS, the Government Reform and Oversight, Appropriations and Budget Committees.

The Crapo amendment contains a process flexible enough for both the Appropriations Committees to set spending priorities and for individual Members to debate substantive policy and spending issues during floor consideration of appropriation measures.

Members will now truly be able to go to the floor and offer spending cut amendments and actually be reducing the deficit.

I strongly urge my colleagues to once again support this bill by passing the Crapo amendment.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from California [Ms. HARMAN], who has also been a strong supporter and worked with us from the outset on this matter.

Ms. HARMAN. Mr. Chairman, as the mother of lockbox, I rise in strong support of the Crapo lockbox amendment. I hope it will be enacted into law before I become a grandmother.

As we have heard from the gentleman from Idaho [Mr. CRAPO], the lockbox has passed three times by overwhelming margins, and yet it languishes in the other body. During last year's appropriations debates, the House passed floor amendments totaling more than $350 billion, and those dollars did not go to deficit reduction, they were reprogrammed.

I commend Mr. CRAPO for including in his amendment the language offered by my colleague from Texas, Mr. STENHOLM, and myself to the House-passed lockbox bill that captured outyear savings.

Our amendment was supported by the Concord Coalition and the National Taxpayer Union, among others. It ensured that spending cuts in multiyear programs result in a reduction in the outyear discretionary spending caps, as well as the present year spending caps.

Let me explain why such a provision is critical. On average, 95 percent of an agency's personnel funds are outlayed in the first fiscal year. By contrast, only 3.1 percent of funds for constructing military housing are outlayed in the first year. In the case of the Army, 12 percent is outlayed in year 2, 37 percent in year 3, and 24 percent in year 4.

Thus, without an outyear savings provision, cutting $100 million out of fast-spending program like personnel may translate into a discretionary spending cut of $95 million. But a successful floor amendment cutting $100 million from a slow-spending program like Army family housing construction only reduces discretionary spending by $3.1 million in the first year. The remaining $96.9 million is not captured and, under our current House procedures, remains available for other spending programs.

Lockbox ensures that a cut is a cut. And, the language identical to the Harman-Stenholm amendment ensures that a cut is a full cut, not a cut based on a program's outlay spending rate for the first fiscal year.

Mr. Chairman, the time has come. Deficit hawks, please vote for the bipartisan Crapo, Brewster, Foley, Harman, Largent, Schumer, Stenholm, et al, amendment. There is no more time for delay.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. FOLEY], who is one of the strong fighters in the freshman class.

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Chairman, first congratulations to the gentleman from Idaho [Mr. CRAPO], in advance, because this will be successful. For the first time, Congress is going to face the fact that, when we cut spending from programs, it is not going to be siphoned off and sent over to other spending programs. Much like Americans all across our land have Christmas club accounts, vacation accounts, savings accounts, the lockbox will truly give us a mechanism by which when we cut wasteful spending on the floor or in committee, that wasteful spending will actually go for deficit reduction.

I applaud my colleagues on both sides of the aisle. This has been a great opportunity for us to work, Republicans and Democrats, for fiscal responsibility. Again I applaud the gentleman from Idaho [Mr. CRAPO] for his leadership on this initiative and to the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON] for strong words of encouragement all the way.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. LARGENT], another of the freshmen so strong in support of this matter.

Mr. LARGENT. Mr. Chairman, let me start by saying that I believe we have a moral imperative to balance the budget for the future of our children, and I believe that every spending reduction we can make is a positive step in that direction.

When Members go to the floor and cast votes for cutting amendments, they believe they are doing just that, cutting spending. In fact, as many of the newer Members of Congress have recently discovered, these cuts do not really go for deficit reduction but are reprogrammed and spent on other projects. This is outrageous. When 200 Members of the House of Representatives vote to cut spending, spending should be cut, not reprogrammed. That is why the lockbox is so important. To lock in the savings that the House passes and ensure that the savings go to deficit reduction, we must enact the lockbox now and not a day later.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment. I mean many of the reasons have been enumerated, and that is when a cut is made, the cut should go to cutting. I have been against many of the very draconian measures that cut the budget, but this one makes rational sense. It allows us to, when we get up there and say we are cutting money, make sure that that money stays cut. It has had broad bipartisan support over the years, and I would hope that this body adopts it.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY], the distinguished ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I feel like the actor Bill Murray in that movie "Groundhog Day"; we keep doing this again and again and again and again. We are 5 months into the fiscal year. We are supposed to have the appropriations bills done. Yet we have a huge portion of the budget still stuck, and this bill represents, in fact, the 10th continuing resolution, the 10th. We tried to do this 10 times to keep the Government open, and a couple of times the Congress has failed and the Government has closed.

Mr. Chairman, I have voted for some versions of the lockbox, I have even sponsored some of the versions. But the fact is today that our highest priority ought to be to finally, halfway through the fiscal year, get last year's fiscal business passed. We already have three versions of this amendment sitting in the Senate deader than door nails. Why is it necessary to add a fourth when our principal purpose is simply to get the Government continued for the rest of the fiscal year?

I have a very pragmatic reason to suggest my colleagues not vote for this amendment. It is just another item that slows down the process, makes it less likely that this bill is ever going to become law, makes it less likely that we are going to get out of the way and see to it that the local school districts do not have to lay off teachers, that Superfund sites, which are shut down now because of lack of funding, do not continue to stay shut down.

We need to get on with the principal business of the public, which is to get this business out of the way so we can turn to new issues. That is what we ought to be doing. And yet we keep chewing the cud over and over and over again. It seems to me this is just one additional item that makes it more difficult for the bill to pass.

If my colleagues want to pass lockbox, do it someplace else where it is not going to slow down our basic purpose.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. BROWNBACK].

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the lockbox amendment that can save the dollars. We should lock it away and not spend it somewhere else, and I would like to hook onto what the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY] was just mentioning, that it seems to me that ultimately what this is really about is making it more likely that we will ultimately balance the budget, which is what this whole exercise is all about.

That is why I am in strong support of this amendment.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. BREWSTER], who has also been one of our strong supporters from the outset.

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of the Crapo lockbox amendment.

As we all know, getting a majority of this House to vote for a cut in Federal spending is not easy. Then, it becomes even more frustrating when that so-called cut is later spent on another program in an appropriations bill.

This amendment would make our cuts count by directing these savings to deficit reduction—not additional spending. I consider this one of the most substantive changes to how Congress manages its money in decades.

This House voted more than six to one last fall to accept the lockbox. Let us be honest, and make sure that a cut is really a cut.

I urge my colleagues to vote for the Crapo lockbox amendment.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. Chairman, may I inquire how much time remains?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Idaho [Mr. CRAPO] has 4 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. LIVINGSTON] has 5 minutes remaining.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, I think it is important, as we conduct this debate, that we understand exactly what the lockbox does because there has been a lot of discussion about whether we need it or whether we do not. The way this bill works is that when we vote on the floor of the House to cut any program or project, in the current law that money, the program or project is cut, but the money allocated for spending in the budget for that program or project remains allocated, and it is simply respent on other measures, measures which are obviously of a lower priority or they would have been put in place of the spending in the first place.

So all we see is a reshuffling of the spending, but never a reduction of the actual spending so that we get deficit reduction, and those who watch across this country on C-Span or in any other capacity and listen to the debates on this floor day after day as we talk about the need to balance the budget, hear us discuss that every day, they see us vote on amendments that would cut spending every day, but when we are all done, the spending is not reduced because of the budget system in which we now operate.

This lockbox would create a mechanism whereby when we vote to cut spending on any particular program or project, if the majority of this Congress says that spending should be cut, then in reality that spending is allocated to deficit reduction rather than being shifted into new funds. Now if someone wants to bring an amendment and say I do not want deficit reduction, I simply want to cut spending from this program and put it into that program, that is perfectly allowed. This simply says that when we debate here on the floor and tell the American people that we are cutting spending in order to protect our budget, that when we are done with the day that is what happens.

Mr. Chairman, it is a very simple and straightforward principle. It is one when American people understand it they cannot quite see why the Congress has to even have this kind of a system because it does not make sense that we could debate to cut spending and then, after we were done, have the spending simply shifted over into other spending priorities.

Mr. Chairman, I have no additional speakers, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. LIVINGSTON] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, in the last 14 months, as chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, I have been fighting these budget battles, and I have great sympathy for what the gentleman is trying to accomplish with his amendment. He wants to cut down on the amount of discretionary spending from the U.S. Congress. He is right, and we agree, and we have been working with him and jointly with the other body to do exactly that, and we have had enormous success.

The fact is nondefense discretionary spending over the years under Democrat control has just gone up, up, up, up, and up. In fiscal year 1994, it was up to $237 billion, in fiscal year 1995, they had it up to $246 billion, and had they retained control, it would have kept going on up. But we have scaled it back.

We had the rescission bill, and, no, I will not yield now. I will be happy to yield at the end of my statement.

We had the rescission bill that cut back fiscal year 1995 to $230 billion. In 1996, right now, we are down to $223 billion. In 1997, according to the budget agreement that passed the House and Senate, we will be down to $219 billion.

We are making inroads in spending. We are attempting to accomplish what the gentleman is trying to do. But what I am concerned about is that if the gentleman's amendment passes, and I am sure it probably will pass because it is such an easy vote for so many Members, it will tie our hands and make us incapable of negotiating with the Senate or with the White House to reach agreements on bills that should pass in the interests of the American people.

In fact, in this bill there is funding for Bosnia, there is funding for flood relief in the Northwest, and some of the very constituents that are going to be tremendously benefited by programs in this bill might not have been had the lockbox been invoked on this bill because we might not have been able to include this funding.

Now, I know that Members say, well, it is important that we cut spending, that we reduce it. I have made that argument ad nauseam for the last 14 months. But, my colleagues, the problem is not in the discretionary budget because we are getting the discretionary budget under control. The discretionary budget, however, is only one-third of the $1.6 trillion that the U.S. Government spends every year. Two-thirds is interest on the debt, Social Security, welfare, Medicare, Medicaid, and all the other entitlements, and unless we get control on the entitlements, we are never going to balance the budget. We can talk about a balanced budget by the year 2002, but if we do not get an agreement between the House and the Senate and the President of the United States to tackle that two-thirds of the budget, we are never going to accomplish anything.

Now, I find it ironic that two Members who took the well, at least two, possibly three; no, there are three that I can identify, and I am not going to embarrass them; three Members that took the well actually voted last week to increase entitlements. Now if discretionary spending is not the problem, and yet our colleagues want to shackle our hands to negotiate and reach an agreement that benefits the American people, and if mandatory spending is the problem, one would think Members would want to be consistent, and I know the gentleman who sponsors this amendment is consistent because be voted against those entitlements last week. But other Members who have spoken here did not. What they did was to take two programs which are funded by discretionary spending and say there is not enough money going into those programs. We have got to make them mandatory. We have got to make them entitlements, and they converted them, and the aggregate cost of those two programs in the farm bill, passed on Thursday last, is $4 billion over 7 years.

Now, my colleagues, if we are going to vote for the lockbox, fine. But think about what we did last week. If my colleagues voted for that farm bill, if my colleagues voted to convert discretionary spending to mandatory, in effect they have contributed to the real problem of the deficit, and they are doing absolutely nothing but screwing the system up with the lockbox.

Now, I happen to think that the lockbox is well intentioned, but as chairman of the Committee on Appropriations I will tell my colleagues it is very difficult to satisfy the many Members of the far left, the far right, and the people in the middle in this House, let alone work with the people in those same spectrums on the Senate side and negotiate with the White House, who does not like anything we want to do and wants to veto this bill. We have got a tough problem, and the lockbox only makes it tougher. It restricts our ability to negotiate with these other varying factors and, in essence, says we cannot do anything.

Now, our function in Government is not to sit around and do nothing. The gentleman from Maryland, and, if I have time, I will yield to him, he represents a lot of Federal employees. If this bill does not pass, we do not come to negotiated agreement with the Senate and the White House, we are going to shut down Government.

Do not make it worse. Let us defeat this.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Chairman, they say three times can be the charm. Well, today the House will, for the third time this Congress, approve an important budget tool to make sure that spending cuts we agree to actually translate into savings for the American people. We hope this action will be the charm in getting this budget reform done. As Members knew, this House voted for the deficit reduction lockbox by a huge margin of 373 to 52 on August 4, 1995, as an amendment to the Labor-HHS spending bill. We voted for the lockbox once again, as a freestanding bill, by a vote of 364 to 59 on September 13, 1995. There is no doubt that if it were up to the clear majority of this House, lockbox would be the law of the land today. Of course we know that we must also convince our friends in the other body to concur—and that's where the holdup has been. And so, in sending them lockbox legislation as part of this omnibus spending bill, we will affirm for a third time that we really do mean business in getting lockbox in place for the upcoming appropriations cycle. While I know some of our colleagues on the Appropriations Committees still have concerns about this lockbox, I remind them that this measure has been thoroughly vetted through subcommittee and full committee hearings, the Rules Committee markup, and careful consultation with Appropriations and Budget Committee staff. We believe that we have an effective product that still allows enough flexibility for the appropriators to do the enormously difficult job we ask of them. I commend Mr. CRAPO for his efforts to reach the goal of ensuring that a cut is really a cut; that when we say we are saving money by spending less in appropriations bills we follow through on that commitment. I hope my colleagues will join me once again in supporting this deficit reduction tool.

Messrs. LEWIS of California, KNOLLENBERG, FRANK of Massachusetts, and GUTIERREZ changed their vote from "aye" to "no."

Ms. LOFGREN, and Messrs. MOORHEAD, PASTOR, FIELDS of Louisiana, MARTINEZ, and PICKETT changed their vote from "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD) having assumed the chair, Mr. DREIER, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 3019) making appropriations for fiscal year 1996 to make a further downpayment toward a balanced budget, and for other purposes, pursuant to House Resolution 372, he reported the bill back to the House with sundry amendments adopted by the Committee of the Whole.

The amendment printed in section 2 of House Resolution 372 is adopted.

Is a separate vote demanded on any other amendment? If not, the Chair will put them en gros.

The amendments were agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT OFFERED BY MR. OBEY

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I think that is safe to say.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. OBEY moves to recommit the bill H.R. 3019 to the Committee on Appropriations with the instruction that the Committee report the bill back to the House forthwith with the following amendment.

On page 386, line 15, strike all after "tion" through "11" on page 387, line 5.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, as everyone knows, we have already indicated the problems in this bill for education and for environmental cleanup. The focus of this motion to recommit is quite different.

Mr. Speaker, after passage of the Veterans' Administration appropriation bill through the House, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs was not exactly bashful in indicating his displeasure with some of the funding cuts and policy recommendations adopted by the House. As a citizen of a free country and a congressionally confirmed member of the President's Cabinet, he was completely within his rights and was simply executing part of his duties as the administration's principal advocate for veterans.

But apparently that demonstration of free speech was too much for those who did not agree with his statements. The result in conference was language sharply limiting the Secretary's travel budget and reducing a number of personnel positions available to the Secretary. This bill contains those provisions.

The message is apparently very clear: Disagree with the majority who run this house on a veterans' issue and you will pay the price.

I might add this is not an isolated incident. The Secretary of the Interior has also been treated in a similar manner. He too has been very vocal in expressing his concerns about some of the provisions in the appropriation bill for Interior. His punishment was to see his office budget reduced by an additional 10 percent because he spoke out.

This motion is very simple and it applies only to the Secretary of Veterans Affairs. It takes the gag off the Secretary of Veterans Affairs by restoring his office budget and restoring his travel budget. He has a right to talk to the country about his concerns about some of the cuts that were provided in this bill or any other bill that affect veterans and veterans' health care.

Now, I want to make clear the objection to the Secretary of Veterans Affairs is not based on the amount of money he spent. His predecessor, Mr. Derwinski, a good friend of ours, his highest travel budget was $198,000 in any one year. His lowest travel budget was $131,000. Secretary Brown's today, his highest travel budget is $131,000, equal to Mr. Derwinski's lowest, and his lowest travel budget was $105,000. The bill before us would cut that travel budget to $50,000.

Now, there is absolutely no reason why the Secretary should not be able to move around the country. There is no reason why he should not be able to move around the country doing his job.

I want to point out that the intent of this amendment is supported by the veterans' service organizations like the Disabled American Veterans, the American Legion and the VFW. I will read one paragraph from the DAV letter:

The Secretary will be forced to curtail other activities which directly support our Nation's sick and disabled veterans. Specifically, these spending restrictions will have an adverse effect upon the ability of the Office of Public Affairs to assist with the participation in direct patient care activities such as disabled veterans winter sports clinic, national veterans wheelchair games, golden age games and the creative art festival. These events, individually and collectively, represent a true therapeutic and rehabilitative milieu unmatched in the traditional medical setting.

I would urge support for the amendment. Take the gag off the Secretary of Veterans Affairs.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I urge all my colleagues to vote "no" on this very procedural motion to recommit. It raises really a phony issue. The White House does not care a whit about this, never talked to us, never raised it, does not care.

Mr. Chairman, veterans are much better off than they were before. They got a $400 million increase in health benefits over what they had last year. They are getting $38.4 billion out of this package, $16.9 billion of which goes to health care, so the veterans are doing well.

You know what the other side is upset about? They are upset because, yes, we have cut the Office of the Secretary, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy Planning, and some administrative expenses because Jesse Brown put veterans' benefit paychecks in envelopes, sent them to the veterans themselves with a notice, with a political message in it.

Now, free speech is not free if it is paid for by the taxpayer, and it is put in an envelope by the Secretary that included veterans benefits checks and sent out as a political speech to the American people. That has got to stop.

This is a phony issue. Vote "no" against the motion to recommit and vote for the bill. Let us not close the Government. This is a good process.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. KASICH].

Mr. KASICH. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman yielding to me.

I know a number of my colleagues have angst about the idea of voting for this bill, and I frankly, at least for those who voted for the Republican plan to balance the budget, have a little bit of difficulty understanding that angst, because this omnibus proposal keeps us on track. It moves to terminate 175 programs, most of which under the stewardship of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. PORTER], who did an outstanding job, along with the gentleman from California [Mr. LEWIS].

In addition, I think there was some concern about the contingency funds, which, frankly, I had concern about. The contingency funding is taken care of.

In an effort to be reasonable with the administration, if, in fact, we can achieve a major reconciliation bill, then we give some additional flexibility to the administration, but it is no program that allows them to willy-nilly go out and spend more money. The simple fact of the matter is——

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I have a point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. OBEY. The matter before us is the motion to recommit. Is the gentleman not required to confine his remarks to that motion?

Mr. KASICH. Mr. Speaker, they did not tell me that.

I would just say the gentleman from Wisconsin obviously has a well-thought-out proposal but, in fact, does not get to the heart of the matter and distracts us from the need to stay on course in our effort to balance the budget and to keep this portion of the budget on track, and I would say to the gentleman from Wisconsin, he always does a fine job here on the floor. He has done a lot of research, but he fundamentally does not support the idea that we should terminate 175 programs and live under the cap.

So I would say to my Republican colleagues this is a chance to keep the momentum going. Let us come to the floor. Let us reject the well-thought-out motion from the gentleman of Wisconsin, get on with passing the bill and keep the revolution alive.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

Mr. ENSIGN changed his vote from "aye" to "no."

Mr. GIBBONS changed his vote from "no" to "aye."

So the motion to recommit was rejected.

Pursuant to clause 7 of rule XV, the yeas and nays are ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were yeas 209, nays 206, not voting 17, as follows:

Mrs. MEEK of Florida changed her vote from "yea" to "nay."

So the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 3019, and that they may include tabular and extraneous material.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BARRETT of Nebraska). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

There was no objection.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION WAIVING POINTS OF ORDER AGAINST CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 1561, THE AMERICAN OVERSEAS INTERESTS ACT OF 1996

Mr. GOSS, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. 104–476) on the resolution (H. Res. 375) waiving points of order against the conference report to accompany the bill (H.R. 1561) to consolidate the foreign affairs agencies of the United States; to authorize appropriations for the Department of State and related agencies for fiscal years 1996 and 1997; to responsibly reduce the authorizations of appropriations for United States foreign assistance programs for fiscal years 1996 and 1997, and for other purposes which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 2703, THE EFFECTIVE DEATH PENALTY AND PUBLIC SAFETY ACT OF 1996

Mr. GOSS, for the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 104–191) on the resolution (H. Res. 376) providing for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 2703) to combat terrorism, which was referred to the House Calender and ordered to be printed.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Lundregan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment a bill of the House of the following title:

H.R. 3021. An act to guarantee the continuing full investment of Social Security and other Federal funds in obligations of the United States.

PROVIDING SPECIAL AUTHORITIES TO COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT REFORM AND OVERSIGHT TO OBTAIN TESTIMONY ON THE WHITE HOUSE TRAVEL OFFICE MATTER

Mrs. WALDHOLTZ. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 369 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 369

Resolved, That—

(a) The Chairman of the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight, for purposes of the committee's investigation and study of the White House Travel Office matter, may, upon consultation with the ranking minority member of the committee, authorize the taking of affidavits, and of depositions pursuant to notice or subpoena, by a member or staff of the committee designated by the chairman, or require the furnishing of information by interrogatory, under oath administered by a person otherwise authorized by law to administer oaths.

(b) Deposition and affidavit testimony, and information received by interrogatory, shall be deemed to have been taken in executive session of the committee in Washington, District of Columbia. All deposition and affidavit testimony and information received by interrogatory shall be considered nonpublic until received by the committee, except that all such testimony and information shall, unless otherwise directed by the committee, be available for use by members of the committee in open session of the committee.

Mrs. WALDHOLTZ. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. HALL], pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, let me announce at the outset, in the interest of time, that the bipartisan leadership has agreed to limit debate on this resolution to two speakers on each side.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mrs. WALDHOLTZ. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on House Resolution 369.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Utah?

There was no objection.

Mrs. WALDHOLTZ. Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 369 is a resolution providing special authorities to the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight to take testimony in the matter of the White House Travel Office. Under the terms of the resolution the chairman of the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight, upon consulting with the ranking minority member, may authorize any member or designated staff of the committee to take sworn affidavits and depositions pursuant to notice or subpoena and could require furnishing of information by written interrogatories under oath. Any such testimony received would be considered to have been received in executive session by the committee in Washington, DC, would be considered as nonpublic until received by the committee and, thereafter, could be used by any member of the committee in open session related to the investigation of the White House Travel Office matter unless the committee directs otherwise.

The reason this authority requires the approval of the House is because it departs from the standing House rule, clause 2(h), rule XI, that requires a quorum of at least two members of a committee to take testimony.

This resolution differs from the House rule in that it would permit the chairman to authorize any member or staff of the committee to take testimony by sworn deposition or affidavit.

Mr. Speaker, on May 19, 1993, seven White House Travel Office staffers, after years, and in some cases decades, of faithful service, were summarily fired and told to vacate their offices in 2 hours. Later the same day, the White House announced the launching of an FBI criminal investigation of the former employees, which ended in Office Director Billy Dale's indictment on two embezzlement charges—charges proved utterly meritless when a Federal jury acquitted him after less than 2 hours of deliberation.

Mr. Speaker, before his complete exoneration, Billy Dale endured 2½ years of investigation, prosecution, and humiliation. One of Mr. Dale's daughters was forced to account for every penny spent on her wedding and honeymoon, and the other was asked by an interrogator whether she wasn't worried about letting her father handle her money. Mr. Dale's father died without ever seeing his son exonerated. Mr. Dale's legal bills amounted to over $500,000. Billy Dale—an innocent man—felt the full weight of the FBI, the IRS, the Justice Department, and the White House arrayed against him. The public deserves to know the truth. Billy Dale deserves to have this story told.

I commend Chairman CLINGER for his efforts in this matter. He has brought home to the American people the enormity of the wrong committed against these seven people.

Chairman CLINGER has indicated that the special authority is needed because of the reluctance and even refusal of certain potential witnesses to cooperate voluntarily in submitting to staff interviews preliminary to a hearing. This makes it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for a committee to adequately prepare background information and questions for a hearing.

Absent such important background information prior to a formal hearing, the committee is left to elicit the same information during the course of the hearing—something that can greatly prolong a hearing and reduce members to searching for the appropriate questions to ask of a witness.

Mr. Speaker, I want to emphasize that the special authority proposed in the resolution before us today is something that the Rules Committee and the House have granted only in extraordinary circumstances where there is a compelling need for such authority and it is investigation-specific. This is not a grant of blanket authority for all investigations of the Government Reform and Oversight Committee or any other committee.

But this body has granted such authority in the past. Examples of investigation authorization resolutions that have contained special deposition authority include: the President Nixon impeachment proceedings, Koreagate, Abscam, and Iran-Contra.

Moreover, the committee has made it clear that the granting of this special authority should be accompanied by assurances that the minority will not only be consulted prior to the noticing of any special testimony, but guaranteed participation and access in the process, just as it would in a committee hearing.

Chairman CLINGER has assured both us and the committee minority that this was his clear and unequivocal commitment and intent from the start. And it is my understanding that Chairman CLINGER, a man of his word, has worked with the minority, led by the distinguished gentlewoman from Illinois, Mrs. COLLINS, in crafting this resolution and the limits that have been placed on its scope. In fact, the committee met early this morning and passed the resolution by a bipartisan voice vote.

Finally, I would note that the special testimony authority language of House Resolution 369 is nearly identical to that contained in House Resolution 12 in the 100th Congress, creating the House Select Committee on Iran-Contra.

That resolution was drafted on a bipartisan basis and overwhelmingly adopted by the House on January 7, 1987, by a vote of 416 to 2.

I urge my colleagues to give this resolution the same measure of bipartisan support that the Iran-Contra resolution had in the 100th Congress so that the Government Reform and Oversight Committee can expedite its hearings process and complete its investigation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, as my colleague, the gentlewoman from Utah [Mrs. WALDHOLTZ], explained, House Resolution 369 is a resolution that will allow the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight staff to take depositions in the White House travel office matter. I have strong concerns about this resolution because it does not contain sufficient safeguards to protect the integrity of the investigation process and of the House.

House Resolution 369 conveys a heavy authority to the Government Reform Committee and its staff. This kind of authority has only sparingly been granted by the House in the past. Recent examples include investigations into the matters of Iran-Contra, Abscam, and Koreagate.

The standing House rule, which this resolution supersedes for this investigation, does not specifically authorize staff depositions and it requires two members to be present when testimony is taken. This rule was enacted in 1955 in response to the abuses of the McCarthy era.

During Rules Committee consideration of this resolution, Democrats offered three small, but significant amendments intended to ensure that the authority granted by this resolution would meet the highest standards of integrity. All three amendments were defeated along straight or near-straight party line votes.

One amendment would establish a time limit of June 30, 1996, on the authority granted by the resolution. There are House precedents for placing such a restriction. A time limit expresses the will of the House that this investigation be conducted to expose the facts as quickly as possible.

The Government Reform Committee has been looking into the Travel Office matter for some time, and it is unlikely that new, unexpected leads will develop that will require an excessive amount of time. If it turns out that the time limit is too short for a full investigation, then the House by resolution, can extend the authority.

The second amendment offered by the Democrats would require agreement with the ranking minority member of the Government Reform Committee, or a vote of the full committee, in order to issue a subpoena. Again, there are House precedents for this provision.

Had the amendment passed, it would not have prevented the committee majority from exercising the authority established by this resolution. Rather, the intention was only to ensure accountability of the majority and to protect the right of the minority to participate publicly in the process.

The third amendment was intended to establish that this resolution does not challenge longstanding House precedent that witnesses subpoenaed for staff depositions who refuse to cooperate may not automatically be cited for contempt of Congress unless they also refuse to appear before the full Government Reform Committee in a public hearing. This is a key right of witnesses who are subpoenaed by Congress.

I want to stress that I support the authority of this House to conduct a thorough investigation into the White House Travel Office—or any matter involving the expenditure of public funds. I have no objection to giving this House the tools it needs to bring out the truth.

Moreover, my concern for this resolution does not in any way diminish my confidence in the Government Reform Committee to conduct a complete and fair investigation that protects the rights of the minority and of witnesses.

However, especially in times like these when the Government is being accused of overstepping its bounds, and when the authority of Congress is being challenged more than ever, we cannot be too cautious. Let us not forget that the standing House rule is an attempt to erase the shame of earlier excesses in taking testimony.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. WALDHOLTZ. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER], the chairman of the committee.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of House Resolution 369. It is essential in order to move forward on the White House Travel Office investigation and bring closure to this matter once and for all and complete this investigation in a thorough and timely manner.

House Resolution 369 is—quite deliberately—a carefully limited solution to a unique situation. It simply grants this specific authority to the Government Reform and Oversight Committee during the conduct of the White House Travel Office investigation. It grants the committee the authority to draft rules which will dictate how those depositions and affidavits are carried out. We have worked closely with the minority in developing a new committee rule to provide for the implementation of the affidavit and deposition authorities provided in House Resolution 369. We have ensured that the minority will be equal players as the depositions proceed and that this authority will not be abused in any way.

I appreciate that the House does not grant the authority requested in this resolution routinely and we have worked with the minority to assure that witnesses rights will be protected. I would like to thank the ranking minority member of the committee, Congresswoman COLLINS and her staff who made considerable efforts with my staff in drafting the committee rule that we adopted this morning in our committee business meeting.

We are asking for this limited resolution so that the committee can conclude this matter in a timely fashion and resolve the many conflicting accounts surrounding these events. The need for this authority is compelling. A number of key witnesses have refused requests by our committee to be interviewed. A number of other witnesses have refused to interview voluntarily with the committee under oath. Given already identified contradictions in statements and accounts regarding this matter, it is vital that the committee interview under oath key witnesses and have assurances that these accounts are provided under circumstances imposing a premium on truth-telling.

It would be extremely impractical to expect this committee to hold enough hearings to place all of the necessary witnesses under oath publicly. This resolution will allow the committee to wrap up this investigation without bringing to a halt all of the other productive and important work that this committee performs. With this authority, it is my hope to wrap up this investigation with only a few more public hearings.

The White House Travel Office matter was investigated first by the White House itself, then by the GAO, the Justice Department's Office of Professional Responsibility, the Treasury Inspector General, the IRS Inspection Division and finally the Justice Department Public Integrity Criminal Division. Unfortunately none of these investigations was provided with all or indeed most of the information which my committee now has obtained. Therefore these prior investigations were incomplete. We now know that some individuals may have misrepresented events and omitted significant information as a result. Several weeks ago, a criminal referral on David Watkins' statements was made by GAO to the U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia.

This resolution will allow the committee to conduct and conclude this investigation without bringing to a halt all of the other productive and important work that this committee oversees. It would be extremely impractical for this committee to hold enough hearings to place all of the necessary witnesses under oath publicly. With this authority, it is my hope that we will be able to have a limited number of additional hearings.

This resolution will allow the committee to conduct depositions and submit interrogatories under oath regarding events leading up to the firings of the entire staff of the White House Travel Office in May 1993, the related events surrounding the firings, the individuals prompting these firings, the appropriateness of actions taken, possible conflicts or ethical violations that occurred, the subsequent investigations of these matters and the levels of candor and cooperation by those involved in both responding to the investigations and conducting the investigations.

By allowing depositions and the submission of interrogatories by the committee, we can hope to clear up many of the conflicting statements and questionable accounts that have been provided to previous investigators. Clearly, voluntary interviews that are not under oath are not feasible in a situation such as this where there have already been conflicting accounts and many witnesses are reluctant to speak to the issues at all.

I have pursued this investigation for some time now because I was concerned with the wholly unjustified conduct in sacking the career travel office staff. Seven people had their lives turned upside down. We owe it to these seven men to find out what the real facts are behind all of the stonewalling. We owe it to the many Government civil and criminal investigators, many of whom tried to responsibly investigate this matter in prior investigations but were thwarted in conducting the investigations they were originally tasked with doing.

Allowing for this limited solution to provide for depositions and interrogatories under oath in the Travelgate matter will permit this long thwarted investigation to move to a more thorough and expeditious conclusion.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CLINGER. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of House Resolution 369.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank Chairman SOLOMON and Chairman CLINGER for brining this resolution to the floor today.

I also want to commend and applaud Chairman Clinger for his continued efforts to get to the bottom of the travel office investigation in a fair and bipartisan manner. Although the minority hasn't been crazy about the fact that the committee is investigating the firing of seven long-time civil servants, there have been no complaints that I can recall about the fairness Chairman CLINGER has demonstrated in conducting these hearings. Like many in this House, I will greatly miss the chairman's leadership and would suggest that there would be no need for a civility pledge in this body if we all took a cue from BILL CLINGER.

In urging Members to support H.R. 369 I would ask that they answer, for themselves, three questions:

First, is there precedence in the House for such a resolution?

Second, is there a need for this special request? and

Third, will it fairly expedite the committee's work to the benefit of all concerned?

The answer to all three questions is a definite—yes.

First, similar resolutions have been adopted by the House, at the request of the then majority in the 93d, 95th, 97th, 100th, and 103d Congresses. The language proposed by H.R. 369 is identical to the text adopted by a vote of 416 to 2 on Jan. 7, 1987, relating to the Select Committee on Iran-Contra.

Second, there is unfortunately, as Chairman CLINGER noted, a need for this legislation.

Over a 2½ year period, requested documents have trickled into the committee drip by drip. Molasses flows faster in January than the document production in this matter.

Sadly, the record before the committee reveals that statements, reports, and documents are at variance with one another. The report authors and investigative agencies were hamstrung by either a lack of information being provided by witnesses or documents; or pertinent information was deliberately left out of reports because the authors possessed the attitude—"If it doesn't fit, you must omit."

And, a number of key witnesses have declined, refused or evaded staff interviews and document requests.

Third, this resolution will provide what those of us with courtroom experience term "judicial economy."

The over 50 potential witnesses can be deposed at the staff level and will permit the chairman, in consultation with the minority, to determine which witnesses should appear before the full committee. This procedure will allow the investigation to move to conclusion more quickly; will eliminate duplicative or valueless witnesses; and will save time.

As the depositions will be conducted under oath, the witnesses will be encouraged to provide a truthful account the first time rather than conflicting accounts in documents, staff interviews and testimony.

The expedited procedure of H.R. 369 will ensure that criticism which has been leveled against the other body's probe of Whitewater—too many hearings; too many witnesses; taking too long; and designed to embarrass the White House in an election year, will be avoided and the committee's legitimate oversight responsibilities may conclude.

For all the aforementioned reasons, I again commend Chairman CLINGER's work, and would urge the adoption of this resolution.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Illinois [Mrs. COLLINS], the ranking minority member of the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight.

Mrs. COLLINS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, while I support our committee's efforts to obtain all of the relevant information regarding the Travel Office firings, I do not believe that this resolution, which grants authority to staff to conduct sworn depositions, is necessary.

Let me add, however, that earlier today the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight adopted procedures to implement the resolution which accord full rights to the minority and the witnesses, and I supported these procedures.

The authority granted under this resolution is unnecessary and unwarranted. House Resolution 369 is an unprecedented grant of authority to the staff of a standing committee during the course of an ongoing investigation on the eve of a Presidential election. Under such troubling circumstances, there is a heavy burden on the proponents of the resolution to show a compelling need for such authority. We should not act just for the convenience of the staff, or because of an isolated case of a reluctant witness. There must be a convincing case that without this authority, the committee cannot complete its investigation. I do not believe that this threshold has been met.

According to Chairman CLINGER's letter to the Rules Committee, the stated reason for the Resolution is that—I'm quoting—"we have been faced with the reluctance and even refusal of certain potential witnesses to voluntarily submit to staff interviews preliminary to a hearing."

I am aware of no evidence that witnesses have refused to cooperate with the committee during the course of this investigation. Nor have I seen any letters from witnesses refusing to provide information to the committee. Further, I know of no witness who has refused to provide testimony to the committee under oath. The Rules Committee received no documentation nor testimony demonstrating a compelling need for this extraordinary authority.

To the contrary, the record suggests that witnesses agreed to cooperate with the committee, except when unwarranted conditions have been demanded by the majority staff. To the extent that witnesses have been reluctant to submit to interviews, it has only been after demands by the majority staff that minority staff not be present, or that interviews be taken under an oath administered by a staff that lacked such authority.

Mr. Speaker, both the Parliamentarians and the American Law Division of the Congressional Research Service has told majority staff that there was no authority for staff to take sworn depositions absent a resolution by the House. Yet, knowing full well that they lacked both the authority to require a sworn deposition and the ability to administer an oath to witnesses, the majority staff repeatedly threatened witnesses in an effort to force them to comply.

As evidence of this behavior by the majority staff, let me read from a letter to Chairman CLINGER dated December 4 of last year, from David H. Williams, the attorney representing Patsy Thomasson: It says in part:

I called Ms. Brasher [a member of the Republican staff] back and told her that Patsy would still appear for a voluntary interview (provided that Democratic staff be allowed to attend, and) that I needed a commitment from her to confirm her agreement to this condition. Instead, what I got, was a series of threats that she would subpoena Patsy to a sworn deposition and that Patsy could be in a lot of trouble in refusing to do this interview privately as she had demanded.

Mr. Speaker, I include this letter for the RECORD at this point:

DAVID H. WILLIAMS,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
Little Rock, AR, December 4, 1995.

Representative WILLIAM F. CLINGER, Jr.,
Committee on Government Reform and Oversight, Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, DC.

Re Patsy Thomasson Interview.

DEAR CHAIRMAN CLINGER: I have been trying to accommodate a request from Barbara Cornstock to interview my client, Patsy Thomasson. All I have ever asked her is that Ms. Thomasson be able to do this interview one time with both majority/minority parties being present and being represented. All I want for my client is a fair interview and I think that having both Republican and Democratic staff counsel present is the best way to insure that this takes place.

After explaining this to Barbara Cornstock, she offered to allow Don Goldberg to interview Patsy, privately, first, and then for her to interview Patsy afterwards. I called back this morning to speak to Barbara Cornstock and spoke to Barbara Brasher instead. She explained to me that she was concerned over leaks and that keeping Don Goldberg out of the interview room would be a way to protect against leaks. She didn't accuse Mr. Goldberg, but implied that leaks had to be coming from the other side. I told Ms. Brasher that I really didn't see how this proposal would help, nor did I see how she could guarantee confidentiality because leaks in matters such as this are a known historical fact. There are just too many people involved in the political process to avoid leaks or have any control over them. Secondly, I told Ms. Brasher that my concern was with the fairness of the interview. She told me that if Patsy didn't agree to the interview being conducted privately with Republican Counsel, then she would have her subpoenaed for a sworn deposition. I told her I would consult with Patsy about this and call her back.

I did consult with my client and told her that nothing had really changed to persuade me that it was in her best interest to conduct two private interviews where the Democratic Counsel was excluded from one and the Republican Counsel was excluded from the other. I told her that this arrangement seemed to me to promote partisanship, antagonism, and unfairness. I called Ms. Brasher back and told her that Patsy would still appear for a voluntary interview but since my plane left at 1:20 p.m. cst, today that I needed a commitment from her to confirm her agreement to this condition. Instead, what I got, was a series of threats that she would subpoena Patsy to a sworn deposition, which Ms. Brasher said would not be in Patsy's best interest, and that she hoped that I was making an informed decision because Patsy could be in a lot of trouble in refusing to do this interview privately as she had demanded, and could only exacerbate Patsy's situation. I told Ms. Brasher that if she was trying to be persuasive, that she was not doing a very good job, and that her attitude was convincing me that I had very little reason to expose Patsy to any kind of an interview or deposition. I have been practicing law for twenty years and I still cannot understand why lawyers threaten other lawyers. It never works and it only makes the lawyer on the other side dig in his or her heels.

In any event, this is not an issue that I can, or need to solve. This is a matter for the Committee to solve between the majority and minority members. The rules for the conduct of these interviews should be the result of an agreement between the ranking members. I am not going to get myself caught in a trap, nor am I going to allow my client to get whipsawed into the middle of a political battle over who gets to take the first bite out of her.

Therefore, I respectfully declined Ms. Brasher's demands and canceled my flight when she refused to agree to this sole condition for Patsy to be interviewed. I hope that you and Congresswoman Collins are able to resolve this problem and someone will let me know that the interview is going to be conducted with both sides present. Patsy remains willing and able to cooperate and has no intention of being difficult or obstructive.

Thank you very much for your kind consideration and cooperation.

Very truly yours,
DAVID H. WILLIAMS.

I also include a February 20, 1996, letter from Stephen L. Braga, the attorney representing Catherine Cornelius to Chairman CLINGER'S staff for the RECORD. In it, the attorney for Ms. Cornelius agreed to make her available for transcribed interview provided that both majority and minority staff were present. The majority staff turned him down, however, because he would not agree to swearing in his client, even though, as I have stated, the majority staff knew it had no legal authority to do so.

The letter is as follows:

MILLER, CASSIDY,
LARROCA & LEWIN, L.L.P.
Washington, DC, February 20, 1996.

Re Catherine Cornelius.

BARBARA COMSTOCK,

DEAR BARBARA: I write with respect to the "deposition" of my above-referenced client that we have scheduled for tomorrow in your office. Although we have not discussed any "ground rules" for this "deposition," I think that there are a number of process-related points that we should agree upon up front before any questioning of the witness is undertaken. I believe that those points are as follows:

1. While Ms. Cornelius' testimony will be recorded verbatim by a court reporter in deposition-like fashion, there will be no oath administered to Ms. Cornelius at the outset of the questioning.[1] In this regard, the "deposition" will simply be like a voluntary interview that is being stenographically recorded.

2. After it is concluded, transcripts of Ms. Cornelius' testimony will be made available for review by the witness and/or her council—in addition to the Majority and Minority staff—with an opportunity to submit any written corrections they might have to the text of the testimony as so transcribed.

3. The transcripts of Ms. Cornelius' testimony will be kept confidential by the Committee unless and until they are first used in any public hearing by the Committee, and the confidentiality of those transcripts will then be waived only to the extent that they are actually used in such a hearing.

4. No non-Committee staff members, other than the court reporter, will be present during the questioning of Ms. Cornelius.

5. The questioning of Ms. Cornelius will conclude by 5:30 P.M. on February 21st.

If you have any questions regarding the foregoing, please do not hesitate to call. Otherwise, I will expect to put our agreement to the foregoing points on the record at the outset of the interview session tomorrow morning.

Best regards,

STEPHEN L. BRAGA.

Mr. Speaker, if the majority staff conducts itself in a professional and non-partisan manner and in keeping with the decorum of the House. I believe they will find no resistance to timely informal interviews. In those cases where there is reluctance, are brought to my attention I will work with the chairman in urging complete cooperation. I sincerely hope and expect that the authority granted by this resolution will be reserved for those few cases where it is absolutely necessary, and not routinely exercised as a substitute for the regular practices of the House.

Let me turn to another issue concerning the rights of witnesses. Following discussions with the Parliamentarian, I am aware of no precedent of a witness who has objected to a question or failed to appear for a staff deposition being cited for contempt without an opportunity to explain his actions before the entire committee. This resolution does not supplant existing House rules regarding contempt of Congress and the rights accorded to witnesses. Nothing in this resolution would require a contempt citation simply because a witness under subpoena refuses to appear before or answer questions in a staff deposition. Prior to any action, the committee should give the witness an opportunity to respond fully at a duly called hearing of the committee, with a proper quorum of members present.

In closing, let me thank Chairman CLINGER for his cooperation earlier today in adopting committee implementing rules which accord full rights to the minority and the witnesses. I have also received a letter from Chairman CLINGER further clarifying how he intends to interpret these rules. I include the committee rules and the chairman's letter for the RECORD, as follows:

To: Members of the Government Reform and Oversight Committee
From: William F. Clinger, Jr., Chairman
Date: March 6, 1996
Re House Resolution 369 to provide for deposition authority in the White House Travel Office investigation and committee rules to implement such authority.

On Thursday, March 7, 1996, the Committee will vote on adopting a new Committee Rule to allow for special affidavits and depositions. The Rule will be voted on in anticipation of passage of House Resolution 369, which is expected to have floor consideration on Thursday, March 7 or Friday, March 8, 1996. (See attached copy of Draft Rule.)

House Resolution 369 will provide authority to the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight to conduct depositions and submit interrogatories under oath in the process of conducting the ongoing White House Travel Office investigation. The Resolution only applies to the White House Travel Office investigation. Rules to conduct the depositions and interrogatories have been developed in consultation with the minority ranking member of the Committee.

Deposition authority is sought to obtain testimony in a timely and efficient manner and curtail the need for extensive hearings. Such depositions will help resolve the numerous discrepancies that have arisen in the course of civil and criminal investigations into the White House Travel Office matter over the past two and a half years.

RULE 19.—SPECIAL AFFIDAVITS AND DEPOSITIONS

If the House provides the committee with authority to take affidavits and depositions, the following rules apply:

(a) The Chairman, upon consultation with the ranking minority member or the committee, may authorize the taking of affidavits, and of depositions pursuant to notice or subpoena. Such authorization may occur on a case-by-case basis, or by instructions to take a series of affidavits or depositions. Notices for the taking of depositions shall specify a time and place for examination. Affidavits and depositions shall be taken under oath administered by a member or a person otherwise authorized by law to administer oaths. Consultation with the ranking minority member will include three (3) business days written notice before any deposition is taken, unless otherwise agreed to by the ranking minority member or committee.

(b) The committee shall not initiate procedures leading to contempt proceedings in the event a witness fails to appear at a deposition unless the deposition notice was accompanied by a committee subpoena authorized and issued by the chairman. Notwithstanding committee Rule 18(d), the chairman shall not authorize and issue a subpoena for a deposition without the concurrence of the ranking minority member or the committee.

(c) Witnesses may be accompanied at a deposition by counsel to advise them of their constitutional rights. Absent special permission or instructions from the chairman, no one may be present in depositions except members, staff designated by the chairman or ranking minority member, an official reporter, the witness and any counsel; observers or counsel for other persons or for the agencies under investigation may not attend.

(d) A deposition will be conducted by members or jointly by

(1) No more than two staff members of the committee, of whom—

(1.a) One will be designated by the chairman of the committee, and

(2.b) One will be designated by the ranking minority party member of the committee, unless such member elects not to designate a staff member.

(2) Any member designated by the chairman.

Other staff designated by the chairman or ranking minority members may attend, but are not permitted to pose questions to the witness.

(e) Questions in the deposition will be propounded in rounds. A round will include as much time as necessary to ask all pending questions, but not more than one hour. In each round, the member or staff member designated by the chairman will ask questions first, and the member or staff member designated by the ranking minority member will ask questions second.

(f) Objections by the witness as to the form of questions shall be noted for the record. If a witness objects to a question and refuses to answer, the members or staff may proceed with the deposition, or may obtain, at that time or at a subsequent time, a ruling on the objection by telephone or otherwise from the chairman or his designee. The committee shall not initiate procedures leading to contempt for refusals to answer questions at a deposition unless the witness refuses to testify after his objection has been overruled and after he has been ordered and directed to answer by the chairman or his designee upon a good faith attempt to consult with the ranking minority member or her designee.

(g) The committee staff shall insure that the testimony is either transcribed or electronically recorded, or both. If a witness' testimony is transcribed, he shall be furnished with an opportunity to review a copy. No later than five days thereafter, the staff shall enter the changes, if any, requested by the witness, with a statement of the witness' reasons for the changes, and the witness shall be instructed to sign the transcript. The individual administering the oath, if other than a member, shall certify on the transcript that the witness was duly sworn in his presence, the transcriber shall certify that the transcript is a true record of the testimony, and the transcript shall be filed, together with any electronic recording, with the clerk of the committee in Washington, D.C. Affidavits and depositions shall be deemed to have been taken in Washington, D.C. once filed there with the clerk of the committee for the committee's use. The ranking minority member will be provided a copy of the transcripts of the deposition once the procedures provided above have been completed.

(h) Unless otherwise directed by the committee, all depositions and affidavits received in the investigation shall be considered nonpublic until received by the committee. Once received by the committee, use of such materials shall be governed by the committee rules. All such material shall unless otherwise directed by the committee, be available for use by the members of the committee in open session.

[1] I know of no authority authorizing or requiring the administration of such an oath in the circumstances of your staff investigation. If you are aware of any authority to the contrary, please let me know as soon as possible.

(i) A witness shall not be required to testify if they have not been provided a copy of the House Resolution and the amended Committee Rules.

(j) Committee Rule 19 expires on July 8, 1996

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT REFORM AND OVERSIGHT, Washington, DC, March 6, 1996.

Hon. CARDISS COLLINS,
Ranking Minority Member, Committee on Government Reform and Oversight, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MS. COLLINS: Thank you and your staff for working with my office to develop a new committee rule to provide for the implementation of the affidavit and deposition authorities provided in H. Res. 369. Your office has asked that I provide you with the supplemental information regarding how I interpret some provisions of the proposed committee rule.

19(a). Regarding the right of the minority to recommend witnesses to be deposed, it is my intention that for any witness you would recommend, I will either agree to issue a subpoena or place the question before the full committee for a vote.

19(b). The proposed rule requires that if a subpoena is required in the case of an affidavit or deposition in the Travel Office matter, I shall not authorize such subpoena without your concurrence or the vote of the committee. I believe that this new rule memorializes the longstanding practice of this committee to seek a consensus on the issuance of a subpoena.

19(c). The question has arisen as to whether a witness may be represented by counsel employed by the same government agency as the witness. I further understand that the White House Counsel's office has indicated that it will not seek to personally represent any White House employee during the course of this investigation. It is my intention to discuss with you on a case by case basis the ability of Justice Department attorneys to represent Justice Department witnesses. I respect the ability of a witness to have an attorney of their choice, but I also must avoid any conflict of interest between an agency under investigation and a witness' individual rights.

19(d). The proposed committee rule is draft under the assumption that most, if not all, depositions will be conducted by staff. Any members who wish to participate in a deposition should notify me before the scheduled day of the deposition. I will, of course, designate the minority member of your choice. However, in no way are the proposed committee rules intended to limit the ability of a member to participate and ask questions.

19(f). The term "designee" is intended to imply a member, and not staff. Furthermore, let me confirm to you my strongest intention to consult with you before ruling on an objection raised by a witness. In the instance that you are uncontrollably indisposed, I will certainly listen to any concerns expressed by your senior staff.

19(h). The depositions will be assumed to be received in executive session. Members and their staff will not be permitted to release a copy or excerpt of the deposition until such time that is entered into the official record of the committee, under penalty of House sanction. Witnesses will be given the opportunity to edit their transcript but will not be given a copy.

Finally, a question has arisen regarding what steps occur if a witness fails to appear for a deposition under subpoena or fails to respond to a question notwithstanding the chairman's ruling. It will be my intent, under such circumstances, to subpoena the witness before the full Committee to explain why he/she should not be held in contempt of Congress. The scope of such a hearing would not extend to the factual questions of the Travel Office matter, but would be limited to the question of contempt of the prior contempt.

I hope that this answers any outstanding questions you may have. Please feel free to discuss this matter with me further. And, again, thank you for your kind cooperation.

Sincerely,
WILLIAM F. CLINGER, JR.,
Chairman.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Mr. Speaker, is my understanding correct that an hour was allotted to the discussion on the pros and cons of the resolution, one-half hour to each side, and further is my understanding correct that there was a limitation on the speakers announced?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the 1-hour rule, the time is controlled by the manager of the resolution, in this case the gentlewoman from Utah [Mrs. WALDHOLTZ], who has yielded one-half of her time to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. HALL], for purposes of debate only. There is no rule requiring debate to be allocated under the 1-hour rule to an opponent.

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Mr. Speaker, I want to make sure I understood. If the inquiry is for debate only, parliamentary inquiry further through the Chair, may I inquire through the Chair as to whether any speaker in opposition will be allowed?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. It occurs to the Chair that the gentleman should make his inquiry to the manager on the minority side, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. HALL].

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Mr. Speaker, am I entitled to do that? Can I make an inquiry?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Ohio controls the time.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would just say that there was an agreement between the leadership on the debate of this particular resolution and I had agreed that there would only be two speakers on both sides. That was agreed by both sides, and I am trying to keep my word and stick by that.

Mrs. WALDHOLTZ. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HALL of Ohio. I yield to the gentlewoman from Utah.

Mrs. WALDHOLTZ. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman from Ohio would like to yield on his time a few minutes to the gentleman from Hawaii and allow him to raise his concerns about this matter, we would not see that in any way contravening the agreement that we have reached.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker I thank the gentlewoman for that.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Hawaii [Mr. ABERCROMBIE].

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Mr. Speaker, I thank very much the gentlewoman from Utah [Mrs. WALDHOLTZ] for the opportunity to speak in opposition. I want to indicate to the gentlewoman and to the Speaker and Members that this was not planned in any other way. I was not aware that there were not to be speakers allowed. I thought there was an hour and that this could be undertaken, so I am grateful for the opportunity.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak in opposition to House Resolution 369. Allusions were made to Iran-Contra. I was here, however briefly, when that issue was first being raised in the mid 1980's, I do not see that this is comparable in any way, shape, or form.

As far as I know, the fifth amendment is still alive and well in the Constitution of the United States, and if there are people who refuse to testify for whatever reason, they are entitled to do so. If I understand correctly the gentlewoman's comments that preceded me, that the existing House rules with respect to contempt and subpoenas cover the situation adequately, there is no need.

If I understood correctly the gentlewoman's comments, as well, there is no need for this extraordinary authority. My question then becomes, to what end is this resolution being put forward?

If the rules of the House already adequately cover it, if the rules of the committee already adequately cover the situation with respect to subpoenas, contempt, et cetera, if all the rules and regulations and the admonitions incumbent upon us in the Constitution are still in place, then why are we going ahead with it? If sworn depositions are not in order except under the rules and regulations as provided by the House, well, then, I think we should abide by that.

I do not understand why we are having this resolution brought forward in this manner without reasons being given as to why the resolution is necessary in the form that it takes. The title here says "to provide the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight special authorities to obtain testimony for purposes of investigation in study of the White House travel office matter,'' but there has been no presentation that I am aware of that indicates why special authorities are required to obtain testimonies for the purposes of investigation and study.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would urge a ''no'' vote on this, at least pending some kind of sufficient explanation as to why these special authorities should be granted.

Mrs. WALDHOLTZ. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this is an extraordinary grant of authority but these are extraordinary circumstances involving questions as to the possible abuse of power at the highest levels of our Government against an American citizen who took 2½ years to clear his name.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Can the Speaker indicate what he heard on the floor in terms of the ''ayes'' or the ''nays''?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The ayes have it. That was indicated as the result of the voice vote.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

(Mr. BONIOR asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the distinguished majority leader, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. ARMEY], for the purpose of ascertaining the schedule for the rest of the week and next week.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I am happy to announce that we have concluded our legislative business for the week.

On Monday, March 11, the House will not be in session. On Tuesday, March 12, the House will meet at 12:30 p.m. for morning hour and 2 p.m. for legislative business. Members should be advised that there will not be any recorded votes before 5 p.m.

As our first order of business on Tuesday, the House will consider a bill on the corrections day-calendar: H.R. 2685, to repeal the Medicaid and Medicare coverage data bank.

We will then take up three bills on the suspension calendar: H.R. 2972, the Securities and Exchange Commission reauthorization; H.R. 2276, the Federal Aviation Administration Revitalization Act of 1995; and House Joint Resolution 78, Bi-State Development Agency by the States of Missouri and Illinois.

After consideration of the suspensions, the House will turn to the conference report for H.R. 1561, the American Overseas Interests Act, which is subject to a rule. We also hope to begin consideration of H.R. 2703, the Effective Death Penalty and Public Safety Act, which is also subject to a rule. It is our hope to get through the rule and general debate before adjourning for the evening around 7 or 8 p.m.

On Wednesday, March 13, the House will meet at 11 a.m. to finish consideration of the crime bill.

On Thursday, March 14, the House will meet at 10 a.m. It is our hope that conference reports for the debt limit and Second Balanced Budget Downpayment Act will be ready for floor consideration by then.

We should finish business and have Members on their way home to their families by 6 p.m. on Thursday March 14, and I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, I would ask my friend from Texas this question, or make this comment to him just so that he understands the concerns that we have in our Caucus over the retreat that we were scheduled to have on January 25, which had to be cancelled after votes on the continuing resolution for Government spending were scheduled. We then asked for a retreat date of March 8, which is today, and we were refused on that date, saying that the majority, noting that the calendar had been set in advance and could not be altered. I would just note that March 8 is not today, it is tomorrow, and I would just tell my colleague from Texas we could have had our retreat tomorrow, and in light of the fact that the schedule indeed was altered, and we hope we could work together on these things in the future. We have had to cancel it twice, and we hope that this would not happen a third time.

With that, I thank my colleague for giving us an insight into the schedule for tomorrow, or the lack of schedule for tomorrow, and the schedule for next week.

ADJOURNMENT FROM FRIDAY, MARCH 8, TO TUESDAY, MARCH 12, 1996

Mr. ARMEY. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns tomorrow, Friday, March 8, 1996 it adjourn to meet at 12:30 p.m. on Tuesday, March 12, 1996, for morning hour debates.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. WALDHOLTZ). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

DISPENSING WITH CALENDAR WEDNESDAY BUSINESS ON WEDNESDAY NEXT

Mr. ARMEY. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the business in order under the Calendar Wednesday rule be dispensed with on Wednesday next.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

LAND DISPOSAL PROGRAM FLEXIBILITY ACT OF 1995

Mr. OXLEY. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 2036) to amend the Solid Waste Disposal Act to make certain adjustments in the land disposal program to provide needed flexibility, and for other purposes, with Senate amendments thereto, and concur in the Senate amendments.

Senate amendments:

Page 2, strike out all after line 3 over to and including line 15 on page 4 and insert:

SEC. 2. LAND DISPOSAL RESTRICTIONS.

Section 3004(g) of the Solid Waste Disposal Act is amended by adding after paragraph (6) the following:

''(7) Solid waste identified as hazardous based solely on one or more characteristics shall not be subject to this subsection, any prohibitions under subsection (d), (e), or (f), or any requirement promulgated under subsection (m) (other than any applicable specific methods of treatment, as provided in paragraph (8)) if the waste—

''(A) is treated in a treatment system that subsequently discharges to waters of the United States pursuant to a permit issued under section 402 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (commonly known as the ''Clean Water Act'') (33 U.S.C. 1342), treated for the purposes of the pretreatment requirements of section 307 of the Clean Water Act (33 U.S.C. 1317), or treated in a zero discharge system that, prior to any permanent land disposal, engages in treatment that is equivalent to treatment required under section 402 of the Clean Water Act (33 U.S.C. 1342) for discharges to waters of the United States, as determined by the Administrator; and

''(B) no longer exhibits a hazardous characteristic prior to management in any land-based solid waste management unit.

''(8) Solid waste that otherwise qualifies under paragraph (7) shall nevertheless be required to meet any applicable specific methods of treatment specified for such waste by the Administrator under subsection (m), including those specified in the rule promulgated by the Administrator June 1, 1990, prior to management in a land-based unit as part of a treatment system specified in paragraph (7)(A). No solid waste may qualify under paragraph (7) that would generate toxic gases, vapors, or fumes due to the presence of cyanide when exposed to pH conditions between 2.0 and 12.5.

"(9) Solid waste identified as hazardous based on one or more characteristics alone shall not be subject to this subsection, any prohibitions under subsection (d), (e), or (f), or any requirement promulgated under subsection (m) if the waste no longer exhibits a hazardous characteristic at the point of injection in any Class I injection well permitted under section 1422 of title XIV of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 300h-1).

"(10) Not later than five years after the date of enactment of this paragraph, the Administration shall complete a study of hazardous waste managed pursuant to paragraph (7) or (9) to characterize the risks to human health or the environment associated with such management. In conducting this study, the Administrator shall evaluate the extent to which risks are adequately addressed under existing State or Federal programs and whether unaddressed risks could be better addressed under such laws or programs. Upon receipt of additional information or upon completion of such study and as necessary to protect human health and the environment, the Administrator may impose additional requirements under existing Federal laws, including subsection (m)(1), or rely on other State or Federal programs or authorities to address such risks. In promulgating any treatment standards pursuant to subsection (m)(1) under the previous sentence, the Administrator shall take into account the extent to which treatment is occurring in land-based units as part of a treatment system specified in paragraph (7)(A).

"(11) Nothing in paragraph (7) or (9) shall be interpreted or applied to restrict any inspection or enforcement authority under the provisions of this Act.".

"(5) ALASKA NATIVE VILLAGES.—Upon certification by the Governor of the State of Alaska that application of the requirements described in paragraph (1) to a solid waste landfill unit of a Native village (as defined in section 3 of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (16 U.S.C. 1602)) or unit that is located in or near a small, remote Alaska village would be infeasible, or would not be cost-effective, or is otherwise inappropriate because of the remote location of the unit, the State may exempt the unit from some or all of these requirements. This paragraph shall apply only to solid waste landfill units that dispose of less than 20 tons of municipal solid waste daily, based on an annual average.

"(6) FURTHER REVISIONS OF GUIDELINES AND CRITERIA.—Recognizing the unique circumstances of small communities, the Administrator shall, not later than two years after enactment of this provision promulgate revisions to the guidelines and criteria promulgated under this subtitle to provide additional flexibility to approved States to allow landfills that receive 20 tons or less of municipal solid waste per day, based on an annual average, to use alternative frequencies of daily cover application, frequencies of methane gas monitoring, infiltration layers for final cover; and means for demonstrating financial assurance: Provided, That such alternative requirements take into account climatic and hydrogeologic conditions and are protective of human health and environment.".

Mr. OXLEY (during the reading). Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate amendments be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the initial request of the gentleman from Ohio?

Mrs. LINCOLN. Madam Speaker, reserving the right to object, and I will not object, but I yield to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. OXLEY] to explain the bill that we are considering.

Mr. OXLEY. Madam Speaker, as the gentlewoman is aware, the bill as passed by the House addresses two rulemakings in which EPA tried to use principles of sound risk management but were prevented by the courts from doing so. Unfortunately, the current law, as interpreted by the courts, does not allow EPA to develop a reasonable set of regulations.

Two weeks ago, the other body adopted, by voice vote, several amendments to the bill. The Senate amendments add underground injections wells to the 5-year study agreed to during the Commerce Committee's markup of the bill. The Senate amendments also address ground water monitoring concerns in Alaskan Native villages.

Senator CHAFEE, chairman of the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works, has asked me to place into the RECORD a point of clarification consistent with the language of the House-passed bill. Specifically, it should be clear that the legislation does not modify, supplement, or otherwise affect the application or authority of any other Federal law or the standards applicable under any other Federal law, including the Clean Water Act. I would like to submit this letter for the RECORD.

I am pleased to say H.R. 2036 has the strong support of the administration, the Ground Water Protection Council, the Association of State and Territorial Solid Waste Management Officials, and representatives of the industrial community. I commend Chairman BLILEY for his leadership on this issue and the bipartisan cooperation from Mr. DINGELL, Mrs. LINCOLN, and the administration.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE,
Washington, DC, March 5, 1996.
Hon. JOHN H. CHAFEE,
Chairman, Committee on Environment and Public Works, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN CHAFFEE: Thank you for your letter of this date clarifying the scope of H.R. 2036, the Land Disposal Flexibility Act of 1996. Your letter correctly indicates that this legislation only modifies provisions of the Solid Waste Disposal Act, a statutory program wholly within the jurisdiction of the House Committee on Commerce. The legislation does not modify, supplement, or otherwise affect the authority of any other Federal law or the standards applicable under any other Federal law, including the Federal Water Pollution Control Act. The language which was included in the House bill, but inadvertently deleted by the Senate amendments, was intended to make clear that the bill does not amend any statute other than the Solid Waste Disposal Act.

Thank you again for your clarification.

Sincerely,

THOMAS J. BLILEY, JR.,
Chairman.

U.S. SENATE, COMMITTEE ON ENVIRONMENT AND PUBLIC WORKS,
Washington, DC, March 5, 1996.
Hon. THOMAS J. BLILEY,
House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN BLILEY: It has come to my attention that in amending H.R. 2036, the Land Disposal Program Flexibility Act of 1996, the Senate did not incorporate a House provision that was inserted during your Committee's consideration of this legislation. The provision stated that "[n]othing in this paragraph shall be construed to modify, supplement, or otherwise affect the application or authority of any other Federal law or the standards applicable under any other Federal law."

The exclusion of this language from the Senate passed bill should not be viewed as implying a contrary policy on this issue. The legislation passed by the Senate does not modify, supplement, or otherwise affect the application or authority of any other Federal law or the standards applicable under any other Federal law, including the Federal Water Pollution Control Act. I understand this clarification is important to both you and the Chairman of the House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee.

H.R. 2036 and its Senate companion, S. 1497, provide a model for moving targeted, commonsense legislation that maintains protection of human health and the environment while removing duplicative or overlapping layers of regulation. It has been a pleasure to work with you and your colleagues in the House to move this legislation expeditiously.

Sincerely,

JOHN H. CHAFEE.

Mrs. LINCOLN. Madam Speaker, further reserving the right to object, and I will not object, I want to thank the gentleman for his explanation and certainly commend him for his bipartisan fashion in which this bill has been handled.

The chairman and the subcommittee chairman here, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. OXLEY], are certainly to be congratulated for shepherding the bill through the process it has gone through. I, too, believe this bill represents a great bipartisan solution to problems identified under RCRA's existing land disposal restrictions.

As we all know, under the current regulatory regime, industries will be required to put in place over $800 million a year to install new equipment without corresponding benefits to the environmental health. This is something neither the industrial community nor the Environmental Protection Agency wants. H.R. 2036 resolves this needless investment by incorporating commonsense solutions.

Industries will avoid duplicative regulations under this bill. If their surface impoundments are in compliance with the Clean Water Act or their underground injection wells are in compliance with the Safe Drinking Water

I believe it is an excellent bill. Again I applaud Chairman OXLEY for his hard work. It is a bill that should serve as an example for future environmental legislation as we work together.

It has Republican support, Democratic support, administration support, and the industry support. We have all worked wholeheartedly together.

Again I thank Chairman BLILEY, Chairman OXLEY, and the gentleman from Michigan, Mr. DINGELL, for working with me on this very important issue.

Madam Speaker, I see no other speakers on this side, and the bill has been cleared from our side.

Mr. SHUSTER. Madam Speaker, I rise to address provisions in H.R. 2036, the Land Disposal Program Flexibility Act.

This is important legislation that will eliminate a mandate that the Environmental Protection Agency [EPA] promulgate under the Solid Waste Disposal Act stringent and costly treatment standards for low-risk wastes that are already being treated to meet standards applicable under the Clean Water Act, simply because the Clean Water Act treatment system uses surface impoundments. In 1990, EPA issued regulations that took the approach adopted by this bill and exempted such wastes from Solid Waste Disposal Act land disposal restrictions and treatment standards. In 1992, however, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit overturned EPA's regulations. In compliance with the court's order, EPA has issued new regulations that would impose these unnecessary and costly requirements. These regulations will go into effect shortly so it is important for Congress to act expeditiously on this legislation.

Recognizing this urgency, I did not seek a formal referral of H.R. 2036 when it moved through the House. Instead, I worked cooperatively with Chairman BLILEY of the Commerce Committee on any potential Clean Water Act issues raised by the bill. To address my concerns, Chairman BLILEY added language to the bill that specifically states that H.R., 2036 provides no grant of authority to address the wastes managed in surface impoundments that are part of the Clean Water Act treatment systems, beyond the authorities provided under existing law.

Unfortunately, through inadvertent oversight, this language was not included in the Senate amendment to H.R. 2036. However, Senator CHAFEE, chairman of the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works has assured me in a letter dated March 5, 1996, that the legislation passed by the Senate also does not modify, supplement, or otherwise affect the application or authority of any other Federal law, or the standards applicable under any other Federal law, including the Clean Water Act.

Because of the urgency of this issue, I will not offer an amendment to H.R. 2036 today to expressly state this intent. Instead, I ask unanimous consent that Senator CHAFEE'S March 5, 1996, letter to me be printed in the RECORD.

U.S. SENATE, COMMITTEE ON ENVIRONMENT AND PUBLIC WORKS,
Washington, DC, March 5, 1996.

Hon. BUD SHUSTER,
U.S. House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN SHUSTER: It has come to my attention that in amending H.R. 2036, the Land Disposal Program Flexibility Act of 1996, the Senate did not incorporate a House provision that was inserted during the Commerce Committee's consideration of this legislation at your request. The provision stated that "[n]othing in this paragraph shall be construed to modify, supplement, or otherwise affect the application or authority of any other Federal law or the standards applicable under any other Federal law."

The elusion of this language from the Senate passed bill should not be viewed as implying a contrary policy in this issue. The legislation passed by the Senate does not modify, supplement, or otherwise affect the application of authority of any other federal law or the standards applicable under any other Federal law, including the Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

H.R. 2036 and its Senate companion, S. 1497, provide a model for moving targeted, commonsense legislation that maintains protection of human health and the environment while removing duplicative or overlapping layers of regulation. It has been a pleasure to work with you and your colleagues in the House to move this legislation expeditiously.

Sincerely,

JOHN H. CHAFEE.

Madam Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the initial request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. OXLEY. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to insert extraneous material on H.R. 2036, the bill just considered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

REPORT ON NATIONAL SECURITY STRATEGY OF THE UNITED STATES—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, without objection, referred to the Committee on National Security:

To the Congress of the United States:

As required by section 603 of the Goldwater-Nichols Department of Defense Reorganization Act of 1986, I am transmitting a report on the National Security Strategy of the United States.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

THE WHITE HOUSE, March 7, 1996.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

EXPRESSING OUTRAGE AND CONDEMNATION OF MURDEROUS TERRORIST ATTACKS IN ISRAEL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from New York [Mrs. MALONEY] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, before we get to the substance of our special order, I want to express my outrage and condemnation for the wave of murderous terrorist attacks that have struck Israel in the last 2 weeks.

I extend my condolences to all the families of the victims, including the two American young people who had studied in New York City and were killed in Jerusalem.

CONFLICT OVER THE ISLAND OF IMIA

I want to thank my good friend from Florida, Mr. BILIRAKIS, for joining me in these special orders to bring attention to the recent conflict over the Island of Imia.

The gentleman from Florida has always been a good friend of Greece and Cyprus, and it has been my great honor and pleasure to work closely with him on many issues of concern to Greek- and Cypriot-Americans.

In fact, just this week, the gentleman and I announced the formation of the new Congressional Caucus on Hellenic Issues.

As such, I know that Mr. BILIRAKIS shares my outrage over the recent comments of Mr. Denktash, the Turkish-Cypriot leader, who has admitted that many of the 1,619 Americans and Greek Cypriots who are missing from the Turkish invasion of 1974 were in fact murdered by Turkish forces.

The fact that he waited 22 years to admit to these atrocities is itself a crime against humanity.

As the gentleman knows, the families of several of the missing live in my district in Astoria. Mr. Denktash's admission points to the need for an accurate accounting for each and every one of the Americans and Cypriots whose plights are still unknown.

Mr. Speaker, we could talk about this tragedy all evening, but we rise tonight to discuss a different outrage—the conflict in the Aegean.

For those Members who may not know, the island of Imia is one of the Dodecanese islands that were formally returned to Greece by Italy as part of the 1947 Paris Agreement.

It has been Greek for almost 4,000 years.

Even though the accident occurred in Greek territorial waters, the captain of the cargo boat refused assistance from Greek authorities, claiming he was in Turkish waters.

The incident escalated swiftly.

The Greek mayor of the nearby island Kalolimnos rightfully put a Greek flag on Imia, which was then torn down and replaced by a Turkish flag by so-called Turkish journalists.

Troops and ships from both Greece and Turkey quickly came to the area and a major confrontation developed.

Only through the swift intervention of the United States was violence avoided.

However, Turkey's challenge of established international boundaries in an attempt to expand its Aegean borders is totally unacceptable.

This confrontation over Imia would never have happened if Turkey abided by international law.

Rather it is the much more fundamental one of a challenge to Greek sovereignty.

Greek sovereignty over Imia is well established and, until this incident, unchallenged by anyone, including Turkey.

In 1932 Italy and Turkey concluded an agreement clearly stating that the Greek island of Imia belonged to Italy.

At the conclusion of World War II, Italy ceded the Dodecanese islands—including Imia—back to Greece with the Paris Peace Treaty of 1947.

By international law, the successor state automatically assumes all rights and obligations established by international treaty.

But Turkey has challenged the international status quo in order to create a destabilizing situation in the Aegean.

Violations of international law are, unfortunately, nothing new for Turkey.

The list includes: massive human rights violations against the Kurds; the illegal 1974 invasion and occupation of Cyprus; the blockade of Armenia, which prevented United States humanitarian assistance from reaching that country; and religious restrictions for the Eastern Orthodox Ecumenical Patriarchate in Istanbul.

Clearly, Turkey is the main cause of instability in the eastern Mediterranean.

Last June, the United States House of Representatives sent a clear signal to Turkey that we find these actions unacceptable by voting to cut aid to Turkey by 25 percent.

Turkey must be made to pay a real price for defying the will of the international community. If Turkey continues to ignore this message, our sanctions should only increase.

Turkey must understand that future actions of this kind will bring about an even greater reduction in United States aid.

Maybe Turkey will then realize that there are serious consequences for its behavior.

Once again, I thank the gentleman from Florida for joining me on the House floor this evening.

THE SOVEREIGNTY OF IMIA

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. BILIRAKIS] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Madam Speaker, we are Americans, and this is the United States of America. Let us say one of our protectorates, if you will, Samoa, Guam, the Virgin Islands, all of a sudden a claim was made upon them by country X. What would we do? Certainly I would like to think what we would not do is to decide to sit across the table with country X and negotiate the rights to those particular territories. It is ridiculous, because everyone knows, the entire world knows, the world community knows these territories are part of the United States of America, if you will.

On December 25, as the gentlewoman from New York [Mrs. MALONEY] certainly has already shared with us, and she does such a great job at this, and it is such an honor really to be tied in with her in these special orders, on December 25, 1995, a Turkish cargo ship ran aground on Imia. The ship's captain refused assistance from the Greek Coast Guard because the captain said the islet was Turkish. Tensions began to mount and by January 29, 1996, both Greece and Turkey had dispatched naval vessels to the area. On January 31, through U.S. mediation, both sides agreed to withdraw.

I am certainly thankful and I think the world is thankful that this incident did not lead to an armed confrontation. But I am disappointed that at no time during the United States mediation did the President, Secretary of State Christopher, Defense Secretary Perry or then Assistant Secretary of State Holbrook, who has generally done a wonderful job on this issue, at no time did they recognize the sovereignty of Greece over the islet.

Is is my sincere hope this latest incident will not deter the administrations efforts to resolve the Cyprus problem, but rather strengthen the administration's commitment to finding a solution this year of 1996.

As you may know, and I do not suppose many people do, my parents were born on the island of Kalymnos, which I guess the rocks Simi are a part of that particular island chain, and only just a few miles away from the island of Kalymnos. The island has always been considered Greek territory. At no previous time has Turkey questioned Imia's territorial ownership. Indeed, Greek Foreign Minister Theodore Pangalos stated, "This is the first time that Turkey has actually laid claim to Greek territory."

The European parliament overwhelmingly approved a resolution which states, "The Islet of Imia belongs to the Dodecanese group of islands, on the basis of the Lausanne Treaty of 1923, the protocol between Italy and Turkey of 1932, the Paris Treaty of 1947, and whereas even on Turkish maps from the 1960's the islets are shown as Greek territory."

Moreover, the Governments of Italy and France have publicly stated their support of Greek sovereignty over Imia, as provided by international law.

So Madam Speaker, given Turkey's breaches of international law, its continued illegal, and I underline that, illegal occupation of Northern Cyprus, its restrictions on religious freedom from the Eastern Orthodox Ecumenical Patriarchate, which represents over 250 million Orthodox Christians worldwide, its refusal to recognize the human rights of its 15 million Kurdish citizens, and its illegal blockade of Armenia, I have serious concerns about this most recent example of Turkish provocation.

Although Turkey is an ally, Madam Speaker, its actions must not go unquestioned. In fact, European Commission President Jacques Santer stated in reference to Turkey, "We cannot tolerate a state with which we have just entered into a customs union developing territorial demands on a European union member state."

Turkey must respect and abide by international law. As President Eisenhower once stated, "There can be no peace without law. And there can be no law if we were to invoke one code of international conduct for those who oppose us, and another for our friends."

PERMISSION FOR COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE TO FILE SUPPLEMENTAL REPORT ON H.R. 2202, IMMIGRATION AND THE NATIONAL INTEREST ACT OF 1995

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Agriculture be permitted to file a supplemental report on the bill (H.R. 2202) to improve deterrence of illegal immigration to the United States by increasing border patrol and investigative personnel, by increasing penalties for alien smuggling and for document fraud, by reforming exclusion and deportation law and procedures, by improving the verification system for eligibility for employment, and through other measures, to reform the legal immigration system and facilitate legal entries into the United States, and for other purposes to include a cost estimate as required under clause 2(l)(3) of rule XI.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

THE NEW CONTINUING RESOLUTION IS BAD FOR AMERICAN INDIANS, RELIGIOUS FREEDOM, AND SELF-GOVERNANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from American Samoa [Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Madam Speaker, I want to make sure that the American public is aware of two very dangerous provisions in H.R. 3019, a continuing resolution which would fund, among other things, Interior spending for the remainder of the fiscal year. Though these two majority sponsored provisions primarily affect American Indians, I believe they have far reaching implications for the rest of the country as well. Why should we care? Because as the great jurist Felix Cohen observed,

> The Indian plays much the same role in our American society, that the Jews played in Germany. Like the miner's canary, the Indian marks the shift from fresh air to poison gas in our political atmosphere; and our treatment of Indians, even more than our treatment of other minorities, reflects the rise and fall in our democratic faith.

This country was founded on two great principles—the inalienable right of a people to govern themselves and the solemn right of a people to freely practice their religion. Yet there are two provisions in this spending bill that are an affront to those principles and the rights of our people. I am afraid to think what our Founding Fathers would think of these measures. Had this bill been brought up under an open rule, I would have offered an amendment to strike both of them.

The first provision that deeply concerns me is the Mt. Graham rider contained in section 335 of the general provisions of the Interior portion of the bill which would waive applicable law, reverse three court decisions and permit immediate construction of an observatory on Mt. Graham in Arizona. This is a measure of the worse sort that should be stricken as soon as possible.

First, this rider approves the destruction and mechanized desecration of the single-most sacred site of the San Carlos Apache Tribe. Can you imagine waiving the law to approve the clearing of part of the Wailing Wall in Jerusalem or the Vatican in Rome? Well that is what this provision does, not to mention the fact the telescope's owners plan to charge rent to other users even though it lies on public land. This rider ignores the rights of those who prayed and worshiped on the mountain for centuries and is an assault on religion.

Second, this rider is wrong because it waives the very laws and procedures designed to ensure that we respect cultural and religious traditions. It circumvents the American Indian Religious Freedom Act and the National Historic Preservation Act which charge the Federal agencies to protect against harm to such sites. The rider does this over the repeated opposition expressed in tribal council resolutions and now in the resolutions of the National Congress of American Indians.

Third, this rider has never been properly considered by Congress. It surfaced mysteriously in the third Interior conference committee without having been included in either of the House or Senate appropriations bills. But to add insult to injury, its sponsors took out a provision of far greater importance in order to get it in—a report on American Indian HIV/AIDS prevention needs. The only hearing ever held on this matter was a joint hearing of two House authorizing committees in 1990 at which the General Accounting Office reported that the irregularities involved in granting the original permit were so great that it would not have withstood judicial scrutiny except for the waiver provided in the last days of the 100th Congress. The official who signed the original permit admitted at that hearing that he had exceeded his legal authority in granting it.

Finally, this rider is bad for the environment because it waives the requirements of the Endangered Species Act and the National Environmental Policy Act. All these laws ask is that the agencies examine alternatives to see whether less harmful means are available to achieve the same end. Even if the ESA might preclude the project as proposed, exemptions are available for regionally significant projects. It seems that given the fact that the observatory sits on a world class ecological site left behind by the glaciers that is the home of numerous species of animals and plants, some of medicinal value, and several that are virtually unknown anywhere else, we should at least weigh the alternatives and ask the developers to begin the permit application process. This rider sets a dangerous precedent for further site-specific waivers when the laws of this country get in the way of development.

Since the President vetoed the last Interior appropriations measure in December, Mt. Graham has become a cause celebre. Grammy award-winning rock musicians Pearl Jam have featured it in a new Website for citizenship and the Indian band Red Thunder has also spoken out against the project in their tours and radio appearances. I am proud that this Nation's youth is involved in today's issues, so I would ask that this Congress set a better example for them. We should return to a higher standard of substantive discussion, procedural honesty, and simple justice by striking the Mt. Graham rider.

The second provision which gravely concerns me is the so-called "Lummi" provision contained in section 115 of the general provisions of Interior portion of bill. Under the guise of "property rights", the measure that would penalize any self-governance tribe in the State of Washington, but particularly the Lummi Nation, for exercising its sovereign on-reservation rights. This provision is dangerous because it sets a precedent for fiscally punitive actions against any tribe in any State, self-governance or not, that tries to exercise its legitimate governmental powers. This act of intimidation flies in the face of the longstanding congressional policy of self-determination and the fiduciary relationship between the United States and the 557 American Indian and Alaska Native tribes in this nation.

This unwarranted and unprecedented intrusion into tribal matters goes against the grain of every anti-Washington, antibureaucracy sentiment embodied in the Contract With America. This provision is unnecessary because it is an extraordinary attempt to unduly influence ongoing and fruitful negotiations between the tribe and local on-reservation property owners. This is a local issue that can and should be resolved through negotiations without the heavy hand of big brother. The Lummi provision is unprecedented in its attack on Indian sovereignty and the ability of tribes to manage their own natural resources.

My history tells me that the tribe acquired its senior water rights more than 140 years ago in the Treaty of Point Elliot in which the tribe reserved enough water to sustain the reservation as a homeland and to support the fisheries resource of the Nooksack Basin. But by penalizing the tribe's funding—up to 50 percent of its self-governance funding which are used to fund education, social services, natural resources, and law and order—for exercising the tribe's senior water rights, the sponsors are doing nothing short of rewriting federal western water law to suit their own purposes.

I would also point out that I am not alone in my assessment because the President in his December 18, 1995 veto message specifically identified the same provision as a reason for his veto. The President rightly noted that in penalizing "these tribes financially for using legal remedies in disputes with non-tribal owners of land on their reservations" this provision does not serve the interests of our nation and its citizens.

Madam Speaker, this action has an unblemished record when it comes to breaking Indian treaties—we have broken every one—so perhaps it should come as no surprise that we are trying to break another. But I for one, and my Democratic colleagues agree, that it is time for us to stop. If we can override federal treaties and laws simply because we do not happen to agree with the claims of one party in a dispute, what does that mean for the rest of us, not to mention any of the other 556 tribes in this country? I have always been proud of the fact that we are a nation of laws, and of our rich history of justice. But this provision, Mr. Speaker, this provision is not justice.

Madam Speaker, in closing, I'd just like to say that if we as Americans take our rights seriously, if we cherish those principals which made our country great such as the freedom to practice our religion and the freedom of self-determination, then we need to really think about our treatment of Native Americans, and ask ourselves if we can do better. We can start by eliminating the Mt. Graham and Lummi provisions. I urge the White House and the Senate to reject these measures.

THE ALAN KEYES INCIDENT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GEKAS] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GEKAS. Madam Speaker, last week the whole world was horrified by the spectacle of Ambassador Alan Keyes being handcuffed or otherwise restrained and forcibly prevented from entering into a television area for a debate among candidates.

I feel personally outraged by that entire incident. I feel the insult that Ambassador Keyes must have felt. I feel the dismay that must have flowed through his veins at that time. Then not only was he prevented from entering into the premises, but then carried off like he himself was a criminal and taken to a remote part of the territory there and dumped off like an unwanted citizen. Double outrage, double affront, as it were, more of an insult.

Now, I think that everyone in America has shared that feeling of insult along with Ambassador Keyes, and I suppose many have expressed their regrets. I did and sent a personal note to him expressing my regrets and expressing that I felt with him the range of insults that he must have felt.

But I must tell my colleagues that I have even more reason to associate myself with that insult, because I experienced almost exactly the same thing in the year 1966 in my first venture into politics when I myself was blockaded by constables, as it was at that time, from entering into a public political meeting place where I should not have been excluded, but I was.

So I, in viewing the Keyes incident, of course had flashes in front of me of what had happened to me many years ago. There is no way to express this indignation which we are attempting to do here this evening, but I must tell my colleagues I am going to write a letter to the FEC, to the FCC, to the television station in question, to the law enforcement community of that area, to find out exactly what happened and why.

Madam Speaker, I am not sure that Federal laws were violated by those people who strong-armed Mr. Keyes, but equal time always enters into these dimensions of public broadcast, especially about political debates. I want to see whether he was unfairly kept from the debate even. After all, he had participated in several debates before, television debates. As I recall, he was given very high ratings by the viewing public and by commentators and by pollsters and others who would evaluate those debates. He was given high marks.

So I want to find out did equal time apply? I want to find out did Federal election laws come into play? How about Federal communications laws? And I am going to compile the answers here and see whether or not my committee, the Subcommittee on Administrative and Commercial Law of the Committee of the Judiciary, whether my committee has jurisdiction to further look into this outrage or whether some other committee might be invited to review the events of that evening.

But no matter what the outcome, I now know that the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD at least records the feelings of the Members of the House of Representatives, and, as I said in my note to Ambassador Keyes, we hope that this will not deter him one moment, as apparently it is the case that it is not deterring him, not one moment from pursuing his goals, from uttering his message and from registering his rights to speak out on any issue at any time.

"RUSH LIMBAUGH IS A BIG, FAT IDIOT"

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. WALDHOLTZ). Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Colorado [Mrs. SCHROEDER] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Madam Speaker, humorist Al Franken, in his book "Rush Limbaugh Is a Big, Fat Idiot," I think was absolutely right. He points out how Rush plays so fast and loose with the facts, and, believe me, he did it again this week.

For those of you who saw his show, he took my comments on this floor that I was talking about as we celebrate Woman's History Week, or History Month this month, and he was saying that it was all a bunch of poppycock.

Well, I am here to set the record straight, and I think it is time every woman in America straightened her back and say enough of this nonsense.

The first thing he took me to task for was saying that there was a revolutionary soldier, who was a woman, who was buried in West Point. Well, Rush has been chortling, "Ho, ho, ho, Mrs. SCHROEDER is absolutely wrong, that can't be true."

Well, Rush you are wrong, and I am right. Let me tell you why.

We were both referring to a woman named Molly Corbin. Molly Corbin indeed was in the Revolutionary War. She was a recipient of the first female veterans pension in American history, and, yes, she was reburied in West Point.

That is what he keeps saying, "Oh, but she wasn't even buried there, way after it, so it could not possibly have happened." But she was buried there in 1926 at the request of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Now, if he wants to pick a fight with them, go ahead, but I think they are going to win.

I would like to put in the RECORD at this time, Madam Speaker, a letter from the Department of the Army, the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, verifying this fact.

The letter referred to is as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY,
U.S. MILITARY ACADEMY,
West Point, NY, November 8, 1989.

Mr. DANIEL BUCK,
Office of the Honorable Patricia Schroeder,
Rayburn Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. BUCK: The enclosed information may be helpful in answering the question of Revolutionary War soldiers buried at West Point.

A news release from the Information Office of the United States Military Academy in 1968, mentions the relocation of graves of soldiers to the cemetery during the 1800's. The grave of Ensign Dominick Trant is identified as the oldest grave in the cemetery.

Please do not hesitate to contact the Library if the enclosed material does not sufficiently answer your question.

Sincerely,

JUDITH A. SIBLEY,
West Point Manuscript Librarian.

Madam Speaker, the next item that he took me to task for was the issue about Martha Washington and the fact that George Washington had asked to have her expenses reimbursed while she had spent all three winters with the Revolutionary Army in winter camp.

You see, at that time, as commander in chief, he had no money, no uniforms. Things were very, very tough. No one knew if they were going to win or not, and Martha Washington came in holding the troops together He felt that that was worth repayment and submitted this following bill. I have a copy of the bill that George Washington submitted to have Martha Washington reimbursed. It is for her expenses from 1775 through 1782.

Madam Speaker, I include in the RECORD an article from the Washington Post talking about Margaret Corbin and an article from the World Book Encyclopedia talking about Margaret Corbin, who was the soldier in the Revolutionary Army.

The articles referred to are as follows:

REMEMBERING MARGARET CORBIN, DAUGHTER OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

(By Chadwick Allen Harp)

They may be barred by law from combat roles today, but American women have a long tradition of fighting on the battlefield that goes back to the Revolutionary War and a young woman named Margaret Corbin.

On Nov. 16, 1776, Hessians under British command attacked Fort Washington on Manhattan Island, but encountered such vigorous resistance and such rapid artillery volleys that some remarked the Americans seemed possessed by demons. A ridge later known as Fort Tyron was defended by the First Company of Pennsylvania Artillery, and among the artillerists was a young private named John Corbin. Beside him, handling ammunition to feed the hungry cannon, was his wife, Margaret, the daughter of a Scotch-Irish pioneer.

Suddenly a Hessian ball or shell smashed into John Corbin, fatally wounding him. But Margaret had no time to grieve; the enemy's relentless siege continued, and the men of the Pennsylvania company needed her help in the ranks more than her wounded husband required her care and comfort. Margaret immediately accepted the call to duty and stepped into John's position at his cannon. Soldiers remarked later that Margaret served "with skill and vigor"—until Hessian grapeshot tore into her, ripping away part of her breast and nearly severing an arm.

After the battle her comrades took their "Captain Molly" across the Hudson River to Fort Lee, N.J., where she received further medical care that ensured her recuperation. When she finally was well enough to travel, Margaret relocated to the Philadelphia area, continued her long-term recovery and became one of the original members of the Invalid Regiment created by Congress to care for disabled and crippled soldiers.

On June 29, 1779, the Supreme Executive Council of Pennsylvania, the decision-making body of the executive branch, allocated Margaret a $30 stipend "to relieve her present necessities" and recommended that the Board of War give her a pension. Barely a week later, Congress received a letter from the Board of War supporting the Executive Council's recommendation. Congress immediately authorized that Margaret receive, for life, one-half of the monthly pay allotted soldiers and, as a one-time allocation, a complete outfit of clothing. By this act Congress pensioned the first female veteran in American history.

Margaret died near Hudson Highlands, N.Y., in 1800. In 1909, more than a century later, a tablet was put in place at Fort Washington Avenue and Corbin Place in New York City recognizing Margaret Corbin as the "first woman to take a soldier's part in the war for liberty."

Many other American women have since seen hostilities—among them Mary Ludwig Hays McCauley ("Molly Pitcher"), who also stepped into her husband's position in the Revolutionary War at the Battle of Monmouth in 1778; Civil War scout and spy "General" Harriet Tubman; the more than 200 women killed by enemy fire in World War II; the eight women whose names are chiseled into the stone of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial; and Capt. Linda Bray, who commanded a platoon of military police in a 1989 Panama firefight.

In a sense, Margaret Corbin honors them all. On March 16, 1926, the Daughters of the American Revolution arranged to have Corbin's remains removed from Highland Falls, N.Y., to the post cemetery at the United States Military Academy at West Point. Next to the grave stands a memorial to the only Revolutionary War soldier buried on academy grounds—an artillery gunner, a hero and a woman.

[From the World Book Encyclopedia]

Corbin, Margaret Cochran (1751–1800), became a heroine at the Battle of Fort Washington in 1776, during the Revolutionary War in America (1775–1783). She was born in Franklin County, Pennsylvania. In 1756, Indians killed her father and captured her mother. An uncle raised her.

In 1775, Margaret's husband, John Corbin, enlisted in the Continental Army, and he served as a gunner in the Revolutionary War. Like many other soldiers' wives at the time, Margaret joined her husband in camp to cook, wash, and do other chores for the troops. At Fort Washington, on the site of present-day New York City, John Corbin was killed. Margaret replaced him at his cannon and fought until she was seriously wounded.

Corbin's wounds left her disabled. In 1779, the Continental Congress awarded her a military pension, making her one of the first women in the United States to receive such aid. Corbin is buried in the military cemetery at West Point, N.Y.

Madam Speaker, I also would like to refer Mr. Limbaugh to many other things. First of all, the mini page which is in most newspapers in America. The Mini Page came out last year and had a very, very extensive thing about women in the military through the years. I am very sorry he did not read this. I would hope he would try and get it from the library. But it pointed out there have been American women in the military, through today, the Revolutionary War and the Civil War. He might find this interesting reading.

I would also point out that there is a 1996 calendar, as there have been others, done by women veterans, and this is pointed out through the years of all the different women throughout here. There is one for each month. Again, this might be a very good thing for his office. It might inform him that women did indeed contribute to this country.

Now, there are other things that I would like to recommend he look at. There is a coloring book from the National Women's Hall of Fame, and maybe this would be simple enough. It could be a beginning point for him. He could start with this to find out that indeed there have been some women who have done some things.

If he can get through that, then there is a little more detailed book that lists all sorts of women, where they were from, when they were born, what they accomplished, women scientists, women in the military, women aviators, women everything. It would absolutely break his little heart, and so I hope he works through that.

Now, if he really gets to the big time, there is a little bit bigger book here that points out even more things about women in American history that I think are terribly, terribly important.

I guess the real thing that we would like to point out to Mr. Limbaugh, the gentleman that they have called the big, fat idiot, I would like to quote to him from Clara Barton. Clara Barton said, "From the storm lashed decks of the Mayflower to the present hour women have stood like a rock for the welfare of this country."

They have, and it is time we recognize it, and that is what we are trying to do. Rush Limbaugh, tune in.

CALLING ON THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA TO CONDUCT ITS RELATIONS WITH TAIWAN BY PEACEFUL MEANS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California [Mr. COX] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. COX of California. Madam Speaker, just in reply to the remarks of my colleague from Colorado I have to say I agree completely, that women have been leaders in every field of human endeavor, including conservative politics, and for that reason there are women all over America who cheerfully disagree with the gentlewoman from Colorado on many subjects.

Let me talk about something that I think all of us here in the House can agree with, and that is the importance of a united U.S. foreign policy in Asia at this moment.

In just 2 weeks Taiwan will have its first direct presidential election, the first fully free and democratic election of a head of state in nearly 5,000 years, in 4,700 years, of Chinese civilization. This is a remarkable achievement, and Americans should be enormously proud of Taiwan's democracy. The thriving democracy on Taiwan stands in marked contrast to the continuation of communism across the Taiwan Strait and the People's Republic of China.

Madam Speaker, Taiwan is America's seventh largest trading partner. The People's Republic of China is the sixth largest trading partner of America, and yet the People's Republic of China has 250 times the territory of Taiwan, it has 60 times its population. Consider then that Taiwan, and its people, and its economy actually buy more goods and services from America than does the People's Republic of China. The People's Republic of China is our sixth largest trading partner as compared to Taiwan, our seventh, only because they have an enormous trade deficit, in fact the largest in the world, with us.

We have, from a trade standpoint, a very strong interest in being friendly to both the People's Republic of China and to Taiwan. But because the Communist government in Beijing believes that democracy on Taiwan threatens its continued existence, they have been intimidating, through military brute force, the voters on Taiwan.

Today the People's Republic of China began launching missiles over the Taiwan Strait. It will do so, we are told, for 8 days, between now and March 15, in particular in 2 target areas 20 miles east of Keeling, a port city in the northeastern part of Taiwan, and 30 miles west of Kaohsiung, a port city in the southwestern part of Taiwan.

I want to underscore as we meet here tonight that Communist China has already begun firing these missiles.

Over 70 percent of commercial shipping enters Taiwan through these two port cities that I mentioned. Already military actions undertaken by the Communist government in Beijing have amounted effectively to a partial blockade of Taiwan. They have disrupted already commercial shipping in the Taiwan Strait. They have even disrupted airline traffic which has had to be rerouted around the island.

This is not the first time in the runup to these elections that Communist China has sought to intimidate freedom and democracy in Taiwan. The People's Republic of China has conducted large scale military maneuvers to intimidate Taiwan before its legislative elections in December. The latest round of intimidation, just recently, includes amassing 150,000 Chinese troops and 220 fighter aircraft just miles from Taiwan. And China, when the People's Republic of China sought to intimidate voters as they went to legislative elections, they fired nuclear capable missiles about 100 miles north of Taiwan last July.

The People's Republic of China has officially and unofficially told the United States that they have developed plans for a 30-day missile attack of Taiwan. People's Republic of China officials told former Assistant Secretary of Defense for Asia, Chas Freeman, that they have developed such plans. They told a Stanford scholar, John Lewis, who is close to our Defense Secretary Perry, that they have developed plans for a sustained 30-day missile assault on Taiwan. These same military leaders have even made a thinly veiled threat against the United States, communicating again with Chas Freeman, that they might attack the United State with nuclear weapons should we concern ourselves with the preservation of democracy and freedom on Taiwan in the face of a Communist Chinese military assault.

Madam Speaker, it is outrageous that Communist China is planning and threatening a military invasion of Taiwan. Nothing in law or nature gives the communists the right to launch a military attack on millions of innocent civilians there. It is doubly outrageous that they are doing so to intimidate democracy, and for this reason today a bipartisan group of House Members has introduced a resolution. It is numbered House Concurrent Resolution 148.

I just note that it is House Concurrent Resolution 148, sponsored by every Member of the House leadership and bipartisan leaders, particularly of the Human Rights Caucus, the Democratic and Republican membership of the House of Representatives, and I urge all of my colleagues to sponsor this very important resolution.

INTRODUCTION OF THE CHRISTOPHER REEVE HEALTH INSURANCE REFORM ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from California [Ms. ESHOO] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. ESHOO. Madam Speaker, today I introduced a bill in the House of Representatives, H.R. 3030, and it is entitled the Christopher Reeve Health Insurance Reform Act. I think that that name, rather than the number 3030, is a name that Americans know and respect. Christopher Reeve is an accomplished actor, someone that has appeared both on stage and screen in our Nation and, I believe, now is playing one of the great roles of his life as he advocates for the reforms that are necessary to our health system. And so I am very pleased that he would lend his name to this piece of legislation that seeks to reform a very, very important part of our health insurance system in our country.

What this bill would do would be to lift the lifetime cap limit that exists in health insurance policies today. People that own life insurance policies may not be, and most are not, aware of the fine print that exists within that policy.

Back in the 1970's, a $1 million cap was placed on the usage or the ceiling for health insurance policies. One million dollars in 1970 was a lot of money. Today $1 million, when a catastrophic incident happens in an individual's life, as it did and came into Christopher Reeves' life, $1 million will be used up very, very quickly. So I think it is important that that standard lifetime cap on individual health insurance policies be raised. That is what this bill accomplishes.

Specifically, the legislation would prohibit insurers from placing limits on health insurance policies of less than $10 million, so those that insure themselves, their policy would have a ceiling of not $1 million, but $10 million. I think this is an important and necessary reform measure that needs to be accomplished.

Last year, Madam Speaker, in our great Nation, 1,500 individuals exhausted their lifetime caps under their health insurance plans. Price Waterhouse estimates that between 1995 and the year 2000, an additional 10,000 Americans will reach their lifetime caps because they require continual medical care. This legislation will protect frequent users of health insurance from being stranded, because a $10 million limit better reflects today's medical inflation.

The $1 million cap, as I said, was adopted in the early 1970's. That reflected very much the times. But that has never been adjusted with inflationary figures, and we know if there is anything that has inflated, that is the cost of health care. Lifting the lifetime caps, Madam Speaker, would also save the Federal Government money.

Price Waterhouse estimates that removing lifetime caps would save the Medicaid Program $7 billion over 5 years. The American Academy of Actuaries estimates that lifting the lifetime caps will cause only a slight increase in premiums, about 1 percent to 2 percent, for employers. I think we can all agree that the $1 million lifetime cap is something that has outlived itself. That is to say that it does not fit with the times. This bill, H.R. 3030, will accomplish that.

Let me close, Madam Speaker, by paying tribute to Christopher Reeves. As I said earlier, he is a recognized name by Americans because of how he distinguished himself on stage and screen. He has been a great advocate for the arts and the humanities, and now, today, he is moving into a new role, and that is being an advocate for the necessary, important reforms that we can bring to the health care system. His eloquent voice, I hope, will be matched by the eloquent act of this Congress.

That is what I urge my colleagues to support and to cosponsor, so we can correct this in the law, and recognize that Americans will be helped, and that with that, we help move America forward. I salute Christopher Reeves for his courage, and I hope Members of Congress will try to match what he has exhibited by supporting this legislation, and indeed, making it the law.

IT IS THE ECONOMY THAT IS A PRIORITY TO MOST AMERICANS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from North Carolina [Mrs. CLAYTON] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. CLAYTON. Madam Speaker, after two Government shutdowns and a near default on our obligations, today this House has passed a short-term bill to raise the debt ceiling and to pass a continuing resolution for the work we have not done on four major appropriation bills, bills that contain important funding for domestic programs.

It is important that America pay its bills and meet its obligations. It is also important that we do all that we can to keep the Government running. We do not need a third Government shutdown, but we are now almost halfway through the fiscal year and we have done nothing to bring relief from the daily struggles to make ends meet for working families of America.

Today, once again, the continuing resolution cuts education funding. We want to lead the world in education, but we do not want to provide the resources to do so. Because of what Congress did today, there will be fewer teachers, more crowded classrooms, less money for equipment and supplies, and not as much help for those who need a healthy start or a head start.

The answer Congress has been giving to the working families who are working just as hard as ever before is that inflation is low, economic indicators are good, the stock market is rallying, and jobs are on the rise. All of that means nothing to the unemployed father or to the single mother or to the family of four with children in college, or to senior citizens who are now being told their lifetime work has no value.

The fact of the matter is that the quality of life for most Americans is not getting better. The fact of the matter is that most of our citizens have little confidence in the economy, and less confidence in government. The fact of the matter is that while Congress is fighting over balanced budgets and spending limits, the public is losing faith in the American dream. The reason the public is losing faith is because more people have less money, while less people have more money. The rich are getting richer and the working families are suffering more of the losses that we are suffering.

It is by now widely known that the income gap between those with a lot of money and those without much money is growing faster, and is very troubling. This Congress must not ignore these harsh realities, and heed the cries for help coming from all quarters of working America.

It should concern us that the industries that have led this Nation over the last 5 years in job production are temporary employment agencies. It should claim our immediate attention that bankruptcies are skyrocketing and bad credit is more and more common.

What can we do to restore faith in our economy and our Government and recapture the American dream? What can we do to bring some relief to our citizens? We can start by passing the modest minimum wage increase bill that has been languishing in Congress for months and months now. We can go further by treating ordinary citizens with respect and the care with which we treat corporate America. We can do it best by passing a fair tax reform legislation aimed at working Americans and not always only at wealthy Americans. We can move America forward by ensuring quality health care, especially for our seniors, by protecting our environment and preserving education.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, college graduates earn 24 percent more than workers with high school degrees. Why, then, are we cutting education and claiming these cuts are necessary for progress?

High-wage jobs are needed to close the income gap. High-wage jobs require more education, not less education. Why do we think China and Japan and other countries in Asia and other parts of the world are concentrating on sending their young people to America to get educated? They know what Congress seems to ignore, that the key to a better quality of life is through our schoolhouse doors.

Madam Speaker, if Congress does not pass an acceptable continuing resolution, the Government will shut down a third time. If Congress does not raise the debt ceiling permanently by March 29, America will default on its debt. If Congress does not wake up and realize that working America needs this help now, the American dream will drift away.

It is still the economy that means important things to America. It is the economy that is a priority to most Americans.

CRIME OF THE RISE UNDER THE CLINTON ADMINISTRATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. TIAHRT] is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. TIAHRT. Madam Speaker, this country is facing an increasing problem with youth violence and drug abuse. After 3 years of reducing the effectiveness of fighting against drug abuse, Mr. Clinton is trying to salvage his image by appointing a new drug czar. Despite the rhetoric, President Clinton has been unable to win the war on drugs.

When President Clinton swore in his new drug czar, he said a lot of positive things against the country's battle against drugs. But let us not be fooled by President Clinton's claim to have made a sizeable dent in the war on drugs. If he had, we would not have such an increase in drug use and a decrease in drug arrests.

According to Investors Business Daily, two articles, one by Matthew Robinson on September 11, 1995, and John Barnes, June 6, 1995, "President Clinton has failed to properly fight the war on drugs." DEA, our Drug Enforcement Agency, their arrests fell from 7,878 the last full year under the Bush administration to 5,279 in 1994 under the Clinton administration.

Drug-related arrests, made in cooperation with overseas law enforcement agencies, fell from 1,856 in 1992 to 1,522 in 1994. Although 140 new DEA intelligence specialists were trained in 1992, zero were trained in 1994. President Clinton slashed the Office of National Drug Control Policy by 84 percent, cutting the staff from 116 to just 25. He eliminated 355 DEA agents and 102 personnel from the Justice Department's organized crime enforcement task force.

President Clinton dropped the drug issue from the top to the bottom of the National Security Council's list of 29 priorities.

In a household survey on drug abuse, as shown on this chart, it was published in September 1995, the estimated number of 12- to 17-year-olds who have reportedly smoked marijuana grew from 1992, 1.6 million, to 1994, 2.9 million. In the 14- and 15-year-old age group, it saw a 200-percent increase in the use of marijuana.

I have another chart that talks about how drug enforcement has been down under the Clinton administration. This depicts the number of Federal marijuana defendants, which has dropped 18.6 percent, in 1993 it was 5,500, to 4,100 by 1995.

Also, the prison time is getting shorter. In this chart, the average prison sentence for marijuana defendants is down 13 percent. In 1992, the sentence was 50 months. By 1995, it has dropped down to 43 months.

It is not just confined to drug abuse, either, Madam Speaker. We have a problem with violent juvenile crime. The juvenile crime clock, which is published by Crime Strike, says that a juvenile is arrested for murder every 2 hours and 10 minutes; for rape, every 51 minutes; for robbery, every 13 minutes; and an aggravated assault, every 8 minutes.

Juveniles are not tried as adults as often. Despite the increasingly violent nature of juvenile crime, as well as the increased number of juveniles involved, the percentage of juvenile cases referred to adult courts has actually declined. In 1984 it was 5.2 percent, approximately 54,000 cases out of 1 million. By 1993, a decade later, the adult court referrals had grown to 61,000, approximately, but it was just 4.8 percent of the 1.29 million offenders taken into custody.

I believe the liberal Clinton administration is part of the basic problem. In our war on crime, the liberals have become soft on criminals, and it is making it hard for the rest of us. I think this is why many Americans are losing faith in our court system. One of the most recent examples is an appointee by President Clinton, Judge Harold Baer, a liberal judge in New York City.

I have two articles I would like to refer to. One is in the Columbus Dispatch. It was published on February 5. It is entitled "Outrage in New York." To give you kind of a background, I will just take some excerpts from this article.

> Judges routinely make close calls in dispersing justice. Sometimes, though, a judge makes a decision so mind-boggling, so dumb, that it makes people wonder what planet he is living on.

Such has been the case in New York City, where on January 24, U.S. District Court Judge Harold Baer, Junior, let a confessed drug courier walk free after police officers observed 80 pounds of cocaine and heroin being loaded into the trunk of her car. The mayor, the police commissioner, and nearly everyone else in New York is up in arms over this nonsensical ruling.

I have a chart here that just kind of depicts how many drugs were in the trunk of that car when the arrest was made. There was 75 pounds of cocaine, and actually 4 pounds of heroin.

That was heading toward Michigan, according to the confession of Carol Bayless, who was at the wheel of the car. That is enough so that every school child in Detroit would have one dose of cocaine. This appeared to be an open-and-shut case, but in a bit of twisted reasoning, Judge Baer said that the officer had no reasonable suspicion to pull over Bayless. He excluded the drugs and the confession, a videotaped confession where Bayless admitted that she was paid $20,000 to take the drugs to Detroit, something she had done at least 20 times before, either for her son or for other dealers. But this evidence was thrown out. No drugs, no case.

Bayless was facing the possibility of life in prison. She whooped in celebration. If this was not bad enough, Judge Baer's written decision reeked with contempt for the police, particularly Officer Carroll who made the arrest, who has 10 years of experience on the street and a spotless record.

Senator DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN, who got President Clinton to appoint Baer to the bench, has had some buyer's remorse, according to the article. He suggested Baer be sentenced to live in that neighborhood for a year to see if that would change his mind.

Federal prosecutors are pondering appeal. They hate to overturn a judgment based on a subjective matter like reasonable suspicion, but in this case prosecutors should appeal, and the courts should overturn Baer's judgment and put Bayless on trial because justice demands it.

On "ABC World News Tonight" at 6:30, February 8, eastern time, there was an article run. Part of it was talking about this same ruling. Part of the report said: "Last month Federal Judge Harold Baer ruled that neither the woman's confession nor the drugs found in her car could be used in court because police lacked sufficient reason to stop her or search her car."

Here the police saw four men dumping duffle bags into the woman's car at around 5:00 in the morning and when the men saw the police, they ran away. This was not sufficient suspicion for Judge Baer, who wrote that in Washington Heights residents regard police officers as corrupt, abusive, and violent. Had they not run when the cops began to stare at them, it would have been unusual.

Well, in Wichita, KS, the fourth district of Kansas, I think that type of behavior would have been reason to stop someone, and I think that the abuse that has occurred from the excessive amount of drugs in our society justifies having this ruling overturned.

Mr. SHADEGG. Would the gentleman yield?

Mr. TIAHRT. I would be glad to yield to the gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. SHADEGG. I just listened to this story, and it kind of amazes me. If you would be willing to, I would like to enter into a little colloquy to see if I really understand this and see if we can flesh this out a little bit.

You are telling me that the essence of this judge's ruling was that the search, the stop made by the police and the search which led to the evidence which showed enough cocaine to give every single child in Detroit one administration or one dose of cocaine, the search led to that, they found that much cocaine and the judge threw it out. And the reason he threw it out is because for people to run from the police is normal conduct in that neighborhood, and does not justify the police in having suspicion that some criminal activity has gone on?

Mr. TIAHRT. Yes, the judge felt that that was not reasonable suspicion. Let me just read through the facts of this case.

Mr. SHADEGG. This is a city in America, and this is a judge now appointed by the Clinton administration to the Federal bench, and his decision is that when police look at somebody engaged in what they believe is strange activity, those people decide to cut and run, the police are not entitled to determine that there is something suspicious going on and make a stop?

Mr. TIAHRT. Let us go over the facts of the case and then you can make a judgment yourself.

Early in the morning on April 21st, I assume this is 1995, Officer Richard Carroll sat in his unmarked car staking out a street in Washington Heights known as a prime location for drug dealers. At 5:00 a.m., it was early in the morning, he observed a double-parked rental car with Michigan plates.

Four men walked up to the car without speaking to the driver. They put two black duffelbags into the trunk of this car. When they spotted the officer, they all ran off in different directions.

Officer Carroll then pulled over the driver, Carol Bayless, again, searched the car, finding the cocaine and the heroin with a street value of at least $4 million.

Subsequently, there was a videotaped confession where she said, yes, she knew what she was doing. She has done this 20 times before. It goes back to most people would probably consider running from the police some type of reason for suspicion. I think that is the way it is viewed in Wichita, KS, and I am sure it is probably viewed that same way in Arizona.

I think it is just cause, and it probably shows why we have lost some faith in our judicial system when we have liberal judges turning loose criminals, confessed criminals, on what has been termed a technicality, or his term was, not enough reasonable suspicion to make this arrest. It is, I think, a poor excuse for why we are having problems turning criminals loose.

Mr. SHADEGG. If the gentleman would yield, I would be happy to talk about some other points on this particular topic. And I do want to address this issue of illegal drugs and what has gone on in America since the beginning of the Clinton administration, but I just want to bring this one point home.

At least in Phoenix, AZ, we have told the police in my district that if you have a reasonable suspicion, you can stop someone and inquire into their activity. That is in fact the law in America.

In Phoenix, AZ, if police see some group of individuals at 5:00 in the morning or midnight or practically any time of day, and upon those individuals recognizing them as police the individuals scatter and run in six different directions, that certainly would be for any judge in Arizona articulable suspicion and reasonable grounds for them to stop those individuals, to make an inquiry, to require them to produce some identification, and to find out whether or not criminal activity is going on.

I, myself, signed a letter today calling for Judge Baer to immediately resign from the Federal bench.

If you contemplate the society which he is calling for, it is a society in which the norm is citizens may run from police, and when police see them run, they are to assume, well, there is nothing wrong. I guess if we have understood what he said, he said, well, in this particular community the norm would be that it would have been strange if they had stood silent.

I guess the standard Judge Baer is calling for is that if the citizens of that community see a policeman and they stand still or they continue what they are doing, then the police have the rights to come up to them and say, "This is awfully strange. Judge Baer tells us that normal conduct would require that you run away from us, but we will require you to stay here. He thinks it's odd only if you do not run. Therefore, since you didn't run, we're going to ask you for identification and determine whether or not illegal activity is going on."

It is hard for me to believe that that is the standard set by a judge in America. It is hard for me, even further more difficult for me to believe that that judge has now been appointed by this administration to the Federal bench, and I can see why the good Senator would have had perhaps some buyer's remorse on this recommendation.

Mr. TIAHRT. If we take a practical application of what Clinton's appointee, Judge Baer, would view, his view of America as you have expressed, suppose you are a common citizen and you are driving your automobile, and for some reason a policeman acknowledges that they are behind you by putting on their lights. The normal behavior, according to the Clinton appointee, would be for you to speed off and try to elude the police. I cannot imagine how dangerous our highway system would be every time a police officer attempted to stop someone for perhaps having a headlight burned out or an unsafe condition ahead where they would speed ahead.

I think that Judge Baer here is exactly wrong. I think this exemplifies what is wrong with liberals in our judicial system, and it exemplifies why many people are concerned and frustrated by our current court system.

There is another program that was thwarted by the Clinton administration, and it was a successful program. It was put in an article in the Policy Review written by Charles Molony Condon, who is the attorney general of South Carolina.

While he was working as a circuit solicitor in South Carolina, he became aware of the problem that this Nation is having with crack babies, and he became aware of it through the Charleston Medical University of South Carolina's hospital. He said that he found out that about 1 in 10 children born nationwide has been exposed to cocaine in the womb, and this affects approximately 350,000 babies every year.

The hospital, MUSC, the Medical University of South Carolina, said that they have seen bills reach $750,000 from crack babies, for one crack child. Most are born to welfare mothers, so Medicaid and the hospital end up picking up the bill. In one instance, the General Accounting Office had found that a single cocaine baby can run up a lifetime tab of $1 million in medical costs and educational costs.

Mr. Condon decided that he would try to do something about it, and working with the hospital, they aggressively confronted pregnant women, talking to them about the consequences of their drug abuse. They were having trouble getting women to voluntarily seek help, but in this program they were given a choice: either seek drug treatment or face arrest and jail time.

They did this over a 25-year period, and over that 25-year period they were able to see crack babies in this hospital going from approximately 24 per month down to about 5 to 6 per month. It was called an amnesty program and it had a very positive effect.

But then in came the Clinton administration with allegations of discrimination and accusing the hospital of violating privacy rights. The Clinton administration, along with the ACLU, threatened to cut off the $54 million in Federal assistance that MUSC was receiving, which was about 60 percent of their annual budget. This boiled down to, according to the article, the Clinton administration protecting not the children but the right of the mothers to escape the consequences of their neglect.

As reported by Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala, South Carolina's crack baby program was discriminatory. But according to Charleston Police Chief Rubin Greenberg, he said the program benefited the black community most of all.

I want to quote from the end of this article. It says:

> One of the most basic responsibilities a mother has is to her child. If a mother injected cocaine into the tiny arm of her infant, causing permanent brain damage or death, certainly that mother would be arrested and prosecuted. Yet that is exactly what addicted mothers do when they consume cocaine throughout their pregnancy. In South Carolina, we tried to do something about it. The program we created was working. Now it is no more. And as long as the powerful Federal bureaucrats continue to manipulate Federal funding to serve a bizarre agenda that is deaf to the cries of damaged babies, there is nothing more we can do. Why is the Clinton administration stopping us from protecting our children?"

Here we have an effective program that was dealing with some of the core issues, some of the heart-rending problems that we are having in our society, unborn children being abused by drug abuse. They developed a program. It was being studied and sought out by other States, other States were looking at it as a model, and yet it was effectively shut down by the Clinton administration.

I think that this program and others leave us puzzled. Why do the liberals in the Clinton administration oppose getting good sentences, allow criminals to be released, and when an effective program is in place, they move in with a force, with a vengeance, and shut down a program that has been successful.

Even though we have drug abuse, especially through teenagers, it is not doing enough. I think we have not gone far enough. Overall drug abuse seems to be waning or being leveled off, but teenage drug abuse is up while enforcement is down.

I think President Clinton has not only ignored the drug problem but he has actively hampered the efforts of drug control agencies. In February 1993, less than 1 month in office, President Clinton eliminated 83 percent of the staff at the Office of National Drug Control Policy. Continuing the abdication of leadership, the President also eliminated the drug testing program for the White House staff.

Mr. SHADEGG. Would the gentleman yield?

Mr. TIAHRT. I would be glad to yield.

Mr. SHADEGG. I would like to make a few points here. I come to this Chamber as former assistant attorney general. I spent 7 years in the Arizona attorney general's office, in the fight against crime and in the fight against drugs.

I think there are some points that need to be made that I am gravely concerned about. I am concerned about them because I am the father of a 14-year-old daughter who is in junior high this year and next year will begin high school, and I am told that drug use will be prevalent and drugs will be available in every high school she can go to, no matter whether we select a private high school or a public high school.

Today I want to compliment the chairman of the Government Reform and Oversight Subcommittee on National Security, International Affairs, and Criminal Justice, the gentleman from New Hampshire, WILLIAM ZELIFF. Today they released, and it will be made public 5 days from now, their "National Drug Policy: A Review of the Status of the Drug War in America."

Now, many people listening tonight might say, "Well, we can really win the drug war in America," and they would make that argument. What this report shows and what is of grave concern to me is that one thing is clear. We may not be able to win the war against drugs, but when we surrender any effort to stop drugs, when we give up on that war, there are consequences, and I would like to talk about some of those consequences.

First let me talk about Arizona. In Arizona we are a border State. Seventy percent of all of the illegal drugs which come into this country come across the Mexican border. The efforts of Chairman ZELIFF and of his subcommittee on which I serve could not be more timely in terms of Arizona.

Let me talk about what is going on in my home State. Current use of all illicit drugs is up among public school students at both high school and junior high levels. The 1995 Substance Abuse in Public Schools Survey put out by the Arizona Criminal Justice Commission says that current use of methamphetamines, hallucinogens, and marijuana amongst high schoolers is at the highest level it has been since 1988: 21.8 percent of all Arizona high school students reported using marijuana in the last 30 days; 16.8 percent of those students reported using marijuana within the last 10 days.

Equally frightening, as the gentleman from Kansas has pointed out, is the link between this drug use and crime. The crime rate in Arizona has doubled, from roughly 19,000 in 1985 to more than 28,000 violent crimes by 1995.

Ask yourself why. Why do we have this surge in violent crime? Why do we have this dramatic surge in juvenile drug use? Let me recite the record of the Clinton administration.

First, upon taking office, President Clinton gutted 80 percent of the staff of the Office of National Drug Control Policy. He took the staff from 146 at the level when he acquired office to 25, an 80 percent reduction.

One of the first announced goals of Attorney General Janet Reno was to reduce the mandatory minimum sentence for drug trafficking and related Federal crimes.

The Clinton administration national security policy subsequently passed and the President signed a new directive ordering a massive reduction in Defense Department support for interdiction efforts.

And, as we all recall, President Clinton's Surgeon General called repeatedly for serious consideration of drug legalization.

We have a problem in this Nation. It is a serious one. It is one where we have abandoned the war on drugs. My friend the gentleman from Kansas pointed out early on that the President was AWOL in this fight. I think he indeed is AWOL in this fight.

Almost a year ago, former First Lady Nancy Reagan came before our subcommittee and asked a very telling question. How could it be that we had gone from winning and making serious progress in the war to stop, at least to stop the ever increasing use of drugs by more and more of our children and the use of dangerous drugs? How could it be that we had in a span of just 3 years dropped so dramatically from significant success in that area to significant failure?

Chairman ZELIFF'S subcommittee in the writing of this report held 5 oversight hearings during 1995 to assess the status of the Nation's drug control strategy. While I will not belabor each of the points, some are worth making note of.

First of all on March 9, 1995, Bill Bennett, a respected scholar in this area, a respected leader in this Nation, and the former drug czar and former Office of National Drug Control Policy Chief of Staff John Walters both testified, and I quote, if the drug use trends continue, by 1996 the Clinton administration will have presided over the greatest increase in drug use in modern American history.

What has that led to? Let me cite just some of the sad statistics. I note that the President today has convened a conference to address this issue. I applaud him for that effort but I am concerned that it is only an election year effort.

Casual drug use in America is dramatically up in virtually every age group and for every illicit drug, including heroin, crack cocaine, hydrochloride, LSD, non-LSD hallucinogens, methamphetamines, inhalants, stimulants and marijuana.

Ask yourself why. For one reason, the nationwide street price for most illicit drugs is lower than at any time in recent history. It is because this administration reduced its efforts to interdict the flow of drugs into this country. It has also dramatically reduced its efforts to cut off source production.

The potency of the drugs, the same drugs, particularly heroin and crack, is higher according to the nationwide survey than any time in recent history and nationwide drug-related emergency room admissions are also at an all-time high.

It is a situation which has gone unnoticed by the press and which must not go unaddressed by our Nation. We are at risk of losing a generation of Americans and we must do something about it.

I could cite a great deal of statistics. I am sure the gentleman has them of his own. For example, the nationwide Pride survey of 200,000 students showed that 1 in 3 American high school seniors now smokes marijuana. There has been a 36-percent increase in cocaine use among students in grades 9 through 12 just since 1991 and 1992. Hallucinogen use by high school students has risen by 75 percent since the 1988–1989 reporting period. Cocaine-related episodes in 1994 reached their all-time high in U.S. history, a 15-percent increase from 1993 and a 40-percent increase from 1988.

These statistics cannot be ignored. It is time that the President address this issue. it is critical that the Nation do something about this. I think the statement of the gentleman from Kansas that the President has been AWOL, absent without leave, on this issue are exactly right. It is time that he did appoint a tough drug czar, it is time that we went back to working interdiction, it is time that we went back to examining the transit zone, it is time that we made a serious effort to go at source production in the source-producing countries. We know those countries. We had effective efforts before them to begin with.

But more than any of that, it is time for this President to lead nationally, to set an example. He has to take the bully pulpit and talk about this scourge or he will be responsible for the loss of a generation of Americans to illegal drugs and their corrupting influence.

Mr. TIAHRT. I could not agree more with the gentleman from Arizona.

We have fundamentally three problems in the United States today:

One is economic and that is where we are struggling to balance the budget. If nothing else we would create more jobs, and I think that is very important for people who are trying to rise out of poverty and get out of the situation where drug abuse is so prevalent.

The second major problem is kind of our social structure, how we deal with people truly in need. Our welfare system needs to have the work ethic put back into it. Many people are trapped into a system that is hopeless. They cannot see a way of dealing with it. And so they resort to drugs to escape temporarily.

One thing that we could do in our legislative process is get the work ethic back into the welfare system so that people can have hope. We have heard so much about self-esteem. But we cannot have self-esteem without accomplishment, and we cannot have accomplishment without work. It is so important that we get our work ethic back into our system.

We also have got to provide opportunities for people as they rise out of poverty. That is why this Congress has supported increasing college loans. It is very important for the future of this country. But we must also, in order to effectively progress in education, eliminate the deadwood, like programs of Goals 2000, which has been largely ineffective. We spend hundreds of millions of dollars in the bureaucracy here inside the Beltway and do not educate one child. it is wasted money. That money would be more effectively spent by States directly in the classroom.

But we also must look at our criminal justice system and how we deal with those who by their very violent acts and by their total excessive abuse and by pushing drugs on minors and young people, that we deal with them quickly and harshly.

We must enforce the hot stove principle. When someone puts their hand on a hot stove, it does not take long to figure out that that is not the type of action that we want to follow up on or do again. So should our crime system be. That when someone commits an act that is not acceptable to our society, like pushing drugs to minors, like violent acts of criminals, then they should have quick and just punishment and not let it linger on. That is the second major problem and it is part of the social structure that we can deal with in some part through legislation.

But the third problem in our society is a crisis of the soul, a problem of the heart. This is a problem, and this is not going to go away by spending more money on social programs. This country has spent since the 1960s $5 trillion on our social programs. Yet every social indicator that we have, drug abuse, violence, divorce, domestic violence, child abuse, is all getting worse. We have spent a tremendous amount of money.

In order to make $1 trillion, one would have to make about $1 million dollars a day for 2,000 years just to get $1 trillion. It is a tremendous amount of money. People do not realize how much money that is. But yet we have spent it trying to increase the lot for people who are truly in need and it has been wasted. We must change the system.

But in dealing with the crisis of the soul, the money is not going to be solving the problem. Instead, we are going to have to each take ownership of the problem and it is going to have to start with individual responsibility, inside our home.

If we want a better family, we must be better spouses, better parents, spend more time with our children. If we want to have a better church, it is important that we be involved in the church, through attendance and through helping with classes like Sunday School. If we want a better neighborhood or a better community, we have to be a better neighbor. It is this type of ownership that is going to change the problem.

There is a gentleman who owns a machine shop in Wellington, KS, just north of Wellington, KS. In about the mid 1960s, he grew tired of driving back and forth to Wichita, KS, where he had a job as a machinist at Boeing Company and he started his own machine shop. He had 4 employees to start with. Now he is up to 200 employees.

Last August I was in his brand new building which sits across the street from his original facility. In that building he has a machine that is 30 feet wide and 200 feet long. It sits on 21 tons of concrete. The surface which is stainless steel is totally flat. You can drop a marble or a ball bearing on it anywhere on that surface and it will not roll. It is a 3-spindle 5-axis machine, and it cost $7 million for him to procure the machine and get it placed in this building.

As I looked at this machine, having come out of the aerospace industry, I asked him what parts was he going to manufacture on this machine. Bill Meredith is his name.

He said, "You know, I don't know at this point. I'm looking at several different things."

I was astounded. I thought, how is it that this man is successful when he does not even know what parts he is going to be running across this machine which costs $7 million?

So I asked him, "Bill, why is it you're so successful? Is it because you're willing to take the risk, to borrow $7 million and employ additional people? Or is it because you're on the leading edge of technology?"

Bill said, "It's really neither of that. It's not because I have borrowed the money or because I'm willing to take the risk. The reason I'm successful is because I have good people working for me."

I thought, that is probably the solution to our problems. We need to get good people involved in the process, to take ownership in the problems that we have in this country.

In a book written by Marvin Olasky, who is a history professor at the University of Texas, called the Tragedy of American Compassion, he talks historically how we dealt with people who were truly in need over the years and how we used to require something from the people as they received benefits. The men would chop wood in the time when wood was used as a source of energy and women would sew or take care of other children and they learned to read and they got involved back in the system and it helped them rise out of their temporary position of poverty into successfully participating in society.

What we have now too often is a situation where people have relied on the Government to provide for those truly in need. We pay taxes. It is the Government's problem. We have lost that ownership in solving the problems. Mostly it was charitable organizations that dealt with people who were truly in need. Now we have moved it to the Government and it has not worked effectively.

In order for us to make that transition back to successfully moving people out of temporarily being poor as opposed to being caught in the welfare cycle, second and third generation being caught, get them involved in moving into a productive time, Marvin Olasky advocates each of us being involved, good people being involved.

I think that that is what this country is going to have to do. We cannot rely on the Federal Government to solve our problems. We have a 30-year history after spending $5 trillion proving that the system does not work. It is broke, it is anti-family, it is anti-work, it is anti-property accumulation. It teaches the wrong example for a system of free enterprise. Each of us must answer the call and take ownership in the problem. If we do, I think that we will have a much better country.

DEBT, DEFICITS, AND BALANCED BUDGETS: THE TRUE DEBT

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. WALDHOLTZ). The gentleman from California [Mr. HORN] is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. HORN. Madam Speaker, today I want to continue the discussion of the debt, deficits, and balanced budgets. This is a true debt speech. Some of the debt you hear about is only part of the debt. We are going to get into the unfunded liabilities again and what is really out there for ourselves, our children, and our grandchildren.

"Blessed are the young, for they shall inherit the national debt," said President Herbert Hoover in a statement made in jest over six decades ago. Today the young, the old, and those of us in between have a significantly lower standard of living than we should have.

Why is that? Federal deficits and unfunded promises have eaten away at the investment capital, the seed capital, if you will, that America needs to grow.

If Congress and the President for the last 26 years had run the country as most of us have run our family finances—matching what we earn to what we spend—an average family would have had at least $5,000 more to spend each year; that is, roughly $100 per week. Or they could also have paid a lower rate of interest on their home and their car. With 2 percent savings in interest, a $100,000 mortgage payment on a house would be $2,000 less each year, or nearly $200 per month, and greatly improved family job opportunities would have resulted from that.

The Federal Government deficits as well as unfunded promises, including the loan and credit guarantee losses experienced by the Federal Housing Administration, education loans, farm ownership, rural development loans and guarantees, insurance programs, including deposit insurance, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, the Federal Emergency Management Agency and its flood insurance, and potential losses from the government-sponsored enterprises have contributed to reducing our standard of living even though a lot of good is done by all of these programs.

The intent of many Federal promises is good, but the overall result has been that Uncle Sam has made over $50 trillion, that is a "t" for trillion, in promises that we might not be able to afford, including a $4.9 trillion national debt, which is what we are grappling with this month, plus farm subsidy payments, inadequately funded civil service and military retirement, Medicare, Medicaid, an ever-widening variety of programs and other unfunded entitlements.

New Federal promises have often produced costs adding to the debt and potential liabilities, and those costs have risen beyond their authors' wildest dreams.

During the next several minutes I will explore the issues surrounding Federal debt, including the yearly Federal budget deficits, unfunded Federal promises, which together create the yearly deficits, and Uncle Sam's potential bankruptcy.

Let us look a little bit at history. Ancient Athens, the world's first democracy, it prospered during the sixth century before Christ. Athenians had no notion of deficit budgeting or of a national debt. In brief, budgets had to be balanced. If expenditure exceeded income, then either revenue had to be increased or spending reduced.

"Prudent provision might build up reserves against rainy days," said Professor David Stockton, in his book "The Classical Athenian Democracy," that was published by the Oxford University Press in 1990.

Athens eventually fell to Sparta, but it was not because of any debt. Even though there was no notion of deficit budgeting or of a national debt in part of the ancient world, Rome briefly resorted to forced loans to the state during the Punic Wars. Coins, worth their content in precious metal, were the currency of ancient Rome and Greece. Printing of currency to finance governmental activities would be centuries away.

In the modern era, government debt has achieved its full potential. As the economists noted, ever since King Edward III of England defaulted on his debt to the Italian bankers in 1335, international investors have fretted about the high levels of government indebtedness.

A recurring theme throughout the history of the United States is that the Federal debt should be avoided. Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, the populists, Dwight Eisenhower, Ross Perot, and numerous others have decried excess Government spending.

For instance, President Dwight D. Eisenhower, in his 1955 budget message, noted that "one of the first problems of this Administration was to bring the budget under control." Jefferson, our third President, warned that the "public debt is the greatest of dangers to be feared," and that "debt and taxes were public evils of the first magnitude. They drained capital away * * * diverted it from productive enterprise, and supported a system of coercion, corruption and privilege that was the bane of every government and necessarily fatal to a free one."

Andrew Jackson believed that the national debt diverted funds from productive private uses into the unproductive ones of providing Government services, and taking from the poor to the rich. During the Jackson administration in 1835 and 1836, the Federal debt was actually paid off.

President Martin Van Buren, Jackson's successor, found that the creation in time of peace and a debt likely to become permanent is an evil for which there is no equal.

Even Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who led us out of the Depression of the 1930's, warned us about peacetime debt. Said Roosevelt, "Let us have the courage to stop borrowing to meet continuing deficits. * * * Any government, like any family, can for a year spend a little more than it earns. But you and I know that a continuation of that habit means the poor house."

Our effort in this Congress is to stop big Federal deficits, and that effort has been supported for years and during most of his Presidency, by Ronald Reagan. He warned in his 1981 inaugural address that "You and I, as individuals, can, by borrowing, live beyond our means, but only for a limited period of time. Why then do we think that collectively, as a Nation, we are not bound by that same limitation? For decades, we have piled deficit upon deficit, mortgaging our future and our children's future for the temporary convenience of the present. To continue this long trend is to guarantee tremendous social, political and economic upheavals."

What is past is prologue is chiseled on the front of the National Archives, located between Constitution and Pennsylvania Avenues in Washington. Ignoring our forefathers' warnings about debt and deficits is done at our own peril. What is past is prologue is a good guide. I recall one taxi driver who had an elderly lady he was touring around to see the sights of Washington. When she wondered what was meant by what is past is prologue, the driver translated it. He said, "Lady, it means you ain't seen nothing yet." And that seems to be the situation we are in. How right that taxi driver was.

The much complained about national debt under Franklin Roosevelt is minimal compared to the deficits run up based on 40 straight years of control of the House of Representatives by the Democratic majority. Balancing the budget, reducing debt and ending government deficits are part and parcel of the same economic theme. This theme has been played out within Congress and the White House every year regardless of party.

In the 208 years since the adoption of the Constitution, the Federal Government has balanced the budget 105 times, a slight majority. Unfortunately, in this century, the budget has only been balanced 27 times out of 96, and the last balanced budget was in 1969.

Large budget deficits in the 1980's, and the 1990's have resulted in a soaring national debt. The debt will continue to rise precipitously even with the balanced budget initiatives recently enacted by Congress despite the veto of the Balanced Budget Act initiative by President Clinton.

No matter how much of a spender the President is, he can not expend funds if we do not appropriate them. That is the difference between the Democratic and a Republican Congress.

Federal debt, despite our efforts, will approach $6.7 trillion by the year 2002 when, if we reach final agreement with the President, we will have a budget with no annual deficit, and that equivalency of going from the $5 trillion national debt now to the $1.7 trillion more to reach $6.7 trillion by the year 2002 will cost over $25,000 for every man, woman, and child in the United States.

The Federal debt will continue to grow even after the budget is balanced in the year 2002, with the elimination of the annual deficit.

And why is that? Because through accounting manipulation only part of the debt increases are recorded in either the President's recommendations, in his submitted budget, and the budget as finally approved by the Congress. Interest on Government trust funds, for example, is not included in the current budgets. That amounts to nearly $100 billion a year paid to the trust fund because the trust funds have been borrowed by Presidents, both Republican and Democratic, to give the illusion of reducing the annual deficit. Thus, the President's budget recommendation and the congressional budget hide the Federal trust fund yearly increase, and between 1991 and the year 2000, this will amount to over $1 trillion addition to our national debt.

In 2002, after the so-called balanced no-deficit budget has been achieved, assuming the President signs off on it in the next few months, budgetary surpluses using the current checkbook budgeting mechanism will have to exceed $100 billion each year to end the increases in the national debt.

Current debt management procedures are akin to a homeowner not recognizing the interest expenses on the home mortgage. After 30 years, the heirs will discover that accumulated interest expenses exceed by many times the home's purchase price.

If we are going to continue our imprudent policies, then your grandchildren will have to pay for them. Imagine, your grandchild in the year 2050, which might seem a long way away for many, but it is right around the corner once you hit your 20's and the world goes faster and faster; let us say the grandchild in 2050 is ready to retire, and instead he is told, "Your grandfather and others left this debt for you to pay. You cannot retire now. In fact, you owe over $200,000 in interest and other liabilities."

Since 1970, the massive runup of the Federal debt has had no precedent in peacetime America. Major increases in Federal debt occurred during the Revolutionary War, during the War of 1812, during the Civil War, and certainly during the First World War and the Second World War, and of course the cold war which followed.

As the Constitution took effect in 1788, the debt had risen to $73 million for the cost of fighting the American Revolution. Just before the War of 1812, the debt had actually decreased to $45 million. Deficits during that war resulted in the debt increasing to $127 million by 1815. In 1835, a Federal debt was paid off with a surplus, and with a surplus, an extensive debate occurred as to how that surplus might be returned to the people and to the States.

The Civil War saw the end of that talk. The debt increased from $65 million in 1860 to over $2.7 billion by 1866 to fight the bloodiest war in our history.

The debt declined to $1.2 billion just before the First World War. In only 2 years during that war—America's first real entry into an international conflict—the Federal debt rose by almost a factor of 10, to $25.5 billion.

Between 1932 and 1940, during the presidency of Franklin Roosevelt, the Federal Government ran annual deficits between $2 billion and $4.3 billion. With the start of the Second World War, deficits increased dramatically to approximately $50 billion per year between 1943 and 1945 as the war grew to a peak in the production of armaments. By 1946, the national debt had reached $270 billion.

In the 1950's, the budget was balanced three times, and in the 1960's, it was in balance only once. Our budget has not been in balance, as I mentioned earlier, since 1969, the last year of the Johnson administration, the first year of the Nixon administration. Large deficits were run up in 1959 at the end of the Eisenhower period, almost $13 billion. In 1968, the end of the Johnson period, we had $25 billion.

During the 1970's, the early 1980's, large deficits in the $20 billion to $80 billion range were experienced annually. From 1982 to today, deficits have averaged over $200 billion per year.

Now the bad news. The yearly deficits as reported in the recommended presidential and ultimately enacted in the congressional budgets are only a part of the story. The total debt increase each year nears $400 billion, when you include the interest paid on those Federal trust funds which I mentioned earlier. That is a cost per family of almost $4,000 per year.

Our national debt is a Federal liability or a promise to pay to the people that hold the bonds that are needed to be issued to manage that debt. It is the link between Federal liabilities and budget spending and revenues. Other Federal promises or liabilities often reflect Government spending decisions, but the debt is the single-most important link between governmental decisions to spend and governmental reluctance to collect needed revenues, taxes, to cover the expenditures.

The arithmetic of Federal deficits is very simple. Regretfully, it is an easily understood subtraction. Each year since 1969, the last year the budget was balanced, the Federal Government has spent more than it has received in revenues. Thus, yearly revenues minus spending equals a surplus, or, if spending has exceeded revenues, a deficit. The excess spending has obviously resulted in an annual deficit. So we have the yearly deficit plus last year's debt, plus the interest on the trust funds, equal what is really the national debt of the United States.

Congress in its budget resolution projects that the debt will reach approximately $6.7 trillion by the end of fiscal year 2002. At that rate, interest will consume over 20 percent of the Federal budget by 2002, up from 3 percent in 1955.

As I recall, the first time we had a $100-billion, operational budget was 1965, the height of the Vietnam war during the Johnson administration, the beginning of the domestic Great Society. Now, that $100 billion ran the whole government and ran a war abroad that was a very difficult war. And yet that is what we willy-nilly provide as interest on the debt. Essentially what we pay for interest today is 2 Johnson administration years at their height. That is our cost to manage the national debt of today.

The debt has increased 600 percent since 1980. It will go up another $1.7 trillion between 1996 and the year 2002. Since the founding of the Republic, few issues have received the continuing attention that the annual Federal deficit and increasing national debt have attracted. Until this century, Federal deficits have been scrupulously avoided in peacetime. It has only been since the 1930's that Federal deficits have become commonplace.

Some blame the English economist John Maynard Keynes. Keynes stressed that in order to revive a depressed economy government should spend more than it received in revenue in time of unemployment. When the economy was prospering, however, the debt added to regain prosperity would be reduced by increased taxation during that now new prosperity.

President Franklin Roosevelt understood very well the first part of the Keynes theory of unemployment, the spending part, that would reduce unemployment. But he failed to adhere to the second part—the recoupment part—of recouping what you spend to get the economy moving again in better time.

When the economy was booming and there was full employment stimulated by the Second World War, Government should have financed our armaments through increased taxation on individuals and corporations. Instead, the Government took the easy way out; it issued Government bonds. Those are the bonds on which we pay interest and which we use to manage the national debt.

Most legislators obviously do not want to raise taxes. That is not a popular thing to do. So your only other choice is to cut spending. Most Presidents do not want to recommend new taxes. So both the Congress and the President, since the Great Depression of 1929, have to accept blame for the current $5 trillion national debt. But mostly the Congress over the last 40 years has to accept it because, very frankly, the President cannot spend a dime unless Congress appropriates it or by back-door spending authorizes a blank check which the President can use any time of night or day.

Federal deficits and debt run counter to American thriftiness. The "penny saved is a penny earned" ethic is a vital part of our American heritage. Most of the children's stories of the 19th century stressed that work ethic, that ethic of a penny saved is a penny earned. We all know the children's story about the wise ant who prepared for winter by storing up on food and doing one's duty to one's family, and the grasshopper that blithely played and played and did not work and simply did not save a thing. Of course, the grasshopper had problems. The grasshopper froze during winter. If the grasshopper did not starve to death, perhaps the ant was charitable enough to provide food through the bad times of the storms.

Thrift has guided our day-to-day living for many generations. Today Americans are demanding that the Federal Government practice thrift as we practice it in our families, in our businesses, in our schools, in our religious institutions. It is clear to most Americans that we must stop spending more than we take in. We must reduce taxes, and we must keep Federal programs that work and get rid of those that do not work.

When will we see Federal budget makers practicing good old American thrift? Not until Congress and the President have the will to cut more spending, reduce taxes, and, thus, balance the Federal budget.

This Congress has the will. A majority of us have the will. It remains to be seen if the President has the will.

There is both good and bad news about America's debt and deficits. The good news is that this Republican Congress has turned away from deficit spending. By our votes in committee and in the full House of Representatives, we have cut spending and reallocated funds among programs. We have eliminated programs.

The President claims he wants to cut spending, but he has vetoed several appropriations bills that did cut spending. Republicans, through our continuing resolutions, CR's, as they are called, have continued on the path to a balanced budget by the year 2002 or sooner.

We have done that without passing a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution. We passed it in this House. We had the two-thirds vote. We had a number of Democrats join us on that. We could not pass it in the Senate by one vote because about eight members of the Democratic Party who promised their constituents they would vote for that constitutional amendment did not vote for the balanced budget amendment.

The Congressional budget for the fiscal year 1996 requires that the Federal budget be balanced in 7 years. In his preliminary year fiscal year 1997 budget, President Clinton has jettisoned budget deficits of $200 billion for a budget surplus by 2002.

The bad news is that waiting until 2002 to end the deficits by balancing the budget will add $1.7 trillion to the national debt. That will ensure, at a 5-percent interest rate, $85 billion in additional yearly interest payments. In order to manage the national debt, which is steadily rising from $5 trillion to nearly $7 trillion over the next few years, we must engage in hard choices and we must set priorities. We cannot do all the things we have been doing. It is simply not prudent.

The test of our political system will be whether it will jettison the debt and the deficit strategy of the past 50 years and adopt an economic growth strategy that will ensure our children and our grandchildren's economic future.

Why is it better to balance the budget sooner rather than later? The sooner the rise in the debt is stopped, the better is the chance that America will enjoy healthy economic and social growth. Family incomes would increase by many thousands of dollars if the budget is balanced sooner rather than later.

Our Nation's economic health is at stake. Our Federal Government's health and the economy will depend on how well we manage our debt and the potential liabilities and promises, such as those in welfare, Medicare, Medicaid, and Social Security, among others.

The members of the Social Security System deserve better than they have received. They deserve a better investment strategy than has been used for the last few decades.

Let us take a look at a chart that reflects the economic fever of a number of countries. In Europe, an economically healthy government is defined as having a government's debt to the gross domestic product—some of us grew up calling that the gross national product—ratio of no more than 30 percent of debt to GDP. The national debt of the United States to gross national product ratio is 70. Belgium and Italy have the highest debt to GDP ratio in Europe, namely 142 and 125. They have a very bad fever.

As the fever debt to GDP ratio goes up, a nation's output goes down. Economists estimate that doubling the current fever level of the United States would reduce our country's output by 6 to 12 percent. But, more important, as the fever rises, investor confidence falls. There is a limit to how much debt investors are willing to hold in Federal bills, notes and bonds. As the debt goes up, the risk of default goes up.

At some point, domestic and foreign purchasers of our debt will begin liquidating their holdings. Disaster could strike with interest rates skyrocketing and the stock market falling in a panic. That will not be the first time or the last.

The economic psychology could mean depressed investment, reduced output, declining family wages, with parallel reductions in household spending.

In addition, the exchange rate declines as investors sell dollars. Widespread bankruptcies would occur. Even a Government default could be possible.

With all this, we would be in the middle of a financial and economic disaster.

Looking around the world, those nations—a few of them called the little and big tigers, as you know—that are economically the healthiest, have very low economic fevers. Let us name a few: Singapore, Chile in Latin America, the Republic of China on Taiwan, Korea, Hong Kong, Thailand, Indonesia, Malaysia. They all have low debt to gross domestic product ratios.

And guess what, these are the countries that over the last quarter of a century have had deficits which were less than half of those in other countries. The net result of budget surpluses is a stable well-valued currency, interest rate stability, and single digit inflation.

Let us look at the weaker dollar and what that means for this country.

Over the last few decades the dollar has crashed against the German mark and the Japanese yen, as foreign exchange traders around the world, continue to show their concern about governments with large debts including Mexico, Italy, France, and even Orange County, CA. The foreign exchange traders are shifting their anxiety to the United States as a whole.

We are being taken to the woodshed by the world's foreign exchange managers for excessive debt and excessive promises. Historically this is surprising. As noted earlier, throughout most of America's history our political leaders have clearly opposed an increase in peacetime debt.

Economists for the most part agree that Federal borrowing, over the last 25 years, has led to higher interest rates. Higher interest rates cost consumers dollars, dollars that they could have used to advance the good of themselves, their families, to provide for education and to provide for better housing whatever. For instance, a 1-percent increase in interest rates costs a family obviously $1,000 each year for every $100,000 in mortgage payments.

If the Federal Government had balanced the budget each year since 1980, the debt would be one-fifth of what it is today, or $1 trillion, not the $5 trillion that faces us during this month as we seek to raise the debt ceiling to manage that debt. That level of debt would have left trillions of dollars available for productive private sector investment. Balanced budgets would have meant more business investment, thus more jobs and more personal savings. The result would have been more revenue for Government since the economy would have been in good health and productive, and Government could have pursued relevant taxes on that economy, and the fever would be very low.

Americans have over $12 trillion in corporate and individual debt outstanding. Just a 2-percent reduction in interest rates means a savings of roughly $240 billion or nearly $2,600 on average, for every American family. Alan Greenspan, Chairman of the Federal Reserve, has told congressional committees that a balanced budget—or assurance that we are on a glide path to a no deficit budget which would be credible—would mean if done by 2002, a drop of 2 points in interest for the citizen. If you had an 8 percent mortgage, it would be a 6 percent mortgage. If you had a 10 percent interest on your consumer debt, it would become an 8 percent interest rate. If you had a student loan, you would save money and so on. Federal deficits mean lower investment, consumption, and savings.

Personal savings are vital for citizens' retirement, for home purchases, for education, for health care expenses, as well as for the Nation's economic growth and development. Excessive Federal debt is cheating our citizens, it is cheating our children and our grandchildren out of a higher living standard by providing them with less money to save, less money to consume, less money to invest.

Today, a rising Federal deficit has cheated the average citizen out of the opportunity to save, to consume, or to invest thousands of dollars since 1969. It is much more desirable for the average family to be able to choose among alternative goods, or to choose to save or not to save as they might desire. Business investment has suffered the same consequences—less money to save has led to less money for business investment. What does this mean? It means fewer jobs and lower profits.

Now let us talk about hot money.

The Federal debt and the unfunded promises are mostly hot money. As noted above, hot money are the dollars stolen from future generations. It is the benefits that Members of Congress and the President have often agreed upon in order to assure their reelection.

This hot money expended over 25 years has significantly lowered each American family's standard of living. Hot money not only breeds intergenerational inequity, it also is simply reckless money in that it encourages those types of political programs and political payoffs. It is unjust by cheating taxpayers with higher interest rates, and it has immoral consequences in that it cheats the poor and the middle class out of jobs.

Let us talk about the lower standard of living that results. According to Martin Feldstein, the President of the National Bureau of Economic Research, the costs of the last 16 years of deficits to an average American family has been a loss of $500 per month. With this $500 loss each month, you family could have bought a nice car, could have bought a house perhaps worth $50,000 more than the one you live in, could have paid for your children's college education, could have paid a lot of hospital bills.

For each of the last 26 years of Federal deficits, which has led to a weaker dollar, which has led to higher interest rates, it has led to lower investment and lower savings. The result is a lower standard of living for the average American family.

Trade deficits and the Federal debt are increasing. Federal debt and international trade deficits are the two major constraints limiting private investment. Thus, economic prosperity is closely tied to the Federal debt. Government surpluses are a key factor in increasing prosperity and raising the standard of living.

When does Government debt become excessive? Well, debt by itself is only a partial measure of whether Government fiscal policy is sustainable.

After the Second World War the United States and Great Britain had debt to gross domestic product ratios of 114 and 260 percent respectively. Winning the Second World War was absolutely crucial for democracy. By 1974, the United States had an economic fever, a debt to GDP ratio, reduced to roughly 34 percent for the gross Federal debt and 25 percent for the publicly held debt. What really counts is keeping the peacetime debt, the economic fever, very low. A high debt growth rate, a rising fever, foreshadows fiscal difficulty.

Today, besides the United States, Sweden, Italy, and Canada, several other so-called developed countries have rapidly growing national debts. Italy has one of the world's largest debts. Financial markets have penalized Italy for its growing debt by demanding a 5 percent premium on Government bonds, and this is just the beginning. The economic penalties for large debts can include insolvency, hyper inflation, illiquidity, depression, broken promises to pensioners and tax rate increases, and, needless to say, when you sum it up, it is a greatly reduced standard of living for all concerned.

When I talk to my constituents back home in the Long Beach to Downey area about the Federal budget, they often wonder why we here in Congress cannot balance the Federal budget this year. They reason that their family, their business and their State and local government with which they are familiar in a similar position would be able to balance the budget in a year or maybe two at the longest.

Let us look at the Federal deficit as an average American family might look at it if it was their deficit. If the Federal Government were an average American family, it would be earning $40,000 a year and spending $44,000, running a 10 percent of $4,000 yearly deficit. Cutting back spending by $4,000 or $350 per month could be accomplished with some minimal financial pain by most families.

For instance, a family might decide to vacation at a local beach instead of at Disneyland or family members may decide to reduce their premium cable channels and their lottery ticket purchases. A new car purchase might be delayed for a year.

The point here is that a 10-percent cutback in spending is not inconsequential, but it would have only a short-term impact on lifestyle. If it were the average family, the Federal Government would run about a 10-percent deficit of this year's congressional budget resolution.

This same budget resolution balanced the budget over 7 years. This seems like a long time to me and many others and certainly to most of my constituents. The Federal dollar chain, as you look at it, and it gets a little complicated, it has several links which, as in many chains, are interrelated. The Federal dollar chain is 75 years long. It begins with today's taxes paid by each citizen; that is the purple part of the chart, and ends with social security promises to the 18 year old just entering today's work force. That 18 year old will probably live to be a 93 year old. These links also relate to what the Government owns. Those are the assets, the Federal revenues, income received by the Federal Government and over 1,300 Federal spending programs and accounts. Like all chains it is only as strong as its weakest link.

The Federal dollar chain links are very critical to each other. Weak links limit the capability of the Federal Government to meet the needs, pay for the promises and perform at peak efficiency. At the top of the Federal dollar chain is the U.S. net worth, the black link. Attached to this link are assets in green and promises liabilities in red and the last promise in red, the link, is to the national debt.

The debt, as I noted earlier, is the result of very simple arithmetic. Revenues in purple minus spending in yellow. Revenues in purple and spending in yellow are what we often focus on here in Congress. Today the link between net worth, national assets and promises or fiscal liabilities to spending and revenues is critical in our examination of what is the true national debt. Our true national debt, the sum of all Federal promises, including our yearly deficits, is overwhelming us. It is time that Government starts using a balance sheet to track its long-term promises. These promises must be matched with assets. Government's ability to pay for promises can be predicted by how they match up with various Government assets.

Now most of these assets you obviously cannot sell and you do not want to sell. We do not want to sell any national parks or anything like that. But we have to take a very careful look at public land and other aspects and see if it is not of recreational cultural historical heritage value, could there be some investment there that helps us reduce the debt. It might be minimal, but it is more than we are doing now.

Today the Federal Government's elected Representatives and the President focus almost exclusively on this year's income, the revenues from the taxes, and its expenses, the outlays. Little consideration is given to long-term promises and how they will be paid. Promises have been made to fund entitlements; that is, mandatory spending such as Social Security, Government workers' retirement benefits, veterans' pensions, black lung programs, Federal workers' compensation, and welfare and unemployment benefits. Over a 25-year period these promises are estimated to total nearly $25 trillion according to a study completed by citizens for budget reform drawing on data from the Department of the Treasury's financial management service and other Federal and credible private sources. These entitlement programs are nearly 49 percent of the Federal Government's long-term liability. What about the other 51 percent?

Other promises include Federal insurance, deposit insurance for banks, flood insurance administered by FEMA, the Federal Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation. That amounts to about $5 trillion; those and similar comparable entities total 11 percent. Health includes Medicare which is roughly $10 trillion in financial liabilities. That totals 19 percent. Government-sponsored enterprises such as Fannie Mae, Fannie Mac, all the Federal home loan banks total $1 trillion or 2 percent. Loans and guarantees in general amount to another trillion dollars or 2 percent.

The national debt is the direct link between the long-term promises, the liabilities, and income and expenses. Every year since 1969, the last year we had a balanced budget, Federal expenses have exceeded Federal income, the revenues.

Fiscal discipline, balancing budgets, reducing promises, are key features for restoring our Nation's economic health and assuring our Nation's future prosperity. Typically, Government budget deficits reduce savings. Lower individual and corporate savings are a prelude to less investments and falling exports. Investment falls because reduced savings and the limits of them limits the amount of loanable funds, pushing the interest rates up. Exports are reduced because rising interest rates cause the dollar to rise in value. In the end, trade deficits lead to money being taken out of the United States.

Over the long haul, the Nation's capital stock declines with lower investment. The net result here is less productive capacity, and the Nation's output declines. As investment and capital are crowded out, productivity grows slower and slower, and real wages decline more and more. The bottom line is very simple: The people earn less. A most disturbing trend occurs as assets are reclaimed by foreigners.

Each of us has less and is left with less as foreigners earn our interest, collect our rents, earn our profits. Balancing the Federal budget must be combined with policies that simplify and reduce both individual and corporate taxes, establish adequate currency reserves, provide for an open economy, allow imports and foreign competition, strongly support American exports, provide domestic economic stability, and reform Federal insurance programs, the retirement security system, and the various health systems.

When the Federal Government makes a promise, it should be kept. Promises made, promises kept. We have heard a lot of people make promises. They have not kept them. Many of us have tried to keep them, and have kept them.

Through our oversight program in Congress, we must review every single program for not only its economy and its efficiency, but we also must assure that our customer, you, we, the taxpayers, secure what was promised. This is a very tall order. It is clear that for the United States to remain the world's major economic, military, and political leader, it must lead with fiscal policies that provide for a balanced budget. It must adopt policies that encourage economic growth and opportunity for all of our citizens. The Federal Government should not spend more than the sum of what it has, and what it can raise from future generations.

The benefits of deficit reduction are in the long-term. The currency of the United States is strengthened. Domestic interest rates are reduced. Federal bond rates decrease. The standard of living for all American families will rise. Savings increase. Investment increases. Foreign trade deficits over the long-term decrease. More and better jobs are created.

What must really be done to ensure that these benefits result from a prudent fiscal policy approved by Congress, and hopefully by the President? We need to balance the budget as soon as possible. If it is 2002, fine.

Some of think we should have balance the budget faster. We need to reduce the Federal interest payments as a percentage of the gross domestic product. We need to decrease Federal spending, keeping high priority programs, getting rid of low priority programs. In this, the average citizen, the consumer of Government services, the taxpayer, ought to be involved in telling us which programs are working satisfactorily and which ones are not working satisfactorily.

We need to give tax reductions as the budget surplus kicks in. We need to match long-term promises to what the Federal revenues will be. Balanced budgets, reduced debt, should be sought with the following outcomes in mind. These outcomes should include increased levels of personal consumption, higher savings rates, reduced Federal Government spending as a percent of gross domestic product; in brief, more money in the pockets of the average American citizen, the American middle class, the working people of this country.

We need to greatly reduce unemployment rates, with a special emphasis on young and minority populations. That is the proper investment policy, where the individual citizen can invest, where corporations, business—small and large—can invest. It is investment which stimulates the economy. We will hire more people. The result will be productive economy.

I was tremendously impressed in listening to Governor Engler of Michigan delivered his State of the State address. He said that if every Michigan business hired one more individual, then the unemployment roll in the State of Michigan would be eliminated. That is probably also true for the State of California. But first we must have incentives to encourage entrepreneurship.

Significant increases in economic growth throughout the Nation and throughout urban and rural America are absolutely essential. That will be one of the results of a prudent fiscal policy that balances the budget. We will also have poverty reduction with an emphasis on children—especially in the preventive health—when we balance the budget and provide economic opportunity.

We will be more cost-effective, we will have higher quality health care, education, and housing. There will be a greatly increased growth in economic productivity. After these various accomplishments, and trimming the national debt, President Hoover could change his paragraph from jest to truth and say, "Blessed are the young, for they shall inherit prosperity." That should be the new goal. No longer would the young inherit the national debt; that goal must be not only the guide for those of us in positions of responsibility and trust, but also the goal for all Americans.

Deficit and debt reduction are a central part of insuring economic growth and individual and family prosperity. We are on the road to ending Federal deficits and paying down the debt. We must maintain the course. Our future and the future of our children and our grandchildren are at stake.

Madam Speaker, I do hope that this Congress will be the first one to balance the budget for the 28th time, in this century. It is about time.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

SWING INTO SPRING: A HARLEM TRIBUTE TO LIONEL HAMPTON

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker and Members of this great body, It is said, "give me my flowers now while I am still around to enjoy them".

I rise to pay tribute once again to an individual who really needs no introduction * * * to one who certainly in his lifetime has made an impact on the world as a great American, an ambassador of goodwill, a musical genius, and without a doubt, a living legend. If you have not guessed by now, the person of whom I speak is none other than Lionel Hampton.

On Tuesday, March 19, I, as chairman of the board of the Apollo Theatre Foundation, Inc., and executive producers Grace Blake and Bill Titone, will present "Swing Into Spring"—A Harlem Tribute to Lionel Hampton.

This star-studded musical tribute marks an opportunity to celebrate the life and accomplishments of Lionel Hampton by his many friends, admirers, and those who have benefited from his work and musical greatness.

Whether you are familiar with his musical accomplishments or not, over the years, Lionel Hampton has known no status where he was not eagerly accepted, as he has been well received the world over by Presidents, politicians, kings, and queens. His very music has caused the walls of Communist nations to come tumbling down.

However, it is not only for his music that Lionel Hampton is well known for he is also a staunch leader in the community. His fame has not let him forget the homeless and the hopeless. A long supporter of public housing, he developed the Lionel Hampton Houses in the early 1970's and upon completion, built the Gladys Hampton Houses, named for his late wife. To this day, those projects are considered among the best in the Nation.

The Lionel Hampton Community Development Corp. has built more than 500 low and moderate income apartments in my congressional district of Harlem alone.

Lionel Hampton holds more than 15 honorary doctorates and received the gold medal of Paris, its highest cultural award, from its Mayor, Jacques Chirac. He was appointed to the Board of Trustees of the Kennedy Center in 1991 by President George Bush, and in December 1992, he was awarded a prestigious Kennedy Center honor for his lifetime career achievements as a musician and teacher. Since then, he continues to produce educational events and considers the real highlight of his career as having the music school at the University of Idaho named for him—the Lionel Hampton School of Jazz.

Whether you are black or white, rich or poor, Democrat or Republican, I am sure you would agree that Lionel Hampton represents the very best of America. It is in this instance that March 19 will be proclaimed "Lionel Hampton Day" in New York City and New York State.

TRIBUTE TO REV. DR. GRANVILLE A. SEWARD

HON. DONALD M. PAYNE

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. PAYNE of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I would like to bring to the attention of my colleagues a dedicated leader and servant of the people, Rev. Dr. Granville A. Seward. Rev. Dr. Seward is celebrating his 28th anniversary as pastor of the Mt. Zion Baptist Church in Newark, NJ.

Rev. Dr. Granville A. Seward was licensed to preach at the age of 17. He accepted the pastorate at the First Baptist Church of Rendville, OH, when he was 22. He is a graduate of Ohio State University. He received the master of divinity and doctor of divinity degrees from the Colgate Rochester Divinity School. Rev. Dr. Seward is a member of the board of trustees at the Colgate Rochester/Bexley Hall/Crozer Theological Seminary.

For many years Rev. Dr. Seward diligently prepared for his place in a changing society. His education and life experiences have been used to focus on the topic of his doctoral thesis, "The New Creation and the Emergence of a New Humanity." He has pragmatically looked at his church and our community and has developed programs that address the burgeoning needs of a diverse congregation and community. He has taken an active role in our community by serving as a member of the Newark Board of Education. He is also the dean of the Open Forum Baptist Ministers Conference of Newark and Vicinity.

Rev. Dr. Seward is the first pastor of Newark's Mt. Zion Baptist Church to ordain women deacons. He instituted prayer services at nontraditional times to better serve our population. He has developed feeding and clothing programs for the less fortunate. He implemented various types of ministries within Mt. Zion, where "every member is a minister" is emphasized.

Mr. Speaker, when we look at the shepherd who is tending his flock well, Rev. Dr. Granville A. Seward is among the chosen. I am sure my colleagues will join me as I extend my congratulations and best wishes to Rev. Dr. Seward, his wife, four children, and two grandchildren.

A BILL TO AMEND SECTION 1505 OF THE HIGHER EDUCATION AMENDMENTS OF 1986

HON. WILLIAM F. GOODLING

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, today, I, along with our colleague from Michigan, Mr. KILDEE, am introducing legislation to correct a board of trustees appointment problem for the Institute of American Indian Arts. This simple fix will help maintain the continuity of that board.

The Institute of American Indian Arts is a federally created institution of higher education. It's primary purposes are to provide scholarly study of and instruction in Indian art and culture, and to establish programs which culminate in the awarding of degrees in the various fields of Indian art and culture. The institute is authorized under title XV of the Higher Education Amendments of 1986, and policy for the institute is set by a board of trustees which includes 13 voting members appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the other body.

Unfortunately, the board appointment process has proven to be overly cumbersome and this has resulted in a number of board members serving additional terms, sometimes beyond the time they wished to serve, in order to ensure that the board could maintain a quorum.

The legislation we are introducing today would simply amend section 1505 of the Higher Education Amendments of 1986 to allow the board to recommend successors for board members whose terms are expiring and who do not wish to serve additional terms. The President would have the prerogative to act on these recommendations, or to appoint another qualified individual of his choosing subject to the confirmation of the other body.

However, should the President fail to act within 2 months of the expiration of the sitting member's term, and should that member not wish to serve an additional term, then the individual recommended for appointment by the board would be automatically seated.

This legislation makes a simple correction to the institute's board appointment process. It was requested of us by the interim president of the institute, who is concerned that without this fix the board may not be able to maintain a quorum and the institute might suffer.

This legislation is bipartisan and revenue neutral. It does not limit the options of the President in making appointments to the board, but merely streamlines the appointment process for this one institute.

This is common sense legislation, and I urge its support.

IN SUPPORT OF H.R. 2778

HON. JERRY F. COSTELLO

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. COSTELLO, Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 2778, providing for relief for members of the Armed Forces currently serving on peacekeeping missions in Bosnia.

This bill will provide benefits to those peacekeeping troops currently in Bosnia as part of Operation Joint Endeavor. For these military personnel, there should be no penalty for delays or tax on pay related to their service overseas.

Specifically, the troops would receive an extension for filing income tax returns without penalty, exclusion of combat pay for taxation, forgiveness of income tax, and a reduction in estate taxes for those who die or are injured during the mission.

In addition, military personnel in the combat zone also would be able to make long distance phone calls without being subject to the 3 percent excise tax. Tax benefits would be retroactive to December 4, 1995, and in effect until substantial U.S. involvement in the peacekeeping mission came to an end.

Mr. Speaker, it is important that Congress try to alleviate as much of the burden as possible on our troops in Bosnia, and this small step will help those families trying to make ends meet while their loved ones are keeping the peace overseas. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this important legislation.

INTRODUCTION OF AMENDMENT TO THE HIGHER EDUCATION ACT OF 1965

HON. CHARLIE NORWOOD

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. NORWOOD. Mr. Speaker, this legislation would allow five historically black graduate schools to continue to compete for Federal grant funds under section 326 of title III of the Higher Education Act. Morehouse School of Medicine, Meharry Medical College, Clark-Atlanta University, Charles R. Drew Postgraduate Medical School, and Tuskegee University School of Medicine are all in danger of becoming ineligible for grant funds. These funds support the purchase of laboratory equipment, improvements to classrooms, libraries and laboratories, faculty development, and academic instruction. It is important that this Congress reaffirm its commitment to high quality graduate level education for young African-Americans in this country. This amendment allows us to continue that tradition.

Historically black graduate schools train half of this country's African-American physicians, pharmacists, and dentists, as well as three quarters of all African-American veterinarians. For the most part, these individuals practice in poor urban and rural areas, where they serve large portions of disadvantaged Americans. These schools and individuals are providing a valuable service to this country by meeting one of the major challenges currently facing our health care system. They deserve our appreciation and our support whenever possible.

This piece of legislation will continue these schools' grant eligibility, without any fiscal implications for the Federal Government. Passage of this legislation allows these fine graduate institutions to continue to provide top quality education and training to their students.

The other 11 historically black graduate programs have no opposition to the continued eligibility of these 5 schools, and the decision to fund this particular section remains in the hands of the Appropriations Committee. There is no reason to restrict access to these funds.

TRIBUTE TO DANIEL J. CADY

HON. DALE E. KILDEE

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. KILDEE. Mr. Speaker, I stand before you today to ask that you and my colleagues in the U.S. House of Representatives join me in paying tribute to Mr. Daniel J. Cady of my hometown Flint, MI.

Mr. Cady is being honored today by his many family members and friends for 36 years of service to the Flint Community School District. Mr. Cady began his career with the Flint Community Schools in 1960, and has held numerous positions to include Community School director; coordinator instructor—Associate Community School Director Program; director of the Mott Program leadership training; consultant for staff development and leadership training; coordinator for staff development and leadership training; and director of Community Education Programs and Services; a position which he held until his retirement on January 31, 1996.

Mr. Cady's dedication to his profession has been much more than just doing a job. Over the 36 years that he has worked in the field of community education his leadership has been an inspiration for others at the local level, and also the State and national levels where he served as the president of both the Michigan Association of Community and Adult Education and the National Community Education Association. Additionally, he traveled throughout the United States assisting others as they learned the power of involving the people of their community in both education and Government.

During the 1930's, Charles Stewart Mott and Frank Manley began this program of opening school buildings to the community, and from there the formation of the community education concept. Over the years there have been a number of different individuals who have been leaders in this movement; Dan Cady is one who has carried on the responsibility of those before him by serving as a role model for many. Mr. Cady now is moving on to a new challenge as the director of the National Center for Community Education. I know he will provide the same dedication and commitment to his new position as he has to all previous.

Mr. Speaker, I ask you and all my colleagues in the U.S. House of Representatives to join me in congratulating Daniel J. Cady on his retirement from 36 years with the Flint Community Schools and also wish him well in his new position as director of the National Center for Community Education.

HAPPY 50TH ANNIVERSARY TO MR. AND MRS. ELBERT TEFFERTILLER

HON. GLENN POSHARD

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. POSHARD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate an occasion that is becoming an extremely rare event. Elbert "Bert" Teffertiller and his wife Alice will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on March 12. It is with great respect and admiration that I offer them my congratulations on reaching this glorious milestone.

The Teffertiller's were married shortly after Bert returned from over 3 years of service in the Army during World War II. The couple settle in McLeansboro in 1947 and have resided in Hamilton County ever since. They raised their two children there, and have since been blessed with five grandchildren. In and of itself, 50 years in the institution of marriage is a remarkable achievement. The commitment to spouse and family is truly momentous, and this kind of devotion often means there is less time for outside activities. This is certainly not the case with the Teffertillers.

Since they opened their first clothing store in McLeansboro the year of their marriage, Bert and Alice have gradually expanded their businesses to include shoes, furniture, cars, and homes, all the while helping to improve the local economy. Their devotion to their customers is legendary in the region, as they are known for their fantastic promotions featuring carnival rides, beauty queens, and television stars, refreshments, and a fair and honest deal. In 49 years of proprietorship, the Teffertillers have never forced payment, which speaks to another kind of commitment, to their community. Bert has served on numerous boards and associations, including as president of the McLeansboro Merchant's Association and president of the Hamilton County Chamber of Commerce. Also, both the Teffertillers are active members of their church.

Mr. Speaker, Bert Teffertiller has said he has tried to give back to the community more than he received, and it seems this family has accomplished that worthy goal. Their dedicated service to each other, to their family, and to their fellow citizens has set a tremendous example for the entire Nation. I wish them many more happy years of marriage, and it is my great pleasure to represent them in the U.S. Congress.

TRIBUTE TO HISPANAS ORGANIZED FOR POLITICAL EQUITY (HOPE)

HON. LUCILLE ROYBAL-ALLARD

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Speaker, on Friday, March 8, 1996, Hispanas Organized for Political Equity [Hope] Education and Leadership Fund's Fifth Annual Symposium is taking place in California's 33d Congressional District in honor of the past and future accomplishments of Latinas.

This year's theme, "A Proud Past * * * A Powerful Tomorrow," is certainly appropriate. As Latinas, we are at a crossroads. Today, we are prouder than ever to be rooted in our cultural traditions. At the same time, we are breaking the glass ceiling and pioneering into areas our mothers never would have dreamed possible. Latinas own major businesses, serve as executives in our Nation's largest corporations, and are being elected to public office in increasing numbers throughout all levels of government. As our accomplishments grow, we continue to fulfill our rule as the nurturers and educators of our children.

I am extremely optimistic about our future. In 25 years, it is estimated that Latinos will become the majority population group in California. Our new role tomorrow demands that Latinas continue to tackle new challenges and responsibilities today. HOPE will play a crucial role in preparing Latinas to lead California into the future.

I salute the HOPE Education and Leadership Fund for their commitment to Latinas and our children and, in their honor, proclaim March 8, 1996, as Latina History Day.

TRIBUTE TO DANIEL WILLIAMS

HON. DONALD M. PAYNE

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. PAYNE of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I would like to bring to the attention of my colleagues one of the tireless soldiers in the army of justice and equality—Daniel Williams.

Danny, as he is affectionately known, was honored by the Giblin Association on Sunday, February 18, 1996. Tribute was paid to him for his dedication to a number of communities—labor, civic, and social. Over the years, Danny has taken his place amongst a variety of individuals to ensure that everyone has equal opportunity to live, learn, and succeed.

Most of his work has been done in conjunction with the labor movement. A strong labor activist, Danny has used his experience and opportunities to draw attention to matters that affect the very fiber of our community. He is active with the International Union of Operating Engineers Local 68–68A–68B. He serves this organization as director of community relations. He uses this position to interact with the national organizations of the NAACP, the Urban League, the A. Philip Randolph Institute, as well as other civil rights organizations.

Danny is also active in his local community. He is a member of the Executive Board of the Vailsburg Block Association and the Reynolds Place Block Association. He is a district leader representing the 36th district of Newark's west ward for the Essex County Democratic Committee. Always willing to serve, he is the sergeant-at-arms for the executive board of the Essex County Democratic Committee.

I am proud to have this dedicated citizen in my district. I offer my congratulations and best wishes to Danny and his wife, Bernice.

A BILL TO AMEND THE HIGHER EDUCATION ACT OF 1965

HON. WILLIAM F. GOODLING

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, today, I am cosponsoring a bill introduced by Mr. NORWOOD and Mr. CLAY, to amend the Higher Education Act of 1965 to allow five historically black graduate professional schools to remain eligible for grant funding under section 326 of title III of that act.

These institutions compete for grant funds made available through the appropriations process. The Secretary of Education selects recipients who are making a substantial contribution to the legal, medical, dental, veterinary or other graduate opportunity for African Americans. The five original institutions, including Morehouse School of Medicine, Meharry Medical College, Clark-Atlanta University, Charles R. Drew Postgraduate Medical School, and Tuskegee University School of Medicine will become ineligible for grant funding after the next appropriations cycle. Although these institutions may still need grant funds and may be making the substantial contribution required under the statute, they will be ineligible simply due to the fact that they have received two 5-year grants.

This bill simply allows these institutions to continue to compete for funds along with other eligible institutions. Rather than terminating their eligibility solely due to timing, the decision will be based on meeting the requirements of the Secretary in determining substantial contributions to the fields outlined above.

The schools which compete for funds under section 326 of title III train 50 percent of the African American physicians, pharmacists and dentists in this country, as well as, 75 percent of African American veterinarians. Many of the medical schools serve large numbers of disadvantaged individuals who have no health insurance and are in dire need of quality health care. In light of the current health care problems facing this country, I believe that Congress should continue to support the important role of historically black graduate professional schools in helping to address this key issue.

TRIBUTE TO GWEN TOWNS

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, Mrs. Gwen Towns attended college in her home State of North Carolina where she received a bachelor of science in early childhood education from North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University. Later, she earned a master's degree in guidance and counseling from Brooklyn College, and obtained post master credits from Pace University.

As an advocate for quality education for children and adults, she has taught in New York for several organizations, including the Women's House of Detention and the board of education. In addition, Mrs. Towns has served as a member of various national and local education committees.

Mrs. Towns has been recognized on numerous occasions for her commitment and leadership on issues related to education and her efforts as a community activist. Also, she serves on the board of directors for the Brooklyn Children's Museum, St. Joseph's Home for Children, and president of the Interfaith Medical Auxiliary. She is a member of the NYC chapter of Jack and Jill of America, Inc., Conerned Women of Brooklyn, and an active member of Berean Missionary Baptist Church.

Most importantly, she and Congressman ED TOWNS are the proud parents of two children, Assemblyman Darryl Towns and Deidra Towns, and the grandparents of Kiara Towns and Jasmine Towns.

IN HONOR OF MAYOR DENNIS P. COLLINS

HON. ROBERT MENENDEZ

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a very distinguished and outstanding citizen from my district. Dennis P. Collins, former mayor of Bayonne, has long understood the importance of community development and service. In recognition of his altruistic efforts, Mayor Collins will be honored by the Bayonne Family YMCA on March 10, 1996, at the 4th Annual Distinguished Service Award Brunch at the Hi-Hat Restaurant in Bayonne.

Tradition and experience are key words when speaking of this truly dedicated citizen. Mayor Collins has been a life-long resident of the city of Bayonne. After proudly serving in the U.S. Armed Forces during World War II, he returned to complete his post-secondary education at St. Peter's College and the State University of New Jersey. His educational accomplishments allowed him to further develop his career in various arenas.

Mayor Collins' successful political career began in 1962 when he was elected the first ward councilman. Four years later, he was elected councilman at large. His leadership, influence, and commitment to the community led the residents of Bayonne to elect him mayor in 1974. As a result of his work and dedication, Mayor Collins was reelected to three terms.

Bayonne and its citizens benefited from the hard work and dedication of Mayor Collins. As mayor, he developed a strong economic policy at a time when the country and State were in recession. He dramatically improved public services and was directly involved in the process of refurbishing many of the city's public parks and facilities.

In his community, Mayor Collins has also played an active role and dedicated many hours of service to various institutions. He has taken part in veterans group activities and is a faithful parishioner at Our Lady Star of the Sea Parish. He has had the pleasure of working with the Knights of Columbus and was a standard bearer of the New Frontier Democrats.

Mayor Collins has worked endlessly to promote a sense of community in Bayonne, and he serves as a role model for our public officials. I am proud to have him as a congressional staff member, and it is with great pleasure that I honor such a special constituent and leader.

BILL REQUESTING FAIR REPRESENTATION ON FEDERAL JUDICIAL CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS

HON. NEIL ABERCROMBIE

OF HAWAII

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing legislation which calls for fair representation on all Federal Judicial Circuit Courts of Appeals.

Currently, only two States, West Virginia and Hawaii do not have representation on their circuit Court of Appeals. In fact, it's been 12 years since Judge Herbert Choy of Honolulu retired from the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. Some States like Montana, have only recently had a resident granted a judgeship. My bill would require that each State have at least one judge appointed to their circuit Court of Appeals. That way, all States would always have representation on the bench. The bill does not affect the President's historic power to appoint Federal judges.

Having each State represented on its respective circuit courts, helps to ensure that justice is blind and impartial. A report entitled The Long Range Plans For Federal Courts, completed by the Judicial Conference of the United States in December 1995, noted, "Federal judicial credibility and accountability are fostered when appellate judges are drawn primarily from the region they will serve." This bill would add to the judicial credibility of the courts because each State would have at least one judge representing and understanding its State law, business, and customs.

This is not another law to add to the books. This legislation is about continuing the integrity of our third branch of Government, fairness and representation. I strongly urge my colleagues to support and pass this bill.

THE COST OF OUR NATIONAL DEBT

HON. WILLIAM M. "MAC" THORNBERRY

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. THORNBERRY. Mr. Speaker, as we continue in our struggle to balance the budget and return government power to the States and local communities, I thought it would be a good time to remember what one of America's greatest patriots had to say about the cost of our national debt and the burden it places on current and future generations:

> I place economy among the first and most important virtues, and public debt as the greatest of dangers to be feared. To preserve our independence, we must not let our rulers load us with perpetual debt. We must make our choice between economy and liberty, or profusion and servitude. If we run into such debts, we must be taxed in our meat and drink, in our necessities, and in our labors and in our amusements. If we prevent the Government from wasting the labors of the people, under the pretense of caring for them, they will be happy.

These words are drawn from a speech given by Thomas Jefferson shortly after the birth of our country. This speech, sent to me last week by one of my constituents, Mrs. Louis Seewald of Amarillo, TX, should remind us all that we cannot continue the business as usual practice of spending more than we take in.

As Jefferson foresaw, running up a debt serves to enslave the entire Nation. The last 25 years have proven him right. Despite movement toward a plan to balance the budget, the fact of the matter is that we still face a national debt of nearly $5 trillion. A child born today will have to pay $187,000 in taxes over his or her lifetime just to pay off interest on the national debt.

If unchecked, the national debt will soon consume nearly 75 percent of our entire budget. This will leave virtually no funds for critical areas such as education, the environment, and crime prevention, and could possibly lead to a tax rate of over 50 percent.

This is not what Jefferson would have wanted from the Government he helped create more than 200 years ago, and it is not what the American people want from the leaders they elect today.

PEPPY MAYER, RECIPIENT OF CALIFORNIA DISTINGUISHED REALTOR AWARD

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize the exceptional achievement of Ms. Alberta "Peppy" Mayer, a resident of Fremont in California's 13th Congressional District. Peppy was recently awarded the California Distinguished Realtor Award, which is the highest honor that the California Association of Realtors [CAR] can bestow upon one of its members.

To receive this award, one must have been a California realtor for at least 20 years, demonstrated outstanding service to the CAR for at least 15 of those 20 years, be a CAR honorary director for life, and be a current, active CAR member in good standing. Peppy is all these things and more—she is one of the most committed, talented, tenacious, and energetic people I know.

Peppy Mayer was born in Chicago and lived in both San Francisco and Alameda before settling in Fremont with her husband, Edward Mayer, and their three young daughters. Although she had studied to be a teacher at San Francisco State University, when the family moved to Fremont, she began to look for another career and enrolled in a course in Real Estate. There were few women real estate agents at that time but she soon won a prize for closing the most escrows in the Tri-City area. She has not looked back since.

Peppy has been a member of the California Association of Realtors since 1967 and has served the association in almost every capacity since then. She has been a director of the association for 29 years. In 1976, she became the first woman to serve as board president. In 1981, she became the first woman to chair the legislative committee, and in 1985, she became district 6 regional vice president. In 1980, she was appointed as honorary director for life. She has also been a director of the National Association of Realtors for the last 12 years.

Peppy is the author of numerous publications for both the California Association of Realtors and the National Association of Realtors. She has also received many awards including: Salesman of the Year in 1967, Realtor of the Year in 1977, the CAR's 1980 designation as Honorary Director for Life, the Recognition Award for "A Lifetime of Outstanding Dedication and Service to the Real Estate Industry" in 1991, and she became a life member of the Million Dollar Club in 1973.

As Peppy's business flourished, she still managed to find time to be an active member of the community. She has been the director of the Fremont Chamber of Commerce, making her the first woman to hold this position. She has been a long time member of the fund raising committee for the Fremont Boys Club, and a founding member of the Ohlone College Foundation.

Mr. Speaker, I ask you and my colleagues to join me in recognizing Ms. Alberta "Peppy" Mayer for her exceptional professional accomplishments and to congratulate her on being the recipient of the 1995 California Distinguished Realtor Award.

ISRAELI BOMBINGS

HON. SCOTT L. KLUG

OF WISCONSIN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. KLUG. Mr. Speaker, 60 people have been killed over the last 9 days in four suicide-bomb attacks in Israel. We all mourn the loss of nearly 200 people, including 5 Americans, who have died in terrorist incidents since the signing of the Israel-PLO peace agreement at the White House on September 13, 1993. Clearly, the Middle East peace process is now hanging by a thread.

There are some countries whose only interest is in derailing the peace process. The State Department continues to include Syria on its list of countries accused of sponsoring terrorism. Israel is asking the United States to focus on Syria'a connection to the terrorist attacks. Yesterday, Israel's Prime Minister Shimon Peres asked the United States to make clear to Syria that Israel has had enough of guerrilla attacks.

While Syria has expressed the desire to enter into peaceful negotiations with Israel, terrorist groups such as Hamas, continue to keep their headquarters in Damascus. Syria continues to allow weapons and funds from Iran to be used against Israel. If Syria expects to establish a working relationship with the United States, it must cease involvement with terrorist groups and condemn the Israeli bombings.

Syria is not the only external State whose role in the terrorist attacks we should question. Iran, Iraq, and Libya all play a part in the process of working toward peace and their actions should also be closely examined. The peace process cannot progress with countries throughout the Middle East sponsoring terrorism.

Through the Middle East Peace Facilitation Act [MEPFA], the United States is providing $500 million over 5 years in assistance to the Palestinians. Americans have the right to know what the PLO and Chairman Arafat are doing or not doing to discourage these terrorist activities. We need to know that he is truly committed to peace. He shook hands on the White House lawn 2 years ago pledging his commitment, but now he must prove he is a man of his word. He must root up the terrorism that threatens not only the Israeli people, but innocent victims around the world.

I rise today, Mr. Speaker, not only to condemn the horrific acts of terrorism against Israel, but to urge the administration to send a clear, decisive message to those countries that continue to sponsor terrorism. Their permissive behavior on behalf of the terrorist groups Hamas, Jihad, and others, will not be tolerated.

I'm pleased that chairman GILMAN has scheduled hearings on this issue in the International Relations Committee. Now, more than ever, it is crucial for the United States to stand shoulder to shoulder with Israel as we demonstrate our shared commitment to peace.

TRIBUTE TO ARELIS FIGUEROA

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I am truly honored to recognize the perseverance of Arelis Figueroa. She has overcome tremendous odds to pursue self-improvement, and in turn has assisted her family members to realize their innate potential.

Arelis migrated to the United States from Puerto Rico at a very early age, along with her five older sisters. Life was not easy for her family, but despite difficulties, she began her odyssey of self-improvement. Her three children, Arelis, Eric, and Nicole have been tremendous sources of inspiration and pride for her. Arelis, the eldest, is the first to receive a 4 year college degree; Eric is a member of the New York City Police Department, and Nicole, although afflicted with Downs's Syndrome, has distinguished herself in Special Olympic gymnastic events.

Nicole's condition prompted Arelis to learn everything she could about the disease. She decided that learning about the disease and helping others similarly affected would be her calling. As a result, Arelis secured a position with the New York City Board of Education, working with students with special needs at P.S. 72 in Brooklyn.

Through vision, tenacity and a sense of love, Arelis Figueroa has made her world, and the World around her a better place. I am profoundly inspired by her actions and accomplishments, and wish her much success in the future.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND PATENT AND ROYALTY ENFORCEMENT

HON. ROBERT MENENDEZ

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Speaker, in the din of the battle over balancing the budget, reality can be lost in the shouting. If one accepts as an article of faith that it is of utmost importance that the Federal budget must be balanced, then it must follow that the monumental trade deficits must per force of the exact same logic have the same priority.

Upholding the standard of free markets and free trade is not license to do nothing. The price of freedom is not without cost for either personal liberties or economic freedom. It is a constitutional right under the first amendment that our citizens may petition the Government for redress of grievances. It is also a constitutional prerogative under article 1, section 8, clause 8 "To promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times to authors and inventors, the exclusive right of their respective writings and discoveries." With this as a backdrop, I would like to explore a problem that a constituent of mine, Salvatore Monte has raised. Mr. Monte's problems involve fundamental questions about the role of our Federal Government in protecting the constitutional rights of our citizens in the context of international trade.

Sal Monte is the president of Kenrich Petrochemical Inc., a family owned business founded after World War II and operating in Bayonne, NJ, since 1961. Sal Monte is an inventor in the proud New Jersey tradition of Thomas Edison and holds numerous patents. Mr. Monte's firm makes organo-metallic compounds. Organo-metallic compounds act as the molecular glue between organic and inorganic materials in the fabrication of complex substances. These chemical compounds are used in everything from rocket fuels, to ammunition, to tires, to cars, to multilayered printed circuit boards, to photocopiers. Mr. Monte's invention is responsible for the durability of videotape and audio tape used in our homes. Some of these chemicals make products biodegradable, others increase electrical conductivity, still others make steel more anticorrosive, plastics stronger, and tires safer. Toy manufacturers use them because they make thermoplastic processing significantly more energy efficient. There is even a national security concern, since Mr. Monte's chemicals are used to increase the effectiveness and safe handling by our Armed Forces personnel of new generation insensitive ammunition designed to prevent unplanned detonation in Army tanks and aboard Navy ships.

Shortly after his products were introduced in the United States market in 1974, Mr. Monte was approached by officials of Ajinomoto Co. [Ajico] through a trading company named Nitto Shoji, LTD., about licensing his products in Japan. They signed a distributorship agreement on July 30, 1976 to import 46 different patented organometallics manufactured by Kenrich in the United States of America. Nitto Shoji claimed that it was imperative that the products be approved as environmentally safe, and had started the process for the environmental approval of the first Kenrich product to be sold in Japan, Ken-React KR TTS, on July 1, 1976. The KR TTS approval cost Kenrich $125,000. In accordance with the usual Japanese trade position, Ajinomoto officials impressed upon Mr. Monte the need to have a Japanese manufacturing partner to facilitate the environmental approvals, comply with extraordinarily difficult Japanese quality standards, and gain acceptance by Japanese keiretsu, industrial consumers of the product. Ajinomoto is a $20 plus billion food processing and fine chemical firm most noted in southeast Asia as the No. 1 producer of MSG—monosodium glutamate. As a result, on January 28, 1980, 15 Kenrich chemicals were licensed for manufacture by the Ajinomoto Co. for exclusive sale in Japan, Taiwan, and South Korea.

For the next 8 years, the Montes were given polite and respectful treatment. By 1984, they had transferred all of Kenrich's technology to Japanese licensing interests. Mr. Monte began to suspect that Ajinomoto was selling vast quantities of the Kenrich licensed product and underreporting sales to avoid paying royalties. Mr. Monte repeatedly requested sales reports, but only received a carefully contrived semiannual report which diminished in detail with each passing year. There are now over 900 patent applications issued to Japanese companies using the Kenrich products—almost 40 to Canon alone for copier toner, yet the sales are supposedly still under $1,000,000—even though the yen has doubled in value against the dollar during the contract period. After two decades of doing business in Japan, Kenrich is still receiving only a contract minimum of $50,000 a year in royalties.

The coordinated assault on Kenrich would sound like paranoid Japan bashing were there not for the painstaking documentation filling dozens of file boxes, indicating the systematic, elaborate, and devious methods employed to deprive Mr. Monte of his intellectual property rights. Among the many efforts against Kenrich include:

The development of knock-off titanate technology based on Kenrich technology by Ajinomoto, Nippon Soda Inc., Tokuyama Soda Ltd., Mitsui Mining and Smelting Ltd., and Kawaken Fine Chemcial Co., Ltd. The Japanese have used patent flooding as a technique to obfuscate original patented technology, thus making it difficult for the non-Japanese inventor to defend his/her patent rights. Nippon Soda even copied Kenrich's detailed technical literature to explain their Titecoat knock-off product.

An elaborate international exchange of bank securities resulted in the commercial paper of Kenrich being held by Dai-Ichi Kangyo Bank [DKB]. The DKB through CIT, promptly called in Kenrich's loans to precipitate a bankruptcy and gain control of Kenrich's patents used as collateral against the loan.

Extraordinary measures have been taken by Ajinomoto to stack an arbitration panel as required under the 1952 United States-Japanese Arbitration. Moreover, it will require the case to be argued in Japan where patent laws are highly favorable to knock-off products.

Improper recordkeeping and unauthorized sub-licensing by Ajinomoto for the manufacture of the chemicals to companies, such as Junsei Chemical Co., Ltd., and Kawaken Fine Chemicals Co., Ltd., made it impossible for Arthur Andersen Co. to conduct a proper audit under license agreement to determine royalties due Kenrich. The Andersen audit, initiated in October 1992, took 2 years and cost Kenrich $63,252. Andersen was stonewalled by Anjinomoto and hence, the audit was unusable.

Ajinomoto withheld knowledge of patents filed by Japanese companies such as Sony Corp., on such products as videotape, prior to the 1980 license agreement with Kenrich. This concealed the extensive value of Kenrich's technology to Japan's high technology industries.

Patents were filed in 1995 by Mitsubishi Rayon for high performance carbon fiber advanced composites used in aerospace that contained one of Kenrich's chemicals not licensed to Ajinomoto. Kenrich had discontinued manufacturing this product 15 years ago. Who supplied the pirated chemical? It wasn't Kenrich.

I do not believe that Mr. Monte's case is unusual. It shows how defenseless American small business is in international trade and how little the Federal Government does to protect fair trade. We should not resent the coordinated actions of the Japanese Government, banks, and industry, but we should learn from them. Predatory practices are actionable under American law and we must require that the rights of American citizens are freely and fairly insured in the arena of international trade. I intend to ask the U.S. Trade Representative and the U.S. International Trade Commission to launch an official investigation of this matter.

MOBLEY MOURNS HIS NAVY COMMANDER

HON. JACK KINGSTON

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I submit the following story for the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. This story ran in the Glennville Sentinel on January 11, 1996.

MOBLEY MOURNS HIS NAVY COMMANDER

(By Clinton Oliver)

While flags flew at half-mast in honor of Admiral Arleigh Burke, who died last week at 94 in Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland, one Glennville resident was particularly saddened by the passing of this distinguished naval officer. Petty Officer Thurman O. Mobley served with Admiral Burke aboard the U.S.S. Charles Ausburne in the South Pacific during World War II and remembers Burke as a courageous, feisty, and sometimes blustery commander who was highly respected by his men. "This ship is built to fight," Burke once barked to the crew of the Ausburne, "you'd better know how."

The U.S.S. Charles Ausburne was built by Consolidated Steel Corporation of Orange, Texas, and was commissioned November 24, 1942. Mobley boarded the Ausburne in Norfolk, Virginia, in April of 1943, and the next month the ship joined the Pacific Fleet, after passing through the Panama Canal, according to Pentagon records. Mobley and his shipmates of the Ausburne were commended by Admiral William "Bull" Halsey, Commander of Allied Naval Forces in the South Pacific; by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, and by General Douglas MacArthur, Commander of Allied Forces in the Pacific, for action in that theater. They were cited by President Harry S. Truman for action from November 1943 to February 1944.

The Ausburne was Admiral Burk's flagship, and although a number of sailors from Georgia served under Burke on other ships, "I was the only Georgia boy to serve on the same ship with him," Mobley declared. The Ausburne destroyed nine enemy ships and shot down nine aircraft. Mobley and the crew rescued ten survivors of planes forced down at sea and picked up 31 Japanese prisoners from the water, according to Navy records.

Mobley stated that all crew members had two jobs to perform, depending on whether or not the ship was engaged with the enemy—one "combat" job and one "work-a-day" routine job.

Petty Officer Mobley was triggerman on a 20 millimeter artillery piece during combat and a baker at other times. The gun crew had trained by firing at aerial targets on a Pacific island, and once just before an air battle with the Japanese, Mobley was summoned to the bridge of the Ausburne. The officer on the bridge had observed that the Glennville sailor consistently had more hits on aerial targets than any other triggerman. "Mobley," the officer demanded, "we're about to engage the enemy. How do you account for the fact that you have consistently hit more air targets than any triggerman on board?" Mobley quickly recalled his dove-shooting days with a shotgun near Glennville.

"Sir," he retorted, "I keep telling you fellers you're not leading 'em enough." Mr. Mobley was referring to the practice of a hunter aiming slightly ahead of a moving quarry to allow time for the projectile to reach the mark. The officer ordered an appropriate adjustment to the aim-and-fire routine and the change improved the accuracy of the entire crew, Mobley said.

As the ship's baker, Seaman Mobley learned of Admiral Burke's favorite dessert. "About once a month, I baked an apple pie and carried it to his quarters," he said.

After President Eisenhower appointed Admiral Burke Chief of Naval Operations (the top post for a Navy officer), Mobley called his old commander at the Pentagon. "It took me about half a day to get to him," Mobley said, "but they finally put me through." Mobley stated who was calling and congratulated the officer on his high appointment.

"Mobley, Mobley," the admiral mused. "I seem to remember the name, but I can't quite place you."

"I used to be your baker," Mobley informed him.

"APPLE PIE!" the admiral exploded. "You used to bake my apple pies." The two old sailors enjoyed a lengthy visit by telephone. Thereafter, Admiral Burke wrote a short note about once a year to his ex-baker, and always addressed him as "apple pie." The periodic messages ceased about two years ago. Age finally claimed Thurman Mobley's cherished and salty old friend.

During air battles, Japanese pilots routinely held back the last bomb on their aircraft for a suicide dive into allied war ships, slamming into them at about the waterline. "We always made sure we shot down those suicide divers," Mobley said. "We knew if we didn't get them, we were goners for sure." Sometimes downed suicide craft slammed into the ocean so near the Ausburne and with such force that the crash caused a surge of water across the deck that nearly knocked the sailors off their feet, Mobley declared.

At the end of World War II, the U.S.S. Charles Ausburne had steamed a total of 207,000 nautical miles, consumed 10,686,305 gallons of fuel, and visited four continents, and eight ports in the United States. Mobley and his shipmates crossed the International Date Line four times and the equator 16 times. The Ausburne had conducted 32 fueling operations at sea, had gone to General Quarters (complete readiness for battle) 780 times, and had been in three typhoons. Mobley and the Ausburne crew conducted 22 battles against the Japanese Navy in four months.

Petty Officer Thurman O. Mobley was discharged from the U.S. Navy on Thanksgiving Day, 1945. He is retired from the U.S. Postal Service and lives with his wife, Lilla, on Howard Street in Glennville.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. KAREN McCARTHY

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Ms. McCARTHY. Mr. Speaker, due to official business in my district, I was unable to cast votes on Tuesday March 5, and Wednesday March 6. Had I been here, I would have voted as follows: "Yes" on rollcall vote No. 44—H.R. 2778, to provide tax benefits for U.S. troops in Bosnia; "yes" on rollcall vote No. 45—Approval of the Journal; "yes" on rollcall vote No. 46—H.R. 270, the rule for consideration of H.R. 927; "yes" on rollcall note No. 47—H.R. 927, the conference report on the Cuban Liberty and Democratic Solidarity Act.

LEGISLATION TO PROHIBIT IMPORTS INTO THE UNITED STATES OF MEAT PRODUCTS FROM THE EUROPEAN UNION UNTIL CERTAIN UNFAIR TRADE BARRIERS ARE REMOVED

HON. EARL POMEROY

OF NORTH DAKOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing legislation that will put American livestock producers on an equal footing with their European counterparts when it comes to illegal trade barriers. The European Union currently blocks United States beef imports simply because U.S. producers use hormones in the production of the beef. The E.U. also continues to block U.S. pork imports under their so called Third Country Meat Directive claiming that U.S. processing plants do not meet European standards.

These non-tariff trade barriers are in clear violation of the phytosanitary agreements which are part of the GATT. Scientists from around the world have determined that the use of these hormones poses no risk to human health. In 1992, through an exchange of letters, the Europeans agreed that U.S. and E.U. slaughter and processing procedures were essentially identical. The only reason for these bans is to keep U.S. meat out of European markets.

Since 1989, when the hormone ban went into effect, the Europeans have sent over $2 billion worth of meat products to the United States. During the same period. U.S. exports to the E.U. totaled only $342 million. Clearly the Europeans have little incentive to expedite the negotiations to end this unreasonable trade barrier.

The GATT agreement should be an effective tool to remove the hormone ban, but the Europeans have shown little commitment to working out these issues. On January 26 of this year, U.S. Trade Representative Kantor initiated formal action in the World Trade Organization against the E.U. on this issue. The European Parliament responded by voting to keep the ban in place. WTO action may take up to 18 months and the only beneficiaries of this delay are the Europeans.

The USDA has estimated that the loss of these markets costs our cattle producers $100 million per year and our hog producers $60 million. Clearly at a time when U.S. cattle producers are facing rising feed costs and the lowest prices in recent memory these unfair and trade barriers cannot be tolerated.

Just last week North Dakota hog farmers told me that access to the Asian markets following GATT has helped keep the price of pork stable over the last year. Clearly GATT can work to the benefit of American farmers. However, we need to send a strong message to the Europeans that further delay in opening their markets will not be tolerated.

This legislation is simple. It says that as long as the Europeans keep our meat from their markets they will not have access to U.S. markets. They are taking the resolve of their Parliament to the negotiations. The United States should be taking the resolve of Congress to those same meetings. This legislation sends the message that the U.S. Congress is serious about GATT working to open European markets. I urge my colleagues to join me in giving our trade representatives a valuable tool to meet the Europeans on equal footing.

LEGISLATION TO PROHIBIT IMPORTS INTO THE UNITED STATES OF MEAT PRODUCTS FROM THE EUROPEAN UNION UNTIL CERTAIN UNFAIR TRADE BARRIERS ARE REMOVED

HON. TIM JOHNSON

OF SOUTH DAKOTA

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased today to introduce legislation that will prohibit all meat imports from the European Union [EU] unless and until the EU lifts its ban on American beef and eliminates the nontariff trade barrier imposed by their "Third Country Meat Directive [TCD]. The EU ban on beef from cattle treated with hormones was put in place on January 1, 1989. Scientists throughout Europe and the world have repeatedly concluded there is no scientific basis for this ban. In fact, after legal challenges by the British Government in 1987 and the European animal health industry association in 1990, the EU admitted that the ban was introduced for political and economic reasons—to curb the growth of Europe's beef supply rather than to protect public health. The EU ban has resulted in lost American beef sales of nearly $1 billion.

The TCD imposes meat inspection standards on U.S. meat exporting facilities that a wide majority of EU plants do not themselves meet. The United States has the most comprehensive and effective system of food safety management in the world. The TCD is designed and administered strictly to function as trade protection for higher cost, less competitive EU pork production.

The failure of the EU to live up to the 1992 bilateral meat agreement and re-list U.S. beef and pork plants is deeply disturbing. Prior to 1988, over 400 beef and pork plants were certified to export to the EU. Because of the TCD, only a handful of beef and pork plants are currently able to export to the EU. In 1985, the EU was the destination of over 20 percent of U.S. pork exports. Today, U.S. exports to the EU are negligible. The U.S. pork industry conservatively estimates that U.S. producers will lose $60 million in export revenues during 1996 with losses jumping to approximately $157 million per year by the year 2000 as EU tariff rate quotas on pork are phased in. Since January 1, 1989, America has allowed meat imports of $2.1 billion from the EU while U.S. meat exports to the EU totaled only $342 million. At a time when our cattle producers are struggling with the lowest cattle prices in recent memory and beef and pork producers are becoming more reliant on export markets, it is unconscionable to allow stubborn European bureaucrats to insult our cattle and hog producers with these barriers to American beef and pork.

We applaud Secretary Glickman and U.S.T.R. Kantor for initiating action against the EU hormone ban under WTO dispute settlement provisions and for their efforts to open export markets around the world for U.S. meat. However, EU Agriculture Commissioner Fischler has clearly indicated that even if the EU loses the WTO case, which might not be resolved until late 1997, the hormone ban will remain in place.

Although reasonable and prudent negotiation would clearly be preferred to address these trade disputes, our Nation's livestock producers need access to EU markets now. They are demanding a much stronger negotiating tool. My bill will provide a clear and unequivocal message to the EU that further delay will no longer be tolerated. Unless the EU eliminates these unscientific sanitary trade barriers, this legislation will prohibit the entry of all EU meat within 15 days of enactment. Please join me in providing a simple, but very effective negotiating tool to Secretary Glickman and U.S.T.R. Kantor.

BRING BART TO THE AIRPORT

HON. TOM LANTOS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, last week the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Transportation heard testimony regarding funding of mass transit projects across the country. The subcommittee heard from the united bipartisan Bay Area congressional delegation which supports funding the San Francisco Bar Area Rapid Transit [BART] extension to San Francisco International Airport. As you know, this Congress has supported this project over the years, and I am happy to report that BART is now ready to move forward on construction to provide tens of thousands of travelers quick, convenient, and reliable access to the nation's fifth busiest airport.

The BART extension to San Francisco International Airport is a longstanding regional priority with overwhelming and broad support from the public. Voters in San Mateo County have twice approved ballot measures directing local funds and taxes to be used for the airport extension and all but one of the cities impacted by the project have passed resolutions in support of this project. We have fought the hard battles at the local level. We have reached a regional consensus. We are ready to move forward on the most important and necessary transportation link in the San Francisco Bay area.

Mr. Speaker, local officials and residents in the bay area have made the tough choices in planning and providing local financing for the BART extension to SFO Airport. These decisions were made in an open and public access process at the local level and should be supported here in Washington. I would like to urge my colleagues to continue their support of the BART extension to the San Francisco International Airport.

A recent editorial in the San Francisco Chronicle summed up this issue brilliantly. I respectfully request that this editorial be placed in the RECORD for the benefit of my colleagues.

DON'T STOP THIS TRAIN

Bart's plans to reach San Francisco International Airport by the year 2000 have run into two potentially significant adversaries in the nation's capital. One is the airline industry, which has been concerned that the airport might try to raise landing fees or slap on a ticket surcharge to cover its $200 million share.

Although the airline industry carries clout on Capitol Hill, we are confident that Congress will not be swayed by a selfish pitch against a project of such importance. Besides, the industry may eventually realize that this huge step in convenience to its passengers is well worth a relatively modest investment.

A more unsettling development is the effort of a handful of peninsula naysayers to resurrect the battle they clearly lost at the local level. Their testimony before the House Appropriations Transportation subcommittee last week may have given some legislators the impression that the Bay Area is still debating how to best provide mass-transit service to the airport.

And Congress may be reluctant to commit $700 million when the issue remains unsettled.

Well, the matter is settled.

After years of torturous deliberation, there now is an overwhelming consensus on a plan that would put a BART station just outside the International Terminal. It would get at least half the passengers within a five-minute walk to a ticket counter and it would have a light-rail connection to other terminals. It is a good compromise.

It's time to get on with it. Opponents of the airport BART station are living in a dream world if they think that derailing the project will suddenly lead Congress to shift the money over to Cal-Train. The proposed $87 million fiscal 1997 federal contribution to the BART project would almost surely be scooped up by another legislator for another region.

We trust that the subcommittee members, having seen the strong support of six Bay Area members of Congress, will realize that the fighting is finished. This train is on the move.

FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF THE GREEK AMERICAN MONTHLY

HON. WILLIAM J. COYNE

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. COYNE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to The Greek American Monthly on the occasion of the first anniversary of this outstanding publication, and to congratulate my colleague from southwestern Pennsylvania, Congressman RON KLINK, who has been awarded The Greek American Monthly's first annual Hermes Award.

The Greek American Monthly is a periodical dedicated to promoting, preserving, and perpetuating Greek culture, history, and heritage. It also serves as a timely source of information on issues of importance to people of Greek ancestry throughout the world. I am proud to say that The Greek American Monthly is based in Pittsburgh, PA, which is part of my congressional district.

The Greek American Monthly has accomplished a great deal in its first year. In just 1 short year its readership has grown from 2,000 to nearly 30,000, and it has attracted readers from all over the world. It is linking members of the Greek community around the world in a new way. Its focus on content has resulted in a journal filled with important world news and cultural events from around the globe. I anticipate only continued and greater success for The Greek American Monthly in the future as more and more members of the Greek community—and other people in the United States and abroad—become acquainted with this excellent publication. The publisher and staff have produced an outstanding publication.

I also want to congratulate Congressman RON KLINK, who has been awarded The Greek American Monthly's first annual Hermes Award for his promotion of Greek culture and of issues of interest to the Greek-American community. Congressman KLINK, who has Greek forebearers, was chosen for the Hermes Award because he has introduced legislation of great interest to the Greek-American community, and because he has been tireless in his advocacy for issues before Congress that are important to the Greek-American community—issues like the partition of Cyprus and the treatment of ethnic Greeks in Albania.

In closing, I want to congratulate Mr. Gregory C. Pappas, editor and publisher of The Greek American Monthly, and the staff of this fine publication on the first anniversary of its founding, and I want to commend them for selecting Congressman RON KLINK as the first recipient of The Greek American Monthly's annual Hermes Award.

MARIETTA'S "MIRACLE"

HON. NEWT GINGRICH

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. GINGRICH. Mr. Speaker, I encourage my fellow colleagues to read the following editorial from the Marietta Daily Journal which describes the wonderful opportunities Habitat for Humanity has offered many of my constituents. I have volunteered for Habitat in my district and can attest that it is a very rewarding experience to see future homeowners alongside public-spirited citizens. Furthermore, it is a program that combines prayer with practical help.

American-style volunteerism is proven every day by those noble individuals who are willing to give their time to make others' lives better. In the American tradition of volunteerism and charity, I would encourage all of my friends and colleagues in the House to get involved with Habitat in their own communities, as well.

MARIETTA'S "MIRACLE"

Many people lament the plight of the homeless, but leave to others the hard work of housing the less fortunate. Not so those involved with Habitat for Humanity.

Since the establishment of its first Cobb County branch in 1986, Cobb Habitat has built or rehabilitated 54 homes: 22 in Power Springs, 16 in Marietta, nine in Acworth, four in Kennesaw, two in Smyrna and one in Austell.

Now the group is in the process of acquiring 11 properties in one of Cobb's most drug- and crime-ridden neighborhoods. The project has been christened "The Marietta Miracle: Roosevelt Circle Renewal," and is focused on the Roosevelt area, where drug dealers, prostitutes and vacant houses have blighted what was once a fairly typical working-class community and where law-abiding residents sometimes are afraid to leave their houses.

The targeted properties consist of a variety of vacant lots and dilapidated duplexes. Habitat will buy the properties, refurbish the duplexes and build single-family homes on the vacant lots. The upshot is that when the project is complete, up to 18 families will have new homes.

As with all Habitat projects, the new owners will be picked from a pool of qualified families based on need, their willingness to work in a partnership and their ability to repay the 15-year loans used to finance a house. Only those with incomes are considered as prospective owners. Those chosen also must undergo a rigorous interview process and put in 300 hours of "sweat equity" on Habitat construction projects.

"It'll be a big leap of faith for the families that will move into the homes," said Craig Satterlee, Cobb Habitat's executive director. "Our mission is to eliminate poverty housing in Cobb by building new homes and rehabilitating existing homes. There is no place more in need than Roosevelt Circle."

The project is expected to cost $730,000, of which $400,000 already has been pledged by local churches and businesses, including eight Catholic churches, St. Catherine's Episcopal, St. James Episcopal, Home Depot, Crawford & Co., the Cobb Board of Realtors, and students at Kennesaw State College.

"Far more important than the economics is the spirit of giving of yourselves. That's what makes a good community," said U.S. House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-east Cobb, at Saturday's kickoff for the "Marietta Miracle" at First Baptist Church of Marietta, "Habitat doesn't give to the poor—it involves the poor in creating a better life for themselves."

And as Marietta Ward 5 Councilman James Dodd put it: "Other people in the [Roosevelt Circle] community will see these homes and will use them as a model to upgrade theirs."

Hopefully, the Habitat project will have a ripple effect in the community, as its others have so many times before. And hopefully, those ripples will continue to widen.

CITIZEN REPRESENTATIVE ACT OF 1996

HON. EDWARD J. MARKEY

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Citizen Representative Act of 1996.

For years, it has been widely recognized that deep flaws and gaping loopholes in the way campaigns are paid for in America have amplified the importance of well-heeled special interest groups, reduced the clout of small individual contributors, and favored wealthy candidates while effectively silencing the voices of citizens unable to raise the large sums of money needed to mount a campaign for Congress.

Citizens across the country and many here in Congress understand that our system for financing campaigns in this country is broken and needs to be fixed. Skyrocketing campaign costs discourage everyday Americans from running for public office. Small, individual campaign contributions are crowded out by big money contributions from political action committees [PAC's]

I believe the best way to accomplish meaningful campaign finance reform and make Congress more accountable to the public is to encourage congressional candidates to raise more of their campaign funds from small contributions from individual donors.

The bill I am introducing today motivates candidates to rely on small contributions in two primary ways: funds from a voluntary checkoff of Federal tax returns will go toward a Citizen Representative Fund established at the Treasury Department to finance voter communications vouchers for candidates agreeing to observe the bills spending limits; and ceilings imposed on campaign spending from PAC's and large contributions will increase the importance of small donations.

Enacting lobby reform legislation and tightening gift rules have generated momentum we now should harness to pass real, comprehensive campaign finance reform. We have a unique opportunity to invigorate our democratic process, return power to voters across the country, and restore faith in the Congress. We must not let this moment pass.

If we fail to act, we will be preserving a system stacked in favor of wealthy individuals while preventing many potential candidates from getting a seat at the campaign table. Last month, press reports indicated that 11 House candidates each have used at least $100,000 of their own money to finance their 1996 campaigns, and 26 candidates have put at least $50,000 of their personal funds toward their races.

A hefty bank account should not be a prerequisite for running for Congress. That's why the bill I am introducing today restricts to $25,000 personal contributions a candidate can make to his own campaign if the candidate wants to be eligible to receive the benefits provided in the bill.

The bill also tames the powerful influence of PAC's. Last summer, the public interest watchdog group Common Cause released a study indicating that in the first half of the 1995 contributions from PAC's accounted for large chunks of House candidates' total campaign funds. The legislation I am introducing today requires candidates agreeing to the bill's spending caps to limit their expenditures from PAC's to 15 percent of their total spending. That's a maximum of $90,000 from PAC's.

To ensure that voters get the facts about candidates running for House seats, the bill makes participation in two nonpartisan debates a requirement for receiving communications vouchers. Our democracy is fueled by full and open discussions of the important issues facing our Nation, and all candidates should communicate their positions to the voters so that well-informed decisions can be made.

I have long believed that individual citizens should have more of a voice in campaigns for Congress. My bill expands the participation of everyday Americans in political campaigns through the voluntary checkoff and the emphasis on small contributions. I am hopeful that the House Oversight Committee will act on this legislation.

As people around the world strive to build democracies in States where ballots once listed only one choice for seats in a bureaucracy unconcerned with the needs of its own citizens, we need to increase participation in the electoral process here at home to maintain a healthy democratic system that is responsive to all Americans.

HONORING THE LIFE OF ABE LEBEWOHL

HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to one of my constituents and to mourn his tragic and premature death.

New York truly suffered a devastating loss this week with the death of Abe Lebewohl. On Monday, March 4, his life was cut short when a robber shot him twice as he went to the bank to make the daily deposit for his deli.

Mr. Lebewohl founded and owned the Second Avenue Deli where he will always be remembered as a hard worker, a brilliant businessman, an enlightened employer, and a distinguished community leader. A Holocaust survivor, he started the deli in 1954 as a 12-seat diner. After 42 years of hard work, Mr. Lebewohl built it to the current 250-seat restaurant that is know all over the world. Not only did the community lose a wonderful man and a great entrepreneur, but also one of the last links to the historic old Jewish neighborhood of the Lower East Side.

Abe Lebewohl greeted people by name, gave free sandwiches to homeless people or to anyone out of work, and supplies nourishment to workers on strike. He made everyone feel like family, never hesitating to give a helping hand when they were down on their luck.

The Second Avenue Deli has become one of their most popular landmarks in New York City. Almost every day, famous people come to eat and tourists often line up around the block in order to taste one of Abe's sandwiches or his soup. But more than anything, Abe's deli was a part of his community. It was his neighbors, employees, and family who stood outside of the deli on Monday to mourn his passing.

Mr. Speaker, I would ask that my colleagues join me in sending our deepest condolences to Abe's wife, Eleanor, his daughters, his grandchildren, his employees, and his friends on this most devastating loss.

HATRED MARKS PAPER TRAIL

HON. PETER DEUTSCH

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. DEUTSCH. Mr. Speaker, during these political primaries, it is important that the American public has as much information on the candidates as possible. In pursuit of that goal, I am submitting for the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD an article written for the Jerusalem Post on past statements made by Pat Buchanan.

[From The Jerusalem Post, Feb. 23, 1996]

HATRED MARKS PAPER TRAIL

Pat Buchanan's upset victory in the New Hampshire primary on Tuesday has once again focused heightened attention on the man and his words, and on the people surrounding him in his campaign.

When two staffers in two days last week had to step down for questions that were raised over their ties to white supremacists, it came as no surprise to Jews here and in the US who remembered what Buchanan used to say and write, before he toned down his rhetoric when he began running for president in 1992.

It goes back to the 1970s, when what began as a trickle—a snide comment here, a hardline position advocated there—soon started snowballing until, on the eve of the Gulf war in 1990, a mini-war broke out over flagrant and vicious antisemitic comments made by Buchanan.

To recap a few: In 1976, when the Ford administration proposed selling arms to Egypt, Buchanan urged Congress not to "hearken * * * to the counsel of the Jewish lobby and its Washington representative Henry Jackson."

In 1977, when president Jimmy Carter endorsed legislation against the Arab boycott of Israel, Buchanan objected and warned that Israel would be blamed as a result when Americans lost their jobs.

He later maintained that Americans were asking "why the U.S. is siding with three million Israelis instead of 100 million Arabs who have oil."

In 1981, he wrote, "Many Americans are growing bone-weary with carrying the diplomatic, economic and military cost of underwriting Menachem Begin's policies."

Throughout the 1980s, Buchanan exhibited a fiery and indignant pose in a campaign to defend former Nazis, whomever they were and however evil their prior deeds.

As early as 1977 he wrote of Hitler: "Though Hitler was indeed racist and antisemitic to the core, a man who without compunction could commit murder and genocide, he was also an individual of great courage, a soldier's soldier in the Great War, a political organizer of the first rank, a leader steeped in the history of Europe, who possessed oratorical powers that could awe even those who despised him."

From this followed his strong defense of Nazi criminals, and his denunciation of the U.S. Justice Department's Office of Special Investigations, which pursues Nazi criminals: "You've got a great atrocity that occurred 35, 40 years ago * * * Why put millions of dollars [into] investigating that?"

There were other remarks he made about targets of war-crimes allegations, including:

When the U.S. apologized to France for sheltering Klaus Barbie, the "Butcher of Lyon," Buchanan complained: "To what end all this wallowing in the atrocities of a dead regime."

He campaigned against the deportation to the Soviet Union of Karl Linnas, who ran a Nazi death camp in Estonia, when the US Court of Appeals ruled that there was overwhelming evidence of his guilt.

On the isolating of Kurt Waldheim: "The ostracism of Kurt Waldheim [has] an aspect of moral bullying and the singular stench of selective indignation."

And of course, there was his spirited defense of Ivan Demjanjuk and his statement that he could never get a fair trial in Israel.

Alan Ryan Jr., former head of OSI at the Justice Department, said then that "Pat Buchanan is going to bat for any Nazi war criminal in the US," and called him "the spokesman for Nazi war criminals in America. His campaign on behalf of these people is so infused with distortions and misrepresentations of the facts that it's almost impossible to engage in any sort of response. He simply piles lie upon inaccuracy upon surmise up personal attack."

Not content to defend Nazis, Buchanan shifted to questioning aspects of the Holocaust. Gas chambers could not have killed human beings, he wrote, because "in 1988, 97 kids, trapped 400 feet underground in a Washington, DC, tunnel while two locomotives spewed diesel exhaust into the car, emerged unharmed."

And finally, an attempt was made to discredit survivors themselves. "Since the war, 1,600 medical papers have been written on 'The Psychological and Medical Effects of the Concentration Camps on Holocaust Survivors.' This so-called 'Holocaust Survivor Syndrome' involves 'group fantasies of martyrdom and heroics.'"

Writing in the January 1991 issue of Commentary, Joshua Muravchik responded: "What can Buchanan possibly be talking about here? Can be furnish a bibliography of, say, the first 100 of these '1,600 medical papers'? And do quotation marks diminish the sewer-level bigotry of the reference to 'fantasies and martyrdom'?"

He called the Democratic Party the "diapered poodle of * * * the Israeli lobby";

Called the massacre of Palestinians by Lebanese Christians in Sabra and Shatilla the "Rosh Hashana Massacre," and the "the Israel army is looking toward a blackening of its name to rival what happened to the French army in the Dreyfus affair";

Said of the Vietnamese "Boat People": "Can one imagine what a cauldron of boiling rage the Senate would be if—instead of Vietnamese—there were Jews in those boats?"

In protesting the alleged blasphemy of the film "The Last Temptation of Christ," asked: "Would [Jack] Valenti, [chief executive officer of the Motion Picture Association of America] employ his eloquence to defend a film portraying Anne Frank as an oversexed teenager fantasizing at Auschwitz on romancing some SS guards?"

He also chided the New York Times for not criticizing the film strongly enough: "We have a 'newspaper of record' that can sniff out antisemitism in some guy turning down a kosher hot dog at the ballpark."

In the protest over the Catholic convent at Auschwitz, Buchanan wrote on September 24, 1989: "The slumbering giant of Catholicism may be about to awaken. * * * When Cardinal John O'Connor seeks to soothe the always irate Elie Wiesel by reassuring him that 'there are many Catholics who are antisemitic. * * * It's deep within them,' when he declares this 'is not a fight between Catholics and Jews,' he speaks for himself. But not afraid, your eminence; just steps aside, there are bishops and priests ready to assume the role of defender of the faith."

When president George Bush asked Congress to delay for four months the $10 billion in loan guarantees, Buchanan wrote on September 18, 1991: "Even if his veto of the guarantees is overridden, he will have won high marks for courage and exposed Congress for what it has become, a Parliament of Whores incapable of standing up for US national interests, if [the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee] is on the other end of the line."

Perhaps his most outrageous statement came shortly after Iraq's Saddam Hussein invaded Kuwait. On the CNN show "The McLaughlin Group" of August 26, 1990, two months after he made the comment on the same program about Congress being "Israeli-occupied territory," Buchanan made this infamous remark:

"There are only two groups that are beating the drums for war in the Middle East: the Israeli Defense Ministry and its amen corner in the US."

The remark generated an outpouring of condemnation from Jewish groups across America. It was a new kind of charge from Buchanan, one that Anti-Defamation League national director Abraham Foxman said lifted Buchanan's "characteristic anti-Israel rhetoric to new and graver heights."

Later in the program, Buchanan said: "The Israelis want this war desperately because they want the US to destroy the Iraq war machine. They want us to finish them off. They don't care about our relationship with the Arab world."

Refuting the charge of antisemitism, Buchanan said: "Were I expressing such views * * * I wouldn't have lasted 10 minutes in a profession where I have reveled, on and off, for 30 years. The newspapers that carry the Buchanan column don't print hate literature."

The charge of antisemitism, he wrote, "is used to frighten, intimidate, censor and silence; to cut off debate; to so smear men's reputations that no one will listen to them again without saying, 'Say, isn't he an antisemite?'"

Buchanan confessed in that column that, "yes, a change has taken place" in his attitude toward Israel as compared with the time "from June of '67 * * * until I went back into the White House in 1985," a time he claimed to be "an uncritical apologist for Israel, a Begin man all the way, defending everything from the attack on the Iraqi reactor to the invasion of Lebanon. I thought they were terrific friends.

"And yes, a change has taken place. For many reasons.

"Among them: The manipulation of the traitor Jonathan Pollard to systematically loot the secrets of the most generous friend Israel will ever have. The gratuitous brutality against Palestinian old men, women, teenagers and children. The Good Friday land grab at the Church of the Holy Sepulcher in Jerusalem. The shipment of cluster bombs to the Stalinist Mengistu regime in Ethiopia. The caustic cutting cracks about my church and the popes from both Israel and its amen corner in the US."

Foxman issued a statement saying, "While Buchanan's attack on Jews and Israel are nothing new, they appear to be an obsession. He is obsessed with Jonathan Pollard, but not with the Walker spy ring. Obsessed with the deaths of Palestinians who are waging war on the Jewish state, but not with the cold-blooded mustard-gas massacre of 5,000 Iraqi Kurds by Saddam Hussein. He dismisses the murder of millions of Jews during the Holocaust but derides the Office of Special Investigations for pursuing Nazi war criminals.

"He claims that the newspapers that carry his column 'do not print hate literature.' True, they rarely do. But today, every newspaper which ran Pat Buchanan crossed that boundary."

Among the papers carrying his column that day was the New York Post. In an unprecedented display of criticism, an editorial by editorial editor Eric Breindel, appearing opposite Buchanan's column, cited his previous antisemitic remarks and innuendos, and explained why the paper felt it had to publicly distance itself from one of its own regular columnists:

"What concerns us is Buchanan's attitude toward Jews as a group. When homosexual activists demonstrated against John Cardinal O'Connor at St. Patrick's Cathedral, desecrating that sacred place, Buchanan wrote a blistering column denouncing the demonstration. Indeed, the condemnation, in this instance, was widespread.

"But only Buchanan managed, somehow, to drag Jews into the discussion. He chided the New York Times for relegating its news story on the St. Patrick's incident to Page B3. And he asked rhetorically whether the Times would have been so restrained 'had a synagogue been so desecrated.'

"How did synagogues enter the picture? Was it impossible for Buchanan to write a column about the sacrilege at St. Patrick's Cathedral without a snide reference to synagogues?"

It concluded: "When it comes to Jews as a group—not Israel, not US-Israeli relations, not individual Jews—Buchanan betrays an all-too-familiar-hostility." A month later on "the McLaughlin Group," Buchanan lashed back at the ADL, saying the organization, in a "pre-planned, orchestrated smear campaign," was calling newspapers around the country and "threatening them" if they didn't cease publications of his columns, which was being carried by 180 newspapers.

The ADL denied calling "a single editor to request the removal of Buchanan's column, nor would we. Buchanan knows that, and he knows that league is against censorship of any kind." Buchanan, Foxman said, "employed the same 'big lie' tactics perfected by the Nazis during World War II."

Buchanan continued his Israel-bashing after the Gulf war. On March 13, 1991, he wrote: "Israel is not Syria, she is not Iraq, she is not Iran. But she is not our 'strategic asset' either.

"As the Gulf war demonstrated, she is a strategic albatross draped around the neck of the US."

The New Republic, on October 15, 1990, wrote: "The virulence of Buchanan's comments on the Jews, the indifference to evidence, the inflamed rhetoric, the rich conspiratorial imagination, the mystical certainty of rightness, the appetite for enemies, are not characteristic only of his opinions about Israel and the Jews. He is a connoisseur of intolerance. It is proof of the tolerance of America, if proof is needed, that this disgraceful man ranges through the corridors of power and lives in our midst as a star."

When his campaign for the 1992 election got under way, Buchanan's rhetoric softened, and continued in that manner while he waited to run again this year.

"He's a different person today in terms of what he's saying," Foxman said yesterday. "The language is a lot different. He used to speak of Christian values, Christian America. Now it's Judaio-Christian values. But the baggage of the past is still with him. He has not apologized for his anti-Israel, antisemitic and Holocaust-denial statements, he has not retracted them and he has not repudiated them."

The Jewish community, Foxman said, "is concerned, and will be concerned, but there is no panic yet."

He said he didn't think "a racist will be able to maintain the support of the mainstream," but the problem so far has been that "the media has not asked the questions yet. He has not been challenged. If he moves into the mainstream, the media will seriously challenge him, and then will see the response of the American public."

GEORGIA HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES PASSES H.R. 850

HON. MAC COLLINS

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. COLLINS of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, the Georgia House of Representatives passed a resolution asking the United States Congress to reevaluate the sale of the Southeastern Power Administration [SEPA].

I submit Georgia house resolution 850 for the Congress' careful consideration.

GEORGIA HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES RESOLUTION 850

H.R. No. 850—By: Representatives McCall of the 90th, Powell of the 23rd, Hanner of the 159th, Reaves of the 178th, Channell of the 111th and others

A RESOLUTION

Urging the United States Congress to reject the proposal to sell the facilities used to generate electric power marketed by the Southeastern Power Administration; and for other purposes.

WHEREAS, a proposal has been made to the United States Congress to sell facilities used by the Southeastern Power Administration (SEPA) which is headquartered in Elbert County, Georgia; and

WHEREAS, these facilities, which include nine hydroelectric dams, provide electric power and reservoirs for Georgia; and

WHEREAS, all of these facilities, operated by the United States Army Corps of Engineers, also provide the public and needed fish and wildlife resources, municipal, industrial, and agricultural water supplies, flood control, reservoir, and downstream recreational uses, and river water level regulation; and

WHEREAS, such proposed sale would give too little assurance that these assets will be administered with due consideration to the purposes of the facilities not related to power production, such as water supply, flood control, navigation, recreation, and environmental protection; and

WHEREAS, the revenue from the electricity generated by the hydroelectric dams exceeds the retirement obligations of the construction bonds and costs of operation and maintenance for these facilities; and

WHEREAS, many Georgians served by these facilities could likely experience significant rate increases in electricity and water as a result of this sale.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES that the members of this body urge the United States Congress to reevaluate the negative impacts of this proposal and avoid any transfer of federal dams, resources, turbines, generators, transmission lines, and related power marketing association facilities.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Clerk of the House of Representatives is authorized and directed to transmit an appropriate copy of this resolution to the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the presiding officer of the United States Senate, and members of the Georgia congressional delegation.

IN HOUSE, Read and Adopted February 2, 1996.

ROBERT E. RIVERS, JR.,
Clerk.

TRIBUTE TO RABBI MORTON F. YOLKUT

HON. ROBERT A. BORSKI

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. BORSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Morton F. Yolkut, who will become the new rabbi of the Shaare Shamayim-Beth Judah synagogue in northeast Philadelphia.

Rabbi Morton Yolkut was born in St. Louis, MO, and was ordained by the Hebrew Theological College of Skokie, IL. He holds a Bachelor of Arts cum laude degree from Roosevelt University in Chicago and a Master of Arts in American history from Northwestern University.

Prior to coming to Shaare Shamayin-Beth Judah, Rabbi Yolkut served as rabbi of Congregation B'nai David in Southfield, MI for 18 years. He also served as rabbi of Congregation Anshe Kanasses Israel in Chicago for 5 years. In Michigan, he served as vice president of the Michigan Board of Rabbis and was the Orthodox columnist for the Detroit Jewish News. Rabbi Yolkut also served on the Chaplaincy Commission of Sinai Hospital in Detroit and delivered papers on Jewish medical ethics to physicians and staff at local hospitals and conferences.

On a national level, Rabbi Yolkut is a member of the Rabbinical Council of America and an active member of the Federation of Traditional Rabbis. He serves on the national Rabbinic Cabinets of State of Israel Bonds, the United Jewish Appeal, the ORT Committee and the Jewish National Fund.

I am pleased to join the more than 700 families that comprise the Shaare Shamayim-Beth Judah congregation in welcoming Rabbi Yolkut to the Northeast Philadelphia Jewish community. I am sure he will serve his synagogue and his community with honor and distinction.

HONORING BOYS AND GIRLS CLUBS

HON. STENY H. HOYER

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the Boys and Girls Clubs of America, an organization which for years has been instrumental in the development of America's youth.

Through an array of programs, an expert staff, and a dedicated corps of volunteers, boys and girls clubs provide services to over 2 million children throughout this country. In doing so, boys and girls clubs instill in our Nation's children sound character and superior values. They provide a foundation from which the youth of today may become the leaders of tomorrow.

The future of America's children, however, remains precarious. In our society, children are confronted with the difficult task of overcoming many obstacles which threaten their development. Drugs and alcohol are ever present. Crime and violence are tragically abundant. Yet, Boys and Girls Clubs of America continued to steer children along the path of opportunity, hope, and success. For this I commend them. Their work is indeed a testament to what's right with America.

On September 20, 1995, Mr. Arnold Burns delivered remarks before a congressional breakfast which honored the Boys and Girls Clubs' Youth of the Year finalist. His comments were clearly indicative of the boys and girls clubs' commitment to serving our country's children. In recognition of this outstanding service, I respectfully submit that his remarks be entered into the RECORD.

1995 CONGRESSIONAL BREAKFAST

(By Senator Thurmond)

Representative Steny Hoyer, Mr. George Grune, the Chairman of the Board, Mr. Robbie Callaway, the Senior Vice President, Melvin Laird, Arnold Burns, one of the outstanding lawyers of this nation, Judge Freeh, all of the distinguished guests, and ladies and gentlemen, I'm very honored to be here on this occasion. Now, as a Senator, there are a lot of events you are asked to attend. I'm always pleased to attend this breakfast. It's the twelfth year.

I'm a strong believer in the Boys & Girls Clubs of America. There's no more important resource than our children. Boys & Girls Clubs of America work to help protect and promote that resource. This is an organization that is making a difference in the lives of tens of thousands of at risk teens. It provides parks and recreational activities, a safe haven from the mean streets, teaches kids the importance of work and responsibility, works to get kids into schools, into jobs, off welfare roles, out of public housing and away from the temptations of a life of crime.

The Boys & Girls Clubs of America is an organization on the move, serving more children each year. Thirteen years ago, they served approximately one million kids. This year, they are serving more than 2.2 million boys and girls. More than 1,700 clubs are in the United States. Last year, they averaged an opening of one new club every three days. This is a group that seeks continued growth. By the year 2001, the Boys & Girls Clubs of America aims to have 1,000 new clubs, 1 million new members, over 3 million kids involved in productive activities.

The Boys & Girls Clubs of America is one of the most effective organizations in the nation for supporting our children. It is an organization worthy of the support of everyone in this room. As members of Congress, we are in the position to help the Boys & Girls Clubs and our children. We can support legislation that is beneficial to the Boys & Girls Clubs. One example is the current crime bill. The Boys & Girls Clubs of America is seeking 100 million dollars out of the crime bill over the next five years. The Board of Directors of the Boys & Girls Clubs will match that 100 million from the crime bill. That is 200 million dollars pumped directly into the future of our nation's children.

By attending this breakfast, each of you is demonstrating your support for a worthwhile cause. I urge you to continue to help the Boys & Girls Clubs of America. You can do nothing more worthy. We are proud of the Boys & Girls Clubs of America and we're going to keep on working to make it bigger and stronger every year. Good luck, God bless you and God bless the Boys & Girls Clubs of America and God bless our country.

CONGRESSMAN STENY HOYER

One problem with the Strom and Steny show is that I have to follow Strom Thurmond. Thurmond and Hoyer, that sounds like a good name for a firm at some point in time. Strom's show has been running a lot longer than mine, as you know, but I'm always amazed at the energy, his commitment and the verve that he brings to life and the endeavors which he undertakes. And Senator, I want you to know what an honor and privilege it is to co-chair this breakfast on a continuing basis with you. George Grune, your leadership is critically important. General Burns, you've seen General Burns up here, he looks a lot like Colin Powell. I asked him if he was running for President. He's got those four stars on his lapel, here. I'm sure it's got to have something to do with that. He is outranked, of course, at his table by Secretary Laird and the Secretary is keeping him in line, luckily, so they'll be peaceful. Pete Silas, thank you for all you've done and your leadership. We look forward to working with you on a continuing basis. My friend, Robbie Callaway. I think we ought to give Robbie Callaway a big round of applause for the outstanding leadership he brings to this effort on a regular basis. Ken Gordon is here today, too.

Six or seven of the top law enforcement officials in our nation are here. We have Louis Freeh and a group of his distinguished colleagues. They're the ones who lock up and help convict those who break the laws in our country, to keep our communities and streets and schools safe. That's their job. We ask them to do that. They're people that sometimes themselves risk their life and limb to do so. They're here this morning and I reflect on why and what message that brings us. They're here because unless parents and Boys & Girls Clubs leaders and other youth leaders all over this country do their job, they know they can't lock up enough people. God bless them and you ladies and gentlemen of the Boys & Girls Club, God bless you. Senator Thurmond is correct because you do God's work.

This is the first line of defense. This is the first line in a battle we all must wage if we are to stop the crime and the violence and the drugs from taking over our streets—our children. And that, ladies and gentlemen is what it's all about.

I am very, very proud to be here with two people who symbolize what is the first line and the best line and ultimately the line that will get us to where we need to be—two parents who all America, and indeed all the world applauded just a few days ago.

Lou Gehrig had the kind of character that all the world would admire. Let us thank God that his record was equaled and surpassed by another individual who had the character of which we can all be proud and say, "He was worthy of Lou Gehrig". But, why was it so? It was so because Vi and Cal Ripken Sr. gave him the leadership and the character and the understanding that gave him the will and the strength of character to persevere in the face of pain, the face of frustration, the face of being tired. We all get tired. Cal Ripken, Jr. rose and he said, effectively, "My Dad and Mom said to go to work every day and do the best you can." Is there a more powerful, potent message to be given to young people than that message? God bless Vi and Cal Ripken, Sr. We're proud of you and proud of what you've done. By the way, they're from Maryland.

I know if you'll allow me four more minutes, I will close with this. I hope all of you have read the books left for you. There is a young woman sitting at my table who is typical of all of the young people we come here today to honor. She's a success story. Not just the kind of success story we read about every day, but also a success story of the Boys & Girls Clubs of America. She's from Dallas. She's a young woman. She's an African American woman and a true success story. Read her quote. She says, "I am proud to tell my story. One of struggle and hardship, but also one of triumph and achievement." LaWanda Jones, that's what it's all about because, there are a lot of young people who don't have a Vi and Cal to lift them up, to nurture them, to protect them, to give them the kind of internal mechanism and compass that they need to succeed.

And so, as Todd Green said, one word came to mind when he thinks of Boys & Girls Clubs, and that's "family * * * family". All of us are extended family for an awful lot of young people who need the kind of nurturing and caring and courage given by Cal and Vi to Cal, Jr. Each of you in this room is a part of that caring family of America that ultimately will be the difference. Not the government, it won't happen in government. Government can help. I am one who believes that government needs to be a partner. I'm one who believes that we need to marshall our resources in the form of, yes, paying taxes and applying those to good efforts. But, in the final analysis, we will not solve the problems of making sure America's future is secure and the security of our young people is assured if it's not through our families and through us, individually, caring for our young people. That's what Boys & Girls Clubs of America do. Brooke Kersey said, "In good times and bad times, the Boys & Girls Clubs have been my life line." You do God's work. I am proud to be a part of all of you. Thank you.

"CAPTAIN" ARNOLD I. BURNS

Good morning. Thank you very much for your kind invitation. I'm delighted to be here with the distinguished members of law enforcement community mentioned by Congressman Hoyer.

I've come today to make some important arrests. I've come to arrest crime and I've come to arrest violence, to arrest the drug epidemic, to arrest teenage pregnancies, to arrest alcoholism, to arrest youth gangs. One thing responsible people in the law enforcement business have come to know, and know very well, and Steny made this point, and that is that law enforcement alone cannot solve our societal problems. We have come to believe it and to espouse the old adage that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. We know that in order to make our streets safer and more secure, we must work with organizations such as Boys & Girls Clubs of America.

We need more programs for the young people of this nation of ours—programs like the tried and proven initiatives that have earned Boys & Girls Clubs the reputation as the positive place for kids. These programs help young people to resist the peer and other pressures that lead to substance abuse, to say "no" to drugs, "no" to alcohol, to say "no" to teenage premature sex and to say "no" to gangs.

We need more Boys & Girls Clubs which keep kids coming back day after day and year after year under professional, adult supervision to learn how to get up in the morning, to show up on time for an interview, to find employment, to develop good work habits and to become a reliable and important part of the work force. Boys & Girls Clubs of America programs literally save hundreds of thousands of kids from harm and destruction each year. It is these programs that keep kids from harm and destruction each year. It is these programs that keep kids out of our courtrooms and out of jail. It is these programs that prepare kids to become productive and participating citizens in the mainstream of our society. It is these programs which makes our kids producers of tax dollars and not consumers of tax dollars as wards of the State or as welfare participants. Boys & Girls Clubs of America save billions of dollars, multi-billions of dollars of our tax dollars, because the cost of prevention pales beside the cost of cure, particularly as the cure rehabilitation so rarely works.

So, my department, today, is issuing an APB—an all points bulletin—to the 1680 boys & girls clubs facilities across our nation—reach out—reach out for more kids. Ten years ago, boys & girls clubs served 1,000,000 kids. Today, over 2,220,000 kids. Tomorrow—within the next few years—3,000,000 kids. No alibis.

We in law enforcement will continue to investigate, apprehend, prosecute, convict and incarcerate those who slip through the prevention net. We would like—no, we need, no, we must have your help—your continued top flight work, to cut potential miscreants off at the pass and bypass the criminal justice process entirely by opting for good and productive citizenship early. I close by congratulating our "Youth of the Year" finalists: Jason Reese, Russell Roberson, Fernando Pantoja, Michael Smith and Michael Lampkins. Each of them personifies the success boys and girls clubs can achieve in providing youngsters with a real alternative to life on the streets.

We will continue our work, you continue yours—ours must be a partnership, a collaboration. Together, we can make America a better place for all.

THE PLO MUST TAKE ACTION

HON. ROBERT E. ANDREWS

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, as a country, we can express nothing but outrage at the recent events in Israel. The cowardice of the Hamas terrorists, who attack children dressed in costume for the Purim holiday, is hard for any sane individual to grasp. The United States cannot let such blatantly evil acts against humanity go unanswered.

During Purim, Jews throughout the world celebrate freedom from the tyranny and oppression imposed by Haman, a villain of the worst magnitude. Jewish tradition suggests that joyous holidays be celebrated even during difficult and trying times. These are indeed trying times for the people of Israel, and people who support freedom and democracy throughout the world. While Jews celebrate ancient freedom from Haman's oppression, they know that such terror lives on in the form of Hamas.

Under the Gaza-Jericho agreement of 1994, signed by the late Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and PLO chairman Yasser Arafat, Israel and the PLO must take all measures necessary in order to prevent acts of terrorism, crime, and hostilities directed against each other, and shall take legal measures against offenders. However, while Yasser Arafat has promised to outlaw Hamas, he has failed to shut down their training camps or confiscate their weapons. His lack of action raise serious questions about Mr. Arafat's commitment to peace.

It is unrealistic to expect the peace efforts to go forward, or for the United States to continue with its support, without Yasser Arafat and the PLO taking concrete steps toward bringing the perpetrators of these crimes to justice. The United States has a vital interest in stability in the Mideast, as well as in the protection of Americans in the area. Last year Alisa Flatow, a student from New Jersey was killed in a terrorist attack. In the past week, Matt Eisenfeld from New Jersey and his fiancée, Sara Duker, were also killed. We must use every available resource and avenue of influence to protect our citizens and ensure that the killing stops. Likewise, the Israeli Government must use any necessary force to stop and prevent any future attacks. No peace will ever be achieved until both sides are committed to it. The PLO must eliminate Hamas, and turn over the perpetrators of these crimes, if they are to live up to that commitment.

12-YEAR-OLD HAS POEM PUBLISHED

HON. E de la GARZA

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. DE LA GARZA. Mr. Speaker, I would like to share with you and all of my House colleagues a poem written by Ericka L. Williams, the 12-year-old daughter of one of my constituents. Ericka's poem has been selected for inclusion in the latest edition of the Anthology of Poetry by Young Americans.

It is indeed quite an honor, and I want to take this occasion to congratulate her on this achievement.

LIFE

Life doesn't always go the way you wish it would, It goes the way God thinks it should.
Some people have everything. Some people have nothing.
Some people live in mansions way up in the hills, some people lie in trash cans way down in the city.
Some people sit around wondering what to do with their money,
Some people sit around worrying where to get money.
Some people stand around on street corners begging for money to get food so they won't starve.
Some people sit at a table for two at a very expensive Chinese restaurant.
Some people sit about wondering what life is all about,
While some people just don't care.

DR. HAING S. NGOR, A CAMBODIAN HERO WHOSE SPIRIT AND DEVOTION LIVE ON

HON. STEPHEN HORN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 7, 1996

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a fallen hero who exemplified the true meaning of courage and devotion: Dr. Haing S. Ngor (1940–96)—whose time, money, fame, and heart were dedicated to serving the people of Cambodia.

The world knows Dr. Ngor for his brilliant acting success. But his Academy Award for his stirring portrayal of photojournalist Dith Pran in "The Killing Fields," was eclipsed by his commitment to his fellow Cambodians, here and in Southeast Asia.

Dr. Ngor escaped from the horrors of Pol Pot and the Khmer Rouge with a strong sense of duty toward his fellow Cambodians. He knew it was his responsibility to tell the world of the tragedies that had befallen his country during the war and to support those who had survived. Dr. Ngor made this the focus of his life.

Dr. Ngor's quiet beginnings did not foretell of the worldwide respect he would achieve in later life. He was born in Samrong Young, a small village south of Phnom Penh where his father owned the local lumber mill, and his mother ran a small store. His parents instilled in him the devotion to family, nation, and justice that he carried to his death.

In Cambodia, Dr. Ngor attended medical school and became a physician. Then the horrors of the Pol Pot regime began. Before his escape to Los Angeles, he was to lose his loved ones, including his pregnant wife, and to suffer starvation and mutilation at the hands of the Khmer Rouge.

In Los Angeles, he dedicated himself to the support of the Cambodian people. He raised funds, opened two orphanages in Cambodia, and frequently traveled to his homeland to bring supplies and food to the refugees there. Dr. Ngor lobbied hard to bring Pol Pot and the Khmer Rouge to justice in an international tribunal.

An assassin's bullet may have ended Dr. Ngor's life, but it will not kill his spirit. He will remain in our hearts as an inspiration in the fight against oppression and injustice. We will continue Dr. Ngor's fight.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Friday, March 8, 1996

The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore [Mr. NETHERCUTT].

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

WASHINGTON, DC,
March 8, 1996.

I hereby designate the Honorable GEORGE R. NETHERCUTT, Jr., to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

NEWT GINGRICH,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

With thanksgiving for the bounteous gifts that touch our lives and for the grace and peace with which You enhance our very beings, we pause in their brief moment to laud Your name and offer gratitude for Your benevolence. May Your abiding spirit, O God, be with us and every person in the good times and bad, in our laughter and in our tears, in our joy and in our sorrows, in our public ambitions and in our private petitions, so that we will be Your people and be known as good stewards of the gift of life. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. NETHERCUTT). The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. MONTGOMERY] come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. MONTGOMERY led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 1561, FOREIGN RELATIONS AUTHORIZATION ACT, FISCAL YEARS 1996 AND 1997

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (H.R. 1561) to consolidate the foreign affairs agencies of the United States; to authorize appropriations for the Department of State and related agencies for fiscal years 1996 and 1997; to responsibly reduce the authorizations of appropriations for United States foreign assistance programs for fiscal years 1996 and 1997, and for other purposes:

CONFERENCE REPORT (H. REPT. 104-478)

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 1561), to consolidate the foreign affairs agencies of the United States; to authorize appropriations for the Department of State and related agencies for fiscal years 1996 and 1997; to responsibly reduce the authorizations of appropriations for United States foreign assistance programs for fiscal years 1996 and 1997, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment, insert the following:

DIVISION A—CONSOLIDATION OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS AGENCIES

TITLE I—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 101. SHORT TITLE.

This division may be cited as the "Foreign Affairs Agencies Consolidation Act of 1996".

SEC. 102. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) With the end of the Cold War, the international challenges facing the United States have changed, but the fundamental national interests of the United States have not. The security, economic, and humanitarian interests of the United States require continued United States engagement in international affairs. The leading role of the United States in world affairs will be as important in the twenty-first century as it has been in the twentieth.

(2) The United States budget deficit requires that the foreign as well as the domestic programs and activities of the United States be carefully reviewed for potential savings. Wherever possible, foreign programs and activities must be streamlined, managed more efficiently, and adapted to the requirements of the post-Cold War era.

(3) In order to downsize the foreign programs and activities of the United States without jeopardizing United States interests, strong and effective leadership will be required. As the official principally responsible for the conduct of foreign policy, the Secretary of State must have the authority to allocate efficiently the resources within the international affairs budget. As a first step in the downsizing process, the proliferation of foreign affairs agencies that occurred during the Cold War must be reversed, and the functions of these agencies must be restored to the Secretary of State.

(4) A streamlined and reorganized foreign affairs structure under the strengthened leadership of the Secretary of State can more effectively promote the international interests of the United States in the next century than the existing structure.

SEC. 103. PURPOSES.

The purposes of this division are—

(1) to consolidate and reinvent the foreign affairs agencies of the United States within the Department of State;

(2) to assist congressional efforts to balance the Federal budget and reduce the Federal debt;

(3) to provide for the reorganization of the Department of State to maximize the efficient use of resources, eliminate redundancy in functions, effect budget savings, and improve the management of the Department of State;

(4) to ensure that the United States maintains adequate representation abroad within budgetary restraints;

(5) to ensure that programs critical to the promotion of United States national interests be maintained;

(6) to encourage United States foreign affairs agencies to maintain a high percentage of the best qualified, most competent United States citizens serving in the United States Government while downsizing significantly the total number of people employed by such agencies;

(7) to strengthen—

(A) the coordination of United States foreign policy; and

(B) the leading role of the Secretary of State in the formulation and articulation of United States foreign policy; and

(8) to abolish, not later than March 1, 1997, the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, the United States Information Agency, the United States International Development Cooperation Agency, and the Agency for International Development.

SEC. 104. DEFINITIONS.

The following terms have the following meanings for the purposes of this division:

(1) The term "ACDA" means the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

(2) The term "AID" means the Agency for International Development.

(3) The term "appropriate congressional committees" means the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate.

(4) The term "Department" means the Department of State.

(5) The term "Federal agency" has the meaning given to the term "agency" by section 551(1) of title 5, United States Code.

(6) The term "function" means any duty, obligation, power, authority, responsibility, right, privilege, activity, or program.

(7) The term "office" includes any office, administration, agency, institute, unit, organizational entity, or component thereof.

(8) The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of State.

(9) The term "USIA" means the United States Information Agency.

TITLE II—UNITED STATES ARMS CONTROL AND DISARMAMENT AGENCY

CHAPTER 1—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 201. EFFECTIVE DATE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (b), this title, and the amendments made by this title, shall take effect on the earlier of—

(1) March 1, 1997; or

(2) the date of abolition of the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency pursuant to the reorganization plan described in section 601.

(b) EXCEPTION.—This title shall not take effect if the President waives the applicability of this title pursuant to section 602.

CHAPTER 2—ABOLITION OF UNITED STATES ARMS CONTROL AND DISARMAMENT AGENCY AND TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

SEC. 211. ABOLITION OF UNITED STATES ARMS CONTROL AND DISARMAMENT AGENCY.

The United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency is abolished.

SEC. 212. TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO SECRETARY OF STATE.

There are transferred to the Secretary of State all functions of the Director of the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and all functions of the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and any office or component of such agency under any statute, reorganization plan, Executive order, or other provision of law as of the day before the effective date of this title, except as otherwise provided in this division.

SEC. 213. COORDINATOR FOR ARMS CONTROL AND DISARMAMENT.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF COORDINATOR FOR ARMS CONTROL AND DISARMAMENT.—Section 1 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2651a) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (e) as subsection (f); and

(2) by inserting after subsection (d) the following new subsection (e):

"(e) COORDINATOR FOR ARMS CONTROL AND DISARMAMENT.—(1) There shall be within the office of the Secretary of State a Coordinator for Arms Control and Disarmament (hereafter in this subsection referred to as the 'Coordinator)' who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Coordinator shall report directly to the Secretary of State.

"(2)(A) The Coordinator shall perform such duties and exercise such power as the Secretary of State shall prescribe.

"(B) The Coordinator shall be responsible for arms control and disarmament matters. The Coordinator shall head the Bureau of Arms Control and Disarmament.

"(3) The Coordinator shall have the rank and status of Ambassador-at-Large. The Coordinator shall be compensated at the annual rate of basic pay in effect for a position at level IV of the Executive Schedule under section 5314 of title 5, United States Code, or, if the Coordinator is appointed from the Foreign Service, the annual rate of pay which the individual last received under the Foreign Service Schedule, whichever is greater.".

(b) PARTICIPATION IN MEETINGS OF NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL.—Section 101 of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 402) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(i) The Coordinator for Arms Control and Disarmament may, in the role of advisor to the National Security Council on arms control and disarmament matters, and subject to the direction of the President, attend and participate in meetings of the National Security Council.".

CHAPTER 3—CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

SEC. 221. REFERENCES.

Any reference in any statute, reorganization plan, Executive order, regulation, agreement, determination, or other official document or proceeding to—

(1) the Director of the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, or any other officer or employee of the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, shall be deemed to refer to the Secretary of State; and

(b) AMENDMENTS TO INSPECTOR GENERAL ACT OF 1978.—Section 11 of the Inspector General Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. App.) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by striking ", the Office of Personnel Management or the United States Information Agency" and inserting "or the Office of Personnel Management"; and

(2) in paragraph (2), by striking "the United States Information Agency,".

(c) EXECUTIVE SCHEDULE.—Section 5315 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking the following:

"Inspector General, United States Information Agency.".

(d) AMENDMENTS TO PUBLIC LAW 103–236.—Subsections (i) and (j) of section 308 of Public Law 103–236 are amended by striking "Inspector General of the United States Information Agency" each place it appears and inserting "Inspector General for the Department of State".

(e) TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS.—There are transferred to the Office of the Inspector General of the Department of State the functions that the Office of Inspector General of the United States Information Agency exercised before the effective date of this title (including all related functions of the Inspector General of the United States Information Agency).

(f) TRANSFER AND ALLOCATIONS OF APPROPRIATIONS AND PERSONNEL.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget, in consultation with the Secretary of State, is authorized to make such incidental dispositions of personnel, assets, liabilities, grants, contracts, property, records, and unexpended balances of appropriations, authorizations, allocations, and other funds held, used, arising from, available to, or to be made available in connection with such functions, as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section.

(g) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This section, and the amendments made by this section, shall take effect on the earlier of—

(1) March 1, 1997; or

(2) the date of the abolition of the United States Information Agency pursuant to the reorganization plan described in section 601.

TITLE VI—TRANSITION

CHAPTER 1—REORGANIZATION PLAN AND WAIVER

SEC. 601. REORGANIZATION PLAN.

(a) SUBMISSION OF PLAN.—Not later than October 1, 1996, the President shall, in consultation with the Secretary and the heads of the agencies covered under subsection (b), transmit to the appropriate congressional committees a reorganization plan providing for—

(1) the abolition of each such agency in accordance with this division not later than March 1, 1997;

(2) the termination of functions of each such agency that would be redundant if transferred to the Department, and the separation from service of employees of each such agency not otherwise provided for in the plan;

(3) the transfer to the Department of the functions and personnel of each such agency consistent with the provisions of this division; and

(4) the consolidation, reorganization, and streamlining of the Department upon the transfer of such functions and personnel in order to carry out such functions.

(b) COVERED AGENCIES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the agencies covered under this subsection are the following:

(A) The United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

(B) The United States Information Agency.

(C) The Agency for International Development (including the United States International Development Cooperation Agency).

(2) EXCEPTION.—The President may exclude up to two of the agencies set forth in paragraph (1) from consideration as agencies covered under this subsection. The President shall exclude such agency or agencies by submitting a waiver with respect to such agencies in accordance with section 602.

(c) PLAN ELEMENTS.—The plan transmitted under subsection (a) shall—

(1) identify the functions of each covered agency that will be transferred to the Department under the plan;

(2) identify the personnel and positions of each such agency (including civil service personnel, Foreign Service personnel, and detailees) that will be transferred to the Department, separated from service with such agency, or eliminated under the plan, and set forth a schedule for such transfers, separations, and terminations;

(3) identify the personnel and positions of the Department (including civil service personnel, Foreign Service personnel, and detailees) that will be transferred within the Department, separated from service with the Department, or eliminated under the plan, and set forth a schedule for such transfers, separations, and terminations;

(4) specify the consolidations and reorganization of functions of the Department that will be required under the plan in order to permit the Department to carry out the functions transferred to the Department under the plan;

(5) specify the funds available to each such agency that will be transferred to the Department as a result of the transfer of functions of such agency to the Department;

(6) specify the proposed allocations within the Department of unexpended funds transferred in connection with the transfer of functions under the plan; and

(7) specify the proposed disposition of the property, facilities, contracts, records, and other assets and liabilities of each such agency in connection with the transfer of the functions of the agency to the Department.

(d) MODIFICATION OF PLAN.—The President may, on the basis of consultations with the appropriate congressional committees, modify or revise the plan transmitted under subsection (a).

(e) EFFECTIVE DATE.—(1) The reorganization plan described in this section, including any modifications or revisions of the plan under subsection (d), shall become effective on the earlier of March 1, 1997, or such date as the President shall determine to be appropriate and announce by notice published in the Federal Register, which date may be not earlier than 60 calendar days (excluding any day on which either House of Congress is not in session because of an adjournment sine die or because of an adjournment of more than 3 days to a day certain) after the President has transmitted the reorganization plan to the appropriate congressional committees pursuant to subsection (a).

(2) Paragraph (1) shall apply notwithstanding section 905(b) of title 5, United States Code.

SEC. 602. WAIVER.

(a) IN GENERAL.—(1) The President may waive the applicability of title II, III, or IV of this division to the agency otherwise covered by such title only if—

(A) the President includes in the reorganization plan transmitted under section 601 the certification described in subsection (b); and

(B) the certification is transmitted with the reorganization plan not later than October 1, 1996.

(2) The President may exercise such waiver authority with respect to not more than two such titles.

(b) CERTIFICATION.—In order to waive the applicability of a title referred to in subsection (a), the President shall certify that—

(1) the reorganization plan submitted under section 601—

(A) will achieve savings of $1,700,000,000 in budget authority during fiscal years 1996 through 1999 (not more than 30 percent of which may be realized from reductions in program levels); and

(B) will conform to the authorizations of appropriations during such fiscal years in division B; and

(2) the preservation of the agency that would otherwise be abolished pursuant to the title is important to the national interest of the United States.

(c) REORGANIZATION OF AGENCY COVERED BY WAIVER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding the waiver of the applicability of a title of this division, the President, in consultation with the Secretary and the head of the agency otherwise abolished pursuant to the title—

(A) shall provide in the reorganization plan transmitted under section 601 for the transfer to and consolidation within the Department of the functions of the agency set forth in paragraph (2); and

(B) may provide in the reorganization plan for additional consolidation, reorganization, and streamlining of the agency, including—

(i) the termination of functions and reductions in personnel of the agency;

(ii) the transfer of functions of the agency (including personnel operations other than personnel management, financial operations, public affairs aimed primarily at domestic audiences, legislative affairs, and legal affairs), and the personnel associated with such functions, to the Department; and

(iii) the consolidation, reorganization, and streamlining of the Department upon the transfer of such functions and personnel in order to carry out the functions transferred.

(2) FUNCTIONS TO BE TRANSFERRED.—The functions to be transferred under paragraph (1) are the functions relating to the following:

(A) Non-specialized procurement.

(B) Travel and transportation.

(C) Facilities management.

(D) Security operations.

CHAPTER 2—REORGANIZATION AUTHORITY

SEC. 611. REORGANIZATION AUTHORITY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary is authorized, subject to the requirements of this division, to allocate or reallocate any function transferred to the Department under any title of this division among the officers of the Department, and to establish, consolidate, alter, or discontinue such organizational entities within the Department as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out any reorganization under this division, but the authority of the Secretary under this section does not extend to—

(1) the abolition of organizational entities or officers established by this Act or any other Act; or

(2) the alteration of the delegation of functions to any specific organizational entity or officer required by this Act or any other Act.

(b) REQUIREMENTS AND LIMITATIONS ON REORGANIZATION PLAN.—The reorganization plan under section 601 may not have the effect of—

(1) creating a new executive department;

(2) continuing a function beyond the period authorized by law for its exercise or beyond the time when it would have terminated if the reorganization had not been made;

(3) authorizing an agency to exercise a function which is not authorized by law at the time the plan is transmitted to Congress;

(4) creating a new agency which is not a component or part of an existing executive department or independent agency; or

(5) increasing the term of an office beyond that provided by law for the office.

SEC. 612. TRANSFER AND ALLOCATION OF APPROPRIATIONS AND PERSONNEL.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in this Act, the personnel employed in connection with, and the assets, liabilities, contracts, property, records, and unexpended balance of appropriations, authorizations, allocations, and other funds employed, held, used, arising from, available to, or to be made available in connection with the functions and offices, or portions thereof transferred by any title of this division, subject to section 1531 of title 31, United States Code, shall be transferred to the Secretary for appropriate allocation.

(b) LIMITATION ON USE OF TRANSFERRED FUNDS.—Unexpended and unobligated funds transferred pursuant to any title of this division shall be used only for the purposes for which the funds were originally authorized and appropriated.

(c) AUTHORIZED STRENGTH OF THE FOREIGN SERVICE.—When an agency is abolished under this division, the limitations for fiscal years 1996 and 1997 under section 1351 of this Act on the members of the Foreign Service authorized to be employed by such agency shall be added to the limitations under such section which apply to the Department.

SEC. 613. INCIDENTAL TRANSFERS.

The Director of the Office of Management and Budget, in consultation with the Secretary, is authorized to make such incidental dispositions of personnel, assets, liabilities, grants, contracts, property, records, and unexpended balances of appropriations, authorizations, allocations, and other funds held, used, arising from, available to, or to be made available in connection with such functions, as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of any title of this division. The Director of the Office of Management and Budget, in consultation with the Secretary, shall provide for the termination of the affairs of all entities terminated by this division and for such further measures and dispositions as may be necessary to effectuate the purposes of any title of this division.

SEC. 614. EFFECT ON PERSONNEL.

(a) EXECUTIVE SCHEDULE POSITIONS.—Except as otherwise provided in this division, any person who, on the day preceding the date of the abolition of an agency the functions of which are transferred under any title of this division, held a position compensated in accordance with the Executive Schedule prescribed in chapter 53 of title 5, United States Code, and who, without a break in service, is appointed in the Department to a position having duties comparable to the duties performed immediately preceding such appointment shall continue to be compensated in such new position at not less than the rate provided for such previous position, for the duration of the service of such person in such new position.

(b) TREATMENT OF APPOINTED POSITIONS.—(1) Positions whose incumbents are appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, the functions of which are transferred by any title of this division, shall terminate on the effective date of that title.

(2) An individual holding an office immediately prior to the abolition or transfer of the office by a title of this division—

(A) who was appointed to the office by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate; and

(B) who performs duties substantially similar to the duties of an office proposed to be created under the reorganization plan submitted under section 601, may, in the discretion of the Secretary, assume the duties of such new office, and shall not be required to be reappointed by reason of the abolition or transfer of the individual's previous office.

(c) EXCEPTED SERVICE.—(1) Subject to paragraph (2), in the case of employees occupying positions in the excepted service or the Senior Executive Service, any appointment authority established pursuant to law or regulations of the Office of Personnel Management for filling such positions shall be transferred.

(2) The Department may decline a transfer of authority under paragraph (1) (and the employees appointed pursuant thereto) to the extent that such authority relates to positions excepted from the competitive service because of their confidential, policy-making, policy-determining, or policy-advocating character, and noncareer positions in the Senior Executive Service (within the meaning of section 3132(a)(7) of title 5, United States Code).

(d) EMPLOYEE BENEFIT PROGRAMS.—(1) Any employee accepting employment with the Department as a result of a transfer pursuant to any title of this division may retain for 1 year after the date such transfer occurs membership in any employee benefit program of the former agency, including insurance, to which such employee belongs on the date of the enactment of this Act if—

(A) the employee does not elect to give up the benefit or membership in the program; and

(B) the benefit or program is continued by the Secretary.

(2) The difference in the costs between the benefits which would have been provided by such agency or entity and those provided by this section shall be paid by the Secretary. If any employee elects to give up membership in a health insurance program or the health insurance program is not continued by the Secretary, the employee shall be permitted to select an alternate Federal health insurance program within 30 days of such election or notice, without regard to any other regularly scheduled open season.

(e) SENIOR EXECUTIVE SERVICE.—Any employee in the career Senior Executive Service who is transferred pursuant to any title of this division shall be placed in a position at the Department which is comparable to the position the employee held in the agency.

(f) ASSIGNMENTS.—(1) Transferring employees shall be provided reasonable notice of new positions and assignments prior to their transfer pursuant to any title of this division.

(2) Foreign Service personnel transferred to the Department pursuant to any title of this division shall be eligible for any assignment open to Foreign Service personnel within the Department for which such transferred personnel are qualified.

(g) TREATMENT OF PERSONNEL EMPLOYED IN TERMINATED FUNCTIONS.—The provisions of this subsection shall apply with respect to officers and employees in the competitive service, or employed under an established merit system in the excepted service, whose employment is terminated as a result of the abolition of the agency or the reorganization and consolidation of functions of the Department under any title of this division:

(1) Under such regulations as the Office of Personnel Management may prescribe, the head of any agency in the executive branch may appoint in the competitive service any person who is certified by the head of the former agency as having served satisfactorily in the competitive service in the former agency and who passes such examination as the Office of Personnel Management may prescribe. Any person so appointed shall, upon completion of the prescribed probationary period, acquire a competitive status.

(2) The head of any agency in the executive branch having an established merit system in the excepted service may appoint in such service any person who is certified by the head of the former agency as having served satisfactorily in the former agency and who passes such examination as the head of such agency in the executive branch may prescribe.

(3) Any appointment under this subsection shall be made within a period of one year after completion of the appointee's service.

(4) Any law, Executive order, or regulation which would disqualify an applicant for appointment in the competitive service or in the excepted service concerned shall also disqualify an applicant for appointment under this subsection.

(5) Any rights or benefits created by this subsection are in addition to rights and benefits otherwise provided by law.

SEC. 615. TRANSITION FUND.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is hereby established on the books of the Treasury an account to be known as the "Foreign Affairs Reorganization Transition Fund".

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of the account is to provide funds for the orderly transfer of functions and personnel to the Department as a result of the implementation of this division and for payment of other costs associated with the consolidation of foreign affairs agencies under this division.

(c) DEPOSITS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraphs (2) and (3), there shall be deposited into the account the following:

(A) Funds appropriated to the account.

(B) Funds transferred to the account by the Secretary from funds that are transferred to the Secretary by the head of an agency under subsection (d).

(C) Funds transferred to the account by the Secretary from funds that are transferred to the Department together with the transfer of functions to the Department under this division and that are not required by the Secretary in order to carry out the functions.

(D) Funds transferred to the account by the Secretary from any unobligated funds that are appropriated or otherwise made available to the Department.

(2) LIMITATION ON TRANSFER OF CERTAIN DEPARTMENT FUNDS.—The Secretary may transfer funds to the account under subparagraph (C) of paragraph (1) only if the Secretary determines that the amount of funds deposited in the account pursuant to subparagraphs (A) and (B) of that paragraph is inadequate to pay the costs of carrying out this division.

(3) LIMITATION ON TRANSFER OF UNOBLIGATED FUNDS OF DEPARTMENT.—The Secretary may transfer funds to the account under subparagraph (D) of paragraph (1) only if the Secretary determines that the amount of funds deposited in the account pursuant to subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C) of that paragraph is inadequate to pay the costs of carrying out this division.

(d) TRANSFER OF FUNDS TO SECRETARY.—The head of an agency abolished under this division shall transfer to the Secretary the amount, if any, of the unobligated funds appropriated or otherwise made available to the agency for functions of the agency that are abolished under this division which funds are not required to carry out the functions of the agency as a result of the abolishment of the functions under this division.

(e) USE OF FUNDS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law and subject to paragraph (2), the Secretary shall use sums in the account for payment of the costs of carrying out this division, including costs relating to the consolidation of functions of the Department and the termination of employees of the Department.

(2) LIMITATION ON USE OF FUNDS.—

(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the Secretary may not use sums in the account for payment of the costs described in paragraph (1) unless the appropriate congressional committees are notified 15 days in advance of such use in accordance with procedures applicable to reprogramming notifications under section 34 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2706).

(B) EXCEPTION.—Subparagraph (A) does not apply to the following uses of sums in the account:

(i) For payment of the cost of any severance payments required to be paid by the Secretary to employees of the Department, but only if the cost of such payments is less than $10,000,000.

(ii) For transfer to the head of an agency to be abolished under this division for payment of the cost of any severance payments required to be paid to employees of the agency, but only if the total amount transferred with respect to the agency is less than $40,000,000.

(iii) For payment of the cost of any improvements of the information management systems of the Department that are carried out as a result of the abolishment of agencies under this division, but only if the cost of such improvements is less than $15,000,000.

(iv) For payment of the cost of the physical relocation of fixtures, materials, and other resources from an agency to be abolished under this division to the Department or of such relocation within the Department, but only if the cost of such relocation is less than $10,000,000.

(3) AVAILABILITY WITHOUT FISCAL YEAR LIMITATION.—Funds in the account shall be available for the payment of costs under paragraph (1) without fiscal year limitation.

(f) TREATMENT OF UNOBLIGATED BALANCES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), unobligated funds, if any, which remain in the account after the payment of the costs described in subsection (e)(1) shall be transferred to the Department and shall be available to the Secretary for purposes of carrying out the functions of the Department.

(2) NOTIFICATION.—The Secretary may not transfer funds in the account to the Department under paragraph (1) unless the appropriate congressional committees are notified in advance of such transfer in accordance with the procedures applicable to reprogramming notifications under section 34 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956.

(g) REPORT ON ACCOUNT.—Not later than October 1, 1998, the Secretary shall transmit to the appropriate congressional committees a report containing an accounting of—

(1) the expenditures from the account established under this section; and

(2) in the event of any transfer of funds to the Department under subsection (f), the functions for which the funds so transferred were expended.

(h) TERMINATION OF AUTHORITY TO USE ACCOUNT.—The Secretary may not obligate funds in the account after September 30, 1999.

SEC. 616. SAVINGS PROVISIONS.

(a) CONTINUING LEGAL FORCE AND EFFECT.—All orders, determinations, rules, regulations, permits, agreements, grants, contracts, certificates, licenses, registrations, privileges, and other administrative actions—

(1) that have been issued, made, granted, or allowed to become effective by the President, any Federal agency or official thereof, or by a court of competent jurisdiction, in the performance of functions that are transferred under any title of this division; and shall continue in effect according to their terms until modified, terminated, superseded, set aside, or revoked in accordance with law by the President, the Secretary, or other authorized official, a court of competent jurisdiction, or by operation of law.

(2) that are in effect at the time such title takes effect, or were final before the effective date of such title and are to become effective on or after the effective date of such title,

(b) PENDING PROCEEDINGS.—(1) The provisions of any title of this division shall not affect any proceedings, including notices of proposed rulemaking, or any application for any license, permit, certificate, or financial assistance pending on the effective date of any title of this division before any department, agency, commission, or component thereof, functions of which are transferred by any title of this division. Such proceedings and applications, to the extent that they relate to functions so transferred, shall be continued.

(2) Orders shall be issued in such proceedings, appeals shall be taken therefrom, and payments shall be made pursuant to such orders, as if this division had not been enacted. Orders issued in any such proceedings shall continue in effect until modified, terminated, superseded, or revoked by the Secretary, by a court of competent jurisdiction, or by operation of law.

(3) Nothing in this division shall be deemed to prohibit the discontinuance or modification of any such proceeding under the same terms and conditions and to the same extent that such proceeding could have been discontinued or modified if this division had not been enacted.

(4) The Secretary is authorized to promulgate regulations providing for the orderly transfer of proceedings continued under this subsection to the Department.

(c) NO EFFECT ON JUDICIAL PROCEEDINGS.—Except as provided in subsection (e)—

(1) the provisions of this division shall not affect suits commenced prior to the effective date of this Act, and

(2) in all such suits, proceedings shall be had, appeals taken, and judgments rendered in the same manner and effect as if this division had not been enacted.

(d) NON-ABATEMENT OF PROCEEDINGS.—No suit, action, or other proceeding commenced by or against any officer in the official capacity of such individual as an officer of any department or agency, functions of which are transferred by any title of this division, shall abate by reason of the enactment of this division. No cause of action by or against any department or agency, functions of which are transferred by any title of this division, or by or against any officer thereof in the official capacity of such officer shall abate by reason of the enactment of this division.

(e) CONTINUATION OF PROCEEDING WITH SUBSTITUTION OF PARTIES.—If, before the date on which any title of this division takes effect, any department or agency, or officer thereof in the official capacity of such officer, is a party to a suit, and under this division any function of such department, agency, or officer is transferred to the Secretary or any other official of the Department, then such suit shall be continued with the Secretary or other appropriate official of the Department substituted or added as a party.

(f) REVIEWABILITY OF ORDERS AND ACTIONS UNDER TRANSFERRED FUNCTIONS.—Orders and actions of the Secretary in the exercise of functions transferred under any title of this division shall be subject to judicial review to the same extent and in the same manner as if such orders and actions had been by the agency or office, or part thereof, exercising such functions immediately preceding their transfer. Any statutory requirements relating to notice, hearings, action upon the record, or administrative review that apply to any function transferred by any title of this division shall apply to the exercise of such function by the Secretary.

SEC. 617. PROPERTY AND FACILITIES.

The Secretary shall review the property and facilities transferred to the Department under this division to determine whether such property and facilities are required by the Department.

SEC. 618. AUTHORITY OF SECRETARY OF STATE TO FACILITATE TRANSITION.

Prior to, or after, any transfer of a function under any title of this division, the Secretary is authorized to utilize—

(1) the services of such officers, employees, and other personnel of an agency with respect to functions that will be or have been transferred to the Department by any title of this division; and

(2) funds appropriated to such functions for such period of time as may reasonably be needed to facilitate the orderly implementation of any title of this division.

SEC. 619. RECOMMENDATIONS FOR ADDITIONAL CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.

Congress urges the President, in consultation with the Secretary and the heads of other appropriate agencies, to develop and submit to Congress recommendations for such additional technical and conforming amendments to the laws of the United States as may be appropriate to reflect the changes made by this division.

SEC. 620. FINAL REPORT.

Not later than October 1, 1998, the President, in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report which provides a final accounting of the finances and operations of the agencies abolished under this division.

SEC. 621. TRANSFER OF FUNCTION.

Any determination as to whether a transfer of function, carried out under this Act, constitutes a transfer of function for purposes of subchapter I of chapter 35 of title 5, United States Code, shall be made without regard to whether or not the function involved is identical to functions already being performed by the receiving agency.

SEC. 622. SEVERABILITY.

If a provision of this division or its application to any person or circumstance is held invalid, neither the remainder of this division nor the application of the provision to other persons or circumstances shall be affected.

DIVISION B—FOREIGN RELATIONS AUTHORIZATIONS

(A) by redesignating subsection (k) as subsection (d); and

(B) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(e) The President shall cancel all guaranties issued under this section with respect to which eligible investors have not (before the date of the enactment of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1996 and 1997) applied such guaranties to loans for projects under this title. The provisions of this subsection shall not apply to guaranties which have been issued for the benefit of the Republic of South Africa.".

(3) PROHIBITION ON ASSISTANCE FOR ENTITIES IN DEFAULT AND CERTAIN OTHER ENTITIES.—Section 620 of such Act (22 U.S.C. 2370) is amended by inserting after subsection (u) the following new subsection:

"(v)(1) Subject to paragraph (2), no assistance shall be furnished under this Act to any entity that—

"(A) fails to make timely payments on loans with respect to which guaranties have been issued under title III of chapter 2 of part I of this Act (relating to housing and other credit guaranty programs); or

"(B) causes amounts (including amounts for administrative expenses) to be paid by the United States in the discharge of liabilities under guaranties issued under such title, unless such entity has reimbursed the United States for such amounts.

"(2) The President may waive the prohibition in paragraph (1) with respect to an entity if the President determines that it is in the national interest of the United States to furnish assistance under this Act to such entity.".

TITLE XII—DEPARTMENT OF STATE AUTHORITIES AND ACTIVITIES

CHAPTER 1—AUTHORITIES AND ACTIVITIES

SEC. 1201. REVISION OF DEPARTMENT OF STATE REWARDS PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 36 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2708) is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 36. DEPARTMENT OF STATE REWARDS PROGRAM.

"(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—(1) There is established a program for the payment of rewards to carry out the purposes of this section.

"(2) The rewards program established by this section shall be administered by the Secretary of State, in consultation, where appropriate, with the Attorney General.

"(b) PURPOSE.—(1) The rewards program established by this section shall be designed to assist in the prevention of acts of international terrorism, international narcotics trafficking, and other related criminal acts.

"(2) At the sole discretion of the Secretary of State and in consultation, as appropriate, with the Attorney General, the Secretary of State may pay a reward to any individual who furnishes information leading to—

"(A) the arrest or conviction in any country of any individual for the commission of an act of international terrorism against a United States person or United States property;

"(B) the arrest or conviction in any country of any individual conspiring or attempting to commit an act of international terrorism against a United States person or United States property;

"(C) the arrest or conviction in any country of any individual for committing, primarily outside the territorial jurisdiction of the United States, any narcotics-related offense if that offense involves or is a significant part of conduct that involves—

"(i) a violation of United States narcotics laws and which is such that the individual would be a major violator of such laws;

"(ii) the killing or kidnapping of—

"(I) any officer, employee, or contract employee of the United States Government while such individual is engaged in official duties, or on account of that individual's official duties, in connection with the enforcement of United States narcotics laws or the implementing of United States narcotics control objectives; or

"(II) a member of the immediate family of any such individual on account of that individual's official duties in connection with the enforcement of United States narcotics laws or the implementing of United States narcotics control objectives; or

"(iii) an attempt or conspiracy to commit any of the acts described in clause (i) or (ii);

"(D) the arrest or conviction in any country of any individual aiding or abetting in the commission of an act described in subparagraphs (A) through (C); or

"(E) the prevention, frustration, or favorable resolution of an act described in subparagraphs (A) through (C).

"(c) COORDINATION.—(1) To ensure that the payment of rewards pursuant to this section does not duplicate or interfere with the payment of informants or the obtaining of evidence or information, as authorized to the Department of Justice, the offering, administration, and payment of rewards under this section, including procedures for—

"(A) identifying individuals, organizations, and offenses with respect to which rewards will be offered;

"(B) the publication of rewards;

"(C) offering of joint rewards with foreign governments;

"(D) the receipt and analysis of data; and

"(E) the payment and approval of payment, shall be governed by procedures developed by the Secretary of State, in consultation with the Attorney General.

"(2) Before making a reward under this section in a matter over which there is Federal criminal jurisdiction, the Secretary of State shall advise and consult with the Attorney General.

"(d) FUNDING.—(1) There are authorized to be appropriated to the Department of State from time to time such amounts as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this section, notwithstanding section 102 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1986 and 1987 (Public Law 99-93).

"(2) No amount of funds may be appropriated which, when added to the amounts previously appropriated but not yet obligated, would cause such amounts to exceed $15,000,000.

"(3) To the maximum extent practicable, funds made available to carry out this section should be distributed equally for the purpose of preventing acts of international terrorism and for the purpose of preventing international narcotics trafficking.

"(4) Amounts appropriated to carry out the purposes of this section shall remain available until expended.

"(e) LIMITATION AND CERTIFICATION.—(1) A reward under this section may not exceed $2,000,000.

"(2) A reward under this section of more than $100,000 may not be made without the approval of the President or the Secretary of State.

"(3) Any reward granted under this section shall be approved and certified for payment by the Secretary of State.

"(4) The authority of paragraph (2) may not be delegated to any other officer or employee of the United States Government.

"(5) If the Secretary determines that the identity of the recipient of a reward or of the members of the recipient's immediate family must be protected, the Secretary may take such measures in connection with the payment of the reward as he considers necessary to effect such protection.

"(f) INELIGIBILITY.—An officer or employee of any governmental entity who, while in the performance of his or her official duties, furnishes information described in subsection (b) shall not be eligible for a reward under this section.

"(g) REPORTS.—(1) Not later than 30 days after the payment of any reward under this section, the Secretary of State shall submit a report to the appropriate congressional committees with respect to such reward. The report, which may be submitted on a classified basis if necessary, shall specify the amount of the reward paid, to whom the reward was paid, and the acts with respect to which the reward was paid. The report shall also discuss the significance of the information for which the reward was paid in dealing with those acts.

"(2) Not later than 60 days after the end of each fiscal year, the Secretary of State shall submit an annual report to the appropriate congressional committees with respect to the operation of the rewards program authorized by this section. Such report shall provide information on the total amounts expended during such fiscal year to carry out the purposes of this section, including amounts spent to publicize the availability of rewards. Such report shall also include information on all requests for the payment of rewards under this section, including the reasons for the denial of any such requests.

"(h) DEFINITIONS.—As used in this section—

"(1) the term 'appropriate congressional committees' means the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate;

"(2) the term 'act of international terrorism' includes, but is not limited to—

"(A) any act substantially contributing to the acquisition of unsafeguarded special nuclear material (as defined in section 830(8) of the Nuclear Proliferation Prevention Act of 1994) or any nuclear explosive device (as defined in section 830(4) of that Act) by an individual, group, or non-nuclear weapon state (as defined in section 830(5) of that Act); and

"(B) any act, as determined by the Secretary of State, which materially supports the conduct of international terrorism, including the counterfeiting of United States currency or the illegal use of other monetary instruments by an individual, group, or country supporting international terrorism as determined for purposes of section 6(j) of the Export Administration Act of 1979;

"(3) the term 'United States narcotics laws' means the laws of the United States for the prevention and control of illicit traffic in controlled substances (as such term is defined for purposes of the Controlled Substances Act); and

"(4) the term 'member of the immediate family' includes—

"(A) a spouse, parent, brother, sister, or child of the individual;

"(B) a person to whom the individual stands in loco parentis; and

"(C) any other person living in the individual's household and related to the individual by blood or marriage.

"(i) JUDICIAL REVIEW.—A determination made by the Secretary of State as to whether to authorize a reward under this section or as to the amount of a reward shall not be subject to judicial review.".

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of the Congress that the Secretary of State should pursue additional means of funding the program established by section 36 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2708), including the authority to seize and dispose of assets used in the commission of any offense under sections 1028, 1541 through 1544, and 1546 of title 18, United States Code, and to retain the proceeds derived from the disposition of such assets; to participate in asset sharing programs conducted by the Department of Justice; and to retain earnings accruing on all assets of foreign countries blocked by the President pursuant to the International Emergency Powers Act (50 U.S.C. 1701 and following) to carry out the purposes of section 36 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956.

SEC. 1205. TRAINING.

(1) by redesignating subsection (d)(4) as subsection (g); and

(2) by inserting after subsection (d) the following new subsections:

"(e)(1) The Secretary of State is authorized to provide appropriate training through the institution to employees of any United States company engaged in business abroad, and to the families of such employees, when such training is in the national interest of the United States.

"(2) In the case of any company under contract to provide services to the Department of State, the Secretary of State is authorized to provide job-related training to any company employee who is performing such services.

"(3) Training under this subsection shall be on a reimbursable or advance-of-funds basis. Such reimbursements or advances shall be credited to the currently applicable appropriation account.

"(4) Training under this subsection is authorized only to the extent that it will not interfere with the institution's primary mission of training employees of the Department and of other agencies in the field of foreign relations.

"(f)(1) The Secretary of State is authorized to provide on a reimbursable basis foreign language training programs to Members of Congress and officers and employees of Congress.

"(2) Reimbursements under this subsection, to the extent practicable, should be equivalent to the rate of reimbursement charged other agencies of the United States Government for comparable training.

"(3) Reimbursements collected under this subsection shall be credited to the currently available applicable appropriation account.

"(4) Training under this subsection is authorized only to the extent that it will not interfere with the institution's primary mission of training employees of the Department and of other agencies in the field of foreign relations.".

SEC. 1206. CAPITAL INVESTMENT FUND.

Section 135 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995 (22 U.S.C. 2684a) is amended—

Title I of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2651a et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 53. FEE FOR USE OF DIPLOMATIC RECEPTION ROOMS.

"The Secretary of State is authorized to charge a fee for use of the Department of State diplomatic reception rooms. Fees collected under the authority of this section shall be deposited as an offsetting collection to any Department of State appropriation to recover the costs of such use and shall remain available for obligation until expended. Amounts deposited may be obligated and expended only to the extent and in such amounts as are provided in advance in an appropriation Act.".

SEC. 1211. INTERNATIONAL CENTER RESERVE FUNDS.

Section 5 of the International Center Act (Public Law 90–533) is amended by inserting before the last sentence the following: "Amounts in the reserve may be deposited in interest bearing accounts, and the Secretary may retain for the purposes of the reserve any interest earned on such deposits without returning such interest to the Treasury of the United States.".

SEC. 1212. JOINT FUNDS UNDER AGREEMENTS FOR COOPERATION IN ENVIRONMENTAL, SCIENTIFIC, CULTURAL, AND RELATED AREAS.

In order to promote the maximum benefits from continued participation in international agreements in effect as of the date of enactment of this Act for cooperation in environmental, scientific, cultural, and related areas, appropriated funds that have been made available in fiscal year 1995 and prior fiscal years under the Department of State's program of international environmental, scientific, and cultural cooperation to joint funds or accounts under such agreements may, to the extent specified within the agreement, be deposited in interest bearing accounts prior to disbursement of such funds for the purposes of the program. Interest earned may be retained for use under such agreements for program or administrative purposes, without returning such interest to the Treasury of the United States. Such retained interest amounts shall be available for obligation and expenditure only to such extent and in such amounts as are provided in advance in appropriation Acts.

SEC. 1213. EFFICIENCY IN PROCUREMENT.

(a) In General.—To the maximum extent practicable, United States Government agencies performing functions at diplomatic and consular posts abroad shall avoid duplicative acquisition actions.

(b) Authority.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a contract awarded in accordance with the Competition in Contracting Act by an agency of the United States Government performing functions at diplomatic and consular posts abroad may be amended without competition to permit other such United States Government agencies to obtain goods or services under such contract, if unit prices are not increased as a result of any such amendment.

SEC. 1214. CONCERNING THE USE OF FUNDS TO FURTHER NORMALIZE RELATIONS WITH VIETNAM.

None of the funds authorized to be appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act may be obligated or expended to pay for any cost incurred for (1) opening or operating any United States diplomatic or consular post in the Socialist Republic of Vietnam that was not operating on July 11, 1995; (2) expanding any United States diplomatic or consular post in the Socialist Republic of Vietnam that was operating on July 11, 1995; or (3) increasing the total number of personnel assigned to United States diplomatic or consular posts in the Socialist Republic of Vietnam above the levels existing on July 11, 1995, unless not less than 60 days prior to any such obligation or expenditure the President certifies to the Congress that based upon all information available to the United States Government that the Government of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam is fully cooperating with the United States in the following 4 areas:

(A) Resolving discrepancy cases, live sightings, and field activities.

(B) Recovering and repatriating American remains.

(C) Accelerating efforts to provide documents that will help lead to fullest possible accounting of POW/MIA's.

CHAPTER 2—CONSULAR AUTHORITIES OF THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE

SEC. 1231. FEES FOR MACHINE READABLE VISAS.

Section 140(a) of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995 (Public Law 103–236) is amended—

(1) by striking paragraphs (2) and (3) and inserting the following:

"(2) For fiscal years 1996 and 1997, not more than $150,000,000 in fees collected under the authority of paragraph (1) for each fiscal year shall be deposited as an offsetting collection to any Department of State appropriation to recover the costs of the Department of State's border security program, including the costs of—

"(A) installation and operation of the machine readable visa and automated name-check process;

"(B) improving the quality and security of the United States passport;

"(C) passport and visa fraud investigations; and

"(D) the technological infrastructure to support and operate the programs referred to in subparagraphs (A) through (C).

Such fees shall remain available for obligation until expended.

"(3) For any fiscal year, fees collected under the authority of paragraph (1) in excess of the amount specified for such fiscal year under paragraph (2) shall be deposited in the general fund of the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts."; and

(2) by striking paragraph (5).

SEC. 1232. FINGERPRINT CHECK REQUIREMENT.

Section 140(e)(1) of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995 (Public Law 103–236; 8 U.S.C. 1182 note) as amended by section 505 of the Department of State and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, Fiscal Year 1995 (Public Law 103–317) is amended to read as follows:

"(1) The Secretary of State shall in the 10 countries with the highest volume of immigrant visa issuance for the most recent fiscal year for which data are available require applicants for immigrant visas to provide a fingerprint record for submission with the application, at no cost to the Department of State, if such an applicant—

"(A) has been determined to have a criminal history record under subsection (d)(1);

"(B) has been physically present in the United States; and

"(C) is more than 16 years of age.

The Department of State shall submit such fingerprint records to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for analysis to determine whether the applicant has been convicted of a felony under State or Federal law in the United States.".

SEC. 1233. USE OF CERTAIN PASSPORT PROCESSING FEES FOR ENHANCED PASSPORT SERVICES.

For each of the fiscal years 1996 and 1997, of the fees collected for expedited passport processing and deposited to an offsetting collection pursuant to the Department of State and Related Agencies Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 1995 (Public Law 103–317; 22 U.S.C. 214), 10 percent shall be available only for enhancing passport services for United States citizens, improving the integrity and efficiency of the passport issuance process, improving the secure nature of the United States passport, investigating passport fraud, and preventing entry into the United States by terrorists, drug traffickers, or other criminals.

SEC. 1234. CONSULAR OFFICERS.

(a) Persons Authorized To Issue Reports of Births Abroad.—Section 33 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2705) is amended in paragraph (2) by adding at the end the following: "For purposes of this paragraph, a consular officer shall include any United States citizen employee of the Department of State designated by the Secretary of State to adjudicate nationality abroad pursuant to such regulations as the Secretary may prescribe.".

(b) Provisions Applicable to Consular Officers.—Section 31 of the Act of August 18, 1856 (Rev. Stat. 1689; 22 U.S.C. 4191), is amended by inserting after "such officers" the following: "and to such other United States citizen employees of the Department of State as may be designated by the Secretary of State pursuant to such regulations as the Secretary may prescribe".

(c) Persons Authorized To Authenticate Foreign Documents.—Section 3492(c) of title 18 of the United States Code is amended by adding at the end the following: "For purposes of this section and sections 3493 through 3496 of this title, a consular officer shall include any United States citizen employee of the Department of State designated to perform notarial functions pursuant to section 24 of the Act of August 18, 1856 (Rev. Stat. 1750; 22 U.S.C. 4221).".

(d) Persons Authorized To Administer Oaths.—Section 115 of title 35 of the United States Code is amended by adding at the end the following: "For purposes of this section, a consular officer shall include any United States citizen employee of the Department of State designated to perform notarial functions pursuant to section 24 of the Act of August 18, 1856 (Rev. Stat. 1750; 22 U.S.C. 4221).".

(e) Definition of Consular Officer.—Section 101(a)(9) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(9)) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: "As used in title III, the term "consular officer" includes any United States citizen employee of the Department of State designated by the Secretary of State to adjudicate nationality abroad pursuant to such regulations as the Secretary may prescribe.".

SEC. 1235. FEE FOR DIVERSITY IMMIGRANT LOTTERY.

The Secretary of State may establish a fee to be paid by each alien who applies for an immigrant visa on the basis of an approved petition filed under section 204(a)(1)(G) of the Immigration and Nationality Act. Such fee may be set at a level so as to recover the full cost to the Department of State of administering subsection (c) of section 203 of the Immigration and Nationality Act, including the cost of processing all petitions thereunder. All such fees collected shall be deposited as an offsetting collection to any Department of State appropriation and shall remain available for obligation until expended. The provisions of the Act of August 18, 1856 (Rev. Stat. 1726–28; 22 U.S.C. 4212–14), concerning accounting for consular fees, shall not apply to fees collected pursuant to this section. Amounts deposited shall be available for obligation and expenditure only in such amounts as are provided in advance in appropriation Acts.

organization' means an organization that engages in, or has engaged in, terrorist activity as determined by the Attorney General, in consultation with the Secretary of State.".

SEC. 1238. TERRORIST LOOKOUT COMMITTEES.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—

(1) Not later than 30 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall establish within each United States Embassy a Terrorist Lookout Committee, which shall include the head of the political section and senior representatives of all United States law enforcement agencies and all elements of the intelligence community under the authority of the chief of mission.

(2) Each Committee shall be chaired by the respective deputy chief of mission, with the head of the consular section as vice chair.

(b) MEETINGS.—Each Terrorist Lookout Committee established under subsection (a) shall meet at least monthly and shall maintain records of its meetings. Upon the completion of each meeting, each Committee shall report to the Department of State all names submitted for inclusion in the visa lookout system.

(c) REPORTS.—

(1) The Secretary of State shall submit a report to the appropriate congressional committees within 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act on the status of establishing Terrorist Lookout Committees under this section and evaluating interagency cooperation in the process.

(2) Not later than April 1, 1997, the Secretary of State shall submit a follow-up report to the appropriate congressional committees detailing progress on submitting names for inclusion in the visa lookout system and evaluating cooperation among agencies and embassy sections in maintaining lists of such names.

SEC. 1239. INCITEMENT AS A BASIS FOR EXCLUSION FROM THE UNITED STATES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 212(a)(3)(B) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(3)(B)), as amended by this Act, is further amended—

(1) by striking "or" at the end of clause (i)(II);

(2) in clause (i)(III) by inserting "or" at the end; and

(3) by inserting after clause (i)(III) the following new subclause:

"(IV) has, under circumstances indicating an intention to cause death or serious bodily harm, incited terrorism, engaged in targeted racial vilification, or advocated the overthrow of the United States Government or death or serious bodily harm to any United States citizen or United States Government official,".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply to aliens seeking to enter the United States on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

CHAPTER 3—REFUGEES AND MIGRATION

SEC. 1251. REPORT TO CONGRESS CONCERNING CUBAN EMIGRATION POLICIES.

Beginning 3 months after the date of the enactment of this Act and every subsequent 6 months, the President shall submit a report to the appropriate congressional committees concerning the methods employed by the Government of Cuba to enforce the United States-Cuba agreement of September 1994 to restrict the emigration of the Cuban people from Cuba to the United States, and the treatment by the Government of Cuba of persons who have been returned to Cuba pursuant to the United States-Cuba agreement of May 1995. Each report transmitted pursuant to this section shall include a detailed account of United States efforts to monitor such enforcement and treatment.

SEC. 1252. EXTENSION OF CERTAIN ADJUDICATION PROVISIONS.

The Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1990 (Public Law 101-167) is amended—

(A) in subsection (b)(3), by striking "and 1996" and inserting "1996, and 1997"; and

(B) in subsection (e), by striking out "October 1, 1996" each place it appears and inserting "October 1, 1997"; and

(2) in section 599E (8 U.S.C. 1255 note) in subsection (b)(2), by striking out "September 30, 1996" and inserting "September 30, 1997".

SEC. 1253. UNITED STATES POLICY REGARDING THE INVOLUNTARY RETURN OF REFUGEES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—No funds authorized to be appropriated by section 1104 of this Act or by section 2(c) of the Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962 (22 U.S.C. 2601(c)) shall be available to effect the involuntary return of any person to a country in which the person has a well founded fear of persecution on account of race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular social group, or political opinion.

(b) INVOLUNTARY RETURN DEFINED.—As used in this section, the term "effect the involuntary return" means to take action by which it is reasonably foreseeable that a person will be required to return to a country against the person's will, regardless of whether such return is induced by physical force and regardless of whether the person is physically present in the United States.

SEC. 1254. REPORT ON IRAQI REFUGEES.

(a) REQUIREMENT.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report describing in detail the procedures for determining eligibility for resettlement of Iraqi nationals from Saudi Arabia and Turkey to the United States.

(b) REPORT.—The report under subsection (a) shall include the following:

(1) The history of the United States resettlement program for Iraqi refugees, including the number of such refugees resettled in the United States and in other countries during each year since fiscal year 1991, as well as activities of the United States Government, other governments, and international organizations with respect to temporary protection for Iraqi refugees in Saudi Arabia, Turkey, and other countries.

(2) An evaluation and explanation of the continuing need for the program, including an evaluation of the prospects for future resettlement of Iraqi refugees in countries other than the United States and the impact of United States activities on resettlement commitments by such countries and on the actions of countries providing temporary protection.

(3) A detailed analysis of the basis for claims of persecution of Iraqi refugees approved for resettlement in the United States.

(4) A detailed description and evaluation of procedures employed by United States personnel to ensure the denial of fraudulent applications and the application of all grounds of exclusion provided by United States law.

(5) A detailed description of the acculturation program for Iraqi refugees selected for admission to the United States, with particular reference to any differences between this program and similar programs for other refugees, and an evaluation of the continuing need for such program and for improvements therein.

SEC. 1255. PERSECUTION FOR RESISTANCE TO COERCIVE POPULATION CONTROL METHODS.

Section 101(a)(42) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(42)) is amended by adding at the end the following: "For purposes of determinations under this Act, a person who has been forced to abort a pregnancy or to undergo involuntary sterilization, or who has been persecuted for failure or refusal to undergo such a procedure or for other resistance to a coercive population control program, shall be deemed to have been persecuted on account of political opinion, and a person who has a well founded fear that he or she will be forced to undergo such a procedure or subjected to persecution for such failure, refusal, or resistance shall be deemed to have a well founded fear of persecution on account of political opinion.".

SEC. 1256. UNITED STATES POLICY WITH RESPECT TO THE INVOLUNTARY RETURN OF PERSONS IN DANGER OF SUBJECTION TO TORTURE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—No funds authorized to be appropriated by this Act, or by section 2(c) of the Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962 (22 U.S.C. 2601(c)), shall be available to expel, extradite, or otherwise effect the involuntary return of any person to a country in which there are substantial grounds for believing the person would be in danger of being subjected to torture.

(b) DEFINITIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided, terms used in this section have the meanings assigned under the United Nations Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, subject to any reservations, understandings, declarations and provisos contained in the United States resolution of advice and consent to ratification to such Convention.

(2) INVOLUNTARY RETURN.—As used in this section, the term "effect the involuntary return" means to take action by which it is reasonably foreseeable that a person will be required to return to a country against the person's will, regardless of whether such return is induced by physical force and regardless of whether the person is physically present in the United States.

"(2) For the purposes of paragraph (1)(A)(ii) and paragraph (1)(B), the term 'management official' does not include chiefs of mission, principal officers or their deputies, administrative and personnel officers abroad, or individuals described in section 1002(12) (B), (C), and (D) who are not involved in the administration of this chapter or in the formulation of the personnel policies and programs of the Department.".

SEC. 1354. NONOVERTIME DIFFERENTIAL PAY.

Title 5 of the United States Code is amended—

(1) in section 5544(a), by inserting after the fourth sentence the following new sentence: "For employees serving outside the United States in areas where Sunday is a routine workday and another day of the week is officially recognized as the day of rest and worship, the Secretary of State may designate the officially recognized day of rest and worship as the day with respect to which additional pay is authorized by the preceding sentence."; and

(2) at the end of section 5546(a), by adding the following new sentence: "For employees serving outside the United States in areas where Sunday is a routine workday and another day of the week is officially recognized as the day of rest and worship, the Secretary of State may designate the officially recognized day of rest and worship as the day with respect to which additional pay is authorized by the preceding sentence.".

SEC. 1355. RECOVERY OF COSTS OF HEALTH CARE SERVICES.

(1) in subsection (a)—

(A) by striking "and" before "members of the families of such members and employees"; and

(B) by inserting immediately before the period ", and for care provided abroad) such other persons as are designated by the Secretary of State, except that such persons shall be considered persons other than covered beneficiaries for purposes of subsections (g) and (h)";

(2) in subsection (d), by inserting ", subject to the provisions of subsections (g) and (h)" after "treatment"; and

(3) by adding the following new subsections:

"(g)(1) In the case of a person who is a covered beneficiary, the Secretary of State is authorized to collect from a third-party payer the reasonable costs incurred by the Department of State on behalf of such person for health care services to the same extent that the covered beneficiary would be eligible to receive reimbursement or indemnification from the third-party payer for such costs.

"(2) If the insurance policy, plan, contract, or similar agreement of that third-party payer includes a requirement for a deductible or copayment by the beneficiary of the plan, then the Secretary of State may collect from the third-party payer only the reasonable costs of the care provided less the deductible or copayment amount.

"(3) A covered beneficiary shall not be required to pay any deductible or copayment for health care services under this subsection.

"(4) No provision of any insurance, medical service, or health plan contract or agreement having the effect of excluding from coverage or limiting payment of charges for care in the following circumstances shall operate to prevent collection by the Secretary of State under paragraph (1) for—

"(A) care provided directly or indirectly by a governmental entity;

"(B) care provided to an individual who has not paid a required deductible or copayment; or

"(C) care provided by a provider with which the third-party payer has no participation agreement.

"(5) No law of any State, or of any political subdivision of a State, and no provision of any contract or agreement shall operate to prevent or hinder recovery or collection by the United States under this section.

"(6) As to the authority provided in paragraph (1) of this subsection—

"(A) the United States shall be subrogated to any right or claim that the covered beneficiary may have against a third-party payer;

"(B) the United States may institute and prosecute legal proceedings against a third-party payer to enforce a right of the United States under this subsection; and

"(C) the Secretary may compromise, settle, or waive a claim of the United States under this subsection.

"(7) The Secretary shall prescribe regulations for the administration of this subsection and subsection (h). Such regulations shall provide for computation of the reasonable cost of health care services.

"(8) Regulations prescribed under this subsection shall provide that medical records of a covered beneficiary receiving health care under this subsection shall be made available for inspection and review by representatives of the payer from which collection by the United States is sought for the sole purpose of permitting the third party to verify—

"(A) that the care or services for which recovery or collection is sought were furnished to the covered beneficiary; and

"(B) that the provisions of such care or services to the covered beneficiary meets criteria generally applicable under the health plan contract involved, except that this paragraph shall be subject to the provisions of paragraphs (2) and (4).

"(9) Amounts collected under this subsection or under subsection (h) from a third-party payer or from any other payer shall be deposited as an offsetting collection to any Department of State appropriation and shall remain available until expended. Amounts deposited shall be obligated and expended only to the extent and in such amounts as are provided in advance in an appropriation Act.

"(10) For purposes of this section—

"(A) the term 'covered beneficiary' means an individual eligible to receive health care under this section whose health care costs are to be paid by a third-party payer under a contractual agreement with such payer;

"(B) the term 'services', as used in 'health care services' includes products; and

"(C) the term 'third-party payer' means an entity that provides a fee-for-service insurance policy, contract, or similar agreement through the Federal Employees Health Benefit program, under which the expenses of health care services for individuals are paid.

"(h) In the case of a person, other than a covered beneficiary, who receives health care services pursuant to this section, the Secretary of State is authorized to collect from such person the reasonable costs of health care services incurred by the Department of State on behalf of such person. The United States shall have the same rights against persons subject to the provisions of this subsection as against third-party payers covered by subsection (g).".

Prior service with RFE/RL, Incorporated, by an individual appointed under this subsection shall be credited in determining the length of service of the individual for reduction in force purposes and toward establishing the career tenure of the individual.".

(g) USE OF FEES FROM EDUCATIONAL ADVISING.—Section 810 of the United States Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948 (22 U.S.C. 1475e) is amended by inserting ", educational advising," after "English-teaching".

SEC. 1407. RETENTION OF INTEREST.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, with the approval of the National Endowment for Democracy, grant funds made available by the National Endowment for Democracy may be deposited in interest-bearing accounts pending disbursement and any interest which accrues may be retained by the grantee and used for the purposes for which the grant was made.

SEC. 1408. CONDUCT OF CERTAIN EDUCATIONAL AND CULTURAL EXCHANGE PROGRAMS.

In carrying out programs of educational and cultural exchange in countries whose people do not fully enjoy freedom and democracy (including but not limited to China, Vietnam, Cambodia, Tibet, and Burma), the Director of the United States Information Agency shall take appropriate steps to provide opportunities for participation in such programs to human rights and democracy leaders of such countries.

SEC. 1409. EXTENSION OF AU PAIR PROGRAMS.

(a) REPEAL.—Section 581 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1996 (Public Law 104–107) is repealed.

(b) AUTHORITY FOR AU PAIR PROGRAMS.—The Director of the United States Information Agency is authorized to continue to administer an au pair program, operating on a world-wide basis, through fiscal year 1999.

(c) REPORT.—Not later than October 1, 1998, the Director of the United States Information Agency shall submit a report regarding the continued extension of au pair programs to the appropriate congressional committees. This report shall specifically detail the compliance of all au pair organizations with regulations governing au pair programs as published on February 15, 1995.

SEC. 1410. EDUCATIONAL AND CULTURAL EXCHANGES AND SCHOLARSHIPS FOR TIBETANS AND BURMESE.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF EDUCATIONAL AND CULTURAL EXCHANGE FOR TIBETANS.—The Director of the United States Information Agency shall establish programs of educational and cultural exchange between the United States and the people of Tibet. Such programs shall include opportunities for training and, as the Director considers appropriate, may include the assignment of personnel and resources abroad.

(b) SCHOLARSHIPS FOR TIBETANS AND BURMESE.—

(1) For each of the fiscal years 1996 and 1997, at least 30 scholarships shall be made available to Tibetan students and professionals who are outside Tibet, and at least 15 scholarships shall be made available to Burmese students and professionals who are outside Burma.

(2) WAIVER.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to the extent that the Director of the United States Information Agency determines that there are not enough qualified students to fulfill such allocation requirement.

(3) SCHOLARSHIP DEFINED.—For the purposes of this section, the term "scholarship" means an amount to be used for full or partial support of tuition and fees to attend an educational institution, and may include fees, books, and supplies, equipment required for courses at an educational institution, living expenses at a United States educational institution, and travel expenses to and from, and within, the United States.

SEC. 1411. INITIATION OF BROADCASTS BY RADIO FREE ASIA.

Section 309 of the United States International Broadcasting Act of 1994 (22 U.S.C. 6208) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(j) Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1996 and 1997, Radio Free Asia shall initiate regular broadcasts to the People's Republic of China, Burma, Cambodia, Laos, North Korea, Tibet, and Vietnam. Such broadcasts shall be conducted under the name 'Radio Free Asia' and shall provide accurate and timely information, news, and commentary about events in the respective countries of Asia and elsewhere, and shall be a forum for a variety of opinions and voices from within Asian nations whose people do not fully enjoy freedom of expression.".

SEC. 1412. DISTRIBUTION WITHIN THE UNITED STATES OF THE UNITED STATES INFORMATION AGENCY FILM ENTITLED "THE FRAGILE RING OF LIFE".

TITLE XV—INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS AND COMMISSIONS

CHAPTER 1—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 1501. TERMINATION OF UNITED STATES PARTICIPATION IN CERTAIN INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subsection (b) and notwithstanding any other provision of law, none of the funds authorized to be appropriated by this Act or any other provision of law may be used for payment of United States membership in any of the following organizations:

(1) The United Nations Industrial Development Organization.

(2) Pan American Railway Congress Association.

(3) The International Cotton Advisory Committee.

(4) The World Tourism Organization.

(5) The Inter-American Indian Institute.

(6) International Tropical Timber Organization.

(b) EXPENSES PENDING TERMINATION OF UNITED STATES MEMBERSHIP.—Notwithstanding the requirements of subsection (a), funds authorized to be appropriated under this Act, to the extent required under any treaty to which the United States is a party, may be used to make payments to the organizations identified in subsection (a) during the period beginning on the date that the United States gives notice pursuant to such treaty of the intent to terminate United States membership in the organization as promptly as permitted by such treaty and ending on the date that the termination of United States membership takes effect.

SEC. 1502. INTERNATIONAL BOUNDARY AND WATER COMMISSION.

The Act of May 13, 1924 (49 Stat. 660, 22 U.S.C. 277–277f), is amended in section 3 (22 U.S.C. 277b) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(d) Pursuant to the authority of subsection (a) and in order to facilitate further compliance with the terms of the Convention for Equitable Distribution of the Waters of the Rio Grande, May 21, 1906, United States-Mexico, the Secretary of State, acting through the United States Commissioner of the International Boundary and Water Commission, may make improvements to the Rio Grande Canalization Project, originally authorized by the Act of August 29, 1935 (49 Stat. 961). Such improvements may include all such works as may be needed to stabilize the Rio Grande in the reach between the Percha Diversion Dam in New Mexico and the American Diversion Dam in El Paso.".

SEC. 1503. PROHIBITION ON ASSISTANCE TO INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS ESPOUSING WORLD GOVERNMENT.

None of the funds authorized to be made available by this Act shall be used—

(1) to pay the United States contribution to any international organization which engages in the direct or indirect promotion of the principle or doctrine of one world government or one world citizenship; or

(2) for the promotion, direct or indirect, of the principle or doctrine of one world government or one world citizenship.

SEC. 1504. INTERNATIONAL COVENANT ON CIVIL AND POLITICAL RIGHTS.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress makes the following findings:

(1) On April 2, 1992, the Senate approved a resolution of advice and consent to ratification of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, subject to reservations, understandings, declarations, and a proviso intended, inter alia, to protect the First Amendment rights of American citizens and other United States constitutional rights and practices.

(2) In accordance with the action of the Senate, the President deposited the United States instrument of ratification of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights on June 8, 1992, and the Covenant entered into force for the United States on September 8, 1992.

(3) On November 2, 1994, the Human Rights Committee, established under the Covenant to interpret the Covenant and to receive complaints of noncompliance, adopted General Comment No. 24 regarding reservations to the Covenant.

(4) In General Comment No. 24, the Human Rights Committee claimed for itself the power to judge the validity under international law of reservations to the Covenant, and in the purported exercise of this power asserted that reservations of the type included in the Senate resolution of ratification are invalid, and further asserted that invalid reservations will be read out of instruments of ratification, "in the sense that the Covenant will be operative for the reserving party without benefit of the reservation".

(5) The purpose and effect of General Comment No. 24 is to seek to nullify as a matter of international law the reservations, understandings, declarations, and proviso contained in the Senate resolution of ratification, thereby purporting to impose legal obligations on the United States never accepted by the United States.

(6) General Comment No. 24 threatens not only the Supremacy Clause of the United States Constitution and the constitutional authority of the Senate with respect to the approval of treaties, but also the First Amendment rights of American citizens and the other United States constitutional rights and practices protected by the reservations, understandings, declarations, and proviso contained in the Senate resolution of ratification.

(b) RESTRICTION ON OBLIGATION OR EXPENDITURE OF FUNDS.—

(1) RESTRICTION.—Effective two years after the date of enactment of this Act, no funds authorized to be appropriated by this Act or any other Act, or otherwise made available, may be obligated or expended for the conduct of any activity which has the purpose or effect of—

(A) reporting to the Human Rights Committee in accordance with Article 40 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, or

(B) responding to any effort by the Human Rights Committee to use the procedures of Articles 41 and 42 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights to resolve claims by other parties to the Covenant that the United States is not fulfilling its obligations under the Covenant, until the President has submitted to the Congress the certification described in paragraph (2).

(2) CERTIFICATION.—The certification referred to in paragraph (1) is a certification by the President to the Congress that the Human Rights Committee established under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights has—

(A) revoked its General Comment No. 24 adopted on November 2, 1994; and

(B) expressly recognized the validity as a matter of international law of the reservations, understandings, and declarations contained in the United States instrument of ratification of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights.

SEC. 1505. UNITED STATES PARTICIPATION IN SINGLE COMMODITY INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS.

Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report that—

(1) identifies the national interests, if any, that are served by continuing United States participation in single-commodity international organizations;

(2) assesses the current and projected costs of continuing United States participation in such organizations in light of the increasingly limited funds available to fund United States participation in all international organizations;

(3) assesses the feasibility and desirability of the privatization of United States representation in such organizations; and

(4) sets forth options for achieving the privatization of the organizations if the Secretary determines that the privatization is feasible and desirable.

CHAPTER 2—UNITED NATIONS AND AFFILIATED AGENCIES AND ORGANIZATIONS

SEC. 1521. REFORM IN BUDGET DECISIONMAKING PROCEDURES OF THE UNITED NATIONS AND ITS SPECIALIZED AGENCIES.

(a) ASSESSED CONTRIBUTIONS.—Of amounts authorized to be appropriated for "Assessed Contributions to International Organizations" by this Act, the President may withhold 20 percent of the funds appropriated for the United States assessed contribution to the United Nations or to any of its specialized agencies for any calendar year if the United Nations or any such agency has failed to implement or to continue to implement consensus-based decisionmaking procedures on budgetary matters which assure that sufficient attention is paid to the views of the United States and other member states that are the major financial contributors to such assessed budgets.

(b) NOTICE TO CONGRESS.—The President shall notify the Congress when a decision is made to withhold any share of the United States assessed contribution to the United Nations or its specialized agencies pursuant to subsection (a) and shall notify the Congress when the decision is made to pay any previously withheld assessed contribution. A notification under this subsection shall include appropriate consultation between the President (or the President's representative) and the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate.

(c) CONTRIBUTIONS FOR PRIOR YEARS.—Subject to the availability of appropriations, payment of assessed contributions for prior years may be made to the United Nations or any of its specialized agencies notwithstanding subsection (a) if such payment would further United States interests in that organization.

(d) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than February 1 of each year, the President shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report concerning the amount of United States assessed contributions paid to the United Nations and each of its specialized agencies during the preceding calendar year.

SEC. 1522. REPORT ON UNICEF.

Not later than December 31, 1996, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report on (1) the progress of UNICEF toward effective financial, program, and personnel management; (2) the progress of UNICEF in shifting its health, child survival, and maternal survival programs toward efficient and low-overhead contractors, with particular emphasis on nongovernmental organizations; and (3) the extent to which UNICEF has demonstrated its commitment to its traditional mission of child health and welfare and resisted pressure to become involved in functions performed by other United Nations agencies.

SEC. 1523. UNITED NATIONS BUDGETARY AND MANAGEMENT REFORM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—(1) The United Nations Participation Act of 1945 (22 U.S.C. 287 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 10. UNITED NATIONS BUDGETARY AND MANAGEMENT REFORM.

"(a) WITHHOLDING OF CONTRIBUTIONS.—

"(1) ASSESSED CONTRIBUTIONS FOR REGULAR UNITED NATIONS BUDGET.—At the beginning of each fiscal year, 20 percent of the amount of funds made available for that fiscal year for United States assessed contributions for the regular United Nations budget shall be withheld from obligation and expenditure unless a certification for that fiscal year has been made under subsection (b).

"(2) ASSESSED CONTRIBUTIONS FOR UNITED NATIONS PEACEKEEPING.—At the beginning of each fiscal year, 50 percent of the amount of funds made available for that fiscal year for United States assessed contributions for United Nations peacekeeping activities shall be withheld from obligation and expenditure unless a certification for that fiscal year has been made under subsection (b).

"(3) VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTIONS FOR UNITED NATIONS PEACEKEEPING.—The United States may not during any fiscal year pay any voluntary contribution to the United Nations for international peacekeeping activities unless a certification for that fiscal year has been made under subsection (b).

"(b) CERTIFICATION.—The certification referred to in subsection (a) for any fiscal year is a certification by the President to the Congress, submitted on or after the beginning of that fiscal year, of each of the following:

"(1) The United Nations has an independent office of Inspector General to conduct and supervise objective audits, inspections, and investigations relating to programs and operations of the United Nations.

"(2) The United Nations has an Inspector General who was appointed by the Secretary General with the approval of the General Assembly and whose appointment was made principally on the basis of the appointee's integrity and demonstrated ability in accounting, auditing, financial analysis, law, management analysis, public administration, or investigation.

"(3) The Inspector General is authorized to—

"(A) make investigations and reports relating to the administration of the programs and operations of the United Nations;

"(B) have access to all relevant records, documents, and other available materials relating to those programs and operations; and

"(C) have direct and prompt access to any official of the United Nations.

"(4) The United Nations has fully implemented, and made available to all member states, procedures designed to protect the identity of, and prevent reprisals against, any staff member of the United Nations making a complaint or disclosing information to, or cooperating in any investigation or inspection by, the United Nations Inspector General.

"(5) The United Nations has fully implemented procedures designed to ensure compliance with recommendations of the United Nations Inspector General.

"(6) The United Nations has required the United Nations Inspector General to issue an annual report and has ensured that the annual report and all other relevant reports of the Inspector General are made available to the General Assembly without modification.

"(7) The United Nations is committed to providing, sufficient budgetary resources to ensure the effective operation of the United Nations Inspector General.".

(2) Section 10 of the United Nations Participation Act of 1945, as added by paragraph (1), shall apply only with respect to fiscal years after fiscal year 1996.

(b) WITHHOLDING OF CONTRIBUTIONS RELATED TO CONTRACTING OF THE UNITED NATIONS.—The United Nations Participation Act of 1945 (22 U.S.C. 287 et seq.) is further amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 11. WITHHOLDING OF CONTRIBUTIONS.

"(a) WITHHOLDING OF CONTRIBUTIONS RELATED TO TIMELY NOTICE OF CONTRACT OPPORTUNITIES AND CONTRACT AWARDS.—

"(1) WITHHOLDING OF ASSESSED CONTRIBUTIONS FOR REGULAR UNITED NATIONS BUDGET.—For fiscal year 1997 and for each subsequent fiscal year, 3 percent of the amount of funds made available for that fiscal year for United States assessed contributions for the regular United Nations budget shall be withheld from obligation and expenditure unless a certification for that fiscal year has been made under paragraph (2).

"(2) CERTIFICATION.—The certification referred to in paragraph (1) for any fiscal year is a certification by the President to the Congress, submitted on or after the beginning of that fiscal year, that the United Nations has implemented a system requiring (A) prior notification for the submission of all qualified bid proposals on all United Nations procurement opportunities of more than $100,000, and (B) a public announcement of the award of any contract of more than $100,000. To the extent practicable, notifications shall be made in a widely available business-related publication.

"(b) WITHHOLDING OF CONTRIBUTIONS RELATED TO DISCRIMINATION AGAINST COMPANIES WHICH CHALLENGE CONTRACT AWARDS.—

"(1) WITHHOLDING OF ASSESSED CONTRIBUTIONS FOR REGULAR UNITED NATIONS BUDGET.—For fiscal year 1997 and for each subsequent fiscal year, 3 percent of the amount of funds made available for that fiscal year for United States assessed contributions for the regular United Nations budget shall be withheld from obligation and expenditure unless a certification for that fiscal year has been made under paragraph (2).

"(2) CERTIFICATION.—The certification referred to in paragraph (1) for any fiscal year is a certification by the President to the Congress, submitted on or after the beginning of that fiscal year, that the procurement regulations of the United Nations prohibit punitive actions such as the suspension of contract eligibility for contractors who challenge contract awards or complain about delayed payments.

"(c) WITHHOLDING OF CONTRIBUTIONS RELATED TO ESTABLISHMENT OF A UNITED NATIONS CONTRACT REVIEW PROCESS.—

"(1) WITHHOLDING OF ASSESSED CONTRIBUTIONS FOR REGULAR UNITED NATIONS BUDGET.—For fiscal year 1998 and for each subsequent fiscal year, 3 percent of the amount of funds made available for that fiscal year for United States assessed contributions for the regular United Nations budget shall be withheld from obligation and expenditure unless a certification for that fiscal year has been made under paragraph (2).

"(2) CERTIFICATION.—The certification referred to in paragraph (1) for any fiscal year is a certification by the President to the Congress, submitted on or after the beginning of that fiscal year, that the United Nations has established a contract review process for contracts of more than $100,000 and a process to assure unsuccessful bidders a timely opportunity to challenge awards for contracts of more than $100,000 that such bidders consider to have been made improperly.".

(c) PROCUREMENT INFORMATION.—Section 4(d) of the United Nations Participation Act of 1945 (22 U.S.C. 287b(d)), as amended by section 407 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995 (Public Law 103–236) is amended in paragraph (2)(B) by inserting before the period ", including local procurement contracts".

SEC. 1524. LIMITATION ON ASSESSMENT PERCENTAGE FOR PEACEKEEPING ACTIVITIES.

(a) AMENDMENT TO THE UNPA.—The United Nations Participation Act of 1945 (22 U.S.C. 287 et seq.), as amended by this Act, is further amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 12. CONTRIBUTIONS FOR PEACEKEEPING ACTIVITIES.

"(a) REASSESSMENT OF CONTRIBUTION PERCENTAGES.—The Permanent Representative of the United States to the United Nations should make every effort to ensure that the United Nations completes an overall review and reassessment of each nation's assessed contributions for United Nations peacekeeping operations. As part of the overall review and assessment, the Permanent Representative should make every effort to advance the concept that, when appropriate, host governments and other governments in the region where a United Nations peacekeeping operation is carried out should bear a greater burden of its financial cost.

"(b) LIMITATION ON ASSESSED CONTRIBUTION WITH RESPECT TO A PEACEKEEPING OPERATION.—(1) Funds authorized to be appropriated for 'Contributions for International Peacekeeping Activities' for any fiscal year shall not be available for the payment of the United States assessed contribution for a United Nations peacekeeping operation in an amount which is greater than 25 percent of the total amount of all assessed contributions for that operation, and any arrearages that accumulate as a result of assessments in excess of 25 percent of the total amount of all assessed contributions for any United Nations peacekeeping operation shall not be recognized or paid by the United States.

"(2) Any penalties, interest, or other charges imposed on the United States in connection with such contributions shall be credited as a part of the percentage limitation contained in the preceding sentence.".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The limitation contained in section 12(b) of the United Nations Participation Act of 1945, as added by subsection (a), shall apply only with respect to funds authorized to be appropriated for "Contributions for International Peacekeeping Activities" for fiscal years after fiscal year 1995.

(c) CONFORMING REPEAL.—Section 404 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995, is repealed.

SEC. 1525. ANNUAL REPORT ON UNITED STATES CONTRIBUTIONS TO UNITED NATIONS PEACEKEEPING ACTIVITIES.

Section 4(d)(1) of the United Nations Participation Act of 1945 (22 U.S.C. 287b(d)(1)) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subparagraph (D) as subparagraph (E); and

(2) by inserting after subparagraph (C) the following new subparagraph:

"(D) A description of the anticipated budget for the next fiscal year for United States participation in United Nations peacekeeping activities, including a statement of the aggregate amount of funds (from all accounts) and the aggregate costs of in-kind contributions that the United States proposes to make available to the United Nations for that fiscal year for United Nations peacekeeping activities.".

SEC. 1526. PRIOR CONGRESSIONAL NOTIFICATION OF SECURITY COUNCIL VOTES ON UNITED NATIONS PEACEKEEPING ACTIVITIES.

Section 4 of the United Nations Participation Act of 1945 (22 U.S.C. 287b) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (e) as subsection (f); and

(2) by inserting after subsection (d) the following:

"(e) NOTICE TO CONGRESS OF PROPOSED UNITED NATIONS PEACEKEEPING ACTIVITIES.—(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), at least 5 days before any vote in the Security Council to initiate, expand, or modify any United Nations peacekeeping activity or any other action under the Charter of the United Nations which would involve the use of United States Armed Forces, the President shall submit to the designated congressional committees a notification with respect to the proposed action. The notification shall include the following:

"(A) A cost assessment of such action (including the total estimated cost and the United States share of such cost).

"(B) Identification of the source of funding for the United States share of the costs of the action (whether in an annual budget request, reprogramming notification, a rescission of funds, a budget amendment, or a supplemental budget request).

"(2)(A) If the President determines that an emergency exists which prevents submission of the 5-day advance notification specified in paragraph (1) and that the proposed action is in the national security interests of the United States, the notification described in paragraph (1) shall be provided in a timely manner but no later than 48 hours after the vote by the Security Council.

"(B) Determinations made under subparagraph (A) may not be delegated.".

SEC. 1527. CODIFICATION OF REQUIRED NOTICE TO CONGRESS OF PROPOSED UNITED NATIONS PEACEKEEPING ACTIVITIES.

(a) REQUIRED NOTICE.—Section 4 of the United Nations Participation Act of 1945 (22 U.S.C. 287b) is amended—

(1) by striking the second sentence of subsection (a);

(2) by redesignating subsections (e) and (f) (as redesignated by the preceding section) as subsections (f) and (g), respectively; and

(3) by inserting after subsection (d) a new subsection (e) consisting of the text of subsection (a) of section 407 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995 (Public Law 103–236), revised—

(A) in paragraph (2)—

(i) in the matter preceding subparagraph (A), by inserting "in written form not later than the 10th day of" after "shall be provided";

(ii) in subparagraph (A)(iv), by inserting "(including facilities, training, transportation, communication, and logistical support, but not including intelligence activities reportable under title V of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 413 et seq.))" after "covered by the resolution"; and

(iii) in subparagraph (B), by adding at the end the following new clause:

"(iv) A description of any other United States assistance to or support for the operation (including facilities, training, transportation, communication, and logistical support, but not including intelligence activities reportable under title V of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 413 et seq.)), and an estimate of the cost to the United States of such assistance or support.";

(B) by striking paragraph (3);

(C) by redesignating paragraph (4) as paragraph (3) and in the last sentence of subparagraph (A) of that paragraph by striking "and (ii)" and inserting "through (iv)";

(D) by inserting after paragraph (3) (as so redesignated) the following new paragraph:

"(4) NEW UNITED NATIONS PEACEKEEPING OPERATION DEFINED.—As used in paragraphs (2)(B) and (3), the term 'new United Nations peacekeeping operation' includes any existing or otherwise ongoing United Nations peacekeeping operation—

"(A) that is to be expanded by more than 25 percent during the period covered by the Security Council resolution, as measured by either the number of personnel participating (or authorized to participate) in the operation or the budget of the operation; or

"(B) that is to be authorized to operate in a country in which it was not previously authorized to operate."; and

(E) in paragraph (5)—

(i) by striking "(5) NOTIFICATION" and all that follows through "(B) The President" and inserting "(5) QUARTERLY REPORTS.—The President"; and

(ii) by striking "section 4(d)" and all that follows through "of this section)" and inserting "subsection (d)".

(b) CONFORMING REPEAL.—Subsection (a) of section 407 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995 (Public Law 103–236), is repealed.

(c) DESIGNATED CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES.—Subsection (g) of section 4 of the United Nations Participation Act of 1945 (22 U.S.C. 287b(g)), as redesignated by subsection (a), is amended to read as follows:

"(g) DESIGNATED CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES.—As used in this section, the term 'designated congressional committees' means the Committee on Appropriations and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Committee on Appropriations and the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives.".

SEC. 1528. RESTRICTIONS ON INTELLIGENCE SHARING WITH THE UNITED NATIONS.

"SEC. 13. RESTRICTIONS ON INTELLIGENCE SHARING WITH THE UNITED NATIONS.

"(a) PROVISION OF INTELLIGENCE INFORMATION TO THE UNITED NATIONS.—(1) No United States intelligence information may be provided to the United Nations or any organization affiliated with the United Nations, or to any official or employee thereof, unless the President certifies to the Committee on Foreign Relations and the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate and the Committee on International Relations and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives that the Director of Central Intelligence (in this section referred to as the 'DCI'), in consultation with the Secretary of State and the Secretary of Defense, has required, and such organization has established and implemented, procedures for protecting intelligence sources and methods (including protection from release to nations and foreign nationals that are otherwise not eligible to receive such information) no less stringent than procedures maintained by nations with which the United States regularly shares similar types of intelligence information. Such certification shall include a description of the procedures in effect at such organization.

"(2) Paragraph (1) may be waived upon written certification by the President to the appropriate committees of Congress that providing such information to the United Nations or an organization affiliated with the United Nations, or to any official or employee thereof, is in the national security interest of the United States and that all possible measures protecting such information have been taken, except that such waiver must be made for each instance such information is provided, or for each such document provided.

"(b) PERIODIC AND SPECIAL REPORTS.—(1) The President shall periodically report, but not less frequently than quarterly, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate and the Committee on International Relations and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives on the types and volume of intelligence provided to the United Nations and the purposes for which it was provided during the period covered by the report. Such periodic reports shall be submitted to the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives with an annex containing a counterintelligence and security assessment of all risks, including an evaluation of any potential adverse impact on national collection systems, of providing intelligence to the United Nations, together with information on how such risks have been addressed.

"(2) The President shall submit a special report to the Committee on Foreign Relations and the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate and the Committee on International Relations and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives within 15 days after the United States Government becomes aware of any unauthorized disclosure of intelligence provided to the United Nations by the United States.

"(c) LIMITATION.—The restrictions of subsection (a) and the requirement for periodic reports under paragraph (1) of subsection (a) shall not apply to the provision of intelligence that is provided only to, and for the use of, appropriately cleared United States Government personnel serving with the United Nations.

"(d) DELEGATION OF DUTIES.—The President may not delegate or assign the duties of the President under subsection (a).

"(e) RELATIONSHIP TO EXISTING LAW.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to—

"(1) impair or otherwise affect the authority of the Director of Central Intelligence to protect intelligence sources and methods from unauthorized disclosure pursuant to section 103(c)(5) of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 403–3(c)(5)); or

"(2) supersede or otherwise affect the provisions of title V of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 413 et seq.).".

TITLE XVI—FOREIGN POLICY PROVISIONS

SEC. 1601. APPLICABILITY OF TAIWAN RELATIONS ACT.

"(d) The provisions of subsections (a) and (b) supersede any provision of the Joint Communique of the United States and China of August 17, 1982.".

SEC. 1602. REPORT ON OCCUPIED TIBET.

(a) REPORT ON UNITED STATES-TIBET RELATIONS.—Not later than 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act, and every 12 months thereafter, the Secretary of State shall submit to the Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives a report on the state of relations between the United States and those recognized by Congress as the true representatives of the Tibetan people, the Dalai Lama, his representatives, and the Tibetan Government in exile, and on conditions in Tibet.

(b) SEPARATE TIBET REPORTS.—

(1) It is the sense of the Congress that whenever an executive branch report is transmitted to the Congress on a country-by-country basis there should be included in such report, where applicable, a separate report on Tibet listed alphabetically with its own state heading.

(2) The reports referred to in paragraph (1) include, but are not limited to, reports transmitted under sections 116(d) and 502B(b) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (relating to human rights).

SEC. 1603. TAIPEI REPRESENTATIVE OFFICE.

For purposes of carrying out its activities in the United States, the instrumentality known as the Taipei Economic and Cultural Representative Office as of the date of enactment of this Act shall, on and after such date, be permitted to operate under the name "Taipei Representative Office".

SEC. 1604. EFFORTS AGAINST EMERGING INFECTIOUS DISEASES.

(a) PRIORITIZATION.—The President shall give urgent priority to the strengthening of efforts against emerging infectious diseases through the development of appropriate United States Government strategies and response mechanisms.

(b) STRATEGIC PLAN.—Not later than 6 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall submit to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate a report outlining a United States strategic plan, in cooperation with the international public health infrastructure, to identify and respond to the threat of emerging infectious diseases to the health of the people of the United States.

SEC. 1605. STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.

Section 33 of the Arms Control and Disarmament Act (22 U.S.C. 2573) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(c) STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing contained in this chapter shall be construed to authorize any policy or action by any Government agency which would interfere with, restrict, or prohibit the acquisition, possession, or use of firearms by an individual for the lawful purpose of personal defense, sport, recreation, education, or training.".

SEC. 1606. REPORTS REGARDING HONG KONG.

(a) EXTENSION OF REPORTING REQUIREMENT.—Section 301 of the United States-Hong Kong Policy Act of 1992 (22 U.S.C. 5731) is amended in the text above paragraph (1) by striking "and March 31, 2000," and inserting "March 31, 2000, and every year thereafter,".

(b) ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS.—In light of deficiencies in reports submitted to the Congress pursuant to section 301 of the United States-Hong Kong Policy Act of 1992 (22 U.S.C. 5731), reports required to be submitted under that section on or after the date of enactment of this Act shall include detailed information on the status of, and other developments affecting, implementation of the Sino-British Joint Declaration on the Question of Hong Kong, including—

(1) the Basic Law and its consistency with the Joint Declaration;

(2) the openness and fairness of elections to the legislature;

(3) the openness and fairness of the election of the chief executive and the executive's accountability to the legislature;

(4) the treatment of political parties;

(5) the independence of the judiciary and its ability to exercise the power of final judgment over Hong Kong law;

(6) the Bill of Rights;

(7) a list of all treaties and international agreements (including multilateral conventions) in force as of July 1, 1997, between the United States and Hong Kong, or between the United States and the United Kingdom which apply to Hong Kong; and

(8) a short description of the extent to which Hong Kong is carrying out and has the capacity to carry out its commitments and obligations under each treaty or international agreement under paragraph (7).

SEC. 1607. THE UNITED STATES-NORTH KOREA AGREED FRAMEWORK OF OCTOBER 21, 1994, AND THE KOREAN PENINSULA ENERGY DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATION (KEDO).

(a) CLARIFICATION OF NUCLEAR NON-PROLIFERATION OBLIGATIONS OF NORTH KOREA UNDER THE AGREED FRAMEWORK.—It is the sense of the Congress that in discussions or negotiations with the Government of North Korea pursuant to the implementation of the United States-Democratic People's Republic of Korea Agreed Framework entered into on October 21, 1994, the President should uphold the following minimum conditions relating to nuclear nonproliferation:

(1) All spent fuel from the graphite-moderated nuclear reactors and related facilities of North Korea should be removed from the territory of North Korea as is consistent with the Agreed Framework.

(2) The International Atomic Energy Agency should have the freedom to conduct any and all inspections that it deems necessary to fully account for the stocks of plutonium and other nuclear materials in North Korea, including special inspections of suspected nuclear waste sites, before any nuclear components controlled by the Nuclear Supplier Group Guidelines are delivered for a light water reactor for North Korea.

(3) The dismantlement of all declared graphite-based nuclear reactors and related facilities in North Korea, including reprocessing units, should be completed in accordance with the Agreed Framework and in a manner that effectively bars in perpetuity any reactivation of such reactors and facilities.

(4) The United States should suspend actions described in the Agreed Framework if North Korea reloads its existing 5 megawatt nuclear reactor or resumes construction of nuclear facilities other than those permitted to be built under the Agreed Framework.

(b) ROLE OF THE REPUBLIC OF KOREA UNDER THE AGREED FRAMEWORK.—It is further the sense of the Congress that the Republic of Korea should play the central role in the project to provide light water reactors to North Korea under the Agreed Framework.

(c) FURTHER STEPS TO PROMOTE UNITED STATES SECURITY AND POLITICAL INTERESTS WITH RESPECT TO NORTH KOREA.—It is further the sense of the Congress that, after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President should not take further steps toward upgrading diplomatic relations with North Korea beyond opening liaison offices or relaxing trade and investment barriers imposed against North Korea without—

(1) consistent and sustained efforts by the Government of North Korea to engage in a substantive North-South dialogue with the Government of the Republic of Korea;

(2) significant progress toward implementation of the North-South Joint Declaration on the Denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula; and

(3) progress toward the achievement of several long-standing United States policy objectives regarding North Korea and the Korean Peninsula, including—

(A) reducing the number of military forces of North Korea along the Demilitarized Zone and relocating such military forces away from the Demilitarized Zone;

(B) prohibiting any movement by North Korea toward the deployment of an intermediate range ballistic missile system;

(C) prohibiting the export by North Korea of missiles and other weapons of mass destruction, including related technology and components;

(D) obtaining positive and productive cooperation from North Korea on the recovery of remains of Americans missing in action from the Korean War without consenting to exorbitant demands by North Korea for financial compensation; and

(E) achieving credible assurances and intelligence confirmation that North Korea has ended its participation in and support of international terrorism.

(d) RESTRICTIONS ON ASSISTANCE TO NORTH KOREA AND THE KOREAN PENINSULA ENERGY DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 1 of part III of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2370 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 620G. ASSISTANCE TO NORTH KOREA AND THE KOREAN PENINSULA ENERGY DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATION.

"(a) LIMITATION.—No assistance may be provided under this Act or any other provision of law to North Korea or the Korean Peninsula Energy Development Organization unless—

"(1) such assistance is provided in accordance with all requirements, limitations, and procedures otherwise applicable to the provision of such assistance for such purposes; and

"(2) the President—

"(A) notifies the congressional committees specified in section 634A(a) of this Act prior to the obligation of such assistance in accordance with the procedures applicable to reprogramming notifications under that section, irrespective of the amount of the proposed obligation of such assistance; and

"(B) determines and reports to such committees that the provision of such assistance is vital to the national security of the United States.

"(b) EXCEPTION.—The requirement of subsection (a)(2)(B) shall not apply with respect to assistance authorized to be appropriated and appropriated for North Korea or the Korean Peninsula Energy Development Organization.".

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Section 620G of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as added by subsection (a), applies with respect to assistance provided to North Korea or the Korean Peninsula Energy Development Organization on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 1608. INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL COURT PARTICIPATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The United States may not participate in an international criminal court with jurisdiction over crimes of an international character except to the extent and in the manner authorized—

(1) by a treaty entered into in accordance with Article II, section 2, clause 2 of the Constitution; or

(2) by a law enacted in accordance with Article I, section 7 of the Constitution.

(b) DEFINITIONS.—As used in subsection (a)—

(1) the term "participate" means consent to the jurisdiction of, recognize the validity of the decisions of, or extradite or otherwise render suspects to, an international criminal court with jurisdiction over crimes of an international character; and

(2) the term "international criminal court with jurisdiction over crimes of an international character" does not include any international war crimes tribunal established prior to the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 1609. PROHIBITION ON THE TRANSFER OF ARMS TO INDONESIA.

Consistent with section 582 of the Foreign Operations Export Financing and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1995 (Public Law 103–306), the United States is prohibited from selling or licensing for export to the Government of Indonesia light arms, small weapons, and crowd control ordnances, including helicopter-mounted equipment, until the Secretary of State determines and reports to the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives that there has been significant progress made on human rights in East Timor and elsewhere in Indonesia, including—

(1) compliance with the recommendations in the United Nations Special Rapporteur's January 1992 report and the March 1993 recommendations of the United Nations Human Rights Commission;

(2) significant reduction in Indonesia's troop presence in East Timor;

(3) thorough and impartial investigation of gangs and violent civilian groups operating in East Timor;

(4) improved access to East Timor for Indonesian and international human rights and humanitarian organizations and journalists, including the deployment of United Nations human rights monitors if so requested;

(5) constructive participation in the United Nations Secretary General's efforts to resolve the status of East Timor; and

(6) greater local control over political, economic, and cultural affairs, with an aim toward resolving the future status of East Timor.

SEC. 1610. BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA SELF-DEFENSE FUND.

(a) AUTHORITY FOR ESTABLISHMENT.—

(1) Subject to the other provisions of this section, the President is authorized to enter into an international agreement with eligible countries for the establishment of a fund to assist the self-defense of Bosnia and Herzegovina, which may be known as the "Multilateral Bosnia and Herzegovina Self-Defense Fund".

(2) The Secretary of State is authorized to transfer to the custody of the international board having responsibility for the Fund defense articles from the stocks of the Department of Defense and defense services of the Department of Defense transferred or available for transfer pursuant to section 540 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1996 (Public Law 104–107), or pursuant to any similar provision of law.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of the Fund shall be to provide an international mechanism for the procurement of military equipment and training for transfer to the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina for the exercise of its right to self-defense under Article 51 of the United Nations Charter, and to facilitate the achievement of a lasting peace by enabling the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina to protect its population and territory.

(c) REQUIREMENTS.—An agreement referred to in subsection (a) shall meet the following requirements:

(1) UNITED STATES REPRESENTATION.—The United States will chair any international board having responsibility for the Fund.

(2) CONTROL OF MILITARY EQUIPMENT.—The agreement will provide procedures for the control of military equipment received by the international board having responsibility for the Fund.

(3) COMMITMENT BY THE GOVERNMENT OF BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA.—Before any military equipment or training purchased or otherwise acquired through the Fund, or held by the international board responsible for the Fund, may be transferred to the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina, that Government will provide written assurances that the equipment or training will not be used to take reprisals against any civilians.

(d) REPORT ON EFFORTS TO ENABLE THE FEDERATION OF BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA TO PROVIDE FOR ITS OWN DEFENSE.—Within 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall submit a detailed report to the Congress on the administration's plan to assist the Federation of Bosnia to provide for its own defense, including the role of the United States and other countries in providing such assistance. Such report shall include an evaluation of the defense needs of the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina, including, to the maximum extent possible—

(1) the types and quantities of arms, spare parts, and logistics support required to establish a stable military balance prior to the withdrawal of United States Armed Forces;

(2) the nature and scope of training to be provided;

(3) a detailed description of the past, present, and future United States role in ensuring that the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina is provided as rapidly as possible with equipment, training, arms, and related logistic assistance of the highest possible quality;

(4) administration plans to use existing military drawdown authority and other assistance authorities pursuant to this section; and

(5) specific or anticipated commitments by third countries to provide arms, equipment, or training to the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

The report shall be submitted in unclassified form, but may contain a classified annex.

(e) DEFINITIONS.—As used in this section:

(1) ELIGIBLE COUNTRIES.—The term "eligible countries" includes any foreign country other than a country the government of which the Secretary of State has determined, in accordance with section 6(j)(1)(A) of the Export Administration Act of 1979, repeatedly provides support for acts of international terrorism.

(2) FUND.—The term "Fund" means the fund established as provided in subsection (a).

(3) GOVERNMENT OF BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA.—The term "Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina" includes any agency, instrumentality, or forces of the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

(f) STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall be interpreted as authorization for the deployment of United States forces in the territory of Bosnia and Herzegovina for any purpose, including training, support, or delivery of military equipment.

SEC. 1611. REPORTS TO CONGRESS ON ASPECTS OF IMPLEMENTATION OF THE GENERAL FRAMEWORK AGREEMENT.

(a) MILITARY ASPECTS.—Thirty days after the date of the enactment of this Act, and at least once every 60 days thereafter until all United States Armed Forces are withdrawn from Bosnia and Herzegovina, the President shall submit to the Congress a report on the status of the deployment of United States Armed Forces in Bosnia and Herzegovina, including a detailed description of the following:

(1) Criteria for determining success for the deployment.

(2) The military mission and objectives.

(3) Milestones for measuring progress in achieving the mission and objectives.

(4) Command arrangements for United States Armed Forces.

(5) The rules of engagement for United States Armed Forces.

(6) The multilateral composition of forces in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

(7) The status of compliance by all parties with the General Framework Agreement and associated Annexes, including Article III of Annex 1–A concerning the withdrawal of foreign forces from Bosnia and Herzegovina.

(8) All incremental costs of the Department of Defense and any costs incurred by other Federal agencies, for the deployment of United States Armed Forces in Bosnia and Herzegovina, including support for the NATO Implementation Force.

(9) The exit strategy to provide for complete withdrawal of United States Armed Forces in the NATO Implementation Force, including an estimated date of completion.

(10) A description of progress toward enabling the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina to provide for its own defense.

Reports under this section shall include a description of any changes in the areas listed in paragraphs (1) through (10) since the previous report, if applicable. Reports shall be submitted in unclassified form, but may contain a classified annex.

(b) NONMILITARY ASPECTS.—Thirty days after the date of the enactment of this Act, and at least once every 60 days thereafter, until all United States Armed Forces withdraw from Bosnia and Herzegovina, the President shall submit to the Congress a report on the following:

(1) The status of implementation of nonmilitary aspects of the General Framework Agreement and associated Annexes, especially Annex 10 on Civilian Implementation, and of efforts, which are separate from the Implementation Force, by the United States and other countries to support implementation of the nonmilitary aspects. Such report shall include a detailed description of—

(A) progress toward conducting of elections;

(B) the status of refugees and displaced persons;

(C) humanitarian and reconstruction efforts;

(D) police training and related civilian security efforts, including the status of the implementation of Annex 11 regarding an international police task force; and

(E) implementation of Article XIII of Annex 6 concerning cooperation with the International Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia and other appropriate organizations in the investigation and prosecution of war crimes and other violations of international humanitarian law.

(2) The status of coordination between the High Representative and the Implementation Force Commander.

(3) The status of plans and preparation for the continuation of civilian activities after the withdrawal of the Implementation Force.

(4) All costs incurred by all United States Government agencies for reconstruction, refugee, humanitarian, and all other nonmilitary bilateral and multilateral assistance in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

(5) United States and international diplomatic efforts to contain and end conflict in the former Yugoslavia, including efforts to resolve the status of Kosova and halt violations of internationally recognized human rights of its majority Albanian population.

(6) The progress of efforts to establish a United States Information Agency facility in Pristina, Kosova.

Reports under this subsection shall be submitted in unclassified form, but may contain a classified annex.

SEC. 1612. VERIFICATION OF MISSILE TECHNOLOGY CONTROL REGIME.

Not later than 6 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency shall submit to the Congress a report on the capability of the United States to verify the Missile Technology Control Regime, including any applicable United States policy statements, pursuant to section 37 of the Arms Control and Disarmament Act.

(a) REPEAL.—Part D of the Nuclear Proliferation Prevention Act of 1994 (part D of title VIII of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995; Public Law 103–236; 108 Stat. 525) is hereby repealed.

SEC. 1614. PAYMENT OF IRAQI CLAIMS.

(a) VESTING OF ASSETS.—All nondiplomatic accounts of the Government of Iraq in the United States that have been blocked pursuant to the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (50 U.S.C. 1701 et seq.) shall vest in the President and the President, not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, shall liquidate such accounts. Amounts from such liquidation shall be transferred into the Iraq Claims Fund established under subsection (b).

(b) IRAQ CLAIMS FUND.—Upon the vesting of accounts under subsection (a), the Secretary of the Treasury shall establish in the Treasury of the United States a fund to be known as the Iraq Claims Fund (hereafter in this section referred to as the "Fund") for payment of private claims or United States Government claims in accordance with subsection (c).

(c) PAYMENTS.—

(1) PAYMENTS ON PRIVATE CLAIMS.—Not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Treasury shall make payment out of the Fund in ratable proportions on private claims certified under subsection (e) according to the proportions which the total amount of the private claims so certified bear to the total amount in the Fund that is available for distribution at the time such payments are made.

(2) PAYMENTS ON U.S. GOVERNMENT CLAIMS.—After payment has been made in full out of the Fund on all private claims certified under subsection (e), any funds remaining in the Fund shall be made available to satisfy claims of the United States Government against the Government of Iraq determined under subsection (d).

(d) DETERMINATION OF VALIDITY OF U.S. GOVERNMENT CLAIMS.—The President shall determine the validity and amounts of claims of the Government of the United States against the Government of Iraq which the Secretary of State has determined are outside the jurisdiction of the United Nations Commission, and, to the extent that such claims are not satisfied from funds made available by the Fund, the President is authorized and requested to enter into a settlement agreement with the Government of Iraq which would provide for the payment of such unsatisfied claims.

(e) DETERMINATION OF PRIVATE CLAIMS.—

(1) AUTHORITY OF THE FOREIGN CLAIMS SETTLEMENT COMMISSION.—The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission of the United States is authorized to receive and determine, in accordance with substantive law, including international law, the validity and amounts of private claims. The Commission shall complete its affairs in connection with the determination of private claims under this section within such time as is necessary to allow the payment of the claims under subsection (c)(1).

(2) APPLICABILITY.—Except to the extent inconsistent with the provisions of this section, the provisions of title I of the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949 (22 U.S.C. 1621 et seq.) shall apply with respect to private claims under this section. Any reference in such provisions to "this title" shall be deemed to refer to those provisions and to this section.

(3) CERTIFICATION.—The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission shall certify to the Secretary of the Treasury the awards made in favor of each private claim under paragraph (1).

(f) UNSATISFIED CLAIMS.—Payment of any award made pursuant to this section shall not extinguish any unsatisfied claim, or be construed to have divested any claimant, or the United States on his or her behalf, of any rights against the Government of Iraq with respect to any unsatisfied claim.

(g) DEFINITIONS.—As used in this section—

(1) the term "Government of Iraq" includes agencies, instrumentalities, and controlled entities (including public sector enterprises) of that government;

(2) the term "private claims" mean claims of United States persons against the Government of Iraq that are determined by the Secretary of State to be outside the jurisdiction of the United Nations Commission;

(3) the term "United Nations Commission" means the United Nations Compensation Commission established pursuant to United Nations Security Council Resolution 687, adopted in 1991; and

(4) the term "United States person"—

(A) includes—

(i) any person, wherever located, who is a citizen of the United States;

(ii) any corporation, partnership, association, or other legal entity organized under the laws of the United States or of any State, the District of Columbia, or any commonwealth, territory, or possession of the United States; and

(iii) any corporation, partnership, association, or other organization, wherever organized or doing business, which is owned or controlled by persons described in clause (i) or (ii); and

(B) does not include the United States Government or any officer or employee of the United States Government acting in an official capacity.

SEC. 1615. INTERNATIONAL FUND FOR IRELAND.

(a) FUNDING.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Of the amounts made available for fiscal years 1996 and 1997 for assistance under chapter 4 of part II of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2346 et seq.; relating to the economic support fund), not more than $19,600,000 for each of the fiscal years 1996 and 1997 shall be available for the United States contribution to the International Fund for Ireland in accordance with the Anglo-Irish Agreement Support Act of 1986 (Public Law 99–415).

(2) AVAILABILITY.—Amounts made available under paragraph (1) are authorized to remain available until expended.

(b) ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS.—

"(4) the extent to which the practices of each individual or entity receiving assistance from United States contributions to the International Fund has been consistent with the principles of economic justice.".

(5) REQUIREMENTS RELATING TO FUNDS.—Section 7 of such Act is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(c) PROHIBITION.—Nothing included herein shall require quotas or reverse discrimination or mandate their use.".

(6) DEFINITIONS.—Section 8 of such Act is amended—

(A) in paragraph (1), by striking "and" at the end;

(B) in paragraph (2), by striking the period at the end and inserting "; and"; and

(C) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(3) the term 'principles of economic justice' means the following principles:

"(A) Increasing the representation of individuals from underrepresented religious groups in the workforce, including managerial, supervisory, administrative, clerical, and technical jobs.

"(B) Providing adequate security for the protection of minority employees at the workplace.

"(C) Banning provocative sectarian or political emblems from the workplace.

"(D) Providing that all job openings be advertised publicly and providing that special recruitment efforts be made to attract applicants from underrepresented religious groups.

"(E) Providing that layoff, recall, and termination procedures do not favor a particular religious group.

"(F) Abolishing job reservations, apprenticeship restrictions, and differential employment criteria which discriminate on the basis of religion.

"(G) Providing for the development of training programs that will prepare substantial numbers of minority employees for skilled jobs, including the expansion of existing programs and the creation of new programs to train, upgrade, and improve the skills of minority employees.

"(H) Establishing procedures to assess, identify, and actively recruit minority employees with the potential for further advancement.

"(I) Providing for the appointment of a senior management staff member to be responsible for the employment efforts of the entity and, within a reasonable period of time, the implementation of the principles described in subparagraphs (A) through (H).".

SEC. 1616. DEOBLIGATION OF CERTAIN UNEXPENDED ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE FUNDS.

"(a) REQUIREMENT TO DEOBLIGATE.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (b) of this section and in paragraphs (1) and (3) of section 617(a) of this Act, at the beginning of each fiscal year the President shall deobligate and return to the Treasury, any funds described in paragraph (2) that, as of the end of the preceding fiscal year, have been obligated for a project or activity for a period of more than 3 years but have not been expended.

"(2) FUNDS.—Paragraph (1) applies to funds made available for—

"(A) assistance under chapter 1 of part I of this Act (relating to development assistance), chapter 10 of part I of this Act (relating to the Development Fund for Africa), or chapter 4 of part II of this Act (relating to the economic support fund);

"(B) assistance under the 'Multilateral Assistance Initiative for the Philippines';

"(C) assistance under the Support for East European Democracy (SEED) Act of 1989; and

"(D) economic assistance for the independent states of the former Soviet Union under this Act or under any other Act authorizing economic assistance for such independent states.

"(b) EXCEPTIONS.—The President, on a case-by-case basis, may waive the requirement of subsection (a)(1) if the President determines, and reports to the appropriate congressional committees, that—

"(1) the funds are being used for a construction project that requires more than 3 years to complete; or

"(2) the funds have not been expended because of unforeseen circumstances, and those circumstances could not have been reasonably foreseen.

"(c) COMMENTS BY INSPECTOR GENERAL.—As soon as possible after the submission of a report pursuant to subsection (b), the Inspector General of the agency primarily responsible for administering part I of this Act shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees such comments as the Inspector General considers appropriate with regard to the determination described in that report.

"(d) APPROPRIATE CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES.—As used in this section, the term 'appropriate congressional committees' means the Committee on International Relations and the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Foreign Relations and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate.".

SEC. 1617. LIMITATION ON ASSISTANCE TO COUNTRIES THAT RESTRICT THE TRANSPORT OR DELIVERY OF UNITED STATES HUMANITARIAN ASSISTANCE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The United States Federal budget deficit and spending constraints require the maximum efficiency in the usage of United States foreign assistance.

(2) The delivery of humanitarian assistance to people in need is consistent with the fundamental values of our Nation and is an important component of United States foreign policy.

(3) As a matter of principle and in furtherance of fiscal prudence, the United States should seek to promote the delivery of humanitarian assistance to people in need in a manner that is both timely and cost effective.

(4) Recipients of United States assistance should not hinder or delay the transport or delivery of United States humanitarian assistance to other countries.

(b) PROHIBITION ON ASSISTANCE.—Section 620 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2370), as amended by this Act, is further amended by inserting after subsection (v) (as added by this Act) the following new subsection:

"(w)(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, United States assistance may not be made available for any country whose government prohibits or otherwise restricts, directly or indirectly, the transport or delivery of United States humanitarian assistance.

"(2) The prohibition on United States assistance contained in paragraph (1) shall not apply if the President determines and notifies the Congress in writing that providing such assistance to a country is in the national security interest of the United States.

"(3) A suspension or termination of United States assistance for any country under paragraph (1) shall cease to be effective when the President certifies in writing to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate that such country is no longer prohibiting or otherwise restricting, either directly or indirectly, the transport or delivery of United States humanitarian assistance.

"(4)(A) At the time of the annual budget submission to Congress, the President shall submit a report to the Congress describing any information available to the President concerning prohibitions or restrictions, direct or indirect, on the transport or delivery of United States humanitarian assistance by the government of any country receiving or eligible to receive United States foreign assistance during the current or preceding fiscal year.

"(B) The President shall include in the report required by subparagraph (A) a statement as to whether the prohibition in paragraph (1) is being applied to each country for which the President has information available to him concerning prohibitions or restrictions, direct or indirect, on the transport or delivery of United States humanitarian assistance.

"(5) As used in this subsection, the term 'United States assistance' has the same meaning given that term in section 481(e)(4) of this Act.".

TITLE XVII—CONGRESSIONAL STATEMENTS

SEC. 1701. THE LAOGAI SYSTEM OF POLITICAL PRISONS.

It is the sense of the Congress that the President should—

(1) publicly condemn the continued existence of the Chinese gulag, known as the Laogai, and call upon the Government of the People's Republic of China to dismantle it and release all of its political prisoners; and

(2) instruct the appropriate diplomatic representatives of the United States to cause a resolution condemning the Laogai to be put before the United Nations Human Rights Commission and work for its passage.

SEC. 1702. DECLARATION OF CONGRESS REGARDING UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT HUMAN RIGHTS POLICY TOWARD CHINA.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress makes the following findings:

(1) According to the 1994 State Department Country Reports on Human Rights Practices, there continue to be "widespread and well-documented human rights abuses in China, in violation of internationally accepted norms . . . (including) arbitrary and lengthy incommunicado detention, torture, and mistreatment of prisoners. The regime continued severe restrictions on freedoms of speech, press assembly and association, and tightened controls on the exercise of these rights during 1994. Serious human rights abuses persisted in Tibet and other areas populated by ethnic minorities".

(2) The President, in announcing his decision on Most Favored Nation trading status for China in May 1994 stated that, "China continues to commit very serious human rights abuses. Even as we engage the Chinese on military, political, and economic issues, we intend to stay engaged with those in China who suffer from human rights abuses. The United States must remain a champion of their liberties".

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of the Congress that the President should take the following actions:

(1) Decline the invitation to visit China until and unless there is dramatic overall progress on human rights in China and Tibet and communicate to the Government of China that such a visit cannot take place without such progress. Indications of overall progress would include the release of hundreds of political, religious, and labor activists; an agreement to allow unhindered confidential access to prisoners by international humanitarian agencies; enactment of major legal reforms such as an end to all restrictions on the exercise of freedom of religion, revocation of the 1993 state security law, and the abolition of all so-called "counter-revolutionary" crimes; an end to forced abortion, forced sterilization, and the provision by government facilities of human fetal remains for consumption as food; and a decision to allow unrestricted access to Tibet by foreign media and international human rights monitors.

(2) Seek to develop an agreement on a multilateral strategy to promote human rights in China. Such an agreement should include efforts to encourage greater cooperation by the Government of China with the human rights rapporteurs and working groups of the United Nations Human Rights Commission, as well as bilateral and multilateral initiatives to secure the unconditional release of imprisoned peaceful pro-democracy advocates such as Wei Jingsheng.

(3) Extend an invitation to the Dalai Lama to visit Washington, District of Columbia, in 1996.

(c) UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT HUMAN RIGHTS POLICY TOWARD CHINA.—It shall be the policy of the United States Government to continue to promote internationally recognized human rights and worker rights in China and Tibet. The President shall submit the following reports on the formulation and implementation of United States human rights policy toward China and the results of that policy to the appropriate congressional committees:

(1) Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the President shall report on the status of the "new United States Human Rights Policy for China" announced by the President on May 26, 1994, including an assessment of the implementation and effectiveness of the policy in bringing about human rights improvements in China and Tibet, with reference to the following specific initiatives announced on that date:

(A) High-level dialogue on human rights.

(B) Voluntary principles in the area of human rights for United States businesses operating in China.

(C) Increased contact with and support for groups and individuals in China promoting law reform and human rights.

(D) Increased exchanges to support human rights law reform in China.

(E) The practice of all United States officials who visit China to meet with the broadest possible spectrum of Chinese citizens.

(F) Increased efforts to press United States views on human rights in China at the United Nations, the United Nations Human Rights Commission, and other international organizations.

(G) A plan of international actions to address Tibet's human rights problems and to promote substantive discussions between the Dalai Lama and the Chinese Government.

(H) An information strategy for promoting human rights by expanding Chinese and Tibetan language broadcasts on the Voice of America and establishing Radio Free Asia.

(I) Encouraging the Chinese Government to permit international human rights groups to operate in and visit China.

The report required by this paragraph shall also assess the progress, if any, of the People's Republic of China toward ending forced abortion, forced sterilization, and other coercive population control practices.

(2) Not later than 120 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the President shall report on the status of Chinese Government compliance with United States laws prohibiting the importation into the United States of forced labor products, including (but not limited to) a complete assessment and report on the implementation of the Memorandum of Understanding signed by the United States and China in 1992. The report shall include (but not be limited to) the following:

(A) All efforts made by the United States Customs Service from 1992 until the date of the report to investigate forced labor exports and to conduct unannounced unrestricted inspections of suspected forced labor sites in China, and the extent to which Chinese authorities cooperated with such investigations.

(B) Recommendations of what further steps might be taken to enhance United States effectiveness in prohibiting forced labor exports to the United States from China.

SEC. 1703. UNITED STATES RELATIONS WITH THE FORMER YUGOSLAV REPUBLIC OF MACEDONIA (FYROM).

It is the sense of the Congress that the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (FYROM) should be eligible for all United States foreign assistance programs, including programs of the Export-Import Bank and the Overseas Private Investment Corporation, if the government continues to respect the rights of all ethnic minorities.

SEC. 1704. DISPLACED PERSONS.

It is the sense of the Congress that of the amounts made available to the United Nations Development Program (and United Nations Development Program-Administered Funds), at least $20,000,000 for fiscal year 1996 and $20,000,000 for fiscal year 1997 should be available for programs and services conducted in cooperation with the International Organization for Migration, the International Committee for the Red Cross, and nongovernmental organizations, for persons who are displaced within their countries of nationality.

SEC. 1705. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON BORDER CROSSING FEES.

It is the sense of the Congress that the United States Government should not impose or collect a border crossing fee along its borders with Canada and Mexico.

SEC. 1706. INTER-AMERICAN ORGANIZATIONS.

Taking into consideration the long-term commitment by the United States to the affairs of this Hemisphere and the need to build further upon the linkages between the United States and its neighbors, the Secretary of State, in allocating the level of resources for international organizations, should make every effort to pay the full United States assessed funding levels for the Organization of American States and the Pan American Health Organization so that these two entities, which are uniquely dependent on United States contributions, have adequate resources to contribute effectively to United States foreign policy initiatives.

SEC. 1707. ESCALATING COSTS FOR INTERNATIONAL PEACEKEEPING ACTIVITIES.

It is the sense of the Congress that the executive branch should cease obligating the United States to pay for international peacekeeping operations in excess of funds specifically authorized and appropriated for this purpose.

SEC. 1708. VISIT OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC OF CHINA ON TAIWAN.

It is the sense of the Congress that the President of the Republic of China on Taiwan should be admitted to the United States for a visit in 1996 with all appropriate courtesies.

SEC. 1709. REPUBLIC OF CHINA ON TAIWAN'S PARTICIPATION IN GATT AND WTO.

It is the sense of the Congress that—

(1) the United States should separate the Republic of China on Taiwan's application for membership in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) and the World Trade Organization (WTO) from the People's Republic of China's application for membership in such organizations;

(2) the United States should support the Republic of China on Taiwan's earliest membership in the GATT and the WTO if it meets full and legitimate membership criteria, including the elimination of inappropriate tariff levels and nontariff barriers;

(3) the United States should support the membership of the People's Republic of China in the GATT and the WTO only if a sound bilateral commercial agreement is reached between the United States and the People's Republic of China, and that the People's Republic of China makes significant progress in making its economic system compatible with GATT and WTO principles; and

(4) the People's Republic of China's application for membership in the GATT and the WTO should be reviewed strictly in accordance with the rules, guidelines, principles, precedents, and practices of the GATT and the WTO.

SEC. 1710. INDUSTRIAL PARK FOR GAZA OR THE WEST BANK.

(a) SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the United States should take prompt, visible action before the coming elections in Gaza and Jericho that promises hope and jobs to Palestinians;

(2) the rapid development of an industrial park in Gaza or the West Bank, closely coordinated with private sector investors, will provide a clear sign of opportunity resulting from peace with Israel;

(3) the decision to site the industrial park should give special consideration to the extremely difficult economic conditions in Gaza and the West Bank;

(4) the President should appoint a special coordinator to coordinate the rapid development of an industrial park in Gaza or the West Bank and to begin the recruitment of United States investors; and

(5) the Secretary of State should direct a short-term review and implementation of United States assistance plans to assist in speeding the flow of goods and services between Israel and Gaza and the West Bank while increasing security among those areas.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall prepare and transmit to the Congress a report detailing the following:

(1) All actions taken by the President to establish an industrial park in Gaza or the West Bank.

(2) Funds planned for expenditure to develop such industrial park.

And the Senate agree to the same.

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 1561) to authorize appropriations for the Department of State, the United States Information Agency, and related agencies, and for other purposes, submit the following joint statement to the House and the Senate in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate amendment struck all of the House bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute text.

The House recedes from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate with an amendment that is a substitute for the House bill and the Senate amendment. The differences between the House bill, the Senate amendment, and the substitute agreed to in conference are noted below, except for clerical corrections, conforming changes made necessary by agreements reached by the conferees, and minor drafting and clerical changes.

DIVISION A

TITLE I—GENERAL PROVISIONS

Short title

The House bill (sec. 101) provides a short title for this Division, the "Foreign Affairs Agencies Consolidation Act of 1995."

The Senate amendment (sec. 1001) provides a short title for this Division, the "Foreign Affairs Reinvention Act of 1995."

The conference substitute provides a short title for this Division, the "Foreign Affairs Agencies Consolidation Act of 1996."

Congressional findings

The House bill (sec. 102) sets forth congressional findings that the United States must remain engaged in international affairs; that the U.S. budget deficit requires streamlining of government programs and activities, including foreign programs and activities; and that, as part of the downsizing of the international affairs budget, the proliferation of foreign affairs agencies that occurred during the Cold War must be reversed and the leadership of the Secretary of State strengthened.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Purposes

The House bill (sec. 103) states that the purposes of the Division are to consolidate and reinvent the foreign affairs agencies of the United States within the Department of State; provide for the reorganization of the Department of State; strengthen the coordination of U.S. foreign policy; and to abolish not later than March 1, 1997, the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA), the United States Information Agency (USIA), the International Development Cooperation Agency, and the Agency for International Development (AID).

The Senate amendment (sec. 1002) states that the purposes of the Division are, inter alia, to reorganize and reinvent the foreign affairs agencies of the United States within the Department of State, to assist in congressional efforts to balance the Federal budget, to ensure that the United States maintains adequate representation abroad within budgetary constraints, and to encourage United States foreign affairs agencies to maintain a high percentage of the best qualified United States Government employees while downsizing significantly the total number of employees of such agencies.

The conference substitute (sec. 103) contains a combination of the purposes set forth in the House bill and the Senate amendment.

Definitions

The Senate amendment (sec. 1624) defines terms used within this Division of the Senate bill.

Office of the Secretary of State

The Senate amendment (sec. 1101) amends the State Department Basic Authorities Act to provide that the Secretary of State shall be the principal foreign policy adviser to the President and shall be responsible for the overall direction, coordination, and supervision of the interdepartmental activities of the Government abroad.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Assumption of duties by incumbent employees

The Senate amendment (sec. 1102) provides that individuals appointed by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and performing duties substantially similar to the duties of a new office to be created pursuant to this Division may, in the discretion of the Secretary of State, assume the duties of such new office and shall not be required to be reappointed.

The House bill (secs. 222(c), 322(a)(2), 322(b)(2), and 422(b)) provides that officials appointed by and with the advice and consent of the Senate may be appointed in an acting capacity to new offices created pursuant to this Division until the President nominates and the Senate confirms a permanent appointee.

Procedures for coordination of Government personnel at overseas posts

The Senate amendment (sec. 1104) amends the Foreign Service Act of 1980 to require heads of Executive departments and agencies to obtain the approval of chiefs of mission regarding changes in the size, composition, or mandate of employees of such departments and agencies in foreign countries, and to require compliance with the procedures of National Security Decision Directive 38.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 102) is identical to the House bill.

TITLE II—UNITED STATES ARMS CONTROL AND DISARMAMENT AGENCY

Effective date

The House bill (sec. 201) provides that this title and the amendments made by this title (other than section 221) shall take effect on March 1, 1997, or on an earlier date announced by the President in the Federal Register, which date may be not earlier than 60 calendar days (excluding any days on which either House of Congress is not in session because of a sine die adjournment) after the President has submitted a reorganization plan to the appropriate committees of Congress pursuant to section 221. Section 221 shall take effect on the date of enactment.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1207) provides that this title and the amendments made by this title shall take effect in the event that the President does not transmit to Congress within six months of the date of enactment a reorganization plan meeting the objectives of section 1501(a)(2) of the Senate bill.

References in title

The House bill (sec. 202) states that, except as otherwise provided, the references in this title to provisions of law shall be considered references to the Arms Control and Disarmament Act.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1201(c)) is similar to the House bill.

The conference substitute contains no comparable provision.

Abolition of United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency

The House bill (sec. 211) abolishes ACDA.

Transfer of functions to Secretary of State

The House bill (sec. 212) transfers to the Secretary of State all functions of the Director of ACDA and of ACDA.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

Reorganization plan

The House bill (sec. 221) provides that, not later than March 1, 1996, the President, in consultation with the Secretary of State and the Director of ACDA, shall submit a reorganization plan to the appropriate committees of Congress. The plan is to provide for the abolition of ACDA; the transfer of ACDA's functions and personnel to the Department of State; and the consolidation, reorganization, and streamlining of the Department of State upon the transfer in order to carry out the transferred functions. The plan is to identify the functions of ACDA that are to be transferred; the personnel and positions of ACDA and the Department that are to be transferred, separated, or eliminated; specify the consolidations and reorganizations within the Department that will be required; specify the funds available to ACDA that will be transferred; specify the proposed allocations within the Department of unexpended funds that are to be transferred from ACDA; and specify the proposed disposition of the property, facilities, contracts, records, and other assets and liabilities of ACDA.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1603) provides that, in the event that the President does not transmit to Congress within six months of the date of enactment a reorganization plan meeting the objectives of section 1501(a)(2) of the Senate amendment, the President shall, in consultation with the Secretary of State, transmit a reorganization plan with respect to ACDA to the appropriate committees of Congress. The plan is to provide for substantially the same matters as the plan submitted under the House bill. A plan transmitted under this section shall become effective after 90 calendar days of continuous session of Congress, unless Congress enacts a joint resolution disapproving the plan. The Senate amendment further requires a reduction in employees and in funds available for salaries and expenses in the event that a plan transmitted under this section takes effect.

The conference substitute (sec. 601) is similar to the House bill, except that the plan is to be submitted not later than October 1, 1996. In addition, the requirement for submission of the plan shall not apply if the President exercises the waiver authority of section 602 of the conference substitute with respect to ACDA. A plan submitted pursuant to this section may be modified by the President on the basis of consultations with the appropriate congressional committees. A plan submitted pursuant to this section shall become effective on the earlier of March 1, 1997, or such date as the President shall determine to be appropriate and announce by notice published in the Federal Register.

The Committee notes that ACDA's single-mission focus has permitted the agency to develop over the years unique expertise and experience among its personnel in arms control matters. The Department of State has needed to develop similar expertise within the Bureau of Political-Military Affairs and elsewhere. However, the personnel system of the Department, which emphasizes the development of broad expertise among the Department's employees so as to equip them to effectively carry out the Department's many missions, has necessarily limited the Department's ability to match the training and experience in arms control matters that is found within ACDA.

The Committee believes that it would be detrimental to the interests of the United States for the expertise and experience of ACDA personnel to be lost as a result of the consolidation of ACDA with the Department of State. Accordingly, the Committee would expect any reorganization plan applicable to ACDA submitted pursuant to section 601 of the conference substitute to be designed, to the maximum extent feasible, to ensure that the unique expertise and experience of ACDA personnel is not lost to the United States Government as a result of the consolidation.

Principal officers

The House bill (sec. 222) amends the State Department Basic Authorities Act to establish the new position within the Department of State of Coordinator for Arms Control and Disarmament, with the rank and status of Ambassador-at-Large. The Coordinator heads the Bureau of Arms Control and Disarmament and reports directly to the Secretary of State. In addition, an amendment to the National Security Act of 1947 provides that the Coordinator shall serve as a statutory advisor to the National Security Council.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

References

The House bill (sec. 244) provides that any reference in any statute or other official document or proceeding to the Director of ACDA shall be deemed to refer to the Secretary of State, and any reference to ACDA shall be deemed to refer to the Department of State.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1206) is virtually identical.

Repeal of establishment of Agency

The House bill (sec. 242) repeals section 21 of the Arms Control and Disarmament Act (relating to the establishment of ACDA).

Repeal of positions and offices

The House bill (sec. 243) repeals provisions of the Arms Control and Disarmament Act establishing positions and offices within ACDA.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1202) is substantially identical, except that the provision establishing the ACDA Inspector General is not repealed.

The conference substitute (secs. 223 and 501) is similar to the House bill.

Transfer of authorities and functions under the Arms Control and Disarmament Act to the Secretary of State

The House bill (sec. 244) transfers authorities and functions of ACDA and the Director of ACDA to the Department of State and to the Secretary of State.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1203) is similar.

The conference substitute (sec. 224) is based on the House bill.

Conforming amendments

The House bill (sec. 225) makes conforming amendments to other provisions of the Arms Control and Disarmament Act.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1205) is similar.

The conference substitute (sec. 225) is based on the House bill.

Authorization of appropriations

The Senate amendment (sec. 1204) makes a conforming amendment to the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995.

The House bill has no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

TITLE III—UNITED STATES INFORMATION AGENCY

Effective date

The House bill (sec. 301) provides that this title and the amendments made by this title (other than section 321) shall take effect on March 1, 1997, or on an earlier date announced by the President in the Federal Register, which date may be not earlier than 60 calendar days (excluding any days on which either House of Congress is not in session because of a sine die adjournment) after the President has submitted a reorganization plan to the appropriate committees of Congress pursuant to section 321. Section 321 shall take effect on the date of enactment.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1329) provides that this title and the amendments made by this title shall take effect in the event that the President does not transmit to Congress within six months of the date of enactment a reorganization plan meeting the objectives of section 1501(a)(2) of the Senate bill.

The conference substitute (sec. 301) is similar to the House bill.

Abolition of United States Information Agency

The House bill (sec. 311) abolishes USIA.

Transfer of functions to Secretary of State

The House bill (sec. 312) transfers to the Secretary of State all functions of the Director of USIA and of USIA.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 312) is similar to the House bill, but includes a special provision governing transfer of the Broadcasting Board of Governors to the Department of State.

Reorganization plan

The House bill (sec 321) provides that, not later than March 1, 1996, the President, in consultation with the Secretary of State and the Director of USIA, shall submit a reorganization plan to the appropriate committees of Congress. The plan is to provide for the abolition of USIA; the transfer of USIA's functions and personnel to the Department of State; and the consolidation, reorganization, and streamlining of the Department of State upon the transfer in order to carry out the transferred functions. The plan is to identify the functions of USIA that are to be transferred; the personnel and positions of USIA and the Department that are to be transferred, separated, or eliminated; specify the consolidations and reorganizations within the Department that will be required; specify the funds available to USIA that will be transferred; specify the proposed allocations within the Department of unexpended funds that are to be transferred from USIA; and specify the proposed disposition of the property, facilities, contracts, records, and other assets and liabilities of USIA.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1604) provides that, in the event that the President does not transmit to Congress within six months of the date of enactment a reorganization plan meeting the objectives of section 1501(a)(2) of the Senate amendment, the President shall, in consultation with the Secretary of State, transmit a reorganization plan with respect to USIA to the appropriate committees of Congress. The plan is to provide for substantially the same matters as the plan submitted under the House bill. A plan transmitted under this section shall become effective after 90 calendar days of continuous session of Congress, unless Congress enacts a joint resolution disapproving the plan. The Senate amendment further requires a reduction in employees and in funds available for salaries and expenses in the event that a plan transmitted under this section takes effect.

The conference substitute (sec. 601) is similar to the House bill, except that the plan is to be submitted not later than October 1, 1996. In addition, the requirement for submission of the plan shall not apply if the President exercises the waiver authority of section 602 of the conference substitute with respect to USIA. A plan submitted pursuant to this section may be modified by the President on the basis of consultations with the appropriate congressional committees. A plan submitted pursuant to this section shall become effective on the earlier of March 1, 1997, or such date as the President shall determine to be appropriate and announce by notice published in the Federal Register.

Principal officers

The House bill (sec. 322) amends the State Department Basic Authorities Act to establish the new positions within the Department of State of Under Secretary for Public Diplomacy, Assistant Secretary for Academic Programs and Cultural Exchanges, and Assistant Secretary for Information, Policy, and Programs. Both assistant secretaries shall report to the under secretary.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 313) amends the State Department Basic Authorities Act to establish within the Department of State the position of Under Secretary for Public Diplomacy, but does not establish any assistant secretary positions.

TITLE IV—AGENCY FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Effective date

The House bill (sec. 401) provides that this title and the amendments made by this title (other than section 421) shall take effect on March 1, 1997, or on an earlier date announced by the President in the Federal Register, which date may be not earlier than 60 calendar days (excluding any days on which either House of Congress is not in session because of a sine die adjournment) after the President has submitted a reorganization plan to the appropriate committees of Congress pursuant to section 421. Section 421 shall take effect on the date of enactment.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1412) provides that this title and the amendments made by this title shall take effect in the event that the President does not transmit to Congress within six months of the date of enactment a reorganization plan meeting the objectives of section 1501(a)(2) of the Senate bill.

The conference substitute (sec. 401) is similar to the House bill.

References in title

The House bill (sec. 402) states that, except as otherwise provided, the references in this title to provisions of law shall be considered references to the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1401(b)) is similar to the House bill.

The conference substitute contains no comparable provision.

Abolition of Agency for International Development

The House bill (sec. 411) abolishes AID and the United States International Development Cooperation Agency.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1401(a)) is similar to the House bill.

The conference substitute (sec. 411) is similar to the House bill, but states that the abolition of AID shall not be interpreted to apply to the Overseas Private Investment Corporation.

Transfer of functions to Secretary of State

The House bill (sec. 412) transfers to the Secretary of State all functions of the Administrator of AID and of AID.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 412) is identical to the House bill.

Reorganization plan

The House bill (sec 421) provides that, not later than March 1, 1996, the President, in consultation with the Secretary of State and the Director of AID, shall submit a reorganization plan to the appropriate committees of Congress. The plan is to provide for the abolition of AID; the transfer of AID's functions and personnel to the Department of State; and the consolidation, reorganization, and streamlining of the Department of State upon the transfer in order to carry out the transferred functions. The plan is to identify the functions of AID that are to be transferred; the personnel and positions of AID and the Department that are to be transferred, separated, or eliminated; specify the consolidations and reorganizations within the Department that will be required; specify the funds available to AID that will be transferred; specify the proposed allocations within the Department of unexpended funds that are to be transferred from AID; and specify the proposed disposition of the property, facilities, contracts, records, and other assets and liabilities of AID.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1605) provides that, in the event that the President does not transmit to Congress within six months of the date of enactment a reorganization plan meeting the objectives of section 1501(a)(2) of the Senate amendment, the President shall, in consultation with the Secretary of State, transmit a reorganization plan with respect to AID to the appropriate committees of Congress. The plan is to provide for substantially the same matters as the plan submitted under the House bill. A plan transmitted under this section shall become effective after 90 calendar days of continuous session of Congress, unless Congress enacts a joint resolution disapproving the plan. The Senate amendment further requires a reduction in employees and in funds available for salaries and expenses in the event that a plan transmitted under this section takes effect.

The conference substitute (sec. 601) is similar to the House bill, except that the plan is to be submitted not later than October 1, 1996. In addition, the requirement for submission of the plan shall not apply if the President exercise the waiver authority of section 602 of the conference substitute with respect to AID. A plan submitted pursuant to this section may be modified by the President on the basis of consultations with the appropriate congressional committees. A plan submitted pursuant to this section shall become effective on the earlier of March 1, 1997, or such date as the President shall determine to be appropriate and announce by notice published in the Federal Register.

Principal officers

The House bill (sec. 422) amends the State Department Basic Authorities Act to establish the new position within the Department of State of Under Secretary for Development and Economic Affairs.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 413) is similar to the House bill, but designates the new under secretary as the Under Secretary for Development and for Economic and Commercial Affairs.

The committee of conference intends the Under Secretary for Development and for Economic and Commercial Affairs to be responsible for, inter alia, the administration of funds under the Sustainable Development, Development Fund for Africa, SEED, FREEDOM Support, ESF, Disaster, Housing Guarantee, Small and Micro-enterprise, PL-480 Titles II & III, American Schools and Hospitals Abroad, and International Fund for Ireland accounts. The committee of conference intends this list of accounts to be the minimum number of accounts administered by the Under Secretary. Should the Administration wish, the committee of conference would welcome the movement of other foreign assistance programs under the Under Secretary's administration.

TITLE V—TRANSITION

Reorganization of the Department of State and the Independent Foreign Affairs Agencies

The Senate amendment (sec. 1501) provides that if the President does not submit to Congress a reorganization plan meeting specified objectives within six months of the date of enactment, ACDA, USIA, and AID are to be abolished in accordance with titles II, III, and IV of this Division. If the President in fact submits such a plan in a timely fashion, titles II, III, and IV do not come into effect. The specified objectives of such a reorganization plan include the streamlining and reorganization of the foreign affairs agencies, and the achievement of $1.7 billion in savings over five years calculated from an FY 1995 baseline. Not more than 30 percent of the savings is to be realized from reductions in program levels, and not more than 15 percent may come from the administrative expenses of the Department of State. A reorganization plan transmitted pursuant to this section shall take effect after 90 calendar days of continuous session of Congress, unless Congress enacts a joint resolution disapproving the plan.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 602) permits the President to waive the applicability of two of the following three titles of this Division: titles II, III, and IV. In order to exercise this waiver, the President must include a certification to the Congress in the reorganization plan that is required by section 601 to be submitted to Congress no later than October 1, 1996. In this certification, the President must affirm that the reorganization plan he has submitted pursuant to section 601 will achieve savings of $1.7 billion in budget authority over the four-year period of 1996–1999, with not more than 30 percent of the savings realized from reductions in program levels. The President must also certify that the plan conforms to the authorization levels for agency operating expenses for the years 1996–1999 set forth in Division B. Inasmuch as the authorization levels for agency operating expenses for those years dictate approximately $1.3 billion in savings from the 1995 level, and the remaining $500 million of the required $1.7 billion in savings can come from program cuts, the first two elements of the President's certification are intended to be complementary. Finally, the President must certify that preservation of any agency that otherwise would be abolished is important to the national interest of the United States.

Reorganization authority

The House bill (sec. 501) authorizes the Secretary of State to allocate or reallocate functions transferred to the Department among the officers of the Department, and to establish, consolidate, alter, or discontinue organizational entities within the Department as necessary to carry out any reorganization under this Division. This authority does not extend to the abolition of organizational entities or offices established by law, or to the alteration of any delegation of functions required by law. A reorganization plan prepared pursuant to this Division may not have the effect of creating a new department or agency, continuing functions beyond the period authorized by law, authorizing the exercise of functions not otherwise authorized by law, or increasing the term of an office beyond that provided by law. Any such reorganization plan shall provide for a twenty-percent reduction applicable to each of the first two fiscal years after implementation of such plan in the total level of expenditures for the functions transferred to the Department of State from the amounts appropriated for such transferred functions for fiscal year 1995.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1606) specifies requirements and limitations applicable to reorganization plans transmitted pursuant to this Division.

The conference substitute (sec. 611) is similar to the House bill, but omits the requirement that a reorganization plan transmitted pursuant to this Division provide for a twenty-percent reduction in expenditures following the transfer of functions to the Department of State.

Transfer and allocation of appropriations and personnel

The House bill (sec. 502) provides that personnel, assets, liabilities, contracts, property, records, and unexpended appropriations balances of abolished agencies shall be transferred to the Secretary of State. Unexpended and unobligated funds that are so transferred shall be used only for the purposes for which they were originally authorized and appropriated. When an agency is abolished, the limit on the number of members of the foreign service that may be employed by that agency shall be added to the limit for the Department of State.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1612) is similar.

The conference substitute (sec. 612) is identical to the House bill.

Incidental transfers

The House bill (sec. 503) provides that the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, in consultation with the Secretary of State, is authorized to make such incidental dispositions of personnel, assets, liabilities, contracts, property, records, and unexpended balances of appropriations as may be necessary to carry out this Division.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 613) is identical to the House bill.

Effect on personnel

The House bill (sec. 504) provides that personnel holding Executive Schedule positions who are transferred to the Department of State shall continue to be compensated at a rate not less than that of their previous position. Positions whose incumbents are appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, the functions of which are transferred, shall terminate upon the transfer.

Employees in the career Senior Executive Service transferred pursuant to any title of this Division shall be placed a position at the Department of State comparable to the position previously held by the employee. Transferring employees shall be provided reasonable notice of new positions and assignments prior to their transfer pursuant to any title of this Division. Foreign service personnel transferred to the Department of State pursuant to any title of this Division shall be eligible for any assignment open to foreign service personnel within the Department for which they are qualified.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1611) is similar.

The conference substitute (sec. 614) is based on the House bill.

Savings provisions

The House bill (sec. 505) provides that all orders, rules, regulations, agreements, contracts, and other administrative actions of the agencies abolished under this Division shall remain in effect according to their terms. Pending proceedings shall not be affected by the transfer of functions of the abolished agencies to the Department of State.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1619) is similar.

The conference substitute (sec. 616) is identical to the House bill.

Property and facilities

The House bill (sec. 506) provides that the Secretary of State shall review the property and facilities transferred to the Department to determine whether they are required by the Department.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1614) is similar.

The conference substitute (sec. 617) is based on the House bill.

Authority of Secretary to facilitate transition

The House bill (sec. 507) authorizes the Secretary of State to utilize the services of employees and the funds of the agencies that are to be abolished pursuant to this Division in order to facilitate the transfer of functions to the Department.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1621) is similar.

The conference substitute (sec. 618) is based on the House bill.

Recommendations for additional conforming amendments

The House bill (sec. 508) urges the President to submit recommendations for additional technical and conforming amendments to reflect the changes made by this Division.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1622) is similar.

The conference substitute (sec. 619) is based on the House bill.

Final report

The House bill (sec. 509) provides that, not later than October 1, 1998, the President, in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a final accounting of the finances of the abolished agencies.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1623) is similar.

The conference substitute (sec. 620) is based on the House bill.

Transfer of function

The House bill (sec. 510) provides that any determination as to whether a transfer of function carried out under this Division constitutes a transfer of function for purposes of subchapter I of chapter 35 of title 5 of the United States Code shall be made without regard to whether the function transferred is identical to functions already performed by the receiving agency.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 621) is identical to the House bill.

Severability

The House bill (sec. 511) provides that if any provision of this Division is held invalid, the remainder of the Division shall not be affected.

The Senate bill (sec. 1620) is similar.

The conference substitute (sec. 622) is identical to the House bill.

Amendments or modification to reorganization plans

The Senate amendment (sec. 1607) permits the President to submit to Congress amendments to reorganization plans previously submitted pursuant to this Division.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 601(d)) permits the President to modify or revise a reorganization plan transmitted to the Congress.

Procedures for congressional consideration of reorganization plans

The Senate amendment (sec. 1608) establishes procedures for expedited congressional consideration of a reorganization plan transmitted pursuant to this Division. Under these procedures, if a joint resolution were enacted disapproving a reorganization plan, that plan would not take effect.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill. The committee of conference concluded that expedited procedures for congressional resolutions to disapprove reorganization plans are unnecessary for two reasons. First, the timetable under section 601 for submission by the President to Congress of a reorganization plan ensures that Congress will have ample time to consider and comment on the plan. The committee of conference is confident that the President will not seek to implement any portions of a reorganization plan that are strongly opposed by the committees of jurisdiction. Second, no provision of this Division is intended to render inapplicable to a reorganization pursuant to this Division the existing requirements for notice to Congress of program changes. The availability of the reprogramming procedures will, in the judgment of the committee of conference, provide ample insurance against ill-advised reorganization decisions. The mechanism provided by section 601(d) of the conference substitute, which permits the President to modify a reorganization plan after its submission and before its implementation, is intended to enable the President to respond to congressional comments on such plans and congressional holds placed on reprogramming notifications submitted in connection with such plans.

Transition fund

The Senate amendment (sec. 1609) establishes a transition fund to assist in meeting costs associated with reorganization pursuant to this Division.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 615) is similar to the Senate amendment.

Voluntary separation incentives

The Senate amendment (sec. 1610) authorizes the payment of voluntary separation incentives to employees of the foreign affairs agencies in order to avoid or minimize the need for involuntary separations.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Effect on contracts and grants

The Senate amendment (sec. 1618) imposes significant restrictions on the ability of ACDA, USIA, and AID to enter new contracts, extend existing contracts, or make grants that will extend past the date of abolition of the agency.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

TITLE VI—REORGANIZATION OF UNITED STATES EXPORT PROMOTION AND TRADE ACTIVITIES

Plan for reorganization of United States export promotion and trade activities

The House bill (sec. 601) provides that the Trade Policy Coordinating Committee shall submit a report to the Committee on International Relations of the House and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate not later than March 1, 1996, detailing what steps are being taken and what steps should be taken to improve accessibility and coordination among the trade promotion agencies of the U.S. Government. The report shall identify such matters as the function and budget of all U.S. Government agencies with some responsibility for trade promotion, the amount of exports directly generated by each such agency, and areas where greater interoperability and efficiencies could be achieved. The report shall include a plan to reorganize the trade and export promotion agencies, with any necessary legislative changes, in order to more efficiently promote trade and reduce costs.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

FOREIGN RELATIONS AUTHORIZATIONS

TITLE XI—AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS

Of the House bill sections included in the final conference report, the House bill authorizes a total of $6,716,742,000 for fiscal year 1996 and $6,157,431,000 for fiscal year 1997, for the Department of State, AID, USIA, and ACDA.

Of the Senate amendment sections included in the final conference report, the Senate amendment authorizes a total of $6,301,796,000 for fiscal year 1996 and $5,970,429,000 for fiscal year 1997.

The conference substitute authorizes a total of $6,524,131,000 for fiscal year 1996 and $6,518,385,000 for fiscal year 1997. The conference substitute incorporates the following sub-authorizations:

(1) $11,900,000 for fiscal year 1997 for administrative expenses of the bureau charged with carrying out refugee programs.

(2) $80,000,000 for each fiscal year for refugees resettling in Israel.

(3) $1,500,000 for each fiscal year for Burmese refugees.

While this bill includes four year authorizations for certain operating accounts of the foreign affairs agencies, this conference report in most respects is a two-year authorization bill. The authorizing Committees plan to pass another authorization bill for fiscal years 1998 and 1999.

The committee of conference do not intend that any provision in this bill could be used as an authorization of foreign assistance in the meaning of Section 518(a) of P.L. 104–107, the Foreign Operations Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 1996.

Merged accounts. The conference substitute authorizes the merger of the Inspector General of the Department of State and the Inspector General of the U.S. Information Agency. This merger should be completed in fiscal year 1996 and accordingly, the conference substitute merges the two separate authorization of appropriations under the Inspector General for the Department of State.

Exchange programs. The committee of conference did not include soft earmarks as in previous years for South Pacific Exchanges, East Timorese exchanges, Cambodian scholarships, and Tibetan exchanges. However, the committee of conference lists these programs under the category of "Other Exchanges" and recommends that funds be allocated to support each of these specific exchange programs. The inclusion of these programs under "Other Programs" should not be construed as an indication of a diminution in support for these programs, or a justification for funding levels disproportionately lower than the House-passed authorizations.

South Pacific exchanges. The committee of conference recognizes the unique and important function fulfilled by the South Pacific Exchange program. It is a relatively small program funded at $900,000 in the fiscal years 1994 and 1995, which promotes better understanding with the people of a region that has not always been given the attention it deserves in the implementation of U.S. foreign policy.

Fulbright. The committee of conference believes that USIA should require open competitions for the Administration of the Fulbright program and other scholar exchange programs. Such competitions encourage cost savings and remove unnecessary bureaucratization of scholar recruitment, selection, and placement.

Section 1101(2)(b) requires that $11.9 million in fiscal year 1997 authorized for salaries and expenses must be available for the salaries and expenses of the bureau that administers Refugee and Migration Assistance. This restores, effective in fiscal year 1997, a provision of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act for Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995 (P.L. 103–236).

The House bill (sec. 1101 (1)) authorized $5 million for visa processing outside the countries of origin of persons who would have a credible fear of persecution in such countries. The committee of conference agreed to drop this limitation in deference to a suggestion by the Department of State that $5 million may be more than the amount necessary to process such applications.

The committee of conference notes that a number of persons who have been determined to be currently eligible to apply for immigrant visas have been displaced and uprooted from their homes as a result of war, violent civil disturbance or systematic abuse of human rights in their native countries. The committee of conference expects that the Department will process the immigrant visa applications of such persons in the country in which they are physically present so long as they expect to remain in that country for the period required to process those applications. Processing of such displaced applicants outside their native lands is in accordance with the original intent of the framers of 8 U.S.C. §1152, who took "cognizance of the unprecedented number of persons who have been uprooted and dislocated during World War II or due to events subsequent thereto. The amendment is designed to alleviate hardship which might be caused by a rigid requirement that visa applications "shall be filed only with the consular officer in whose district the applicant shall have established his residence." H.R. Rep. No. 1365, 2d Sess. (1952), reprinted in 1952 U.S.C.C.A.N. 1663, 1708–09. The conferees share the view that a requirement that a displaced person return to his or her country of origin in such circumstances would constitute an undue burden on the issuance of his or her immigrant visa. In this connection, the conferees note that the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit has recently held that the State Department's refusal to process the immigrant visa applications of Vietnamese asylum seekers in Hong Kong violates the provision of 8 U.S.C. §1152(a) that "[n]o person shall * * * be discriminated against in the issuance of an immigrant visa because of his * * * nationality." Legal Assistance for Vietnamese Asylum-Seekers v. United States Department of State, 45 F.3d 469 (D.C. Cir. 1995).

UNDP Activities in Burma. The House bill (sec 2102(a)(2)(I)) provides that any United States voluntary contribution to the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) would be limited in each fiscal year to $70 million, minus the amount UNDP has announced that it plans to spend on programs and activities in or for Burma ($18,200,000 for fiscal year 1996 and $25,480,000 for fiscal year 1997), unless UNDP discontinued all of its activities in and for Burma.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1102 (e)) is similar to the House provision, except that the limitation for fiscal year 1997 is identical to the limitation in fiscal year 1996. Also, the limitation in each fiscal year may be waived if the President certifies that all UNDP programs and activities in and for Burma are focused on the needs of the poor; are undertaken only through private voluntary organizations independent of the State Law and Order Restoration Council (SLORC); provide no benefit to the SLORC; and are supported by the democratic leadership of Burma.

Section 431 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act for Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995 provided that $27.6 million of the funds made available for UNDP for FY 1995 would be available only in certain strictly defined circumstances. The Department of State, acting on behalf of the President, released the $27.6 million pursuant to a certification that UNDP had met the statutory test of having "initiated no new programs and no new funding for existing programs" in and for Burma since the 1993 meeting of the UNDP Governing Council. The Memorandum of Justification accompanying the certification stated that UNDP had not initiated or approved any new programs "beyond those contemplated in the June 1993 [UNDP] Governing Council decision." The language of section 431, however, made no reference to projects "contemplated" in the 1993 decision. Rather, it required a finding of no new programs or funding "since the [1993] meeting." The Memorandum also seemed to interpret section 431 as prohibiting release of the money only if UNDP had initiated or funded new "types" of projects.

The present provision is intended to clarify and give effect to the purpose of the fiscal 1995 limitation.

Refugees and migration. Section 1104(a)(4) authorizes funds for fiscal year 1996 for admission and resettlement of certain Southeast Asian refugees who are in the high-risk categories identified by the "Lautenberg Amendment". These categories include those who served with U.S. forces in Vietnam or were in the former government of South Vietnam, or are considered to be religious refugees, or who are members of the Hmong ethnic minority from Laos.

Subsection (b) prohibits expenditures on programs involving repatriation to Vietnam, Laos, or Cambodia unless the remaining asylum seekers have been or will be interviewed by U.S. immigration officers, and unless resettlement offers have been or will be made to those found to be refugees under U.S. immigration standards under current law. The House-passed provision was modified in conference to make it clear that the refugee status interviews can, under certain circumstances, be held in the asylum seeker's country of origin. The committee of conference expects that interviews in the country of origin would take place only if diligent efforts to secure permission from first asylum countries for interviews in such countries had proved unavailing, and that arrangements would be made to ensure the safety of returnees pending the completion of the interview and resettlement process.

The committee of conference notes that the authorization of $1.5 million for each fiscal year for humanitarian assistance for persons displaced by civil conflict in Burma is directed at both those displaced within Burma and those persons now outside of Burma. During the past year, the refugee population along the Thai/Burma border has increased from approximately 77,000 to over 93,000, representing one of the largest influxes in any period since relief efforts began in 1984. Due primarily to the attack on Manerplaw, the headquarters of the Karen National Union and the seat of the exiled democracy movement, which occurred in early 1995, this increase illustrates the uncertainty of the current situation.

On the one hand, SLORC has negotiated, or is in the process of negotiating, cease-fire agreements with nearly all the ethnic groups. A large portion of the Mon refugee population has repatriated over the past few months. On the other hand, the situation on the ground does not seem to have improved. Attacks on the Karen and Karenni go on today despite cease-fire agreements and negotiations. New refugees continue to arrive with reports of human rights abuses, forced labor and relocation and hundreds of thousands remain displaced within Burma.

In this unstable and unpredictable climate, humanitarian assistance to the over 93,000 along the border remains critical. Whether people stay in Thailand or go back to Burma they will be in need of support. Assistance in the form of food, health services and education should continue to be made available to refugees and displaced inside Burma and along the border. Further, funds should be provided to NGOs operating in the border areas in order to conduct assessments of the project planning and management capacity of the ethnic leadership and to develop and implement capacity-building and vocational training courses for appropriate refugee community members. Funds should also be made available for the subsistence and education of Burmese students in Thailand, regardless of their place of residence.

Broadcasting. Section 1106(4)(B) of the conference substitute is designed to ensure that U.S. non-military international broadcasting resources are deployed where they are most needed. In recent years, for instance, the broadcasts to Iran carried out by the Voice of America Farsi Service have declined, despite the continued prohibition within Iran of objective news and the free expression of opinions. In contrast, broadcasting services to countries that do enjoy wide and diverse sources of news and opinion, such as the Voice of America broadcasts into Ethiopia, may have outlived their usefulness and should be considered for elimination.

AUTHORITIES AND ACTIVITIES

Department of State Rewards Program

The House bill (sec. 2201) rewrites the Department of State rewards program to update this important tool used for capturing fugitives abroad in cases of terrorism and narcotics related offenses.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1201) is similar to the House bill but deletes the use of fees collected from issuing machine readable visas as a possible source of funds to pay rewards. It suggests that foreign assets frozen in the U.S. and controlled by the Department of Treasury could be used as an additional means by which to fund the rewards program.

Buying power maintenance account

The House bill (sec. 2203) permits the transfer of expired, unobligated balances into no-year Buying Power Maintenance Account, subject to compliance with congressional reprogramming requirements. The Department maintains that paragraph (D), which makes such transfers subject to advance appropriations, is unnecessary and has made the transfer authority unworkable. Striking paragraph (D) enables the Department to transfer expiring balances with greater flexibility.

The conference substitute (sec. 1202) is the same as the House provision.

Expenses relating to certain international claims and proceedings

The House bill (sec. 2204) allows the Department to accept, in certain cases, reimbursement from private sector claimants for tribunal expenses, salaries, and other ordinary expenses.

The conference substitute (sec. 1203) is the same as the House provision.

Consolidation of U.S. diplomatic missions and consular posts

The House bill (sec. 2205) requires the Secretary of State to prepare a world wide plan for the consolidation on a regional or area wide basis of U.S. missions and consular posts abroad.

The Senate amendment (sec. 1103) is similar but it also includes expedited procedures for Congressional disapproval of the Secretary's plan to consolidate diplomatic posts abroad.

The conference substitute omits the House and Senate provisions.

Denial of passports to noncustodial parents subject to State arrest warrants in cases of nonpayment of child support.

The House bill (sec. 2206) allows the Secretary to refuse to issue a passport, or to revoke, restrict or limit a passport in any case in which the Secretary of State determines, or is informed by a competent authority, that the applicant or passport holder is a noncustodial parent who is the subject of an outstanding arrest for non payment of child support.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1204) is identical to the House provision.

Capital investment fund

The House bill (sec. 2207) amends section 135 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995 (22 U.S.C. 2684a) to allow the Capital Investment Fund to be used for the procurement and upgrade of information technology and other related capital investments for the Department of State and to ensure the efficient management, coordination, operation, and utilization of such resources. This amendment would allow the Department to pay for upgrades of existing systems and purchase hardware or software to ensure interoperability of State Department information systems. This amendment also provides that the amounts deposited into the Fund will remain available until expended and that such amounts will be available for the purposes defined in this section.

Section 135(e) is amended to eliminate as duplicative the requirement that subjects money in the Fund to Congressional reprogramming requirements before it is obligated. The Department will follow reprogramming procedures when it proposes to transfer monies into the Fund and will explain potential uses of the Fund in its Congressional Presentation Documents.

The Senate amendment (sec. 126) is similar but is drafted differently.

Efficiency in procurement

The House bill (sec. 2208) allows US agencies operating overseas to participate in existing contracts rather than being required to let new contracts for services.

The Senate amendment (sec. 129) is similar.

The conference substitute (sec. 1208) is identical to the House provision.

Training

The House bill (sec. 2209) allows the Department of State to provide training for employees of U.S. companies operating overseas on a reimbursable basis. In addition, this section allows the Department to provide foreign language training, on a reimbursable basis to Members, officials and employees of the U.S. Congress.

The Senate amendment (sec. 151) is similar but allows for training of non-executive branch staff members on a reimbursable, space available basis.

Lease-purchase agreements

The Senate amendment (sec. 121) provides that when the Department of State enters into lease-purchase agreements involving property in foreign countries pursuant to section 1 of the Foreign Service Buildings Act (22 U.S.C. 292), budget authority should be assessed on an annual basis over the period of the lease in an amount equal to the annual lease payments.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1207) is identical to the Senate provision.

U.S. Embassy building in Berlin, Germany

The Senate amendment (sec. 122) expresses a sense of Congress that the Secretary of State should utilize the U.S. government property in the vicinity of the Brandenburg Gate in Berlin, Germany, as a site to build the U.S. embassy.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Fees for commercial services

The Senate amendment (sec. 123) allows fees collected for commercial services provided to businesses to remain available for obligation until expended. This authority will ensure the Department does not lose funds collected late in a fiscal year and that are not obligated by the end of that year. This authority is subject to the availability of appropriations.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1208) is identical to the Senate amendment.

Reporting requirements

The Senate amendment (sec. 124) amends a reporting requirement and repeals one reporting requirement.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1209) retains subsection (a) to require the Secretary of State to provide a report on all leases entered into for the acquisition of real property to be submitted within 30 days after the end of each fiscal year rather than after the end of each quarter of the fiscal year. Subsection (b), the repeal of the reporting requirement under 503(b) of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act (P.L. 95-426), was enacted in P.L. 104-66 and therefore dropped in the substitute.

Administrative expenses

The Senate amendment (sec. 127) allows funds to be available directly to other personnel assigned to bureaus charged with carrying out the Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Fee for use of diplomatic reception rooms

The Senate amendment (sec. 128) authorizes the Secretary of State to charge a fee for use of the Department of State diplomatic reception rooms. Such fees are deposited as an offsetting collection to recover the costs of such use and should remain available for obligation until expended. This authority is subject to the availability of appropriations.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1210) is identical to the Senate amendment.

Diplomatic Telecommunications Service

The Senate amendment (sec. 131) amends section 507 of the Department of State and Related Agencies Appropriations Act (P.L. 103-317) to require the Secretary to provide funding for the Diplomatic Telecommunications Service to sustain current levels of support services for each succeeding fiscal year. This amendment further prohibits any reprogramming or transfers from such amounts in future years, and specifies the current and future makeup of the Diplomatic Telecommunications Service Program Office Board.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1215) is identical to the Senate amendment.

Diplomatic Telecommunications Service Program Office

The Senate amendment (sec. 132) designates the officials that will comprise the Diplomatic Telecommunications Service Policy Board, the management structure, and sets forth the responsibilities of the officials on the Board.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill. The committee of conference notes that the provision was determined not to be necessary given that the agencies have made progress toward establishing the management, leadership and objectives of this interagency Board. Furthermore, the respective committees intend to continue oversight over this important activity and urge cooperation and not competition in designing the future communications systems for U.S. international facilities.

International center reserve funds

The Senate amendment (sec. 133) amends current law to allow the Secretary of State to accrue and retain the interest collected on the International Chancery Center reserve account to be used to pay for maintenance and security costs, subject to the availability of appropriated funds.

The House bill contains no comparable amendment.

Joint funds under agreements for cooperation in environmental, scientific, cultural and related areas

The Senate amendment (sec. 134) authorizes the use of interest on funds held under bilateral agreements for scientific, cultural and technical cooperation to pay the administrative and programmatic expenses of the funds, subject to appropriations.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1212) is identical to the Senate amendment.

Antibribery study

The Senate amendment (sec. 136) requires the Secretary of State, in consultation with other government officials, to develop proposals to combat bribery in international business transactions.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Budget Act compliance

The Senate amendment (sec. 137) makes the authorities in Senate sections 121, 123, 125, 128, 130, 133, 134, 148, 161, and 163 subject appropriations.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill. The "subject to appropriations" language was added to each of the Senate sections listed in the Senate amendment.

Fees for machine readable visas

The Senate amendment (sec. 163) authorizes the collection and retention of fees not to exceed $150 million for each of the fiscal years 1996, 1997, 1998, and 1999.

The House bill (sec. 2231) authorizes collection and retention of not more than $250 million in fiscal years 1996 and 1997 to recover the costs of the border security program. It also permits all countries to be subject to the fee.

The conference substitute (sec. 1231) authorizes the collection and retention of not more than $150 million for each fiscal 1996 and 1997 for the border security program as defined in the House provision.

Fingerprint check requirement

The House bill (sec. 2232) modifies the fingerprint requirement for immigrant visa applicants established in Sec. 505 of P.L. 103-317. The revision requires the fingerprinting only of individuals 16 years or older who have at some time been in the U.S. and have been determined to have a criminal history.

The Senate amendment contained no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1232) is similar to the House bill with drafting changes. This provision is intended to modify the current program to be more cost effective and efficient by targeting those that would likely have a criminal record in the U.S. The committee of conference continues to have strong concerns about the cost-benefit of the pilot program.

Use of passport processing fees for enhanced passport services

The House bill (sec. 2233) requires 10% of funds generated by the expedited passport fee be dedicated exclusively to enhance passport services for U.S. citizens, improve efficiency of the issuing process, improve the secure nature of the document, investigate passport fraud, and deter entry into the U.S. by criminal elements.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1233) is identical to the House bill.

Consular officers

The Senate amendment (sec. 165) permits U.S. citizen employees abroad who are not consular officers to perform additional consular functions, including the issuance of certificates of birth abroad, the authentications of foreign documents, the administration of nationality provisions in Title III of the Immigration and Nationality Act, and the administration of oaths for patent purposes.

Section 127 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act for Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995, as amended by section (1)(mm)(2) of P.L. 103-415, authorized the Secretary of State to designate U.S. citizen employees abroad, other than consular officers, to perform notarial and passport services, thereby permitting more effective use of both consular officers and non-consular officer employees abroad and creating the opportunity to improve service to the public in the face of consular officer staffing shortfalls. This provision will further improve the efficiency of consular operations abroad.

The conference substitute (sec. 1234) is identical to the Senate amendment.

Fee for diversity immigrant lottery

The Senate amendment (sec. 161) allows the Secretary of State to collect and retain a fee to be paid by each immigrant issued a visa under the diversity lottery program. Fees are available for obligation until expended, and the authority is subject to the availability of appropriations.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1235) is similar to the Senate amendment with a change made at the Administration's request to clarify that all those who apply for immigrant visas based on the diversity lottery selection pay a fee.

Fee for execution of passport applications

The Senate amendment (sec. 162) permits the Secretary of State to authorize the U.S. Postal Service to retain passport execution fees directly rather than being sent through the Department of State to the U.S. Treasury. This will save the Department of State (and the Postal Service) significant resources required by the reconciliation procedures connected with multiple transfer of these funds.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1236) is identical to the Senate amendment.

Children adopted abroad

The Senate amendment (sec. 164) expedites the processing of an adoption of a foreign child by replacing in the Immigration and Nationality Act the "legitimate/illegitimate" distinction with "wedlock/out of wedlock."

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill. The committee of conference notes this provision was passed in P.L. 104-51.

Exclusion from the United States for membership in a terrorist organization

The Senate amendment (sec. 166) amends the Immigration and Nationality Act to deny a U.S. visa to a member of a terrorist organization or who actively supports or advocates terrorist activity. A terrorist organization is defined as an organization that engages in or has engaged in terrorist activity as determined by the Attorney General in consultation with the Department of State.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1237) is identical to the Senate amendment.

Incitement as a Basis for Exclusion from the United States

The Senate amendment (sec. 167) amends the Immigration and Nationality Act by adding a new ground for exclusion for those who have advocated terrorism, incited targeted racial vilification, or advocated the death or destruction of U.S. citizens, or U.S. government officials, or the overthrow of the U.S. government.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1239) is similar to the Senate amendment but has been clarified to ensure that it comports with its purpose. The Senate provision would have required the exclusion of non-U.S. citizens wishing to enter the U.S. who have advocated terrorism or engaged in related practices. Non-citizens seeking admission to the U.S. have been held not to enjoy the full measure of constitutional protection afforded citizens and others who are lawfully present in the U.S. Nevertheless, in an effort to accommodate concerns about the potential scope of the Senate provision, it has been narrowed to comport with U.S. Supreme Court cases construing the First Amendment.

Visit of the President of the Republic of China on Taiwan

The Senate Amendment (sec. 168) states that the President of the Republic of China on Taiwan shall be admitted to the U.S. for a visit in 1995 with all appropriate courtesies.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1708) expresses the sense of Congress that the President of the Republic of China on Taiwan should be admitted to the U.S. for a visit in 1996 with all appropriate courtesies.

Terrorist Lookout Committees

The Senate amendment (sec. 169) codifies existing embassy visa terrorist lookout committees created under the "Visas Viper Program". The provision establishes the Deputy

Chief of Mission as the chair of the committee and requires representatives of the embassy's political section, law enforcement and intelligence agencies to be members of the committee. The purpose of the committee is to overcome the serious deficiencies in the current system to preclude known terrorists from gaining visas for entry into the U.S. Certification procedures and reporting requirements are established.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1238) eliminates the certification requirements and reduces the reporting requirements to two. Within 90 days of enactment, the Secretary of State is required to report to Congress on the status of establishing the committees at posts around the world. The second report, due in April 1997, will evaluate the success of the program and the extent of interagency cooperation.

Sense of Congress on Border Crossing Fees

The Senate amendment (sec. 170) expresses a sense of Congress that the U.S. should not impose a border crossing fee along the Mexican or Canadian border.

The House bill had no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1705) retains the sense of Congress provision.

(a) FINDINGS—The committee of conference finds that—

(1) in the budget of the United States for fiscal year 1996 that was submitted to Congress, the President proposed to impose and collect a border crossing fee for individuals and vehicles entering the United States;

(2) both the Canadian and Mexican governments have expressed opposition to the imposition and collection of such a fee and have raised the possibility of imposing retaliatory border crossing fees of their own;

(3) the imposition and collection of such a fee would have adverse effects on tourism and commerce that depend on travel across the borders of the United States;

(4) the imposition and collection of such a fee would have such effects without addressing illegal immigration in a meaningful way;

(5) on February 22, 1995, the President modified his proposal making the imposition of the new fees voluntary on United States border States (but tied the availability of Federal funds to improve border crossing infrastructure on their willingness to impose such fees); and

(6) on May 4, 1995, the President further modified the border crossing fee proposal in immigration control legislation he submitted to Congress setting a $1.50 per car and $.75 per pedestrian fee structure.

U.S. Emergency Refugee and Migration Assistance Fund

The House bill (sec. 2251) amends the Migration and Refugee Assistance Act (P.L. 87-510) to specify Congressional notification requirements for use of funds under the Act. This provision requires a 15-day notification to Congress of the drawdown of funds from the Emergency Refugee and Migration Account. A waiver of this notification is permitted under emergency situations.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment. The committee of conference remains concerned about the Department of State's lack of consultation on the use of these funds. We strongly encourage the Department to use the emergency funds for the intended purpose and use alternative sources of funding when available.

Persecution for resistance to coercive population control methods

The House bill (sec. 2252) provides that forced abortion, forced sterilization or persecution for resistance to such measures are "persecution on account of political opinion" within the meaning of the refugee definition of the Immigration and Nationality Act. It is intended to overrule administrative law decisions holding that subjection to such measures is not ordinarily persecution on account of a political opinion. This section reinstates the interpretation of the law that was reversed by an Immigration and Naturalization Service order on August 5, 1994.

The conference substitute (sec. 1255) is identical to the House bill.

Report to Congress concerning Cuban emigration policies

The House bill (sec. 2253) requires periodic reports on the Cuban government's methods of enforcing its 1994 and 1995 anti-immigration agreements with the U.S. on treatment of persons returned to Cuba under the 1995 agreement and on the methods used by the U.S. to monitor such treatment.

The Senate amendment (sec. 611) is identical.

The conference substitute (sec. 1251) is identical to the House bill.

U.S. policy regarding the involuntary return of refugees

The House bill (sec. 2254) provides that no funds authorized by this Act be used for the involuntary return of any person to a country in which he or she has a well-founded fear of persecution.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1256) states that no funds authorized for refugee and migration assistance be used for the involuntary return of any person to a country in which he or she has a well-founded fear of persecution. It would not prohibit funding for the return of people who had been found to be non-refugees by any process genuinely calculated to detect a well-founded fear of persecution.

Extension of certain adjudication provisions

The House bill (sec. 2255) extends the "Lautenberg Amendment" which identifies certain high-risk refugee categories and provides that applicants in these categories are presumed to be refugees if they assert both a fear of persecution and a credible basis for their fear of persecution. This standard is somewhat more generous than the general "well-founded fear" status. The high-risk categories include nationals or residents of an independent state of the former Soviet Union or Estonia, Latvia, or Lithuania who are Jews or evangelical Christians, as well as certain Southeast Asians. (See the discussion of section 2104 of the House bill, above.) The provision would also extend until Oct. 1, 1997 the Attorney General's ability to adjust the status of aliens who are nationals of an independent state of the former Soviet Union, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Vietnam, Laos, or Cambodia and were granted parole into the U.S. after August 14, 1988, to the status of aliens lawfully admitted for permanent residence.

The conference substitute (sec. 1252) is identical to the House bill.

Vietnam POW/MIA Asylum Program

The House bill (sec. 2256) gives the Attorney General the authority to grant asylum to a national of Vietnam, Cambodia, or Laos if he presents a live American POW/MIA.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

Korea POW/MIA Asylum Program

The House bill (sec. 2257) gives the Attorney General the authority to grant asylum to a national of North Korea, South Korea, or China if he presents a live American POW/MIA.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

Coordinator for counterterrorism

The House bill (sec. 2301) makes permanent the office of the Coordinator for Counterterrorism and retains a reporting line directly to the Secretary of State.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1301) is identical to the House bill, except that subsection (D) is deleted.

Special Envoy for Tibet

The House bill (sec. 2302) requires the establishment of a special envoy to Tibet within the State Department. The Special Envoy is authorized to promote substantive negotiations between the Dalai Lama or his representatives and senior members of the Chinese government.

Through this special envoy, the U.S. demonstrates its continued support for His Holiness the Dalai Lama in his quest for a peaceful resolution to the situation in Tibet through negotiations with the Chinese government.

The conference substitute (sec. 1303) permits the Secretary to establish a Special Envoy to Tibet. Following are committee of conference findings on this issue.

FINDINGS.—(1) The Government of the People's Republic of China withholds meaningful participation in the government of Tibet from Tibetans and has failed to abide by its own constitutional guarantee of autonomy for Tibetans.

(2) The Government of the People's Republic of China is responsible for the destruction of much of Tibet's cultural and religious heritage since 1959 and continues to threaten the survival of Tibetan culture and religion.

(3) The Government of the People's Republic of China, through direct and indirect incentives, has established discriminatory development programs which have resulted in an overwhelming flow of Chinese immigrants into Tibet, including those areas incorporated into the Chinese provinces of Sichuan, Yunnan, Gansu, and Quinghai in recent years, and have excluded Tibetans from participation in important policy decisions, further threatening traditional Tibetan life.

(4) The Government of the People's Republic of China denies Tibetans their fundamental human rights, as reported in the Department of State's Country Reports on Human Rights Practices for 1995.

(5) The President and the Congress have determined that the promotion of human rights in Tibet and the protection of Tibet's religion and culture are important elements in United States-China relations and have urged senior members of the Government of the People's Republic of China to enter into substantive negotiations on these matters with Dalai Lama or his representative.

(6) The Dalai Lama has repeatedly stated his willingness to begin substantive negotiations without preconditions.

(7) The Government of the People's Republic of China has failed to respond in a good faith manner by reciprocating a willingness to begin negotiations without preconditions, and no substantive negotiations have begun.

Responsibilities of bureau charged with migration and refugee assistance

The House bill (sec. 2303) establishes a Coordinator for Human Rights and Refugees within the Office of the Secretary of State. It also establishes a statutory bureau of Refugee and Migration Assistance.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1304) is designed to ensure that the bureau with responsibility for refugee and migration assistance be independent of the bureau charged with the substantially unrelated responsibility for population policy. The Department may, of course, still maintain a population office in another bureau as it did prior to 1993.

The House bill (sec. 2304) eliminates the statutory requirements for the Assistant Secretary for South Asia, the Assistant Secretary for Oceans, Environment, and Science, and the Deputy Assistant Secretary for Burdensharing.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1305) is identical to the House bill.

Establishment of an Assistant Secretary of State for Human Resources

The House bill (sec. 2305) establishes an Assistant Secretary for Human Resources and requires that the position be occupied by a professional in the field of personnel and human resources management.

The Senate amendment has no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1306) requires that either the head or the next most senior person of the bureau or office within the Department of State with responsibility for human resources and personnel policies shall have substantial professional qualifications in the field of human resources. This is a modification of the suggestion in the "State Team" For the Future, Personnel Commission Report of October 1992, that strongly recommended that the Department establish an Assistant Secretary for Human Resources with proper qualifications.

Authority of the Permanent Representative to the United Nations

The House bill (sec. 2306) clarifies that the U.S. Permanent Representative to the United Nations shall be subject to the direction of the Secretary of State.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1302) is identical to the House bill.

Authorized strength of the Foreign Service

The House bill (sec. 2351) imposes limits on the number of members of the Foreign Service authorized to be employed in fiscal years 1996 and 1997 as follows: for the Department of State not more than 9,000 in fiscal year 1996 and 8,800 in fiscal year 1997, of whom not more than 720 in fiscal year 1996 and 680 in fiscal year 1997 shall be members of the Senior Foreign Service; for the United States Information Agency (USIA) not more than 1,150 in fiscal year 1996 and 1,100 for fiscal year 1997, of whom not more than 165 in fiscal year 1996 and 160 in fiscal year 1997 shall be members of the Senior Foreign Service; and for the Agency for International Development (AID) not more than 1,800 members of the Foreign Service in fiscal years 1996 and 1,775 for fiscal year 1997, of whom not more than 240 in fiscal year 1996 and 230 in fiscal year 1997 shall be members of the Senior Foreign Service.

The conference substitute (sec. 1351) sets the end strength levels as follows: for the Department of State not more than 9,000 in fiscal year 1996 and 8,800 in fiscal year 1997, of whom not more than 660 in fiscal year 1996 and 660 in fiscal year 1997 shall be members of the Senior Foreign Service; for the United States Information Agency (USIA) not more than 1,150 in fiscal year 1996 and 1,100 for fiscal year 1997, of whom not more than 160 in fiscal year 1996 and 160 in fiscal year 1997 shall be members of the Senior Foreign Service; and for the Agency for International Development (AID) not more than 1,800 members of the Foreign Service in fiscal years 1996 and 1,775 for fiscal year 1997, of whom not more than 225 in fiscal year 1996 and 225 in fiscal year 1997 shall be members of the Senior Foreign Service.

The committee of conference notes that this provision was included pursuant to a recommendation of the Commission on the Foreign Service Personnel System (the "Thomas Commission"), the establishment of which was mandated by the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1988 and 1989.

Repeal of authority for Senior Foreign Service performance pay

The House bill (sec. 2352) repeals section 405 of the Foreign Service Act that provides for payment of performance pay.

The Senate amendment (sec. 145) requires that Foreign Service Officers commissioned by the President receive in all instances their regular salaries based on rank and service.

It also amends section 405 to allow recognition by the President even if funds are not available to pay for such an award. It requires the Secretary of State to develop and implement a plan to identify officers who are ranked by promotion boards in the bottom 5% of their class for two years and recommend that separation from the Foreign Service. In addition, it amends the Foreign Service Act to establish a single Foreign Service under the direction of the Director General of the Foreign Service. Agencies using the Foreign Service Act must conform with common standards set by the Director General.

The conference substitute (sec. 1357) omits the provision relating to a single Foreign Service. The section on expedited separation out is amended in line with the Administration's suggestions to provide that separation be recommended for members of the Foreign Service ranked by promotion boards in the bottom 5% of their class for any two of the five preceding years.

Recovery of costs of health care services

The House bill (sec. 2353) authorizes the Department of State to recover and retain the costs incurred by the Department of health care services provided to eligible employees and their families. The provision permits the recovery and retention of such costs from third-party payers and to recover directly from the employee if the employee chooses to be uninsured.

The conference substitute (sec. 1355) is identical to the House bill.

Restrictions on lobbying activities of former U.S. Chiefs of Mission

The Senate amendment (sec. 142) amends Title 18 by adding the Chief of Mission to the list of executive branch personnel who are restricted for one year after they leave the Chief of Mission position from representing someone with an interest in a matter that is before any officer or employee of the Department or agency in which they served.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1352) is identical to the Senate amendment.

Foreign service grounding in U.S. business

The Senate amendment (sec. 143) expresses the sense of Congress that the National Foreign Affairs Training Institute should increase its emphasis on commercial activity, export promotion, and trade in carrying out its core programs and should offer additional classes in such subjects.

The House bill contains no comparable amendment.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Foreign affairs administrative support

The Senate amendment (sec. 144) authorizes the Secretary of State to establish a financial system to manage reimbursements to the Department from other agencies. The President is required to establish an interagency committee for the purpose of developing the financial management system.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Limitation on management assignments

The Senate bill (sec. 146) amends current law dealing with the movement of Foreign Service personnel between certain American Foreign Service Association positions and management jobs. This narrows the definition of "management official" by exempting Chiefs of Mission and their deputies, administrative and personnel officers abroad and other individuals not involved in labor-management relations.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1353) is identical to the Senate amendment.

Report on promotion and retention of personnel

The Senate amendment (sec. 147) requires the Inspector General to comment biannually on the adequacy of the Secretary's annual report on foreign service work force planning and personnel policies.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1356) requires the Inspector General to comment with respect to the adequacy of the reports every other year.

Non-overtime differential pay

The Senate amendment (sec. 149) allows the Secretary of State to substitute another day in lieu of Sunday for purposes of Sunday premium pay in countries where the normal workweek includes Sunday.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1354) is identical to the Senate amendment.

Access to records

The Senate amendment (sec. 150) allows the Inspector General to furnish records or information as requested by the Grievance

Board only if the IG decides that there is no confidentiality requirements which would bar release.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Redesignation of the National Foreign Affairs Training Center

The Senate amendment (sec. 152) redesignates the National Foreign Affairs Training Institute as the National Center for Humanities, Education, Languages, and Management Studies.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Extension of the Au Pair Program

The Senate amendment (sec. 412) provides for a four-year extension of the Au Pair Program, lifts restrictions to make the program world-wide and requires a one-time report on the program.

The House bill (sec. 2402) provides for a two-year extension.

The conference substitute (sec. 1409) is identical to the Senate amendment with the addition of a repeal of section 581 of the Foreign Operations Appropriations Act (P.L. 104-107) which authorized a one-year extension of the Au Pair Program.

Educational and cultural exchanges with Hong Kong

The House bill (sec. 2403) requires USIA to conduct exchange programs with Hong Kong.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

Conduct of certain educational and cultural exchange programs

The House bill (sec. 2404) directs USIA to provide opportunities for participation in exchange programs for human rights and democracy leaders of Asian countries to persons who are nationals but not residents of such countries.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1408) is similar to the House bill. It is designed to ensure that exchange programs are effective in promoting a commitment to human rights, freedom, and democracy. In addition to helping future leaders get to know the U.S., it is hoped that these programs will also be a source of information about the situation in the named countries, and will signal to the rulers of those countries that in order to obtain American training for their promising students, they will have to accept the risk that American notions of democracy and open government will be brought home.

Educational and cultural exchange and scholarships for Tibetans and Burmese

The House bill (sec. 2405) requires USIA to provide 30 scholarships for Tibetans and 15 scholarships for Burmese. It also requires USIA to establish exchange programs for Tibetans and Burmese.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1410) is identical to the House bill. Having been impoverished by the corrupt mismanagement of a military dictatorship that has ruled the country since 1962, Burma needs educators, engineers, entrepreneurs, environmental and public health specialists—professionals in virtually all fields. It is anticipated that the great majority of Burmese who are now in exile would gladly return home if and when conditions in Burma have changed for the better. The scholarships provide a way to prepare these individuals to play a future role in rebuilding their country.

This exchange program also targets exiled Tibetans living in India and Nepal. Thirty percent of the program's costs are met by private organizations. In accepting the scholarship, all of the Tibetans agree to return to India or Nepal to work toward improving the conditions and future opportunities for their fellow refugees.

Availability of VOA and Radio Marti multilingual computer readable text and voice recordings

The House bill (sec. 2406) permits university level linguistic researchers to use VOA and Radio Marti transcripts for the purposes of research. This authority sunsets five years from date of enactment.

The Senate amendment (sec. 414) is virtually identical.

The conference substitute (sec. 1401) is identical to the House bill.

Retention of interest

The House bill (sec. 2407) authorizes grantees of NED to deposit their grant money in interest bearing accounts and use the interest for the purposes of the grant.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1407) is identical to the House bill.

USIA office in Pristina, Kosova

The House bill (sec. 2408) states that the USIA shall seek to establish an office in Pristina.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

U.S. diplomatic facilities in Kosova

The Senate amendment (sec. 135) authorizes the Secretary of State to establish a diplomatic office and residence in Pristina.

The House bill contains no comparable amendment.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Participation in international fairs and expositions

The Senate amendment (sec. 411) provides that none of the funds available in this Act can be used by a government agency to participate in an international fair or pavilion in excess of amounts authorized to be appropriated.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill. The committee of conference notes that the Senate provision restated current law.

Expansion of Muskie Fellowship Program

The Senate amendment (sec. 416) expands the Muskie program to include Albania, Bulgaria, Croatia, Czech Republic, Hungary, Poland, Romania, Slovenia, and Macedonia. It also amends the guidelines for participation by adding to the fields of study the following subjects: law, library, and information science and public policy to the fields of study of the program.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1403) is identical to the Senate amendment.

GAO study of duplication among international affairs grantees

The Senate amendment (sec. 418) requires the GAO to report on the purposes and activities of the North/South Center, East-West Center, the Asia Foundation, and NED to identify the extent to which their activities duplicate activities conducted elsewhere in the U.S. government.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

GAO study of activities of the North/South Center in support of NAFTA

The Senate amendment (sec. 419) requires the GAO to report on whether the North/South Center used U.S. funds to engage in improper lobbying efforts advocating NAFTA.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Mansfield Fellowship Program requirements

The Senate amendment (sec. 420) allows the Mansfield Board to refigure the housing allowance so fellows are placed in comparable housing. This is a cost saving measure.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1404) is identical to the Senate amendment.

Distribution within the United States of the USIA film "The Fragile Ring of Life"

The Senate amendment (sec. 421) waives the Smith-Mundt Act which prohibits domestic dissemination of products produced by USIA with respect to the film "The Fragile Ring of Life."

The House bill contains no comparable provision. The House passed this provision as a separate bill.

The conference substitute (sec. 1412) is identical to the Senate amendment.

Expansion of the Board of Broadcasting Governors

The House bill (sec. 2431) expands the current Broadcasting Board of Governors from 9 to 11.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate provision.

Radio Free Asia

The House bill (sec. 2432) requires the Director of USIA to submit a plan to Congress to establish Radio Free Asia within 90 days of the enactment of this Act.

The Senate amendment (sec. 415) contains a similar provision with drafting differences.

The conference substitute (sec. 1411) requires that within 180 days of enactment, Radio Free Asia shall initiate regular broadcasts to the People's Republic of China, Burma, Cambodia, Laos, North Korea, Tibet and Vietnam. The broadcasts will be conducted under the name of Radio Free Asia.

The conferees expect that in considering applications for employment, contracts, and similar arrangements in the establishment and operation of Radio Free Asia, USIA will give strong preference to those which will allow Radio Free Asia to (1) take advantage of the expertise of political and religious dissidents and pro-democracy and human rights activists from within the countries to whom broadcasting is directed, including exiles from these countries; and (2) take advantage of contracts and similar arrangements with existing broadcast facilities so as to provide immediate broadcast coverage with low overhead.

Pilot project for freedom broadcasting

The House bill (sec. 2433) requires USIA to make grants for broadcasting to Asian countries. In reviewing the grants, USIA is to give preference to organizations with expertise in the pro-democracy and human rights movements in Asia.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

Pilot program on advertising on USIA television and radio

The Senate amendment (sec. 413) requires the Director of USIA to submit a plan within 120 days for a pilot program to determine the feasibility of permitting advertising on USIA television and radio broadcasts.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1405) is the same as the Senate amendment except that the length of the pilot project was extended from 6 to 12 months.

Changes in administrative authorities

The Senate amendment (sec. 417) provides contract authority for the Tinian transmitter project; allows the authorization of appropriations for USIA to be available until March 1, 1997; includes technical amendments to direct that the heads of the Cuba Service and TV Marti report directly to the Director of the International Broadcasting Bureau; authorizes the Director of USIA to appoint up to 15 engineers employed by RFE/RL to the competitive service or career Foreign Service of USIA, and it authorizes fees to be collected at posts for educational advising services.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1406) is the same as the Senate amendment except the number of engineers that can be appointed is reduced from 15 to 5 upon the recommendation of USIA.

International Boundary and Water Commission

The House bill (sec. 2501) clarifies the authority of the U.S. section of the IBWC with regard to the reach of the Rio Grande from the Percha Diversion Dam in New Mexico to the American Diversion Dam in El Paso, Texas. This provision permits the U.S. Section to stabilize the river channel within the Rio Grande Canalization Project. This authorization will facilitate further compliance with the terms of the Convention for Equitable Distribution of the Waters of the Rio Grande, May 21, 1906, United States-Mexico.

The Senate amendment (sec. 303) is virtually identical to the House bill.

The conference substitute (sec. 1502) is identical to the House bill.

Repeal of authority for participation by the United States in the Interparliamentary Union

The House bill (sec. 2502) repeals the permanent authority for the Congressional participation in the IPU.

The Senate amendment (sec. 601) repeals U.S. participation in several of the interparliamentary groups.

The conference substitute deletes both provisions.

Termination of U.S. participation in certain international organizations

The Senate amendment (sec. 313) provides that no funds are available for U.S. membership in the following: U.N. Industrial Development Organization, the Inter-American Indian Institute, the Pan American Railway Congress Association, and the Interparliamentary Union.

The House bill has no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1501) provides that no funds are available for U.S. membership in the following: U.N. Industrial Development Organization, the Inter-American Indian Institute, the Pan American Railway Congress Association, the International Cotton Advisory Committee, the World Tourism Organization, and the International Tropical Timber Organization.

International Criminal Court participation

The Senate amendment (sec. 311) prohibits the U.S. from participating in an international criminal court with jurisdiction over crimes of an international character.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1608) includes a definition of the term "participate" in order to clarify that War Crimes Tribunals for specific countries would not be affected by this provision.

Prohibition on assistance to international organizations espousing one world government

The Senate amendment (sec. 312) prohibits the use of funds to pay for the U.S. contribution to any international organization which engages in direct or indirect promotion of the principle or doctrine of one world government or one world citizenship, or for the promotion of the principle of one world government or one world government.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1503) is identical to the Senate amendment.

International covenant on civil and political rights

The Senate amendment (sec. 314) includes findings and an expression of the sense of the Senate that the Human Rights Committee should revoke its General Comment No. 24.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1504) is similar to the Senate amendment, and includes a restriction that, effective two years after the date of enactment, no funds authorized to be appropriated by this or any other Act may be obligated or expended to report to the U.N. Human Rights Committee established by the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, or to respond to certain inquiries from the Committee. This restriction will cease to apply when the President certifies to the Congress that the Human Rights Committee has revoked its General comment No. 24 and expressly recognized the validity as a matter of international law of the reservations, understanding, and declarations contained in the U.S. instrument of ratification of the Covenant.

The committee of conference agreed to delay the effective date of the restriction for two years in order to afford the Human Rights Committee up to one year to reconsider and revoke its General Comment No. 24. If by the end of this one-year period the Human Rights Committee has not revoked General Comment No. 24 and expressly recognized the validity as a matter of international law of the reservations, understanding, and declarations contained in the U.S. instrument of ratification, the committee of conference expects the United States to provide notice in accordance with Article 56 of the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties of its intention to withdraw from the Covenant effective twelve months from the date of such notice. Adherence to this procedure will ensure that the United States remains in compliance with its international legal obligations as understood by the United States while at the same time insisting upon the primacy of the U.S. Constitution.

U.S participation in single commodity international organizations

The Senate amendment (sec. 315) requires the Secretary of State to report within 180 days of enactment on U.S. interests served by participation in single-commodity IO's and to assess the feasibility of privatization of U.S. representation in such organizations.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1505) is the same as the Senate amendment with the added requirement that the report assess the current and projected costs of continuing U.S. participation in such organizations.

Prohibition on contributions to the International Natural Rubber Organization

The Senate amendment (sec. 316) prohibits U.S. contributions to the International Natural Rubber Organization.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House provision.

Prohibition on contributions to the International Tropical Timber Organization

The Senate amendment (sec. 317) prohibits U.S. contributions to the International Tropical Timber Organization.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment. This provision has been included in section 1501, terminating U.S. participation in certain international organizations.

Sense of Congress on the U.N. Fourth World Conference on Women in Beijing

The Senate amendment (sec. 319) is a sense of Congress that the U.N. Fourth World Conference on Women should promote a representative American perspective on issues of equality, peace and development and other issues.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House provision.

Reform in budget decisionmaking procedures of the U.N. and its specialized agencies

The House bill (sec. 2521) extends current law allowing the President to withhold 20% of appropriated funds for the U.N. or any of its specialized agencies if the U.N. or the agency fails to implement consensus-based budget decisionmaking procedures. This is to ensure that the U.S. and other major contributors to U.N. agency budgets have an appropriate influence in the budget decisionmaking processes of international organizations. The President is directed to notify Congress of any decisions to withhold our share of an assessed contribution to the U.N.

The Senate amendment (sec. 204) is virtually identical to the House bill with minor drafting differences.

The conference substitute (sec. 1521) is identical to the House bill.

Limitation on contributions to the U.N. or U.N. affiliated organizations

The House bill (sec. 2522) prohibits U.S. contributions to the U.N. or affiliated organizations that grant full membership to any organization that does not have the internationally recognized attributes of statehood.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

Report on UNICEF

The House bill (sec. 2523) requires the Secretary of State to report on aspects of UNICEF's progress in implementing management reforms and ensuring a greater commitment to its traditional mission of child health and welfare. It further directs UNICEF to resist pressure to become involved in activities within the scope of responsibility of other U.N. agencies.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1522) is identical to the House bill.

U.N. budgetary and management reform

The House bill (sec. 2524) requires a 20% withholding of amounts for assessed contributions to the regular U.N. budget, a 50% withholding for assessed contributions to U.N. peacekeeping and no voluntary contributions to U.N. peacekeeping until the President certifies a series of management reforms. Withholding begins in FY 97 and each subsequent year. The House bill also requires further withholdings unless U.N. procurement reforms are implemented. These include the withholding of 10% of the amount of funds available for U.S. assessed contributions for the regular U.N. budget unless the President certifies that there is timely notice of contract awards or opportunities over $100,000. It also requires a similar percentage withholding unless there is a certification of no discrimination against companies challenging contract awards and unless a U.N. contract review process is established.

The Senate amendment (sec. 205) amends the U.N. Participation Act of 1945 directing the President to certify, to Congress that the U.N. has fully achieved the management reforms in the House bill. If the President cannot make such a certification, there are similar withholding provisions as in the House provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1523) is the same as the Senate amendment except that it includes the withholdings of 3% of U.S. assessed contributions for the regular U.N. budget unless the President makes the U.N. procurement certifications in the House bill relating to U.N. procurement opportunities, punitive actions on certain contractors and procedures for challenging the awarding of U.N. contracts.

Calculations of assessed contributions

The Senate amendment (sec. 203) expresses the sense of Congress that the U.N. General Assembly should reformulate the rates of assessment to reflect each member's share of the total world GNP.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Whistleblower provision

The Senate amendment (sec. 206) requires the President to withhold 10 percent of fiscal year 1996 assessed contributions to the U.N. until the Secretary of State certifies that the U.N. has implemented policies to protect adequately employees who allege fraud or mismanagement.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Annual report on U.S. contributions to U.N. peacekeeping activities

The Senate amendment (sec. 211) requires the President to submit a report of the budget expected for the next fiscal year for all U.N. peacekeeping activities and for U.S. participation in all U.N. peacekeeping activities.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1525) is the same as the Senate amendment except that the provision requiring a statement of the aggregate amount of funds available to the U.N. for the upcoming fiscal year is deleted.

Prior congressional notification of security council votes on U.N. peacekeeping activities

The Senate amendment (sec. 212) requires the President to notify Congress 5 days before casting a vote in the Security Council authorizing a U.N. peacekeeping operation that would involve the use of U.S. forces or funds. The President may waive this requirement if he determines that an emergency exists. In this case, he must provide notification to Congress within 48 hours after the adoption of any such authorization.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1526) is the same as the Senate amendment except that the notification requirement is deleted in regard to the expenditure of U.S. funds.

Codification of required notice to Congress of proposed U.N. peacekeeping activities

The Senate amendment (sec. 213) requires the President to report monthly in writing on U.S. assistance for United Nations peacekeeping operations with regard to facilities, training, transportation, communication and logistical support to certain Congressional committees.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1527) is identical to the Senate amendment.

Limitation on assessment percentage for peacekeeping activities

The Senate amendment (sec. 214) amends the U.N. Participation Act of 1945 to urge the U.N. Permanent Representative to work for a review of U.N. peacekeeping assessments. As part of this effort, the U.S. Ambassador should seek to employ the concept that a greater proportionate share of the burden of a peacekeeping operations should fall on the host government and other nearby states. It also limits the use of appropriated funds for peacekeeping to no more than 25% of the total assessed cost of an operation, regardless of any penalties or interest charges the U.N. may levy on the U.S. One intent of this provision is to discourage the U.N. from any attempt to charge member states, including the U.S., a late charge or fee for past-due assessments, as some have recommended.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1524) is identical to the Senate amendment.

Buy America requirement

The Senate amendment (sec. 215) conditions U.S. payments for U.N. peacekeeping on fair treatment of U.S. companies in U.N. procurement activities.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Restrictions on intelligence sharing with the United Nations

The Senate amendment (sec. 216) requires that before sharing U.S. intelligence information with the U.N., the President must certify that security procedures have been implemented at the U.N. to protect unauthorized disclosure of U.S. intelligence sources or methods. The Senate amendment specifies that the requirement may be waived upon written certification by the President that providing such information is in our national interest. It also provides for special reports regarding unauthorized disclosure of intelligence to the Select Committee on Intelligence and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence and the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives. It finally provides for semi-annual reports to the same committees on the types and volumes of intelligence provided to the U.N.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1528) is the same as the Senate amendment except that no intelligence may be provided to the U.N. unless the President certifies that the U.N. has implemented procedures no less stringent than procedures maintained by nation with which the U.S. regularly shares similar types of information. Periodic and special reports shall be provided as well except that the periodic report shall be no less frequently than quarterly and it shall be submitted to the Select Committee and the Permanent Select Committee with an annex containing a counter-intelligence and security assessment of the risks providing intelligence to the U.N.

UNPROFOR funding restrictions

The Senate amendment (sec. 217) states that none of the funds authorized by this act may be made available for contributions to the U.N. Protection Force unless the President certifies and reports to the Congress during the calendar years in which the funds are to be provided.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Escalating costs for international peacekeeping

The Senate amendment (sec. 218) is a sense of Congress that the Executive branch should stop obligating funds for peacekeeping operations in excess of authorized and appropriated funds.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1707) retains the sense of Congress provision.

(a) Findings.—The Congress finds that—

(1) in fiscal year 1989 the United States provided $29,000,000 to the United Nations for assessed United States contributions for international peacekeeping activities, compared to $485,000,000 paid for combined assessed contributions for all other international organizations, including the United Nations, all United Nations specialized agencies and the Organization for American States and all other pan American international organizations;

(2) in fiscal year 1994 United States assessed contributions to the United Nations for international peacekeeping activities had grown to $1,072,000,000, compared to $860,000,000 for combined assessed contributions for all other international organizations;

(3) for fiscal year 1995 the President requested a $672,000,000 United Nations peacekeeping supplemental appropriation which, if approved, would have been a direct increase in the Federal budget deficit and would have brought fiscal year 1995 total appropriations for assessed contributions for United Nations peacekeeping activities to $1,025,000,000;

(4) for fiscal year 1995 the President also requested supplemental appropriations of $1,900,000,000 to cover the Department of Defense's unbudgeted costs for humanitarian and peacekeeping missions in Haiti, Kuwait and Bosnia, which are in addition to regular United States assessed contributions to the United Nations for peacekeeping activities; and

(5) for fiscal year 1996 the President requested $445,000,000 for assessed contributions to the United Nations for international peacekeeping activities, a funding level most observers believe to be a significant understatement of actual peacekeeping obligations the Administration has committed the United States to support and which, if accurate, would lead to the third year in a row in which the Administration requests supplemental appropriations for assessed contributions to international peacekeeping in excess of $600,000,000 outside of the regular budget process.

Peacekeeping definition

The Senate amendment (sec. 219) amends the U.N. Participation Act of 1945 by adding a definition of peacekeeping activities.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Taiwan Relations Act

The House bill (sec. 2601) amends the Taiwan Relations Act to add a new subsection (d) to section 3 of the Act. This new subsection reasserts the primacy of sections 3(a) and 3(b) of the Taiwan Relations Act with regard to U.S. arms sales to Taiwan. Sections 3(a) and 3(b) provide in pertinent part that "the U.S. will make available to Taiwan such defense articles and defense services in such quantity as may be necessary to enable Taiwan to maintain a sufficient self-defense capability", and that "[t]he President and the Congress shall determine the nature and quantity of such defense articles and services based solely upon their judgment of the needs of Taiwan."

The conference substitute (sec. 1601) amends the Taiwan Relations Act to add a new subsection (d) to section 3 of the Act. This new subsection reasserts the primacy of sections 3(a) and 3(b) of the Taiwan Relations Act with regard to United States arms sales to Taiwan. Sections 3(a) and 3(b) provide in pertinent part that "the United States will make available to Taiwan such defense articles and defense services in such quantity as may be necessary to enable Taiwan to maintain a sufficient self-defense capability", and that "[t]he President and the Congress shall determine the nature of quantity of such defense articles and services based solely upon their judgement of the needs of Taiwan."

Subsequent to the enactment of the Taiwan Relations Act, and without the approval of the Congress, the Executive branch issued a "Joint Communique of the United States and China" on August 17, 1982, which purported to commit the United States "to reduce gradually its sales of arms to Taiwan, leading over a period of time to a final solution." Insofar as this policy statement is inconsistent with sections 3(a) and 3(b) of the Act, it is contrary to law and cannot be the policy of the United States. The new section 3(d) of the Act is intended to underscore this fact.

The new section 3(d) of the Act does not change United States law; it reaffirms it. It merely states that the Taiwan Relations Act, a law passed by the Congress, has primacy over a policy statement issued by the Executive branch. Any policy statement which, contrary to sections 3(a) and 3(b) of the Act, does not take into account Taiwan's defense needs or the role of the Congress and the President in determining such needs is invalid as a matter of law.

Reports to Congress on aspects of implementation of the General Framework Agreement

The House bill (sec. 2602) is a sense of Congress that the President should bring to justice persons responsible for genocide, war crimes, and other serious violations of international human rights law committed in the territory of the former Yugoslavia since 1991.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable amendment.

The conference substitute (sec. 1611) merges two House provisions, sec. 2602 Bosnia Genocide Act and sec. 2702 Territorial Integrity of Bosnia and Herzegovina. This revised section provides for periodic reports from the President on the military aspects of implementation of the Dayton Agreement, including the conduct of United States Armed Forces deployed in Bosnia-Herzegovina as part of Operation Joint Endeavor and the costs associated with their participation as well as plan for the timely withdrawal of U.S. military personnel. In addition, the President would report on progress in implementing civilian aspects of the Agreement including: preparations for elections to be supervised by the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE); steps taken to uphold the right of refugees and displaced persons to return home safely and regain lost property, or to obtain just compensation (or, where return would be unsafe and/or unjust, to be resettled elsewhere); progress in international humanitarian and reconstruction efforts; and cooperation with the ongoing work of the International Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia to investigate and prosecute war criminals, as well as efforts of the OSCE and other international and non-governmental organizations to protect and promote human rights. In addition, the section would require regular reporting on efforts by the United States and others to address the plight of the ethnic Albanian majority in Kosova and steps to establish a USIA office in Pristina.

USIA Office in Pristina: Kosovo's ethnic Albanian majority has been, and continues to be, the subject of brutal repression involving harassment, detention, and intimidation including beatings by police. Nearly half of the region's Albanian work-force was summarily fired in 1990 and replaced by Serbian workers. Albanian cultural identity remains under siege. The suppression of free media continues. Kosovar Albanians have felt increasingly isolated, particularly since OSCE observers were expelled from the region in 1993. A USIA office in Pristina will help to ease the current dire situation by disseminating information about the United States; promoting discussions on human rights, democracy, rule of law, and conflict resolution; facilitating U.S. private sector involvement in educational and cultural activities in Kosova; and advising the U.S. Government with respect to public opinion in Kosova. Opening an office in Pristina will send a strong signal to the Albanian population of Kosova that they have not been forgotten. The conferees have been informed that plans for such an office are underway. The reporting requirement is designed to ensure that they are implemented as soon as possible.

Territorial Integrity. The Dayton Peace Agreement on Bosnia-Herzegovina commits the signatories to "conduct their relations in accordance with the principles set forth in the United Nations Charter, as well as the Helsinki Final Act and other documents of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe" (OSCE), including the principle of territorial integrity. The House-passed bill, which was adopted prior to the Dayton accords, included specific language on territorial integrity in recognition of the centrality of this principle to the conflict in Bosnia and the implications of its violation in the former Yugoslavia and beyond. For nearly four years the people of Bosnia-Herzegovina fought, at significant disadvantage, to preserve their country in the face of armed aggression and genocide. The widespread illegal use of armed force in Bosnia-Herzegovina, including the targeting of unarmed civilian populations, has had devastating consequences for the people of that country. Against that backdrop, any moves to recognize the incorporation of any of the territory of Bosnia-Herzegovina into the territory of any neighboring state or the creation of any new state or states within the borders of Bosnia-Herzegovina would violate the principle of territorial integrity as reflected in the Charter and the Final Act. The conferees note the importance attached to this fundamental principle in Article 1 of the Dayton Agreement and will closely monitor implementation of this provision by all parties to the accord.

Expansion of the Commission for Security and Cooperation in Europe

The House bill (sec. 2603) expands the CSCE by 8 commissioners, 4 from the House and 4 from the Senate.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable amendment.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

Repeal of the executive branch membership in the Commission for Security and Cooperation in Europe

The Senate amendment (sec. 602) repeals the membership of the three executive branch representatives from the CSCE.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Repeal of termination of provisions of the Nuclear Proliferation Prevention Act of 1994

The House bill (sec. 2604) repeals a sunset provision in P.L. 103–236 thereby making permanent law the Nuclear Proliferation Prevention Act. The NPPA establishes a wide ranging nuclear non-proliferation sanctions regime similar to the Chemical and Biological Weapons and Missile Technology Control Regime sanctions laws.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable amendment.

The conference substitute (sec. 1613) is identical to the House with the addition of the repeal of the judicial review provisions contained in the original provision. This change reflects the concerns of the Administration.

Annual assessment

The House bill (sec. 2605) requires the Secretary of State to provide annually an assessment of the impact of foreign policy on the ability of U.S. entities to compete in foreign markets.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

Verification of Missile Technology Control Regime

The House bill (sec. 2606) requires the Director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency to transmit a report on the capability of the U.S. to verify the Missile Technology Control Regime.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1612) is identical to the House bill.

Bosnia and Herzegovnia Self-Defense Fund

The House bill (sec. 2607) provided for terminating the U.S. arms embargo against the government of Bosnia and Herzegovnia.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 2610) substantially revises this provision. Sec. 2610 (a) of the Conference Report provides the President with the authority to enter an agreement with other eligible countries to establish a fund to assist in the self defense of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The fund may be known as the "Multilateral Bosnia and Herzegovina Self Defense Fund." The United States contribution to this fund will be pursuant to the defense articles and services provided for in section 540 of the Foreign Operations and, Export Financing and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1996 (Public Law 104-107). In order to maximize the amount of equipment provided under this authority, it is the intention of the Conference Committee that, as the Administration utilizes the referenced authority for the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the price of transferred equipment shall not exceed the lowest level at which the same or similar equipment has been transferred to any other country under any other U.S. government program.

The Conference Committee notes that credible reports indicate that Iranian nationals remain in Bosnia and Herzegovina in violation of the Dayton General Framework Agreement to end the war in the former Yugoslavia. The Committee encourages the Administration to use its continued efforts to arm and train the forces of the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina as leverage to ensure full compliance with the expulsion of all disallowed Iranian nationals. The Committee further notes that the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina should curtail all military and intelligence relations with the Government of Iran.

Section 2610(b) identifies the purpose of the Fund as a means to coordinate the procurement of military equipment and training for transfer to the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina for the exercise of its right to self-defense under Article 51 of the United Nations Charter and to enable the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina to protect its population and territory.

Section 2610(c) requires United States leadership of the Fund. This provision is consistent with the text of a December 12, 1995 letter from President Clinton to the Honorable Robert Dole, Republican Leader of the Senate, in which the President wrote: ". . . the United States will take a leadership role in coordinating an international effort to ensure that the Bosnian Federation receives the assistance necessary to achieve an adequate military balance when IFOR leaves. This subsection directs the Fund to provide procedures for administering donations of military equipment and training, and requires written assurance from the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina that such donations will not be used to take reprisals against civilians.

Section 2610(d) requires the President to prepare and transmit to Congress a detailed report on the Administration's plan to assist the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina to provide for its own defense.

Section 2610(e) provides definitions for relevant terms in this section.

Section 2610(f) states unambiguously that nothing in this section shall be interpreted as authorization for deployment of United States forces in the territory of Bosnia and Herzegovina for any purpose, including training, support, or delivery of military equipment.

Annex 1 of the Dayton General Framework Agreement to end the war in the former Yugoslavia addresses the military aspects of the peace settlement, including the establishment of a NATO-led multinational force called the Implementation Force (IFOR). This annex also continues the cessation of hostilities agreement (as previously agreed by the warring parties on October 5, 1995), details a process for the separation of belligerent forces within 30 days of signing, establishes a process for notification by the parties of the type and location of military equipment within their control, and outlines the mission of the IFOR.

Annex 1 includes a second part establishing confidence building measures between the parties and laying out a process to create a military balance through arms reductions. In the event that negotiations do not achieve arms reductions, the agreement establishes a process to create military parity based on a maximum ratio of heavy weaponry (as defined in the agreement) of 5:2:2 for Serbia, Croatia and Bosnia respectively (the Bosnian ratio is to be split 2:1 between the Federation and Republic of Srpska, respectively). The baseline for creating this ration would be the total amount of heavy weapons held by Serbia after a mandatory twenty-five percent reduction.

The Conference Committee views the arms reduction provisions of the Agreement to be a positive feature. The Committee is concerned, however, that the Agreement contains little detail on how the arms reductions would be implemented, nor is there any mention in the Agreement of a plan for arming or training the Bosnian government forces should that be determined as a preferable option. Regardless of whether arms control measures are implemented successfully in the former Yugoslavia, the Conference Committee considers the creation of a military balance between the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina and its potential adversaries through the provision of military assistance to the Federation as a fundamental step in creating the conditions for the successful withdrawal of United States forces, serving as part of the Implementation Force (IFOR) in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

The United Nations arms embargo imposed upon the former Yugoslavia in September 1991, and extended without action in the United Nations Security Council to the sovereign nation of Bosnia and Herzegovina in April 1992, served to enforce an imbalance in forces between the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina and its adversaries in the former Yugoslavia. This imbalance led to disproportionate losses of civilians and soldiers in Bosnia, and prevented the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina from exercising its fundamental right of self-defense as provided for in Article 51 of the United Nations Charter.

It is the view of the Conference Committee that the improved military capabilities of the Bosnian government forces was a factor in creating a measure of military stability—and an environment for negotiations—which led to signing of the Dayton Agreement. The improvement in the military capabilities of the Bosnian government forces is, however, still insufficient to effectively deter further aggression. By creating a real military balance in the region it is the view of the Committee that the environment in which negotiations took place can be further enhanced to become an environment in which a stable peace can occur between the warring parties in the former Yugoslavia. The Conference Committee is particularly emphatic in its support of this initiative because the creation of such an environment is also a critical element of the Clinton Administration's pledge to remove United States forces from Bosnia and Herzegovina by the end of 1996.

United States-North Korea Agreed Framework

The House bill (sec. 2641) summarizes the findings of Congress regarding the salient features of the Agreed Framework and its inadequacies in regard to specific Congressional concerns.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1607) merges House bill sections 2641, 2642, 2643, 2644, and 2645 into one provision. The conference substitute expresses the sense of Congress regarding the minimum conditions for participation in the Agreed Framework, and lays out conditions under which additional progress may occur in U.S.-North Korean bilateral relations. Areas where progress is expected before upgrading bilateral relations include: 1) dialogue in North-South dialogue; 2) progress implementation of the North-South Joint declaration on Denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula; 3) reduction in the number of North Korean military forces along the Demilitarized Zone; and, 4) prohibiting deployment of North Korean ballistic missiles and weapons of mass destruction. At the Senate's request, a fifth and sixth category of expected progress on the part of the North Koreans. These included cooperation on the recovery of remains of American MIAs, and confirmation that North Korea has ceased its support of international terrorism.

The conference substitute seeks to ensure that any assistance provided to North Korea or the Koran Peninsula Energy Development Organization (KEDO), regardless of the agency or account from which they are derived will be provided in accordance with the reprogramming notification procedures contained in section 634A of the Foreign Assistance Act.

U.S. policy concerning the dictatorship in Burma

The House bill, (sec. 2651) is a sense of Congress that the U.N. Security Council should impose an international arms embargo on Burma, affirm human rights, and reduce U.N. organizations' presence in Burma, except to the UNDCP.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

U.S. policy with respect to the involuntary return of persons subjected to torture

The House bill (secs. 2661, 2662) prohibits the use of funds for the involuntary return of any person to a place in which he/she is in serious danger of torture. A definition of torture is included.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1256) prohibits the use of funds authorized by this Act, or funds authorized for emergency refugee and migration assistance, to be used for the involuntary return of any person to a country in which he or she is in serious danger of being subjected to torture. The provision will partly implement the international obligations of the United States under the Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman, and Degrading Treatment or Punishment.

Inter American organizations

The House bill (sec. 2701) states that the Secretary of State should take into account the long-term commitment of the U.S. to the affairs of the Western Hemisphere insetting funding levels for Inter-American organizations.

The Senate amendment (sec. 304) is virtually identical.

The conference substitute (sec. 1706) specifies that the Secretary of State should make every effort to pay the full U.S. assessment for two Inter-American organizations, the Organization of American States and the Pan American Health Organization.

Territorial integrity of Bosnia and Herzegovina

The House bill (sec. 2702) expresses the sense of Congress that the U.S. should refuse to recognize the incorporation of any of the territory of Bosnia-Herzegovina into the territory of a neighboring state.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute refers to sec. 1611.

The Laogai system of political prisons

The House bill (sec. 2703) expresses a sense of Congress that the President should condemn the continued existence of the Laogai and calls upon the Government of China to dismantle it.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1701) expresses the sense of Congress as contained in the House bill.

(a) FINDINGS—The committee of conference makes the following findings:

(1) The Chinese gulag, known as the Laogai, was created as a primary means of political repression and control when the Communists assumed power in China in 1949.

(2) The Laogai has caused millions of people to suffer grave human rights abuses over the past 46 years, including countless deaths.

(3) The Laogai continues to be used to incarcerate unknown numbers of ordinary citizens for political reasons, including workers, students, intellectuals, religious believers, and Tibetans.

(4) So-called "thought reform" is a standard practice of Laogai officials, and reports of torture are routinely received by human rights organizations from Laogai prisoners and survivors.

(5) Negotiations about unfettered access to Laogai prisoners between the Chinese Government and the International Red Cross have ceased.

(6) The Laogai is in reality a huge system of forced labor camps in which political and penal criminals are slave laborers producing an array of products for export throughout the world, including the United States.

(7) The Chinese Government continues to maintain, as part of its official propaganda and in defiance of significant evidence to the contrary gathered by many human rights organizations, that the Laogai is a prison system like any other in the world.

(8) Testimony delivered before the Subcommittee on International Operations and Human Rights of the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives has documented human rights abuses in the Laogai which continue to this day.

(9) The American people have repeatedly expressed their abhorrence of forced labor camps for persons convicted of political crimes, whether they be operated by the Nazis, Soviet Communists, or any other political ideology.

Use of funds to further normalize relations with Vietnam

The House bill (sec. 2704) expresses a sense of Congress that funds should not be obligated to further normalize relations with Vietnam until the government of Vietnam holds free elections, respects human rights and accounts for remaining POW/MIA cases.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1214) provides that none of the funds authorized to be appropriated under this Act may be obligated or expended for costs incurred for opening or operating any U.S. diplomatic or consular post in Vietnam that was not operating on July 11, 1995, for expanding any U.S. diplomatic or consular post in Vietnam that was not operating on July 11, 1995, or increasing the total number of personnel assigned to the U.S. diplomatic or consular posts in Vietnam above the levels existing on July 11, 1995 unless 60 days prior to the obligation of funds, the President certifies to Congress that based upon all information available to the U.S. government that the Government of Vietnam is fully cooperating in four areas of POW/MIA investigations and research. This substitute is consistent with the provision contained in the Commerce, Justice, State and Related Agencies Appropriations bill for Fiscal Year 1996.

The House bill (sec. 2705) expresses a sense of Congress that the People's Republic of China continues to violate human rights, and requires within 90 days, reports on the President's successes with his China human rights policy and the status of coercive population control programs and on prison labor conditions.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1702) is similar to the House bill with modifications to update the provision.

Concerning the U.N. Voluntary Fund for Victims of Torture

The House bill (sec. 2706) expresses a sense of Congress that the Voluntary Fund should develop and support treatment centers for torture victims and that the U.S. should support the work of the Special Rapporteur on Torture and the Convention Against Torture.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment. The committee of conference suggest that the President acting through the U.S. Permanent Representative to the U.N., should request the U.N. Voluntary Fund for Victims of Torture to find new ways to support and protect treatment centers that are carrying out rehabilitative services for victims of torture.

Recommendations of the President for reform of the War Powers Resolution

The House bill (sec. 2707) expresses a sense of Congress that the President should transmit to Congress recommendations for reform of the War Powers Resolution.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

Conflict in Kashmir

The House bill (sec. 2708) expresses a sense of Congress that the U.S. should reiterate the need for parties to the conflict in Kashmir to enter into negotiations.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

U.S. relations with the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia

The House bill (sec. 2709) expresses a sense of Congress that the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia should be eligible for all U.S. foreign assistance programs.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1703) is identical to the House bill.

Displaced persons

The House bill (sec. 2711) expresses a sense of Congress that $20 million of U.N. Development Program funds should be used for programs for displaced person within their own countries of nationality, in cooperation with the International Organization for Migration, the International Committee for the Red Cross, and other non-governmental organizations.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1704) is the same as the House bill with a technical modification.

Policy toward Iran

The House bill (sec. 2712) expresses a series of findings and Congressional declarations regarding U.S. policy toward Iran.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

Conflict in Chechnya

The House bill (sec. 2713) expresses a series of findings and Congressional declarations urging the President to repeat the call to end the war in Chechnya.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment. The Committee of Conference still considers this provision to be important.

(a) FINDINGS—The committee of conference finds the following:

(1) Russian troops advanced into Chechnya on December 10, 1994, and were met with strong resistance from Chechen rebels who have now moved to the Caucasus mountains where they are engaging in what even the most optimistic Russian military officers predict will be a drawn-out guerrilla war.

(2) The cost of the Chechen battle is estimated to cost the Government of Russia at least $2,000,000,000 and could exacerbate the budget deficit of the Government of Russia.

(3) The United States has approved over $2,400,000,000 in loan guarantees through the Export-Import Bank of the United States and the Overseas Private Investment Corporation.

(4) The United States has provided Russia with significant direct assistance to promote a free market economy, support democracy, meet humanitarian needs, and dismantle nuclear weapons.

(b) DECLARATION OF POLICY—The committee of conference declares the following:

(1) United States investment in Russia has been significant in promoting democracy and stabilizing the economy of Russia and this progress could be imperiled by Russia's continued war in Chechnya.

(2) The inability to negotiate an end to this crisis and the resulting economic implications could adversely affect the ability of Russia to fulfill its commitments to the International Monetary Fund, the Export-Import Bank of the United States, and the Overseas Private Investment Corporation.

(3) In further contacts with President Yeltsin, it is imperative that President Clinton repeat his call for an immediate end to the war in Chechnya.

U.S. Delegation to the Fourth World Conference on Women in Beijing

The House bill (sec. 2714) expresses a sense of Congress that the U.S. delegation to the Fourth World Conference on Women, should include a Tibetan representative.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

Female genital mutilation

The House bill (sec. 2715) expresses a sense of Congress that the President should seek to end the practice of female genital mutilation worldwide through the active cooperation and participation of governments in countries where female genital mutilation takes place.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

Sense of Congress regarding Syrian occupation of Lebanon

The House bill (sec. 2716) expresses a sense of Congress that the Government of Syria should comply with the Taif Agreement and withdraw all of its troops from Lebanon and the Secretary of State should report to Congress on the actions the U.S. has taken to encourage withdrawal of all Syrian troops from Lebanon.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the Senate amendment.

Statutory construction

The Senate amendment (sec. 502) clarifies that the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency cannot authorize policies which would interfere with the acquisition, possession or use of firearms by an individual for the purpose of personal defense, sport, education or training.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1605) is identical to the Senate amendment.

Payments of Iraq claims

The Senate amendment (sec. 603) requires the Secretary of the Treasury to approve all applications for licenses that meet the criteria of section 575.510 of title 31, Code of Federal Regulations, even though such applications may have failed to meet the requirement that the letter of credit be issued or confirmed by a U.S. bank or that the letter of credit reimbursement be confirmed by a U.S. bank. Licenses pursuant to this section shall be issued within 30 days of the date of enactment of this Act.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1614) vests in the President all blocked non-diplomatic accounts or assets of the Government of Iraq and would direct the President to liquidate such accounts not later than 30 days after enactment.

Upon the vesting of these accounts, the Secretary of the Treasury is directed to establish in the Treasury an Iraq Claims Fund for payment of private claims or U.S. Government claims. The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission of the United States is authorized to determine the validity and amounts of private claims and certify to the Treasury the awards made in favor of each private claim.

Not later than two years after the date of enactment, the Secretary shall make payment out of the Fund on certified private claims according to the proportions which the total amount of certified private claims bear to the total amount in the Fund that is available for distribution at the time payments are made. After payments have been made in full on private claims out of the Fund, any funds remaining can be made to satisfy U.S. Government claims against the Government of Iraq.

The President is directed to determine the validity of government claims which the Secretary of State has determined are outside the jurisdiction of the United Nations Commission. To the extent that there are enough funds available to satisfy these claims, the President is authorized and requested to enter into a settlement with the Government of Iraq providing payment for these claims.

The conference substitute embraces the pre-existing procedures of the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission to ensure uniformity of process with previous claim adjudications such as Iran and Vietnam.

Paying private claims first out of blocked Iraqi assets recognizes that many U.S. companies cannot wait over six years to receive the proceeds from their legitimate commercial transactions. When the President freezes assets of hostile foreign countries, U.S. exporters and businesses should not be forced to shoulder a disproportionate burden of the costs.

Private American claimants cannot readily negotiate with the Government of Iraq for satisfaction of their claims. This legislation does nothing to prohibit the United States Government from fully collecting on the American taxpayer claims through continued negotiations with the Government of Iraq or with the United Nations Compensation Commission.

Reports regarding Hong Kong

The Senate Amendment (sec. 604) amends the Hong Kong Policy Act of 1992 (22 U.S.C. 5731) to extend the requirement in the Hong Kong Policy Act for the Secretary of State to transmit a report on conditions in Hong Kong of interest to the U.S. by March 31, 1995 and every year thereafter.

The provision requires this report to detail information on the status of and other developments affecting: implementation of the Sino-British Joint Declaration on the Question of Hong Kong, including the Basic Law and its consistency with the Joint Declaration; the openness and fairness of the election of the chief executive and the executive's accountability to the legislature; the treatment of political parties; the independence of the judiciary and its ability to exercise the power of final judgement over Hong Kong law; and the Bill of Rights.

The House bill contains no comparable amendment.

Taipei Representative Office

The Senate amendment (sec. 606) redesignates the Taipei Economic and Cultural Representative Office as the "Taipei Representative Office".

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1603) permits the Taipei Economic and Cultural Representative Office to operate under the name of the "Taipei Representative Office".

Prohibition on the use of funds to facilitate Iraqi refugee admissions into the United States

The Senate amendment (sec. 609) prohibits funding for admission into the U.S. of Iraqi refugees currently residing in Turkey and Saudi Arabia.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1254) requires a report on various aspects of the Iraqi refugee resettlement program. The main purpose of the report is to ensure that the resettlement of Iraqi refugees from Turkey or Saudi Arabia to the United States comports with all applicable immigration and refugee laws and policies.

Special envoy for Nagorno-Karabakh

The Senate amendment (sec. 610) expresses a sense of Congress that the President should appoint a special envoy to settle the conflict in Nagorno-Karabakh.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Efforts against emerging infectious diseases

The Senate amendment (sec. 612) directs the President to develop strategies to combat emerging infectious diseases. It requires the submission to Congress of a strategic plan, in cooperation with the international public health infrastructure, to identify and respond to the threat of emerging infectious diseases which pose a danger to the health of the people of the U.S.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1604) is identical to the Senate amendment except the reporting date is changed to six months after enactment.

Report on firms engaged in export of dual-use items

The Senate amendment (sec. 613) requires the Secretary of State to issue a report every 180 days until 1998 discussing measures taken to prevent future lapses in the screening process and to coordinate government agencies involved in exports.

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Middle East Peace Facilitation Act

The Senate amendment (sec. 615)

The House bill contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute is identical to the House bill.

Housing Guarantee Program

The House bill (sec. 3251 & 3252) provides close-down funding for the Housing Investment Guarantee Program in accordance with GAO's recommendation. Loan losses and management problems have plagued this program. Sec. 3252, prohibits the issuance of any new guarantees under the HIG program after the date of enactment of this bill. Existing guarantees which have not been applied to loans are cancelled upon enactment of the bill.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1111) includes the two above-referenced House provisions that would terminate the AID Housing Guarantee Program and impose new penalties to forestall defaults on existing guarantees and increase collection on bad loans. Under these sections, no new guarantees would be issued. Existing guarantees which have not been used would be cancelled, except in South Africa. Borrowers which fall into arrears on a guaranteed loan will have AID assistance suspended until the borrower becomes current on the guaranteed loan, whereupon assistance is restored.

These provisions address the findings by the General Accounting Office that the U.S. has paid $542 million to cover the failure of 23 foreign governments to make payments on guaranteed loans and that another $600 million will have to be paid out to cover future defaults on the existing $2.7 billion in outstanding guarantees. That is a total projected loss of $1 billion, or 40 percent. Further, the GAO found that of the $542 million in claims paid, the U.S. government has failed to recover $409 million from the borrowers who failed to make payments on guaranteed loans.

Deobligation of certain AID funds

The House bill (sec. 3286) requires the deobligation of certain categories of economic assistance funds which have remained unexpended for more than three years after being appropriated. Deobligated funds are returned to the Treasury.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1616) is identical to the House provision which would de-obligate certain AID funds left over from prior years which have remained unspent. Under the provision, AID funds remaining unspent after 3 fiscal years would be de-obligated and returned to the Treasury. Exceptions are incorporated for funds devoted to long-term construction projects and projects delayed due to unforeseen circumstances.

This provision addresses a long-standing recommendation by the General Accounting Office that the AID "pipeline" be curtailed. In 1991 when GAO first made its recommendation, AID had $8.8 billion in funds left over from prior years. At the end of FY 1995, 5 years later, the amount was $8.5 billion, of which approximately $1 billion dated back more than 3 years. GAO found that although AID has authority to re-program funds when priorities change, AID has made very little use of this administrative flexibility. GAO further found that leaving AID funds unspent for many years leads to waste.

Limitation on assistance to countries that restrict the transport or delivery of United States humanitarian assistance

The House bill (sec. 3418) prohibits assistance to any country that impedes or prohibits the transport or delivery of U.S. humanitarian assistance. The ban on U.S. aid to countries impeding delivery of U.S. humanitarian aid to third countries would be waived if the President issued Congress a waiver stating the continued aid would be in the U.S. national security interest.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1617) is identical to the House bill.

Industrial park for Gaza or the West Bank

The conference substitute (sec. 1710) requires the President to report to the Appropriate Congressional Committees not later than 180 days after enactment of this bill detailing all actions taken by the U.S. government to establish an industrial park in Gaza or the West Bank and identifying all U.S. government funds intended for the development of such an industrial park.

The Congress finds that (1) extremists in Hamas and Islamic Jihad who reject the gains made since the signing of the Declaration of Principles have used terrorist tactics to force the closing of the territories; (2) these terrorists acts have exacerbated existing problems in Gaza is now experiencing staggering unemployment nearing fifty percent, increasing chaos and a downward spiral of dashed hopes and deepening poverty; (3) Israel's legitimate security concerns necessitate creative new methods of ensuring continued economic opportunity for the Palestinians; and (4) the development of industrial parks along the border between Gaza, the West Bank and Israel sponsored by individual nations provides an important means of providing both development for Palestinians while maintaining border security.

International Fund for Ireland

The House bill (sec. 3204) provided a funding cap from Economic Support Funds of $29.6 million in FY 1996 and $19.6 million in FY 1997 for the U.S. contribution to the International Fund for Ireland (IFI). The amounts made available are authorized to remain available until expended.

The House section also amended the Anglo-Irish Agreement Support Act of 1986 (P.L. 99–415) to require that U.S. contributions "shall" be used in a manner that effectively increases employment opportunities in communities with rates of unemployment "significantly" higher that the local or urban average of unemployment in Northern Ireland (defined as the counties of Antrim, Armagh, Derry, Down, Tyrone, and Fermanagh).

Under this section funding could be provided by the IFI only if individuals or entities receiving such funds are in compliance with the "principles of economic justice." The principles of economic justice are defined as the "MacBride Principles" as modified, include:

(1) Increasing the representation of individuals, from underrepresented religious groups in the workforce, including managerial, supervisory, administrative, clerical, and technical jobs,

(2) Providing adequate security for the protection of minority employees at the workplace,

(3) Banning provocative sectarian or political emblems from the workplace,

(4) Providing that all job openings be advertised publicly and providing that special recruitment efforts be made to attract applicants from underrepresented religious groups,

(5) Providing that layoff, recall and termination procedures do not favor a particular religious group,

(6) Abolishing job reservations, apprenticeship restrictions and differential employment criteria which discriminate on the basis of religion,

(7) Providing for the development of training programs that will prepare substantial numbers of minority employees for skilled jobs, including the expansion of existing programs and the creation of new programs to train, upgrade and improve the skills of minority employees,

(8) Establishing procedures to assess, identify and actively recruit minority employees with the potential for further advancement, and

(9) Proving for the appointment of a senior management staff member to be responsible for the employment efforts of the entity and, within a reasonable period of time, the implementation of the principles described above.

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

The conference substitute (sec. 1615) reduces the funding cap from $29.6 million to $19.6 million for fiscal year 1996. The committee of conference also inserted "should" for "shall" in the Anglo-Irish Agreement Act amendment to provide the Administration with more discretion in implementing this section. The term significantly was determined to be redundant and was deleted from the referenced areas of high unemployment.

The section also includes the principles of economic justice to insure that these principles should be applied by those individuals or entities who receive any portion of the U.S. contribution to the International Fund for Ireland.

In addition a new provision was added to insure nothing shall require quotas or reverse discrimination, which is consistent with the intent and purpose of the MacBride principles.

Republic of China Taiwan participation in GATT and WTO

The committee of conference (sec. 1709) agreed to this provision (sec. 2709) expressing a sense of Congress on The Republic of Taiwan's membership in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and the World Trade Organization.

PEACE AND SECURITY IN TAIWAN MUST BE MAINTAINED

(Mr. FUNDERBURK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. FUNDERBURK. Mr. Speaker, the absence of effective American leadership in East Asia is a major contributing factor to the current heightened crisis in the Taiwan Strait. For the past 25 years our relationship with the Communist People's Republic of China has been contingent upon a peaceful resolution of the Taiwan issue. Before the United States Congress enacted the Taiwan Relations Act, the executive branch of all administrations, from Nixon to the present, committed to the peaceful resolution on the future of Taiwan.

The current crisis in the Taiwan Straits seriously jeopardizes this understanding and the condition of the diplomatic relations between the United States and the People's Republic of China. We must send an unambiguous message to Beijing that the United States will not stand by idly while the future of Taiwan is threatened. To this end the United States must stand ready to defend Taiwan against any resort of force or other forms of coercion that would jeopardize Taiwan's security.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members are recognized for 5 minutes each.

COMMENDING PRESIDENT CLINTON FOR SUSPENDING USE OF RACE- AND GENDER-BASED SET-ASIDES IN AWARDING OF FEDERAL CONTRACTS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. FRANKS] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRANKS of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I commend President Clinton for suspending the use of race- and gender-based set-asides for the awarding of Federal contracts. These preferences are the most onerous aspect of affirmative action.

Last year I fought hard with an amendment to the defense appropriations bill to accomplish this same objective. However, that was not possible.

In October, President Clinton reviewed and quietly ended that practice for defense contracts. But today's broader executive branch decision marks the true beginning of the end for race- and gender-based set-asides.

Mr. Speaker, like all Americans, I want my children, Azia, Jessica, and Gary, Jr., to have an equal opportunity to succeed in this great country of ours. I want to them to know that, when selected, they are not just the best black person for the job, but that they are the best person for the job.

It has to be the goal of this Nation to have more blacks, Hispanics, Asians, and women of all hues on the playing field of economic opportunity and growth. We want to see more bids on Government contracts for minorities and women, not fewer than the handful received today. That will truly enhance the likelihood of more Government contracts going to minorities and women.

Mr. Speaker, outreach programs are essential. The are critical. Cabinet members and other high-level Federal officials must be held accountable for their outreach efforts. Once again, the Government should seek as many bids for minorities and women as possible, but once the bids are opened in the small business category, low bids should prevail regardless of one's gender or one's race.

I thank the President for his actions.

MEMBERS OF CONGRESS DO NOT HAVE TO SPEND TAXPAYER DOLLARS JUST BECAUSE THEY HAVE A TAXPAYER-FUNDED EXPENSE ALLOWANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the previous order of the House, the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. BROWDER] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BROWDER. Mr. Speaker, today is, for me, personally, one of my finest moments on the floor of Congress since my 1989 special election.

Today, I become the founder, president, and only member of my self-declared "Million Dollar Turnback Club."

Just yesterday, I received notice from the Committee on House Oversight that the unspent balance from my representational allowance for 1995 is $198,990.30.

These 1995 savings, or unspent allowance, bring my total turnback to $1.2 million since I entered Congress in 1989.

As many people know, congressional offices are allowed approximately $838,000 a year for office expenses, staff, and postage. The amount when I first came to Congress was about $500,000. So, my total turnback amount means that I saved, or did not spend, about a quarter out of every dollar that I could have spent during that time.

When I first came to Congress, the political consultants told me to spend every dime of my representational allowance—send out mass mailings, hire all the staff you can, anything to boost your name identification and get you reelected. But, I did not want to do it that way.

I have always remembered that the money we use is taxpayers' money and they expect us to use it wisely and frugally. I made it a practice to watch my office expenses and provide the best service possible at the lowest cost possible.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to enter into the RECORD a letter from the National Taxpayers Union, which says, in part:

> DEAR REPRESENTATIVE BROWDER: I have just learned of your most recent effort to save taxpayer dollars through the frugal use of your congressional office account. Returning over $200,000, about 25 percent of your allotted budget, is certainly worthy of our thanks and praise. Your efforts are especially rewarding for taxpayers because the money returned must, for the first time, be used for deficit reduction.
>
> Your wise use of funds over which you have direct control has resulted in, as I understand it, the return of over $1 million to the U.S. Treasury in the last 5 years. That's a fine record that your constituents can reflect on with pride.

So, today I am going to sign this facsimile check for $1 million to the American taxpayer.

Clearly, not every Member of Congress can take the approach that I have taken because of their own philosophy of representation or the nature of their districts. And taxpayers know that I am not Ed McMahon and they are not going to be receiving this check in the mail.

But I want to dramatize this moment to demonstrate that we do not have to spend taxpayer dollars just because we have a taxpayer-funded expense allowance. And I also want our taxpayers to know that many of us do put public service above our own political careers.

NATIONAL TAXPAYERS UNION,
February 9, 1996.

HON. GLEN BROWDER,
U.S. House of Representatives,
Rayburn House Office Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE BROWDER: I have just learned of your most recent effort to save taxpayer dollars through the frugal use of your Congressional office account. Returning over $200,000, about 25 percent of your allotted budget, is certainly worthy of our thanks and praise. Your efforts are especially rewarding for taxpayers because the money returned must, for the first time, be used for deficit reduction.

Your wise use of funds over which you have direct control has resulted in, as I understand it, the return of over $1 million to the U.S. Treasury in the last 5 years. That's a fine record that your constituents can reflect on with pride.

As you know, the National Taxpayers Union has for several years supported legislation by Representatives Tim Roemer and Dick Zimmer to ensure that any and all unused office funds returned by thrifty Members go only to reduce our annual deficits. You have contributed greatly to further that drive and we are most appreciative.

Again, please accept our thanks and compliments for your frugal management efforts as well as for your legislative leadership on this issue.

Sincerely,

AL CORS, Jr.,
Director, Government Relations.

Petition 9 by Mr. CONDIT on House Resolution 333: John S. Tanner.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

LEDFORD HIGH SCHOOL VARSITY CHEERLEADING TEAM

HON. HOWARD COBLE

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, March 8, 1996

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, as the college and high school basketball seasons move into high gear, we pause for a moment to give praise to one group closely associated with the sport of round ball which is often overlooked, namely the cheerleaders. These dedicated young people contribute much to the joy and enthusiasm which exists at our Nation's high school and college basketball games, as well as many other sporting events.

Of course, everyone knows that North Carolina is a basketball hotbed. We are proud of the level of basketball skills exhibited at the high school and college levels and that includes our cheerleaders. We think they are the best. Now, we have proof that the Sixth District of North Carolina is home to the best cheerleaders in our State.

The members of the Ledford High School varsity cheerleading team were declared State champs recently in the North Carolina State 2A cheerleading championships. The Davidson County high school squad, coached by Debbie Pope, won the State title which was sponsored by the North Carolina Cheerleading Coaches Association and recognized by the North Carolina High School Athletic Association.

The Panthers' cheerleading squad is comprised of team captains Heather Pitts and Courtney Troutman, as well as Shannon Montgomery, Chrissy Ayers, Lauren Garner, Leslie Varner, Kellie Jackson, Ashley Craven, April Kindred, Brittany Yountz, Mellisa Quinn, and Alicia Belle.

The most recent State championship is not the only trophy captured by the Ledford cheerleaders. The squad won the varsity dance/pom championship at UCA summer camp and the ECA regional championship in the varsity division. Ledford was also invited to the ECA Nationals. Three team members were selected as all-stars at UCA summer camp, and Chrissy Ayers was chosen to be a member of the West squad for the N.C. East/West All-State Cheerleading Team.

For winning this title, we offer our congratulations to Ledford principal Max Cole, athletic director Gary Hinkle, Coach Debbie Pope, the faculty, staff, students and families of Ledford High School. We are certain that the whole community is sharing in the excitement.

So, if you attend a sporting event at Ledford High School anytime soon, take special notice of the cheerleaders because they are State champions. From the citizens of the Sixth District of North Carolina, three cheers to the Ledford High School Varsity Cheerleading Team.

HOME EDUCATION

HON. VAN HILLEARY

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, March 8, 1996

Mr. HILLEARY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to insert Gov. Don Sundquist's proclamation declaring this week, March 4–10, 1996, "Tennessee Home Education Week," into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. I fully support this worthy proclamation, and I will continue to work to allow America's parents to have more control over their children's education.

STATE OF TENNESSEE—PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

Whereas, Tennessee is committed to excellence in education and to public policy that strengthens the family; and

Whereas, Tennessee recognizes parental choice in pursuit of that excellence and the importance of parental involvement in education; and

Whereas, Tennessee appropriately and statutorily authorizes home education as an educational alternative, as well as recognizes the rights of parents to teach and train their children because of their religious beliefs; and

Whereas, home schools can afford families the opportunity to develop positive character qualities and instill desired values in their children; and

Whereas, parents rightfully have the final authority and responsibility for the care, upbringing and choice of education for their children; and

Whereas, home education was a predominant form of education in the early years of America, and many Americans such as George Washington, Patrick Henry, John Marshall, Robert E. Lee, Booker T. Washington, Benjamin Franklin, John Quincy Adams, Thomas Edison, Douglas MacArthur, Pearl S. Buck and Franklin Roosevelt were primarily educated at home; as well as many other diverse and creative Americans; and

Whereas, studies continue to confirm that children who are home educated score well on national achievement tests, exhibit self-confidence, and are fully prepared to meet the challenges of today's society; and

Whereas, it is appropriate that Tennessee home educators and home-educated children be recognized for their contribution to the diversity and quality of education in this great state,

Now Therefore, I, Don Sundquist, Governor of the State of Tennessee, do hereby proclaim the week of March 4-10, 1996, as Tennessee Home Education Week in Tennessee and I call this observance to the attention of all our citizens.

In Witness Whereof, I hereunto set my hand and caused the official seal of the State of Tennessee to be affixed at Nashville on this 30th day of June, 1995.

DON SUNDQUIST,
Governor.
RILEY C. DARNELL,
Secretary of State.

THE PRESCRIPTION DRUG CONSUMER INFORMATION ACT WILL HELP SENIORS REDUCE THEIR HEALTH CARE COSTS

HON. RICHARD J. DURBIN

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, March 8, 1996

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. Speaker, as the price of health care continues to rise, spending on prescription drugs becomes an ever-increasing burden for millions of Americans. A recent study by the PRIME Institute at the University of Minnesota College of Pharmacy shows that producer list prices for the 500 most prescribed drugs climbed an average of 4.6 percent in 1995. This 4.6 percent increase exceeds the 2.6 percent increase in Social Security benefits over the past year. Furthermore, the increase in prescription drug prices is more than twice the increase in the 1995 producer price index. As the prices of prescription drugs continue to outpace the general cost of living for seniors, these Americans on fixed incomes often face the choice between food and medicine.

Consumers and their doctors need comparative information about prescription drug prices to help them reduce spending on prescription drugs without compromising quality. But comparative information is not readily available. Prescription drugs do not sit on grocery shelves with separate price tags under each item. Even doctors often do not know the prices of medications and whether a less expensive but equally effective alternative is available.

The Prescription Drug Consumer Information Act of 1996 will make this essential information more available by directing the Secretary of Health and Human Services [HHS] to publish annually an easy-to-understand consumer guide to prescription drug prices that presents price and cost-effectiveness information by therapeutic category for easy comparison to other drugs and to other therapies.

The guide will provide consumers with the information they need to intelligently discuss the cost effectiveness of various prescription drug options with their doctors and pharmacists. The guide will also provide doctors with information that will help them determine the most cost-effective therapies for their patients. This information is not available anywhere else at this time. The increased availability of price information could also unleash free market forces to help reduce the cost of medications that are excessively priced.

This legislation directs the Secretary of HHS to publish a consumer guide to prescription drug prices annually, beginning no later than 2 years after the legislation is enacted. The guide will be made available electronically—that is, through computer networks—and in print. The Secretary may publish periodic bulletins that reflect changes in the prices in the consumer guide between the dates of annual publication of the guide. The consumer guide will be provided to public libraries free of charge. The Secretary will also provide the guide to individuals and other organizations for a reasonable fee which is not to exceed the cost of printing and distributing the guide. Organizations representing consumers, seniors, and health professionals will be encouraged to make the consumers guide widely available.

This legislation offers consumers a new tool to help them manage their prescription drug costs. Armed with price information, they will be in a better position to save money without cutting corners on their health care.

I strongly urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to join me in cosponsoring this legislation to help Americans fight the rising cost of health care.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR JENNINGS RANDOLPH OF WEST VIRGINIA

HON. NICK J. RAHALL II

OF WEST VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, March 8, 1996

Mr. RAHALL. Mr. Speaker, retired U.S. Senator Jennings Randolph of West Virginia will be 94 years old on March 8, 1996.

On this occasion, on behalf of myself and all West Virginians, I wish a happy 94th birthday to Senator Randolph, and we wish him many happy returns of the day.

Senator Randolph served the great State of West Virginia for 40 years, beginning in 1933—during Franklin Roosevelt's first 100 days as a Member of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Senator Randolph served in the House of Representatives from 1933 to 1947, and then, served in the U.S. Senate from 1958 until his retirement in 1984.

Known for his courtly manner and as the epitome of a southern gentleman, Senator Randolph could also be tenacious and unyielding as a proponent of the working men and women of West Virginia and the Nation. As a strong supporter of President Franklin Roosevelt's depression-era legislative remedies, he also followed another Roosevelt's maxim. It was Teddy Roosevelt who cautioned: Speaker softly, but carry a big stick. Even though Senator Randolph had a true orator's voice when he spoke on the floor, during meetings, or in public speeches to his constituents, it was during his one-on-one dealings with his colleagues that he used his softest voice, folded his massive hands into a supplicant's gesture, his words while gentle conveying that he said what he meant and meant what he said.

This philosophy that a soft voice turneth away wrath was especially evident when it came to legislation that addressed the needs of the coal miners in his State and throughout the country, and when he spoke for all blue collar workers everywhere whose rights he protected with every fiber of his being.

He never backed away from a fight over spending priorities either in the House, the Senate, or when confronted by one of the 10 Presidents under whom he served during his 40-year tenure of service to West Virginia.

Senator Randolph loved the House and the Senate, serving 14 and 26 years respectively in both bodies, and he did so with distinction. He was a legislator of integrity and style. He deserves the respect and admiration of all of us for the outstanding job that he did and the many contributions he made to both institutions.

If he were here today, he would be out in front, leading all those who can be heard calling for an end to name calling and for complete civility between and among Members of both the House and the Senate as they conduct the people's business. Senator Randolph was a stickler for correct demeanor at all times, and for keeping the House and the Senate in proper order. On the Senate floor he was often heard to call for order in the Senate. He strongly believed that Members of the Senate should come to the floor and vote from their seats—calmly and quietly—rather than milling about on the floor and in the well. And, of course, they seldom did so.

I am as much in awe of Senator Randolph's life of public service as I was when, in 1976, I was about to be sworn in as the then-youngest Member of the House of Representatives, and my respect for his achievements has but grown over the years.

More than anything else, I am proud to be associated as a West Virginian and as a Member of this House, with his record of leadership. The record will show that he acted always with clarity of thought; that he believed deeply in the inherent abilities and talents that lie within every American.

Senator Randolph was able to lead others, never through outrageous or revolting words or deeds, or through bellicosity or belligerence, but simply with an honest expression of confidence made quietly, a silent gesture or salute, or a humorous anecdote. And, if absolutely necessary, a gentle rebuke.

Senator Randolph treated each of us with the characteristic wit and wisdom of a true gentleman, embodying the finest traditions of the House and the Senate, and of this great country, which he loved dearly.

Senator Randolph now lives in a personal care home in St. Louis, MO near his eldest son Jay Randolph, and his grandchildren.

Again, Senator Jennings Randolph, happy 94th birthday.

NEW JERSEY'S PUBLIC PENSION FUND SHORTFALL

HON. ROBERT E. ANDREWS

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, March 8, 1996

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, yesterday the Star-Ledger of New Jersey reported on the troubling situation of pension funds for New Jersey's public employees. Governor Christine Todd Whitman has used these workers' investments to pay for her campaign promises from 1993, which the State could not afford. When Governor Whitman ran short on money to pay for important programs like Medicaid and education, she either tried to cut them, or she simply stopped paying the government's full share of the State employees' pensions.

The result is a massive shortfall in State pensions, including a $2.5 billion unfunded liability in the teachers' fund alone. What allowed this to happen is a legal system that lets the Governor use inaccurate economic estimates, and a State legislature that proved willing to comply. Governor Whitman is balancing the New Jersey budget on the backs of the State's workers, who are seeing their retirement funds placed in the greatest of danger.

I have proposed a solution to this problem. In May of last year, I introduced legislation to grant State public employee pension beneficiaries the right to sue the State in a Federal court. My bill, H.R. 1683, does not stop a State from changing its contribution to retirement funds. Rather, it encourages the State to obtain the approval of a review board first. The board's primary responsibility will be the fund's economic health, not a political agenda. If a State uses such a panel, then any lawsuit filed by pension beneficiaries will be held to a much higher standard of proof.

My bill will put the fate of State employees not in the hands of political opportunists, but of people who know how to make a pension fund work for the benefit and security of its members.

LEONID KUCHMA, PRESIDENT OF UKRAINE, RECEIVES FREEDOM HOUSE 1996 FREEDOM AWARD

HON. TOM LANTOS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, March 8, 1996

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to join Freedom House in paying tribute to His Excellency Leonid Kuchma, President of Ukraine. Recently he was the honored recipient of the Freedom Award for his contributions to regional stability and ethnic relations in the Ukraine. The award is given periodically by Freedom House, one of our country's oldest human rights groups. It was established in 1941 to encourage American public support for the struggle against Fascism, and through the years it has been a leading voice for tolerance, human dignity, human rights, and freedom.

Previous recipients of this distinguished award include Dwight Eisenhower in 1945, Edward R. Morrow in 1954, Winston Churchill in 1955, 15 Soviet dissidents in 1973, the Dalai Lama in 1991, and Czech President Vaclav Havel in 1991.

President Kuchma was honored at a gala dinner at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington attended by some 500 Government and congressional leaders, members of the diplomatic corps, corporate and business executives, leaders of the nongovernment organizations, and leaders of the Ukrainian-American community.

President Kuchma has served as President of Ukraine since July 9, 1994. His election marked the first democratic Presidential transition in the Republics of the former Soviet Union. His policy priorities have included initiating a program of market reforms, securing Western financial assistance to his country, normalizing relations with Russia, facilitating the passage by the Ukrainian Parliament of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, promoting interethnic harmony, and strengthening Ukrainian statehood and security.

President Kuchma is an engineer by profession. He served as technical director of rocket testing at the Soviet Baikonur Space Center and as general director of the Southern Machine-Building Plant in Dnipropetrovsk, Ukraine. After serving 1½ years as a deputy in the Ukrainian Parliament, Mr. Kuchma became Prime Minister and served in that post from October 1992 until September 1993.

After leaving the post of Prime Minister, Mr. Kuchma became president of the Ukrainian Association of Industrialists and Entrepreneurs, which brought together top business leaders and managers from over 14,000 enterprises and workplaces throughout Ukraine. He also led the Interregional Block for Reform, a centrist faction in Parliament, until his election as President of Ukraine.

In his opening remarks at the gala dinner honoring President Kuchma, Ambassador Mark Palmer, former United States envoy to Hungary, praised the Freedom House democracy-building programs in Ukraine—a strategically important country of 52 million people which covers an area the size of France which lies in the very heart of Europe. He praised President Kuchma for his determined commitment to democracy and economic reform.

United States Ambassador at Large for the Newly Independent States, James Collins, underlined Ukraine's strategic importance in Europe, and cited President Kuchma for his contribution to regional stability and peace. He reiterated American material and moral support for Ukraine's efforts to preserve its national identity and build a truly pluralistic and free society while maintaining good relations with the West, and abiding international agreements on nuclear weapons and troop strengths in Europe.

Dr. Zbigniew Brzezinski, former National Security Advisor, the President and Freedom House Trustee, praised President Kuchma for moving firmly in the right direction and making his country a constructive partner in the international community. He also praised the courage and determination of the Ukrainian people who tenaciously maintained their language, customs, and history through centuries of foreign and Communist domination.

Following Ukraine's achievement of freedom at long last, it has demonstrated remarkable political stability. Dr. Brzezinski called attention to the fact that the transition to President Kuchma from his predecessor was a peaceful change carried out through free and fair elections—the first such transition in among all of the former Republics of the Soviet Union. The countries of Central and Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union could earn much from Ukraine, Dr. Brzezinski noted. Ukraine has achieved relative ethnic stability, with Ukrainians, Russians, Jews, Poles, and Crimean Tatars living in relative harmony.

In his address accepting the award, President Kuchma assured American leaders that Ukraine wants to remain a part of Europe, and he pledged continued cooperation with NATO, the European Community, and other economic and regional organizations. The President said, however, that if Ukraine is to be successful in becoming an integral part of Europe, then the countries of Europe and their leaders must be willing to move toward Ukraine through economic cooperation, trade, and closer political links.

Mr. Speaker, I invite my colleagues in the Congress to join me in extending congratulations to President Kuchma personally—as well as to the Government of Ukraine and to the Ukrainian people—for this well-deserved and most appropriate honor. I also invite my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to Freedom House and to its leaders who played key roles in honoring President Kuchma—Vice Chairman of the Board Mark Palmer, Trustee Zbigniew Brzezinksi, and President Adrian Karatnycky.

HOUSING OPPORTUNITY PROGRAM EXTENSION ACT

HON. MICHAEL PATRICK FLANAGAN

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, March 8, 1996

Mr. FLANAGAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend the House on its passage of S. 1494, the Housing Opportunity Program Extension Act. This is an excellent bill which includes language from several bills passed by the House previously, including H.R. 117, the Senior Citizens Housing Safety Act of 1995.

The safety of America's seniors is important to each and everyone of us. S. 1494, like H.R. 117 ensures the safety of America's seniors living in public housing complexes. It toughens placement and eviction policies in order to protect residents of public and assisted housing programs from substance abusers. These provisions are the key reasons I cosponsored H.R. 117 and am in full support of S. 1494.

SENATE—Monday, March 11, 1996

The Senate met at 12 noon and was called to order by the President pro tempore [Mr. THUMOND].

PRAYER

Almighty God, Divine Sovereign of this land, and Lord of our lives, You have blessed us in each period of our Nation's history with great leaders who trust in You and seek Your guidance. You have told us in the Scriptures that, "Righteousness exalts a Nation"—Proverbs 14:34; and "When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice"—Proverbs 29:2. We thank You for all the women and men of both parties who have been called by You to lead our Nation here in this Senate. Each one is here by Your sovereign appointment to glorify You by seeking to know and do Your will.

Today we thank You for STROM THURMOND and the 42 years of faithful service here in the Senate. At this special time of recognition of his outstanding record of service to You and our Nation, we praise You for his leadership, wisdom, and strength. You have blessed him to be a blessing to his beloved South Carolina and to the Nation as a whole. We cherish our friendship with him and admire his patriotism. And now we press on to the work of this day seeking to glorify You in all we say and do. In Your holy name. Amen.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The able acting majority leader, Senator LOTT, is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, today there will be a period for morning business until the hour of 1 p.m., with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each, with the exception of Senator MURKOWSKI of Alaska who has 15 minutes under his control.

At 1 p.m. today, the Senate will begin consideration of H.R. 3019, the continuing resolution appropriations bill. No rollcall votes will occur during today's session. However, amendments are expected to be offered today during the consideration of the bill. Senators should be reminded that there will be at least two rollcall votes beginning at 2:15 tomorrow afternoon. The first vote will be on invoking cloture on the D.C. appropriations conference report, to be followed by a vote on invoking cloture on the motion to proceed to the Whitewater resolution.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MCCONNELL). There will now be a period for the transaction of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak for 10 minutes each. The Senator from Alaska is recognized to speak for up to 15 minutes.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, good morning.

CALIFORNIA LOW-LEVEL RADIOACTIVE WASTE FACILITY

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, last Thursday, as chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, I introduced legislation, along with my colleague, Senator JOHNSTON, the ranking member of that committee, to sell 1,000 acres of Federal excess land out in a California desert at a fair market value in order that Californians may finally begin to work for their low-level radioactive waste facility at a place called Ward Valley.

This is a step that the Governor of California, Gov. Pete Wilson, had asked us to take after the State of California has suffered from some 2 years of frustration at the hands of the Department of Interior.

The measure that Senator JOHNSTON and I have introduced to end this stalemate is virtually identical to the language the Senate previously agreed to in the reconciliation bill conference report. But there is an important difference, Mr. President. That important difference is that we want to remove the latest excuse of the Secretary of the Interior, Secretary Babbitt, who has voiced refusal to convey that land, and the rationale for that is pretty hard to explain at this time. Perhaps we will have some justification from the Secretary, but we certainly do not have it now.

What we have done is we have added an additional condition, and that is that California must provide its written comment and commitment to carry out additional environmental monitoring and protection measures based on recommendations of the National Academy of Sciences before the land transfer can be made. This should satisfy the Department of the Interior's objection. Indeed, if the Department of the Interior objects to this bill, it will be obvious that it is merely playing games and promoting delays.

With this bill, we are calling the Secretary's hand in a sense, and we will soon know if the dispute is about health and safety or whether it is about something else; perhaps raw politics.

For the sake of the other Senators who are listening, let me review a little history.

Back in 1980 and 1985, Congress gave to each State the steps necessary for the responsibility for low-level radioactive waste disposal. Let me say that again so there is no misunderstanding.

Low-level waste disposal is a State responsibility as deemed by Congress. There is, of course, appropriate Federal oversight in various ways, including congressional approval of interstate compacts, the oversight of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the oversight of the Environmental Protection Agency, and the application of all NEPA and other relevant statutes, including the Endangered Species Act.

But subject to compliance with all of those Federal requirements, States license their low-level facilities. The States are still responsible and are still accountable.

So having studied the rules of procedure some years ago, the State of California began the long process to site a low-level facility for the waste generated in California and its other compact States, including Arizona, North Dakota, and South Dakota.

Some 8 years went by, Mr. President, during the licensing process, costing more than $45 million. The State of California finally completed its task and awarded a license for a waste facility at Ward Valley out in the Mojave Desert.

We have seen opponents of the project ranging from the antinuclear activists to some of the West Hollywood movie stars who continue to oppose Ward Valley at seemingly every opportunity.

Obviously, California leads in advanced cancer treatment. They have biotechnology capabilities in various companies, and making new advancements. So there are sources of low-level radioactive waste falling off from these activities. Some in California do not believe that California should have to keep any of its radioactive waste. Some say, "Send it elsewhere," yet they want the jobs. They do not want the waste. So they continue to oppose, continue to litigate, continue to delay.

Where will we put the waste, Mr. President? It is not in the interest of California to leave it where it is, scattered all over the State.

Those in opposition, as I indicated, went to court. In many cases, the court challenges were virtually all but exhausted. All that remained was a simple administrative land sale from the Bureau of Land Management to the State of California, the kind of routine conveyance that would be normally handled by a BLM office.

California had met all the requirements of law and more and had passed every test, met virtually every challenge. Then suddenly we see the Secretary of the Interior—some have suggested on the behest of the White House—change the rules of the game. The Secretary of the Interior simply intervened and effectively kept the land sale from proceeding for more than 2 years, first, by considering new rounds of administrative hearings—that is always a handy dodge for decision—and then by ordering a review by the National Academy of Sciences on seven different issues of convention.

Mr. President, that plan backfired. The American Academy of Sciences' review turned out to be highly favorable to the Ward Valley site, much to their chagrin. At the conclusion of the Academy review, we had hoped that any remaining excuse for further delay would have evaporated. Unfortunately, that was not the case. The Ward Valley opponents continued their efforts to delay this, almost indefinitely it seems, like suggesting at each juncture a new study, a new hurdle, a new obstacle, and a new administrative roadblock of some kind.

The latest hurdle was directed on February 15 when Interior Deputy Secretary John Garamendi announced yet another round of followup studies to include tritium tests. California is not opposed to the tritium tests. The State is willing to conduct those tests. The problem, Mr. President, is that Interior wants the tests concluded prior to the land transfer.

The National Academy of Sciences did not say this was necessary or desirable. In fact, the Academy suggests ongoing testing should be undertaken in conjunction with the operation of the facility. There is a distinct difference here, Mr. President. The Academy suggests ongoing tests should occur in conjunction with operations. The Interior Department's actions, in my opinion, are merely a tactic to delay the commencement of operations at Ward Valley until after, well after perhaps, the next election, if one can believe that.

If we do nothing, Mr. President, and allow this land conveyance to be delayed, I can guarantee that there will be some new obstacle erected after the tritium tests are complete. As the National Academy of Sciences pointed out, tritium tests are difficult, tritium tests are often inconclusive. That is why they should not be rushed, they should not precede the conveyance. They should continue along with all other monitoring and testing measures that will be undertaken during the site's operation.

If we proceed with rushed tritium testing, we will likely end up with an inclusive result providing project opponents with yet another excuse for delay. At the very least, the project opponents will ask for another supplemental EIS to consider any new information. A new basis for further litigation or new strategies for delay would certainly be fabricated. These delays would simply just go on and on and on.

So what we have, Mr. President, is the Department of the Interior, lacking expertise or responsibility in matters related to the regulation of radioactive materials, aspiring to get in the business of nuclear regulation.

Even worse, the Secretary of the Interior is acting to usurp the statutory authority of the State of California to protect the radiological health and safety of its citizens through the State management and oversight of low-level radioactive waste disposal.

Quite often, Mr. President, the mere mention of the words "radioactive" or "nuclear" rouse public fear and emotion. It is bad enough when activists manipulate public fears to advance an antinuclear agenda, but when the Secretary of the Interior joins in, we simply have to put a stop to that kind of nonsense.

Some of my Senate friends may recall that we made low-level radioactive waste management a State responsibility in the 1980 and 1985 act, which was mandated in response to heavy lobbying by one group, the National Governors' Association.

It is interesting to note that at that time Arizona Governor Bruce Babbitt and Arkansas Governor Bill Clinton were prominent leaders in the National Governors' Association. Governor Babbitt even served on a special NGA task force recommending that low-level radioactive waste management become a State responsibility. Today, the Secretary of the Interior, Secretary Babbitt, is working to usurp and erode the very State authority he lobbied Congress for as a Governor. I find that most ironic.

The irony is not lost on the Governor of California, I might add. He has asked us for this legislation. Governor Wilson is concerned about the health, safety and welfare of Californians as a consequence of this low-level waste being spread out throughout California in a temporary type of storage until such time as a permanent low-level waste site can be opened.

Governor Wilson is aware that low-level radioactive waste is stored in hospitals, residential neighborhoods, in businesses and universities, at 2,254 sites in 800 locations across California, and the waste in these temporary sites are subject to accident, fires, floods, perhaps earthquakes as well.

If you oppose this bill, then you are, by necessity, arguing for the continued storage of these materials all over the State of California or the transportation of these materials across the United States to the only facility currently open to California, or any other State for that matter, and that is Barnwell, SC. That is the only site in the country we have for low-level waste.

Meanwhile, some hospitals in California are running out of room. Will this result in the curtailment of some cancer treatment or AIDS research that uses radioactive materials? Perhaps. Will this result in an accidental release at one of these disposal locations as a consequence of fire, flood, or earthquake? Perhaps. We can only hope, of course, and pray that that will not happen. But that is our exposure, Mr. President.

To summarize, this is a simple, directed land sale that does what this administration should have done a long time ago. If we fail to do this, we not only create problems for California, Arizona, North Dakota, South Dakota, and others in the Southwestern Interstate Compact; we also challenge the viability of the Low-Level Radioactive Waste Policy Act and the policy of State responsibility on which it was based.

A June 16 editorial in Science magazine, published by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a prestigious and respected scientific organization, perhaps said it best. And I quote:

> The risks stemming from one carefully monitored Ward Valley low-level retrievable waste site are trivial in comparison with those from 800 urban accumulations. Enough of groundless fears and litigation.

Mr. President, we have indeed had enough of groundless fears and certainly enough litigation. This is almost a full-employment act for some of the attorneys that specialize in nuclear waste.

The time has come to act. We as leaders must decide whether we want to base our actions in this area on the professional judgments of respected scientists whom we can hold accountable, or whether we want to take our advice about radioactivity from Hollywood entertainers and activists who host fund-raisers in their Beverly Hills mansions or Malibu beach houses.

Mr. President, it is time to recognize that this decision should be made, as it has been to date, by the best science and technology available. Certainly, the National Academy of Sciences in its recommendation simply says that this site is adequate.

Additional monitoring should occur, but let us get on and make the decision and stop the rhetoric. We have had enough antiscientific rhetoric. Let us stand up to those who would manipulate, who would inflame public fears, and fail to recognize their obligation. That is, if they are going to criticize the best advice from the experts that we have, then they better come up with an alternative. These people not only are fearful but absolutely refuse to accept that responsibility.

So, Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to work for the passage of this bill. Let California have the responsibilities and prerogatives it was promised when this Congress passed the Low-Level Radioactive Waste Policy Act. It is now time to move.

I thank the Chair and I yield the floor.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I yield, without losing my right to the floor, to the distinguished Senator from Vermont.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Vermont.

TRIBUTE TO MORTON GOULD

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, almost exactly a year ago in April, I was traveling outside the country and was able to get hold of a copy of the New York Times. In it was a list of the Pulitzer Prize winners. Under "Music" was listed Morton Gould, "Stringmusic."

> Morton Gould, an 81-year-old composer who lives in Great Neck, NY, won for a 30-minute work that was commissioned by the National Symphony Orchestra and given its premier by that ensemble, conducted by Mstislav Rostropovich, at the Kennedy Center in Washington on March 10, 1994.

It then goes on and describes the music. That small piece could not describe what an unbelievable talent Morton Gould had. That is why I and so many others were saddened when he recently died suddenly at the age of 82. Even then, though working actively, he was about to address a group in Orlando and continued to be the prolific and talented musician he had been throughout his life.

I was able to meet him and get to know him over the years. In customary form, after I wrote him to congratulate him on the Pulitzer Prize, he wrote back a long, hand written note in which he joked about what he knew was a great honor and sort of minimized it, although one could tell how pleased he was. This is a man who was accustomed to honors but was not swayed by them, a man who knew he had the gratitude and the esteem of his peers, but did not revel in it, but rather worked with his peers constantly.

I find it a matter of great personal pride to have known him, as I said, for years, since the days my friend Ben Palumbo first introduced us up to the time of his death. Like so many Americans, we will continue to know him through his music. This is music that is truly timeless.

I ask unanimous consent a report sent out regarding his death be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

KEN SUNSHINE CONSULTANTS, INC.,

COMPOSER/CONDUCTOR MORTON GOULD DIES AT 82

Former ASCAP President Morton Gould, one of the century's most celebrated American composers and conductors, died suddenly this morning in Orlando, FL at the age of 82. Gould was visiting the Disney Institute in Orlando as an artist-in-residence. Last evening, the Institute honored him with an all-Gould program performed by the U.S. Military Academy Band. Gould attended the concert and received a standing ovation. According to the Institute, a second all-Gould concert scheduled for this evening will go on as planned.

Gould received the Kennedy Center Honor in 1994 and the Pulitzer Prize in Music in 1995. He was elected to the American Academy of Arts and Letters in 1986. In addition, Gould was an Award winning recording artist, with 12 Grammy nominations and a Grammy award in 1966. Gould served on ASCAP's Board of Directors for over 36 years, and led the Society as President from 1986 to 1994.

Gould's contributions spanned eight decades and included significant works for orchestra, chamber ensemble, band, chorus and soloists, as well as scores composed for film, television, Broadway and ballet. Throughout his career, Gould's work was particularly "American," making use of such "roots music" styles as jazz, blues, spirituals and folk music.

His music has been performed by every major American orchestra under the direction of such eminent conductors as Fritz Mahler, Arturo Toscanini, Leopold Stokowski, Sir Georg Solti, Andre Previn, Leonard Slatkin, Eugene Ormandy and Arthur Fiedler. As a conductor, Gould led countless orchestras throughout the world and recorded over 100 albums.

Among his major compositions are Latin American Symphonette, Derivations for Clarinet and Band (commissioned by Benny Goodman), American Salute, Spirituals for Orchestra, "Boogie Woogie Etude" and "Pavane." His collaborations with top choreographers include Clarinade and Audobon (George Balanchine); Interplay and I'm Old-Fashioned (Jerome Robbins); Halftime and Santa Fe Sage (Elliot Feld); and Fall River Legend (Agnes DeMille). His film scores include Delightfully Dangerous, Windjammer and Cinerama Holiday. Notable Gould TV scores include Holocaust, F. Scott Fitzgerald in Hollywood and CBS' World War I Documentary. Gould composed two Broadway scores, Arms and the Girl, with lyrics by Dorothy Fields, and Billion Dollar Baby, with lyrics by Betty Comden and Adolph Green. More recent works include three major commissions celebrating the 1976 Bicentennial, Symphony of Spirituals, American Ballads and Something To Do. In 1992, he was commissioned by the Pittsburgh Symphony Association to compose The Jogger and the Dinosaur, a concert piece for rapper and orchestra.

Morton Gould was born on December 10, 1913 in Richmond Hill, New York. A child prodigy, he composed and published his first work, "Just Six," at the age of six. Growing up during the worst years of the Great Depression, Gould's music studies were curtailed by his need to help support his family. He found work as a vaudeville pianist, backing the famous ballroom dance team, Renee and Tony DeMarco, and was part of a piano duo with Bert Shefter.

As a teenager, Gould was house pianist for the 1932 opening of Radio City Music Hall. He was a pioneer of live radio broadcasts as the star, host and conductor of long-running national music programs on the Mutual and CBS Radio Networks. His radio shows featured leading figures from the symphonic and popular music worlds, including Frank Sinatra, Benny Goodman, Lauritz Melchior and Duke Ellington. His Cresta Blanca theme was among broadcasting's first major commercial jingles.

Gould joined ASCAP in 1935 and was long active in many ASCAP and ASCAP FOoundation programs. A tireless advocate for new American composers, he was constantly seeking opportunities to help expose their work. He also served with distinction on the Board of the American Symphony Orchestra League and on the National Endowment for the Arts Music Panel.

Commenting on Gould's passing, ASCAP President and Chairman Marilyn Bergman said: "America has lost one of its most distinguished composers and conductors, and the creative community has lost one of its great leaders. No one I know was more respected and loved here at ASCAP and throughout the world for both his musicianship and his great humanity. His vigor, his wit and his spirit led us to believe he would live forever. And in fact, through his music and the legacy he left us, he will."

Gould, who resided in Great Neck, NY is survived by two daughters, Deborah Gould of Brooklyn, and Abby Burton of Plainview; two sons, Eric of Great Neck and David of Port Washington; and eight grandchildren.

Funeral services will be private. A memorial is being planned by ASCAP; the date will be announced shortly.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I must repeat what a great privilege it has been to have known Morton Gould over these years.

Mr. HATCH. I join in the remarks of my distinguished friend and colleague from Vermont. Morton Gould, was a very, very important and fine person in my life, as well. He actually went out of his way to be friends with me. Although I believe Morton is a strong liberal Democrat, he went out of his way to show kindness to this conservative Republican Senator through many of the years as we have worked on patents, copyrights, and trademarks.

As the Senator from Vermont, Senator LEAHY, and I have known together, Morton Gould was not only one of the greatest musicians and writers who ever lived in this country, he was a person of immeasurable charm, kindness, diplomacy and ability—not just in music, but in working for the best interests of music. He literally became one of the stalwart people in the history of this country in the field of music.

I want to personally pay my deep and utmost respects to him and to his family, wish them well, and express my sympathy to them. This was a very, very great man. He not only was great in one genre but he was great in all musical genres and deserves the respect and the remembrance of every American, many of whom do not even realize they benefited immensely from the beautiful music Morton Gould has written, and music he has collaborated with others to write. I would feel badly if I did not join with the distinguished Senator from Vermont in paying tribute to this wonderful man and the tremendous life he lived.

Mr. LEAHY. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. HATCH. I am happy to yield to the Senator.

Mr. LEAHY. I think, Mr. President, my friend from Utah would agree with me that the various times he and I were with Morton Gould and talking about these copyrights and other issues, not only did we find that a pleasant chore, but we usually left the meetings still chuckling and smiling over things that he had said to us, and just from the pleasure of his company.

Mr. HATCH. I agree with my distinguished colleague. Morton Gould was a scintillating person to be around. Everybody who came in his presence was lifted one way or the other—not just by music but by his very fine personality and deep felt kindness he showed to people as a whole in this country.

I want to express my deepest regard for him and my sympathy to his family, his associates and others who worked with him through the years. I thank my colleague for his kind remarks with regard to Morton Gould.

TEENAGE DRUG USE

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, the Senate recently confirmed Gen. Barry McCaffrey to be the Nation's new drug czar. He had to leave the military service to take this position. He has a tough job. I have high hopes for him and I compliment him for accepting this job and accepting this challenge, because he could have gone even higher in the military than he was, and it was pretty difficult to go much higher than Barry McCaffrey already was. He was willing to do this. His father told him he should do this in the best interests of our Nation and our young people.

I have to say, during the last few years I have been critical of President Clinton's lack of leadership on the drug issue. On September 29, 1993, I called upon editorialists and columnists to draw attention to the drug issue and the need for Presidential leadership. At an October 20, 1993, Judiciary Committee hearing, I said, "Thus far, this administration has been sending a terrible signal to our country: drug control is no longer a national priority."

I quoted A.M. Rosenthal's observation that President Clinton's interest in fighting drugs can be summed up as, "No leadership. No role. No alerting. No policy." I cited a University of Michigan study that even then showed that the decline in drug use among our Nation's young people, which began during the Reagan-Bush years, had virtually halted and marijuana and LSD use were even then on the rise, and that was back in 1993. I have repeated these warnings—often with support from Members on the other side of the aisle, especially the Senator from Delaware, Senator BIDEN.

President Clinton has let the country down because of his failure to lead on the drug issue. Americans expect moral leadership from their President on an issue like this. We have gone from a Just Say No Program under President Reagan, to pleading with President Clinton to just say something. If the President is finally beginning to speak out more because it is a political year—I know he just held a conference on some aspects of this problem—then I say it is better late than never. I commend him for it. We need him to use the bully pulpit to speak out against drugs and to set an example for our youth of this Nation.

Others agree with me. Last month, Diane Barry, communications director of Join Together, a national resource clearinghouse of more than 3,000 substance abuse organizations, said that, until recently, President Clinton "hasn't used the bully pulpit to keep attention on this issue." Incidentally, after slashing the drug czar's office in 1993 from 147 positions to 25 positions, President Clinton, in this campaign year, now wishes to beef up that office. For whatever motivation, for whatever reason, I am pleased that he is willing to do so. I commend him for it.

The February 16–18, 1996, USA Weekend, contains an article entitled, "The New Pot Culture," by Monika Guttman, which notes that, "Marijuana is back, more available and acceptable than before. * * * Today, marijuana is openly promoted at concerts, on CD's, even on clothes—sending teens a message of social acceptance that alarms many experts."

The February 20, 1996, New York Times reports on a nationwide survey by the Partnership for a Drug-Free America. That survey found that the use of marijuana by adolescents is "bound[ing] back after years of decline * * *" The survey noted, "A profound reversal in adolescent drug trends is continuing with teen-agers more tolerant about marijuana and drugs in general. * * * Today's teens are less likely to consider drug use harmful and risky, more likely to believe that drug use is widespread and tolerated, and feel more pressure to try illegal drugs than teens did just 2 years ago." Mr. President, this is a disaster for our country.

According to the New York Times article, the survey attributed this reversal "in part to a glamorization of drugs in pop music, movies and television shows and to an absence of national and community leadership in discouraging experimentation with drugs."

The Times article goes on:

> . . . specialists in drug use like James E. Burke, chairman of the Partnership for a Drug-Free America, and Dr. Lloyd D. Johnston, a social psychologist at the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research, see a link between the increase in the use of marijuana by teen-agers and fewer warnings by politicians, the press, and the entertainment industry. Nancy Reagan's admonition to "just say no," while ridiculed by her critics, presaged a fall in illegal drug use by adolescents in the 1980's, specialists say.

Regrettably, as the USA Weekend article notes, after 13 years of decline, pot use is rising again. Between 1992 and 1994, marijuana use among teenagers nearly doubled. The percentage of high school seniors who think occasional pot smoking puts them at "great risk" declined from 40.6 percent in 1991 to only 25.6 percent in 1995. In fact, so many studies show teen pot use climbing rapidly that Steve Dnistrian of the Partnership for a Drug-Free America contends "we face a possible epidemic."

This is happening on President Clinton's watch.

Drug use during the teen years, notes John Schowalter, clinical director of the Yale Child Study Center,

> . . . can have lifelong consequences. In the teen years, . . . social, educational and physical development is taking place at the fastest rate ever except for a child's first year. [Pot] will completely mess up their reality testing. Besides, regular pot use makes kids less interested in school, sports and other activities, adds Schowalter . . .

The USA Weekend article continued:

> Why, then, after more than a decade of decreasing interest, are more teens toking? The most-cited explanation points to a generation of adults for whom pot was almost a rite of passage. Many parents "had an experience with marijuana and don't consider it as serious as other drugs," says U.S. Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala. Susie Williams Manning, director of an adolescent alcohol and drug program in Lexington, S.C., says she often sees that dynamic at work with client families: "I've had parents tell me they'd rather see their child smoke dope at home than go out and use alcohol."

That is abominable.

When I raised this very point a few weeks ago, and I suggested that the Clinton administration's lack of leadership in speaking out against this menace stems in part from the fact that some in the administration may have grown up experimenting with marijuana, it was suggested on behalf of the administration, perhaps facetiously, that this was a canard. Just listen to this:

> "One of the things we learned in the '80s [when marijuana use declined] is [that] when all sectors of society speak in unison, it's heard," says Lloyd Johnston, author of the University of Michigan's respected annual teen drug study. "Now we've seen an erosion of that single voice, and [teens get] either no voice in some quarters or conflicting voices in others."—USA Weekend.

We have to get parents talking to their children about this. Grandparents, aunts, uncles, and everyone should be impressing upon our young people not to damage themselves with drugs, marijuana or otherwise. If parents experimented with marijuana or other drugs in their youth and might feel hypocritical about telling their kids not to do so today, then, for your kids' sake, please get over it. Some experts advise that parents tell their children that if they had it to do over again, they wouldn't have used the stuff. Do not glamorize or wax nostalgic about your past drug use in front of your kids. Make it clear to your kids you do not want them to use pot or other drugs. Tell them about the other things in life—art, literature, sports, and so much else—that they should turn to for stimulation.

For those adults who do not think marijuana use is as troublesome as I make it out to be, let me quote from the USA Weekend article again:

> Age is down. Users are starting younger. In the 1992 Adolescent Drug Survey, the average age of first-time users dropped to between 13 and 15, from 14-17 the year before. Treatment centers report 12- and 13-year-olds enrolling, formerly a rare event.
>
> The effects now are clear. Unlike the drug experimentation days of the 1960s and '70s, the effects pot use now have been studied extensively. Among the conclusions: Marijuana reduces coordination; slows reflexes; interferes with the ability to measure distance, speed and time; and disrupts concentration and short-term memory. According to Donald Tashkin at the UCLA Medical School, there are also cancer risks: A marijuana smoker is exposed to six times as many carcinogens as a tobacco smoker.
>
> Quantity is up. Kids today smoke larger amounts than their elders did, thanks to innovations such as "blunts": short cigars hollowed out and restuffed with pot or a pot-and-tobacco mix. Marijuana is now often laced with other drugs, as in "primos," with cocaine and "illies," with formaldehyde, making the smoker ill. Result: In 1994, 50 percent more 12- to 17-year-olds ended up in emergency rooms for smoking pot as in 1993.
>
> Potency is up. The pot teens smoke today is not their parents' cannabis. The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration says the THC, or primary psychoactive chemical, of pot on the street has doubled in the past decade, thanks to sophisticated cloning and genetic manipulation . . . Sample review in High Times magazine: "three hits and you're absolutely, totally and righteously screwed up for hours."
>
> And it's now understood that pot serves as a "gateway" drug. A 1994 study by the Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse found 43 percent of teens who use pot by age 18 move on to cocaine.

Everybody ought to read this article.

The article notes that a variety of cultural factors have helped contribute to this very disturbing trend of increased teenage use of marijuana, a point I recently made on the Senate floor. One factor is permissive references to pot use on television, citing an example I used, the Roseanne and Dan Conner characters smoking pot in the bathroom on "Roseanne". Similar references in the movies contribute to the problem. No one is talking about censorship, but greater responsibility among producers, studios, directors, actors, and musicians, would be helpful.

> Merchandise and clothing with marijuana symbols are popular items nationwide in stores frequented by teens. "Some people are influenced by images," [said one teenager] . . . "You see it on TV all the time."

Part of the problem may well be, on the one hand, a reaction to the materialism some teenagers may see around them, or to what appear to be limited prospects for their future that other teens feel confront them on the other.

I do not have all the answers, but I do know political, religious, civic, sports, and entertainment figures must all speak out more vigorously, more vigorously than they are doing today.

Our teenagers have to hear that there is more to life than the immediate gratification they may think they will get from pot or other drug use. They need to know what can really happen to a drug user, such as some of the things I mentioned earlier. With Elaine and I, and 6 children and 15 grandchildren, I know that it can be difficult to get across a message without sounding preachy. It is not so easy to tell a grade schooled or a junior high school youngster about life's vast possibilities and make it seem very real. We should not underestimate the influence we can have on our children, our nephews and nieces, and our grandchildren. We must talk to them.

Moreover, the adults in our children's lives can do more than talk about it. We can take our kids to the local library and open up all of the worlds one can find there. We can read with our children when they are young. We can take them to sporting events or museums. We can show them local historical sites. We can interest them not only in our country's history, but in their own cultural heritage. We can help them get involved in sports, scouting, or other recreational activities. If religion is a part of your life, as I hope it is, perhaps you can help make it a part of your children's lives. Our children can be a part of something of interest to them that they must understand will be destroyed by the use of drugs. By helping our young people be involved in wholesome activities, the antidrug message becomes more than just plain talk.

For those young people whose social or economic circumstances, or immediate prospects, cause them to doubt that their future is going to be worthwhile, we have to try very hard to reach them. This feeling of despair can afflict children of any race or ethnic background, and it can occur in an inner city, an affluent suburb, or a rural town. And I know that exhortations alone are not enough if people are trapped in violent, drug-infested neighborhoods. The kind of needed public and private policies, involving a wide range of community resources, to provide greater opportunity for youngsters are really beyond the scope of these remarks. But such policies are part of what we need to do as a society to combat the drug scourge. And, adults must lend a hand.

But if I could speak to those of our young people who feel such despair, I would urge them to start with their most precious resource of all—themselves. I would say to them, Mr. President: your dignity as a human being, regardless of color, ethnicity, religion, or gender, is your birthright. And drugs are not going to help you go anywhere but down.

Another point must be made to children and young adults. No one can take away your reputation, your good name—you can only give it away. Do not let the drug dealer take away your chances for success or your dignity. Do not let a friend sway you from what you know is right.

Mr. President, we all must do more to help our young people avoid drug use. We must help show them the way. And we need strong moral leadership from our country's leaders. The very future of our country is at stake.

We need strong examples from our country's sports figures, our country's business leaders, our country's entertainment leaders, and our country's political leaders—in fact, from leaders of every type and variety. And we need more of our religious institutions speaking out against the illicit use of illegal drugs in the best interests of our children and our young people today. But really it is society as a whole.

So I hope that we will all continue to work harder. I intend to help General McCaffrey as much as I can to do his job, and I believe he will be a great drug czar. And I am going to give everything I can to assist him and help him to be able to accomplish that work in a way that will be beneficial to everybody in America.

Mr. President, I appreciate this opportunity to mention some of these things. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. LUGAR). The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

JEREMY ROYAL: NATIONAL HIGH SCHOOL HEISMAN AWARD WINNER

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, I am proud to announce that Alabama's own Jeremy Royal is the recent recipient of Wendy's High School Heisman Trophy. Young Jeremy is a senior at Altamont High School in Birmingham, where he is valedictorian of the class of 1996. This is a truly remarkable honor, since Jeremy was one of over 8,000 nominees for the national award.

The High School Heisman Trophy recognizes not only athletic achievement, but also all-around scholarship and citizenship, all of which Jeremy possesses in huge quantities. He is truly one of the leaders of his generation as we head into the next century.

I ask unanimous consent that an article from the school paper, the Altamont News, be printed in the RECORD following my remarks. It tells of the remarkable achievements of Jeremy Royal which led to his selection as the High School Heisman Trophy winner. I join his family, friends, teachers, coaches, and school officials in congratulating him and wishing him all the best for what appears to be a bright and limitless future.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Altamont News, Winter 1996]

JEREMY ROYAL WINS HIGH SCHOOL HEISMAN

(By Sarah Whiteside)

The philosopher Socrates believed that physical and mental fitness were a duty both to oneself and to the polis. Jeremy Royal, valedictorian of the class of '96 and winner of the Wendy's High School Heisman Trophy, exemplifies this Socratic ideal. This award, which emphasizes scholarship, athletics, and citizenship, recognizes Jeremy's contributions both to the Altamont community and to the community at large. The committee of judges, after rigorous competition from a field of over 8,000 nominees, selected Jeremy for this national honor.

Among Jeremy's academic honors are the Yale Book Award, which is given annually by the faculty to an outstanding junior; the Smiley Award, which recognizes the most outstanding sophomore; and the Scholastic Award, which he has earned each year. In addition, he was named a National Merit Semi-Finalist. Jeremy has achieved these notable academic honors while maintaining a rigorous athletic program in tennis, basketball, and soccer. His skill, dedication, and determination have resulted in outstanding personal and team records in all three sports, as well as in his serving as team captain and in receiving Most Valuable Player awards.

Jeremy's commitment to community is just as strong as his commitment to academics and athletics. Within the Altamont community he has served each year as student council representative, as director of the Forum for Cultural diversity, as a member of the Honor Society, and as Latin Club president. His contributions to the larger community include serving as Make-a-Change volunteer for the National Council of Christians and Jews and as a delegate to Anytown, participating in the Birmingham Youth Leadership Forum, and volunteering as a counselor at a camp for pediatric cancer patients.

Jeremy's classmates and teachers were delighted and thrilled with the national recognition of his accomplishments and dedication. But we were not surprised, for we knew that there could be no other student in the country so deserving of the Heisman Trophy.

THE BAD DEBT BOXSCORE

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, a vast percentage of Americans don't have the slightest idea about the enormity of the Federal debt. Ever so often, I ask groups of friends: How many millions of dollars are there in a trillion? They think about it, voice some estimates, most of them wrong.

One thing that they do know is that it is the U.S. Congress that ran up the enormous Federal debt that now exceeds $5 trillion. To be exact, as of the close of business Friday, March 8, the total Federal debt stood at $5,017,686,664,137.86. On a per capita basis, every man, woman, and child in America owes $19,045.56 of this debt.

CHINA'S AGGRESSION AGAINST TAIWAN

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, it has been said that freedom always entails danger. So perhaps we here, in a country that has seen our share of battles on behalf of liberty and democracy, should not be surprised by China's latest action against Taiwan.

It is no coincidence that China has planned to hold missile tests off of Taiwan's coast during that country's first democratic Presidential elections. But despite China's predictable behavior, it is no less a violation of all that we hold dear to us here in this freedom-loving country.

China's latest act of coercion will accomplish nothing more than to further tarnish her image as a country whose human rights abuses seem to know no borders and no boundaries.

This latest action comes at a time when Taiwan is about to embark on what democratic countries as our own often take for granted—the free and open elections of our leaders.

By conducting missile tests off the shores of Taiwan—the third testing since Taiwan's President Lee Teng-hut visited the United States last June—China is not only effectively shutting down the two largest commercial ports in Taiwan, it is sending a message to the people of that country that their liberty is constantly in jeopardy.

I want my colleagues to be aware that these tests not only will affect Taiwan's exports and imports in the short term, but are bound to have long-term effects as well. Some analysts put the loss at as much as 20 percent for both imports and exports.

Those are losses that will be felt around the world, including my home State of Kentucky here exports to Taiwan ran close to $73 million in 1994.

This does not even begin to touch on the repercussions for the financial markets from the predicted selling of the Taiwan dollar to driving share prices into a further slump. These financial backlashes will be long felt both in Taiwan and around the world.

And yet, these fiscal concerns probably are not foremost on the minds of a nation who fears first for the safety of her people. One account I have read says that nobody trusts the accuracy of Beijing's weapons, and that even the slightest misfire could hit inhabited areas. Even if these weapons are unarmed, the impact would be enormous if smashed into Taiwan.

Mr. President, let me close by asking my colleagues to remain ever alert to China's actions against this fledgling democracy. They have made their coercive intentions abundantly clear and we should not waver in our belief that nations must adhere to a certain international code of conduct.

I would also call on the administration to continue to monitor the People's Republic of China and to take the necessary steps toward assuring that China understands, in no uncertain terms, that Taiwan must be afforded its due respect in accordance with that international code.

As the leader of the free world, we can do no less than send a clear message of how this behavior is simply unacceptable.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Morning business is closed.

BALANCED BUDGET DOWNPAYMENT ACT, II

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the clerk will report H.R. 3019.

The bill clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 3019) making appropriations for fiscal year 1996 to make a further downpayment toward a balanced budget, and for other purposes.

The Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon is recognized.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, this afternoon, the Senate begins consideration of H.R. 3019, the omnibus appropriations bill, providing funding for the departments and agencies normally covered for the five regular fiscal year 1996 appropriations bills. These are appropriations bills that have not yet become law, and this legislation is necessary because the existing funding authority under the provisions of Public Law 104-99 expires this Friday, March 15.

After I have concluded my opening remarks, I will offer a substitute amendment on behalf of the Appropriations Committee incorporating the text of S. 1594, as reported from our committee last Wednesday. Senate report 104-236 explains the committee's recommendations on the measure. We are taking the unusual step of reporting an original bill to be offered as a substitute to the House to expedite the Senate's consideration of this necessary legislation.

Mr. President, the committee substitute provides funding that would normally be included in the five regular fiscal year 1996 appropriations bills that have not become law. These are Commerce, District of Columbia, Interior, Labor-HHS, and VA-HUD. Three of those five—Commerce, Interior, and VA-HUD—were vetoed by the President. The committee has attempted to respond to the President's objections listed in his veto message and to modify objectionable language in the two bills remaining before the Congress in hopes of clearing procedural roadblocks and earning the President's approval, finally bringing an end to our fiscal year 1996 appropriations process.

For example, in the Commerce portion of our committee substitute, we have responded to the President's concern about the Cops on the Beat Program by earmarking $975 million, within the $1.9 billion block grant, exclusively for that program. An additional $25 million was earmarked for drug courts. Additional funding was also provided for the Legal Services Corporation, the Ounce of Prevention Council, and the GLOBE Program in NOAA, all in response to objections raised by the President in his veto of the Commerce bill.

In the Interior bill, the committee recommends modifying the timber salvage language and the language concerning the Tongass National Forest in Alaska, attempting to, again, address the President's concerns in those areas.

And for the VA-HUD bill, we have recommended additional funding for National Service, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Council on Environmental Quality, and the Community Development Financial Institutions Program, all in specific response to objections raised in the President's veto message.

All of these adjustments have been made within the constraints of our existing funding allocations under the budget resolution. I might say, Mr. President, that the funding reductions achieved in discretionary appropriations for nondefense programs constitute the only deficit reduction achievement in the 104th Congress. Our committee has more than done its share.

In addition to these funding adjustments, the committee recommends contingent appropriations for certain programs if, and only if, a subsequent agreement is reached between the President and the Congress with respect to Federal expenditures for fiscal year 1996 and future years.

For some months now, there has been discussion on both sides of the aisle in both Houses of Congress about providing additional funding for certain discretionary programs in the context of a larger agreement on the budget. Republican budget negotiators offered an estimated $10 billion in budget authority and $5 billion in outlays last December. The administration has come forward recently with $8.1 billion in budget authority and an estimated $3.5 billion in outlays.

Title IV of our committee substitute would provide $4.7 billion in budget authority and something in the neighborhood of $2 billion in outlays in additional funding beyond that provided in title I of the bill if—that two-letter word—if agreement can be reached on how to provide those additional resources.

Let me add parenthetically that we are the Appropriations Committee and we are not the negotiating committee on the long-term budget solution. So we have not, in any way, attempted to prescribe how that agreement should be reached. That is not in our jurisdiction.

Our committee did not view its responsibility to come up with those additional resources with offsets derived from programs within the jurisdiction of other committees. It is not for us to decide whether to extend the ticket tax or impose a new banking fee or require the formation of a new uranium enrichment corporation, nor is it our proper role to stipulate the specifics of a potential agreement between the President and the Congress. That is the leadership responsibility.

It is our responsibility, however, to recommend what we believe to be appropriate levels of funding for programs within our jurisdiction, and we have done so.

If an agreement can be reached, our committee recommends additional funding for the Advanced Technology Program, contributions to international organizations and peacekeeping efforts, for energy conservation, the National Park Service, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, for job training, education and health programs, and for several housing programs. These recommendations are detailed in an explanatory statement that I ask unanimous consent to be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, all of these changes and new recommendations represent the committee's best effort to respond to the legitimate concerns of the administration, changing circumstances, and the view of our colleagues so that we can bring fiscal year 1996 to a close at last and begin our work on fiscal year 1997.

Despite the absence of enthusiastic support from the administration and its comments on our efforts to date, I remain hopeful that the President and his advisers will look favorably upon our recommendations. We have made a sincere effort to respond to the President's concerns. I believe we have gone about as far as we can. If there are the votes to do more, we will, but it is imperative that we move on and, I must add, stay within the budget resolution parameters.

Whatever additions over and above have to be, obviously, offset. If those offsets can be found, that will be the requirement on any amendment that would be offered to expand beyond the scope of this bill.

Finally, Mr. President, I should not overlook the supplementals provided in the bill our committee recommends to the Senate today. Slightly over $2 billion is recommended in supplementals for disaster relief and for United States operations in Bosnia. Approximately $1.2 billion is provided for disaster relief, all recommended with an emergency declaration under the terms of the Budget Act and subject to a subsequent request from the President.

Funding in the amount of approximately $1 billion is provided for Bosnia operations, partially offset by $820 million in defense rescissions.

In addition, $70 million is recommended in response to the President's request for aid to Jordan.

This is a major piece of legislation, and like all omnibus packages, it contains many things that various Senators will support and a number of various Senators will oppose. I do not ordinarily support such measures in the appropriations process, but I do believe the committee substitute represents the best option available to us at the time. I hope the Senate will proceed expeditiously and adopt the committee substitute in the earliest possible time.

EXHIBIT 1

TITLE I AND TITLE IV ADD-BACKS

(and list of dropped/modified legislative riders)

In addition to the $4.7 billion contingency funding contained in Title IV, the Committee proposes increased funding from conference levels in Title I of the FY 1996 Omnibus Appropriations bill in efforts to address concerns and priorities expressed by the Administration.

We are trying to come up with a package that we can all agree upon. It is critical that an Omnibus bill is signed—provisions must be made for these agencies that have been in limbo for the last six months so that they can do their jobs and we can move on to the FY 97 cycle. That is why we are so earnest about working with the Administration to devise a plan that can be cleared by Congress and that the President will sign. This is our last, best effort. Failure to enact this bill will likely result in an extension of the current C.R. until September 30th. No one likes this prospect.

We must not lose sight of efforts to balance the budget, and that is why some increases are contingent upon a balanced budget agreement with the President. However, in Title I, we are recommending increases in response to the President's concerns; we have augmented dozens of conference funding levels with absolutely no strings attached. We are making a good-faith effort to accommodate the President's requests.

Programs whose conference levels that have been increased in response to the Administration's requests for add-backs include: Community Oriented Policing [COPS] Program (Violent Crime Reduction Programs, State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance): $975,000,000. This program received no direct funding in the conference report to accompany H.R. 2076, the fiscal year 1996 Commerce, Justice, State and the Judiciary Appropriations bill.

Drug Courts: $25,000,000 for Drug Courts, which also did not receive funding in the conference report to accompany H.R. 2076.

Legal Services Corporation: $300,000,000, an increase of $22,000,000 over the level in the conference report to H.R. 2076.

Global Learning to Benefit the Environment Program [GLOBE] (NOAA): $7,000,000. This program received no funding in H.R. 2076's conference report.

National Parks Service: $1,322,000,000, which exceeds by $38,000,000 the level in the conference report to H.R. 1977, the fiscal year 1996 Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations bill.

Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration: $1,380,000,000, an increase of $270,000,000 over the conference level for H.R. 2127, the fiscal year 1996 Labor, HHS, Education and Related Agencies Appropriations bill.

Agency for Health Care Policy and Research: $128,000,000, which exceeds the H.R. 2127 conference report level by $1,000,000.

Developmental Disabilities: $112,000,000, an increase of $2,000,000 over the conference report (H.R. 2127) level.

The overall EPA level is increased to $5,951,000,000, which is $340,000,000 more than was included in the conference report to accompany H.R. 2099, the fiscal year 1996 VA, HUD and Independent Agencies Appropriations bill.

Under EPA, $490,000,000 was provided for enforcement, $40,000,000 more than was included in the conference report.

Superfund receives an additional appropriation of $100,000,000, bringing its total to $1,252,000,000.

Clean Water: $1,225,000,000 under title I, an increase of $100,000,000 over the conference level.

Council on Environmental Quality; $2,000,000, which is double the CEQ conference level.

Community Development Financial Institutions; $50,000,000. No funding was provided for the CDFI program in the conference report to accompany H.R. 2099.

Economic Development Initiatives: $80,000,000. No funding was provided for EDI in the conference report to accompany H.R. 2099.

Severely Distressed Public Housing: $380,000,000, an increase of $100,000,000 over the H.R. 2099 conference report level.

Title IV Contingency funding programs, that is, programs which will receive additional funding in the event the President and Congress are able to reach a balanced budget agreement, include: National Institutes of Standards and Technology (NIST)'s Manufacturing Extension Program: $235,000,000, which received no funding in the conference report to accompany H.R. 2076, the fiscal year 1996 Commerce, Justice, State and the Judiciary Appropriations bill.

Department of Commerce's contributions to International Peacekeeping: $215,000,000 on top of an original conference report level of $700,000,000.

Department of Labor's School to Work program: $91,000,000 in addition to $95,000,000 in the level in the conference report to H.R. 2127, the fiscal year 1996 Labor, HHS, Education and Related Agencies Appropriations bill.

Dislocated Workers program, Department of Labor: $333,000,000 in addition to an original appropriation of $867,000,000 in the Omnibus bill's title I.

Summer Youth Jobs, Department of Labor: $635,000,000. This program received no funding in the conference to accompany H.R. 2127, the fiscal year 1996, Labor, HHS, Education and Related Agencies Appropriations bill.

Head Start, Department of Health and Human Services: $137,000,000 in addition to an appropriation of $3,397,000,000 in title I of the Omnibus bill.

Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration: $134,000,000 on top of an appropriation of $1,380,000,000 in title I of the Omnibus bill.

Goals 2000, Department of Education: $1,278,000,000 in addition to $6,514,000,000 in title I of the Omnibus bill.

Drug-Free Schools program: $200,000,000, a matching amount to the level appropriated under title I of the Omnibus bill.

Charter Schools: $8,000,000, a matching amount to the level appropriated under title I of the Omnibus bill.

Education Technology: $10,000,000, in addition to $25,000,000 in title I of the Omnibus bill.

Environmental Protection Agency, Overall Enforcement, $162,000,000 in addition to $5,951,000,000 in title I of the Omnibus bill.

Economic Development Initiatives, Housing for the Elderly: $150,000,000 in addition to $780,000,000 in title I of the Omnibus bill.

These represent some of the programs that would receive funding. In addition, the Committee has modified the Tongass language; dropped Mojave language; dropped most of the riders contained in the Labor, HHS and Education bill; modified the Timber Salvage amendment contained in last year's Rescission bill; and eliminated objectionable environmental riders in the House VA, HUD and Independent Agencies bill.

AMENDMENT NO. 3466

(Purpose: Making omnibus consolidated rescissions and appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, and for other purposes)

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I send the substitute amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Oregon [Mr. HATFIELD] proposes an amendment numbered 3466.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the amendment is printed in today's RECORD under "Amendments Submitted.")

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, S. 1594 is a comprehensive attempt by the Senate Appropriations Committee to bring before the Senate, in a timely manner, all of the pending fiscal year 1996 appropriation issues. By that, I mean that this bill not only would fund the five remaining fiscal year 1996 appropriation bills, which are funded in Title I through the end of the fiscal year, but the bill also contains the President's requests for emergency disaster assistance for thousands of victims of floods and other recent disasters throughout the country. These disaster assistance payments amount to a little over $1 billion and are contained in Title II of the bill. Title II also contains $820 million in defense spending relating to Bosnia. These appropriations are fully offset by rescissions from the committee's defense (050) allocation. Finally, Title II contains non-military assistance for Bosnia totaling $200 million. Rather than offset this non-DoD spending for Bosnia with DoD offsets, as requested by the President, the committee chose not to offset this $200 million and, instead, to declare it emergency spending under the appropriate section of the Budget Enforcement Act.

Mr. President, as all Senators are aware, the administration has vetoed three of the five fiscal year 1996 appropriation bills contained in Title I of the pending measure—namely, the Commerce-Justice-State bill; the VA-HUD and Independent Agencies bill; and the Interior bill. In all three instances, the President felt that these bills contained too little funding for what he considered critical public investments. In addition, each of these vetoed bills contained at least one objectionable legislative rider. So, the President vetoed these three bills and, in each instance, his veto was sustained. Similarly, the Labor-HHS bill has insufficient funding and riders unacceptable to the administration and the District of Columbia bill, as well, has unacceptable provisions. In an attempt to resolve these funding and legislative objections of the administration, the committee-reported bill has stricken most, but not all, objectionable legislative riders and, importantly, the committee has included additional appropriations in Title IV of the bill, subject to enactment into law of a subsequent Act entitled "An Act Incorporating an Agreement Between the President and Congress Relative to Federal Expenditures in Fiscal Year 1996 and Future Fiscal Years."

In other words, these additional appropriations contained in Title IV and totaling $4.8 billion, are beyond the committee's present 602(a) allocation. Therefore, the chairman chose, and the committee agreed, to report these additional appropriations and to set forth where the committee agrees with the President that additional funding should be provided, but at the same time, to do so in a way which did not exceed the committee's 602(a) allocation.

Pages 251–253 of the committee report (104–236), which is on each Senator's desk, contain a table which sets forth each of the individual appropriations for the departments and agencies that would receive the additional funding, subject to enactment of a future deficit reduction act.

I anticipate a number of amendments on this side of the aisle which will attempt to fully offset portions, if not all, of the addbacks included in the committee-reported bill and, consequently, make the funds available immediately upon enactment in a deficit-neutral way.

In conclusion, Mr. President, we have a long way to go in completing congressional action on this bill in a very short time. As Senators are aware, the current continuing resolution expires on midnight this Friday, March 15th. If Congress has not completed action and the President has not signed the conference version of the pending measure by that time, we face another Government shutdown. Therefore, I urge my colleagues to work with the managers of the bill so that we may schedule appropriate amendments in a timely way and complete action on them expeditiously so that we may get to conference with the House and complete that conference prior to midnight, March 15th.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. GRASSLEY). The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MODIFICATION TO AMENDMENT NO. 3466

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I send a modification of the amendment numbered 3466 to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment is so modified.

The modification is as follows:

Insert on page 771, after line 17 of the amendment.

SEC. 3006. LAND CONVEYANCE, ARMY RESERVE CENTER, GREENSBORO, ALABAMA.

(a) CONVEYANCE AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of the Army may convey, without consideration, to Hale County, Alabama, all right, title, and interest of the United States in and to a parcel of real property consisting of approximately 5.17 acres and located at the Army Reserve Center, Greensboro, Alabama, that was conveyed by Hale County, Alabama, to the United States by warranty deed dated September 12, 1988.

(b) DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY.—The exact acreage and legal description of the property conveyed under subsection (a) shall be as described in the deed referred to in that subsection.

(c) ADDITIONAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—The Secretary may require such additional terms and conditions in connection with the conveyance under this section as the Secretary considers appropriate to protect the interests of the United States.

SEC. 3007. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, $15,000,000 made available for "Operations and Maintenance, Army" in P.L. 104-61 shall be obligated for the remediation of environmental contamination at the National Presto Industries, Inc. site in Eau Claire, Wisconsin. These funds shall be obligated only for the implementation and execution of the 1988 agreement between the Department of the Army and National Presto Industries, Inc.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, there is an error on page 213 of Senate Report 104-236, which accompanies S. 1594, that I would like to correct. Chapter 1 of title II of the bill pertains to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which is under the jurisdiction of the appropriations subcommittee which I chair. In this chapter, the committee notes that for fiscal year 1996, the Food Safety and Inspection Service received a 5.5-percent increase over the amount appropriated to it for fiscal year 1995. However, this percentage does not include the supplemental appropriation which the agency received for fiscal year 1995, and should instead be 3.6 percent.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 3467 TO AMENDMENT NO. 3466

(Purpose: To provide funding for important education initiatives with an offset)

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DEWINE). The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from South Dakota [Mr. DASCHLE], for Mr. HARKIN for himself, Mr. WELLSTONE, Mr. KERRY, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. DODD, Mr. KOHL, Mr. DASCHLE, and Mr. LAUTENBERG, proposes an amendment numbered 3467 to amendment No. 3466.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the amendment is printed in today's RECORD under "Amendments Submitted.")

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, today we resume debate on the five remaining fiscal 1996 appropriations bills. We are halfway through the fiscal year. We have had two Government shutdowns. Our country's priorities have suffered greatly. Education, in particular, has suffered a series of extraordinarily difficult circumstances. Last week, the Appropriations Committee reported the Labor-HHS-Education bill that again cuts education by more than $3 billion.

Many Republicans, once again, are attempting to pass a bill that continues these very devastating cuts in education—cuts that include $679 million from math and reading programs, denying services to 700,000 children; cuts in Head Start of $137 million, depriving 20,000 3- and 4-year-olds of early help that can lead to a lifetime of achievement; cuts of $266 million in the safe and drug-free school program, currently serving 23 million children.

In the Republican bill, which passed in the Appropriations Committee, all funding for the Summer Youth Jobs Program is eliminated. More than 500,000 young people would otherwise benefit from that program.

Spending levels in South Dakota and every other State are affected. In my State, schools face $5.3 million in reductions in the availability of education funding for fiscal 1996 and 1997. All this adds up to the fact that students will not receive the services they need. We simply cannot allow that to happen if there is any prospect of avoiding that kind of a disaster in education in the coming year.

This crisis in education is a true emergency. This is not just rhetoric. This is not something we can wish away. All of these, and many other programs directly affecting thousands and thousands of students, will be very directly affected if we cannot address our country's education needs in a more thoughtful and comprehensive way than does the bill now before us.

The cuts in education we have experienced over the last several months represent the single largest reduction in education in history—a 25-percent cut—at a time when, I remind my colleagues, there is record enrollment in the public schools. Not only are we seeing increases in enrollment and a demand for more services, but we are asking our schools to meet that demand at a time when we are asking them to absorb a cut of record proportions.

One quarter of every dollar that was available in 1995 has not been available this year. Next year, nearly 52 million children will be seeking educational services across the country. That breaks the 1971 baby boom generation record.

Schools and colleges across the country are reporting that they are unable to plan their budgets and provide the services at the elementary, secondary, and higher educational levels because of the extraordinary cuts this bill and the past continuing resolutions require them to make.

Schools are already planning to lay off teachers and scale back services as a result of the budget we are contemplating. Not long ago, the mayors of most of our big cities were in Washington to share their concerns about the impact these cuts will have on their school districts. I thought that Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer probably said it as succinctly and eloquently as any I have heard as he discussed the impact this 25-percent cut in education will have on the Detroit school system. "Which 25 percent," he asked, "of my students should I not educate?"

We ask, which 25 percent of America's children should be denied help with math and reading? Which 25 percent of preschoolers should lose their chance to go to Head Start? Which 25 percent of children who attend schools where drugs and violence are problems should be forced to face those problems alone?

Mr. President, we should not even be asking these questions. We would not be if Congress had done its job and passed an educational funding bill over 5 months ago when this fiscal year began. The Republican failure to fulfill this basic function of Government, causing chaos in classrooms around the country, is becoming increasingly clear. But the time has come to end the chaos and to address this problem in a more forthright manner. The time has come for us to stand up and recognize that unless we deal with these issues more directly, we will find ourselves in a situation that continues to increase in seriousness and increase exponentially in terms of the difficulties it presents for school districts, as well as for the students themselves.

Throughout the budget process our Republican colleagues have said that their agenda is about protecting our children's future. The question we have is, "How can you protect their future, or ours, if we deprive children of the education they need to succeed?" The time to solve this problem is now. We cannot afford simply to pay lipservice to it.

The contingency fund that has been incorporated into this bill is, in my view, an attempt on the part of some Republicans to have it both ways—to pretend they are funding education but to do so without releasing any of the money. The so-called addback that we see in this bill is not real. Enacting this bill into law would not produce one dime of this contingent funding. If we believe education is important, we have to ensure that funding is there regardless of contingencies—regardless of what may or may not occur as a result of additional action this Congress may take at some point in the future.

Mr. President, that is why every Democrat believes as strongly as we do that, of all the amendments we are offering, this one holds our greatest priority. This one says as clearly and as unequivocally as we can that we cannot mess around with education. We can have our policy differences throughout the year, and throughout this Congress, but when it comes to the crunch, when it comes to really dealing with the issue that we recognize is as important as anything to our future, we have to ensure that the investment is there.

So this amendment will restore the $3.1 billion in educational cuts represented in this bill. And when I say "restore," I use that word very intentionally. We are simply restoring the funding necessary to bring us to the level schools had the last time we appropriated funds for education in 1995. This is real money with a real offset. It restores real funding to the 1995 level without adding one dime to the deficit. We are willing to consider other offsets. We do not feel necessarily wedded to these particular ones. If there are others that are more acceptable, we will certainly take a look at them. But we wanted to find a dollar-for-dollar offset that allows us to fully restore the funding in education that we believe to be so critical.

There are two nonnegotiable principles. First, education must be adequately funded; and, second, education must be fully paid for.

Siphoning off money from education consigns American children to second-class futures and opportunities that are simply unacceptable.

Democrats are united in opposition and offer this amendment to reverse the failed policies that got us to the position we are in today. The chance for all of us to cast a vote for the future of our country's children lies with this amendment.

Children learn by example. We have an opportunity to set one by educating them properly and showing them how important they really are, that their future is our highest priority.

A lot of my colleagues have had a great deal to do with the fact that we are offering this amendment this afternoon. I applaud them—each and every one—for their effort. No one has put more effort into education and the priority it deserves than my colleague from Rhode Island, Senator PELL. And Senator HARKIN, Senator KERRY, Senator WELLSTONE, Senator LEVIN, and certainly Senator KENNEDY—who has devoted his entire public career to the priorities that we argue today must be included in this bill—they, along with Senator DODD, Senator KOHL, and Senator LAUTENBERG have all indicated how strongly they feel about this amendment. I applaud them, and thank them for their leadership in bringing us to this point this afternoon.

Other colleagues are on the floor who seek recognition to speak in support of this amendment. I yield the floor to allow them to be recognized.

Mr. PELL addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. PELL. Mr. President, I rise merely to congratulate the minority leader on his speech, and to join him in his emphasis about the importance of education. It is important for the future of our children, our young people, and our country.

I yield the floor.

Mr. DORGAN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I rise in support of the amendment offered by Senator DASCHLE, the minority leader. We are talking about the subject of education.

There is a lot of discussion in this country about where our country is headed and what kind of economic future we will have. Will we have jobs? Will we have opportunity? All of this begins with the first step, which is education.

Thomas Jefferson once said that anyone who believes that a country can be both ignorant and free believes something that never was and never can be. Our economic progress in this country starts with education. That is what the Senator from South Dakota is saying with this amendment.

Mr. President, I have told this story on the floor a couple of times, but it is worth repeating. The first week I came to Congress, I walked into the office of the oldest man in Congress, Claude Pepper, and I saw something I have not forgotten. Claude Pepper was the oldest man serving in Congress at the time that I was elected to the Congress. I walked in, and met him. And he had behind his chair on his wall two autographed pictures that I have never forgotten. One was an autographed picture of Orville and Wilbur Wright making the first airplane flight. And it was autographed "To Congressman Claude Pepper" by Orville Wright before Orville Wright died. Then hanging just above that was a picture of Neil Armstrong setting his foot on the Moon autographed "To Congressman Claude Pepper."

And I thought about what lies between going from the ground to the air in the first airplane flight, and then from the ground to the air to the Moon. What is it that connects that vast difference in technological achievement? The answer is education.

It struck me when I saw those two pictures that in this one person's lifetime Claude Pepper had the autographed picture of the first person to fly and then the first person to go to the Moon. And what did it all come down to? In this country, a massive investment in education made possible technological breakthroughs—breakthroughs in virtually every area—that not only have allowed us to go to the Moon but to cure polio, and to do so many things in just this century.

Anyone who believes that this country can move ahead by deciding that education is somehow less important than many other things in our country just does not understand the value of and the role of education in building our country's opportunities and our country's future.

I have, I suppose, on a half-dozen occasions in recent months come to the floor of the Senate and lamented the juxtaposition of two programs that seem to me to demonstrate the misplaced priorities these days. A little program which I understand is now funded in this omnibus appropriations bill—a program called Star Schools that was designed to try to create Star Schools in the maths and the sciences through the use of technology—was cut by 40 percent in an earlier continuing resolution. That little program suffered a 40-percent funding cut—which I understand has now been reversed—but a 40-percent funding cut in Star Schools at the same time that a 115-percent funding increase was provided for star wars; a much, much larger program. And it occurred to me that those who think that we will advance this country's interests by cutting a Star Schools program while at the same time increasing a star wars program really do not understand the genesis of progress and the rewards from the investment in education that have given this country the kind of economic strength and the kind of glorious past it has had, and the kind of glorious future it will have if we continue to make the right decisions in this Congress. The Senator from South Dakota has offered an amendment that tries to restore some of the funding for some education programs. There are some who would perhaps like to go further than the Senator from South Dakota goes. But, for certain, there are many of us in this Congress who believe that we can and should provide the kind of funding that is necessary for the education programs that the Federal Government is involved in without at all deviating from our goal of balancing the budget. This is not a question of anything other than selecting the right priorities.

Those of us who have spent time in classrooms in recent years understand that there are a number of elements that must be present in our schools in order for education to work in our country. First, there must be a young student who is interested in learning. Second, there needs to be a teacher who understands how to teach. And third, parents who want to be involved in their children's education.

All of those elements are necessary for education to work. But education also cannot and will not work unless we have funding for training good teachers, for funding school facilities, unless we make a commitment to have the best education system in the world.

Aside from this amendment, I hope and I wish that in the Presidential contest in 1996 and in the political discussions between our two parties not only in this year but beyond that we will have a thoughtful and thorough discussion about what role education should play in this country. Is education a discipline that establishes for us a goal that we want to have the finest education system in the world? Do we want America to have an education system that we can say is the best in the world? Is that our goal? And if so, then how do we reach that goal? It ought to be our goal. And that is what the Senator from South Dakota is saying with his amendment. Let us not step back on the issue of education. Let us not retreat in the investment that we ought to make. When we tell 55,000 little kids 4 and 5 years old, each of whom has a name, that we are sorry; we cannot have you in a Head Start Program—and incidentally, that is a program that works—when we are willing to tell a Jimmy or Betty or Johnny or Susie that we cannot afford to have you in a Head Start Program; yes, you come from a low-income family; yes, you come from a disadvantaged family, but you cannot be in a Head Start Program, I say that is a shame. That is why we need to select the right priorities.

Let us fund Head Start. Let us make sure a whole range of these education programs, school-to-work programs, title I programs, the vocational education programs, and dozens of other programs that we know work and make this a better country, let us make sure those programs are adequately funded. That is what the Senator from South Dakota's amendment would do. I fully support the amendment and appreciate the fact that he has offered it.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Jan Gamby, a fellow of the Bureau of Land Management, be allowed floor privileges for discussion we will have shortly on another amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Chair recognizes the Senator from Oregon.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President I would like to indicate just for the record some wrong figures. This bill pending before the floor now does not cut 25 percent. It is cut 12 percent. The Federal education bill in this present form represents support for education comprising 67 percent of the national education expenditures. It has been cut, of course; it has been cut 12 percent as we are moving toward reductions of Government spending. Thus, the Federal cut is on a base of 6 percent of national expenditures on education. On the total national expenditures, it is a 6-percent reduction. With the additional funds in the title IV, the education cut is reduced less than 5 percent.

Now, those are contingent upon agreements being reached between the President and the negotiators on the long-term balanced budget.

I just want to make that correction for the record. I wish to say also that last spring when we allocated the 602(b) allocations we indicated our strong support on the Senate Appropriations Committee for education. We allocated $1.5 billion more than the House had allocated for the Labor, HHS Subcommittee 602(b).

I cannot fault any of the arguments made by those advancing the amendment in terms of commitment to education, and I might say I do not take a back seat to anybody on that side of the aisle or anyplace else in this Senate Chamber on supporting education. But, nevertheless, I think we have to realize that when the proponents of this amendment say that it is offset, Mr. President, I have to correct that as well. It is not totally offset because even if you look at the uranium enrichment source to which they dip in for an offset, it does not in 1996 fully offset it. In fact, it costs money to do the uranium offset. It will in 1997 more than provide money to offset back for the additions made in 1996 and 1997.

But let us understand this. We are offering here in this amendment not a total offset, which I think probably would make it subject to a point of order. Second, there is an emergency declaration used to compensate for the inability to totally dollar-for-dollar offset. Now, this is the right of the Senate. It is the right of the Congress at any time to put an emergency to any measure. I do not challenge the correctness. I am challenging the wisdom in adding an emergency declaration as a part of the offset that does not happen in a dollar-for-dollar offset.

I understand that we are going to lay this amendment down according to the leader and embark upon a major debate on this issue tomorrow when the chairman of the Subcommittee on Appropriations, Senator SPECTER, will be here to engage in an analysis and discussion of this amendment.

Mr. President, I also understand the Senators from North Dakota are anxious, once the discussion or comments made on this amendment have been finished, to offer an amendment to the emergency supplemental that is incorporated in this vehicle relating to North Dakota which we will be very happy to accommodate in that we have accommodated Idaho, Washington, and Oregon for similar problems that North Dakota has.

AMENDMENT NO. 3467 TO AMENDMENT NO. 3466

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I rise to support, as an original cosponsor, the amendment proposed this afternoon by the Senator from South Dakota with the objective of restoring some of the funds that have been cut from the education budget of this country.

I know that most Americans will quickly agree that money is by no means the whole solution for the schools of this country. I think all of us agree with that. The reason this fight is taking place is not because of some automatic response that suggests that, "Gee, they are cutting education. It doesn't matter how much. We must fight to put the money back." This amendment is not such a reflexive action.

But I think, just as most Americans would automatically agree that throwing money at something is not the solution, so they would also agree that they want schools that are free of drugs and that are safe. So they would also agree that they want 3- and 4-year-olds to have the maximum exposure to early intervention school programs. So they would also agree that it is critical to take kids who are at risk in their teenage years, who have either dropped out of school or have a drug problem or are facing some other kind of difficulty in life, and give them an opportunity to get into the workplace. So they would also agree that it is important to share the wealth of this great Nation with a disadvantaged community, an urban community which depends on the property tax to fund its schools but which has very, very little tax base because of the problems it faces, in order to help the kids in that community get a decent education.

What we have here in the Republican approach to this continuing resolution is a disavowal of each and every one of those realities. I do not think there is any American in a community that is affected who is coming to the Congress and saying, "Hey, we only have 50 percent of our kids getting drug education last year. Let us lower the funding for drug education." Or, "Hey, we know that this community cannot match the high-income communities in the rest of our State in the local funds it invests in schooling its children, but, nevertheless, let us lower the Federal funding provided to that community and make it harder to educate its children."

No one has come to me in my State and said, "Senator, it's too bad that those kids at the Jeremiah Burke School only had 12 computers a year ago for 900 kids. But that's really not so important. Let's make sure they only have five next year—or maybe none."

That is the effect of what is being proposed by the Republicans in their approach to education, because the hard, inescapable truth in the United States of America is that we have district after district that does not have sufficient resources to provide kids with an adequate education.

I was at the Healy School in Somerville, MA, the other day, which receives title I money.

In that community there are kids who are in a joint first and second grade class. Some of those kids have special needs, and they are trying to mainstream through the education process those kids with special needs, because to take them out of the mainstream is to have them miss the very important experiences to which other children the same age are exposed. And the evidence is that they perform better and advance further scholastically when they feel they are part of the regular group.

It is an important component of building self-esteem. It is an important component of helping people to grow up to be productive citizens. It is an important component of reducing the later costs that are imposed on taxpayers in this country for people who are not able to be part of the mainstream.

In that school in Somerville, they have teachers' aides, part-time teachers helping the regular teachers to be able to keep these kids progressing as close to the norm as possible.

What is the rationale for the Republicans to come along and say, "That doesn't matter, we're going to cut Federal funding for that effort, because we have to balance the budget of this country?"

We do not disagree, of course, that we have to balance the Federal budget. In fact, we emphatically state that we must balance the budget. The debate is not over whether we have to balance the budget, the debate is over how the budget should be balanced. And most Americans, I believe, would say, "Do we really need to build a B-2 bomber in 1996 instead of educating these kids in Somerville and in all of America's other communities from coast to coast? Could we not find other parts of our $1.6 trillion budget to trim in order to guarantee we have the best education system in the world?"

I fully understand that we need standards, we need testing, we need a change of attitude in the school place. We need principals who have the power and authority to direct the schools and hold teachers accountable for satisfactory teaching. Of course, we need all those things.

But, Mr. President, we need to guarantee that our kids have computers. We need to guarantee that our schools are wired to the computer age. We need to guarantee that the libraries that they have are open in the afternoon. We need to guarantee that those libraries that are open have current reference books.

We need to guarantee that teachers are not doing just the minimum in order to stay employed, that they are not just xeroxing materials in order to be able to put something in front of children so they have something to work on during the day. We need teachers striving to be the best they can be, and motivating children to be the best they can be.

The Republicans, a couple of months ago, suggested to us that it was OK to zero out the money for summer jobs—eliminate summer jobs entirely. That was their priority. They went back home and talked to their constituents and read the polls, and they saw their agenda was not working as they intended. The American people did not like what they saw. So they came back to Washington and have included in this bill about two-thirds of the amount the President requested for summer jobs for teenagers. But they are not through with their intransigence. They have nominally appropriated funds to pay the costs of two-thirds as many jobs as the President requested, but then in the same bill they prohibit expenditure of those funds until a further deficit reduction bill is enacted that is to their liking. They say they are no longer holding schoolchildren and teenagers who want to work as hostages, but we all should look behind the story they are telling and closely inspect the facts of their bill.

The Safe and Drug-Free Schools Program is being cut by over 50 percent. I do not understand that. This will equate to a reduction of about $2 million from a program that serves over 14,000 kids in Massachusetts. It serves 39 million students nationwide. I do not know of any American today who will come in here and say, "We've got the drug problem licked, let's go home."

We just appointed a new drug czar. Most people will agree that the incidents of youth violence are increasing. Most people have accepted the stark reality of statistics that show us that 36 percent of all the kids in the United States of America are born out of wedlock, which means that they are mostly, not all, but mostly starting in one-parent families with one parent who has to struggle to make ends meet.

Most people in this country understand that those kids are going to be most at risk, and most people understand the devastating effects of drugs within those communities where a huge number of children are born out of wedlock.

So what is the rationale for reducing our effort to provide teen counselors, peer programs, all of the DARE programs and other efforts in our schools that make a difference in the lives of these at-risk children and young people? There is no credible rationale, Mr. President, and yet, in the name of balancing the budget and so-called fiscal austerity, the Republicans suggest that we can do more with less with respect to our education system.

The distinguished Senator from Oregon said earlier, "Well, we're not really cutting the amount of money being claimed, we are actually cutting a lesser amount of money." But the fact is that the only way that a lesser amount of money is being cut is if you count the funny money in this bill. What do I mean by funny money? I mean the money in the bill, $8 billion, that depends on a future agreement with respect to budget legislation.

Let me read the very language of the bill. Page 780 in S. 1594, the pending legislation, line 20:

> No part of any appropriation contained in this title shall be made available for obligation or expenditure, nor any authority granted herein be effective, until the enactment into law of a subsequent Act entitled "An Act Incorporating an Agreement Between the President and Congress Relative to Federal Expenditures in the Fiscal Year 1996 and Future Fiscal Years."

So, Mr. President, this is funny money. This is a fake. This is a scam. This is the Republicans coming along with another political gimmick to suggest to the country that they are really providing money for purposes the American people believe are vital when they are not providing money at all, because what they are providing depends on a subsequent agreement for the entire budget which, as we all know, depends on both sides being willing to move much further than they have given any indication they are prepared to move.

The result will be even worse than the funding cuts that will be enforced when the subsequent budget agreement legislation proves to be a mirage that is unreachable by anyone. In fact, no school district in America can plan its budget for the next school year, because they do not know how much money they will get for these purposes from the Federal Government.

Is that a real problem? Let me just share with you this information.

Because there are no 1996 commitments for key Federal education programs, Boston is proceeding to budget on a worst-case scenario, because they have to. Why? Because Boston must pay all teachers who have a contract for next year unless a teacher has been notified he or she is being laid off by May 15. So the school system has to plan for the worst, and send out the layoff notices.

What does that do for morale in the schools? What does that do for the capacity to build education reform programs and other areas where we have been making some progress in Massachusetts and other States?

The truth is that in school district after school district, people are left, by virtue of this game that is being played, making worst-case plans and not being able to implement the full measure of the reforms for which most of us have fought very hard over the last few years.

Goals 2000 is an example of those reforms. The Republicans are cutting Goals 2000 money. Why? Goals 2000 money is used to help teachers get the ongoing education and the ongoing training necessary to help them deal with reform, to produce reform, to teach better, to be state-of-the-art teachers and, hopefully, transition our kids successfully into the modern, complex workplace of the future.

Mr. President, all you have to do is look at the statistics on reading in America. If one does so, it is then impossible to answer why we are making these kinds of reductions.

Only one-third of the kids in the United States of America last year who graduated from high school, graduated with a passable—passable—reading level. Out of 2½ million kids who graduated from high school, fully two-thirds were below a basic high school reading level.

Out of 2½ million kids who graduated from high school in America, only 100,000 had a world-class reading level. And what are we doing at the Federal level? We are going to pull back from the incentives we can offer for providing an adequate education for our kids.

Mr. President, every one of these efforts, frankly, is critical. Title I money enables schools to provide additional training in math and in reading and also provides technology resources and assistance to parents of at-risk students in order to help those students learn to read and write adequately.

I can introduce you to one Boston student who started as a below-average elementary student, but after completing the title I program, this student went on to become his high school's class president and is currently enrolled at MIT in Cambridge.

There are, thank God, thousands of other similar examples. I know students who were having great difficulty with math or with reading who, only because of the extra attention they were able to get, were able to go on in the mainstream, attend college, graduate and secure a career, and, in some cases, proceed to an even higher level of education.

It is incomprehensible, Mr. President, that in 1996, out of our Nation's $1.6 trillion budget, when we know that there are wiser offsets, we are being asked to reduce the safety in our schools, the quality of our education, and the access by kids to additional training and assistance, and to make it impossible for our children to receive the highest level of teaching. My colleagues supporting this amendment and I believe that all of these things are being sacrificed needlessly.

I might add that, given the new recognition in recent months of the problems in the American workplace, it is even more puzzling that our friends on the other side of the aisle would find some virtue in trying to balance the budget by giving a tax cut to the wealthy while simultaneously taking away help for kids to go to school in the poor communities of this country.

It is ironic. Patrick Buchanan and the Republican Party have been experiencing a certain awakening with respect to some of those things that many of us have been fighting for in the Senate for a long time—the problem of people raising their wages in this modern economy, the problem of people holding on to the jobs that they have or getting the jobs they want to have, all of which in today's world depends more and more on the linkage of technology and skill and training to a particular job opportunity.

What is the rationale, in the face of that clear connection, for reducing our commitment to those kinds of efforts, particularly where each of those efforts has been proven to be competent, valuable, and productive?

It is not as if our colleagues are coming to the floor of the Senate and saying, "Look, here's this program. It is a terrible program. It doesn't do anything. The kids aren't learning. We have had 10 years of wasted money. Nobody seems to be able to get ahead." That is not the evidence. I hear no one making that claim. Instead, they are saying, "Our eyes are closed. Our minds are made up. We have to cut these programs regardless."

The evidence is that every single one of these efforts has made a difference in the lives of children, in the schools they attend, and in the communities where they live. And that is what makes up the fabric of this country. And that is what produces the real values of this Nation.

Mr. President, if we are going to hear lectures about values, it should be clear that the vote we will have on this education amendment will be a vote about values. If you care about values, you are not going to strip money from children who are trying to mainstream in a school in an inner city that is struggling to obtain adequate resources. You are not going to take that away from them in order to give some larger tax break to people who have seen the stock market go up 43 percent in the last year.

So, I respectfully say to my colleagues that this is one of the most important amendments the Senate will consider this year, and the vote we will cast on it will be one of the most important votes we have an opportunity to cast in the Senate this year, because this really is a vote about where we want this country to go and what kind of people we are going to be. No one has made up the statistics or the studies which document the linkage of early intervention, of structure, of quality reading and math and science education to the ability of students to achieve their maximum potential.

I hope that tomorrow or the next day, whenever we vote on this measure, we will articulate to the Nation our sense of the proper values in this country and of the proper priorities in this budget.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. DORGAN addressed the Chair.

AMENDMENTS NOS. 3468 AND 3469, EN BLOC

(Purpose: To appropriate $2.8 million to the United States Fish and Wildlife Service for upper basin water storage in order to prevent flooding on its land in the Devils Lake Basin in North Dakota, which funds are designated by Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985)

(Purpose: To appropriate $10 million to the Economic Development Administration for assistance to prevent flooding in the North Dakota's Devils Lake Basin, which funds are designated by Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985)

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I send two amendments to the desk and ask for their immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator ask unanimous consent to set aside the Daschle amendment?

Mr. DORGAN. Yes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. And consider these amendments en bloc?

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to set aside the pending amendment and that these two amendments be considered en bloc.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows.

The Senator from North Dakota [Mr. DORGAN], for himself and Mr. CONRAD, proposes en bloc amendments numbered 3468 and 3469.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the amendments be considered as read.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendments are as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 3468

On page 740, line 6, strike "$32,000,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$34,800,000".

On page 740, line 8 after the word "nature" add a comma and insert "and to protect natural resources in the Devils Lake Basin in North Dakota".

AMENDMENT NO. 3469

On page 734, line 23, strike "$15,000,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$25,000,000".

On page 735, line 1, strike "$1,500,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$2,500,000".

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I know the chairman of the Appropriations Committee is in the Chamber and he has worked with us on these two en bloc amendments, as has Senator BYRD and other members of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

These two amendments very simply say that we would provide some resources to the Fish and Wildlife Service for some upper basin water storage in an area where there is flooding, rather severe flooding that is causing substantial difficulties in the Devils Lake Basin, and the second amendment provides $10 million from EDA to the State to be an administering agency to deal with the same contingency plans with respect to this flooding.

We have worked extensively with the Appropriations Committee. The Senator from Oregon [Mr. HATFIELD] has been most cooperative, as have Senator BYRD and other members of the committee. I hope, without taking more of the Senate's time, the Senate will act favorably on these two amendments. I offer them on behalf of myself and my colleague, Senator CONRAD, who has joined me in working on these two amendments with the Senate Appropriations Committee.

These amendments address disaster and hazard mitigation assistance for the Devils Lake Basin in North Dakota. We believe the situation in North Dakota is unique. Unlike most disasters, the one in Devils Lake is predictable and preventable. Under our amendments, emergency funds will be provided to Devils Lake through three Federal agencies: the Economic Development Administration, the Fish and Wildlife Service, and HUD through its Community and Development Block Grant Program. With the adoption of these three amendments, we can go a long way toward preventing a flooding disaster in the Devils Lake Basin. And by acting now, rather than waiting for the disaster to occur, we can save millions of Federal dollars over the long term.

Devils Lake is a 3,810-square-mile closed basin. Water from surrounding land and tributaries flows into the lake where it remains because there is no outlet. As a consequence, rising lake levels pose a serious and immediate threat to the Devils Lake Sioux Tribe and to the health and economic welfare of the many families and businesses located in the Devils Lake Basin.

After last year's flood, an Interagency Task Force on the Devils Lake Basin was established to study the problems in the basin and to develop coordinated strategies to address immediate threats and long range solutions to the basin's problems. It was headed by the Federal Emergency Management Agency [FEMA] and composed of Federal, State and local officials as well as interested citizens. Simultaneously, the Corps of Engineers was developing a flooding contingency plan for the Devils Lake region. Both the Interagency Task Force report and the corps' contingency plan were made available to the North Dakota officials and the public in mid-February.

The corps' contingency plan clearly maps out hazard mitigation efforts that need to be undertaken when Devils Lake rises by 1-foot increments beginning at 1,436.5 feet. The National Weather Service forecast issued on March 1 projects Devils Lake to rise to between 1,437.5 and 1,438 feet in June or July. To put the lake level rise in perspective, total inflow to Devils Lake for the 2-year period between 1993–95 accounts for approximately 24 percent of all inflow to the lake over the last 45 years, 1950 through May 31, 1995.

The unanticipated rise in the lake over the past 2–3 years is the reason Senator CONRAD and I are offering these amendments today. Devils Lake has been a presidentially declared disaster each of the past 3 years. We have the opportunity today to prevent that from happening this year, and we ask for your support. If we do not proceed immediately to undertake the project outline in the corps' plan, it could cost the Federal Government as much as $50 million more after the flood occurs.

Three major areas have been identified by FEMA and the Corps of Engineers to mitigate a flooding disaster in the Devils Lake Basin. I would like to explain each of the three courses of action and their importance to the citizens of the Devils Lake Basin.

1. STORAGE OF WATER IN THE UPPER BASIN

As mentioned above, Devils Lake is a closed basin. There is no natural outlet and water continues to flow into the lake raising the overall lake level. The upper basin storage project recommended by the Federal Emergency Management Agency [FEMA] has recommended that 100,000 acre-feet of water be stored on upper basin lands as part of a comprehensive strategy to deal with the unprecedented rise in water levels in Devils Lake, thereby preventing a significant amount of water from reaching the lake. The corps has identified several sites available for storing water in the upper basin on both private and public property. The proposed projects would entail developing small storage sites such as potholes, swales, existing or new wetlands and diverting water to other smaller lakes not in danger of flooding to mitigate the continued rise and inevitable flooding of Devils Lake.

The Economic Development Agency has assured us it has the authority to devote resources to the water storage project on private lands in the upper basin. It is our intent that the State be the administering agency for an EDA grant and that the customary Federal-State match be applied for projects carried out by local districts.

The public storage project is to be undertaken on Fish and Wildlife Service land and they have assured us they have the capability to undertake the mitigation work outlined in the corps' plan immediately upon receipt of the funding provided in these amendments. When these two upper basin storage projects are completed, they will have a major impact on holding back water from Devils Lake and preventing more extensive flooding.

Again, I urge my colleagues to support this modest investment which saves Federal dollars in the future.

2. ROAD RAISES

The largest damage category to the Devils Lake region is the area of transportation. Due to the lake's continual rise over the past several years, many roads are in peril of being flooded while others have already been abandoned. The Devils Lake road system is vital to the continued survival of the residents and businesses in the area who rely on these roads for all their transportation needs.

Key public services, particularly in terms of public health and safety, such as emergency services, police, fire, ambulance, patient access, school buses, commuter access to name a few would be literally cut off if flooding occurs. As an example, data furnished by Mercy Hospital and the Lake Region Clinic in Devils Lake show over 7,900 patients requiring medical assistance come from communities that rely on public roads which would be impassible when flooding occurs. Likewise, businesses in the area would be devastated without access to supplies, deliveries and customers.

As a further demonstration of the critical need to keep the public roads passable, one highway, Highway 20, averages 4,000 vehicles per day. In addition, the main access road to the Devils Lake Sioux Reservation, with a population of 3,588, is in danger of flooding. If we fail to act now, most services to the reservation could be cut off, posing a critical threat to the health and safety of the residents on the reservation.

To prevent the crippling of transportation within the community, our amendment will provide funding to move forward with the contingency plan's specific recommendations for road raises. These road raises are the life blood of the Devils Lake community's economic welfare and stability. Construction must commence immediately before flooding makes it impractical and the cost prohibitive. It is our intent that only those road projects outlined by the Corps of Engineers in its contingency plan will be undertaken with the money provided in these amendments. Once again, the Economic Development Administration has assured us it has the authority to provide assistance for road raises under their emergency grant program. It is our intention that the State be the administering authority for these funds and that the customary Federal-State cost share be applied for projects carried out by local governments.

It was our intention to offer a third amendment to assist with relocation efforts through the community and development block grant. However, firm numbers on the costs of relocation will not be available until later this month. Therefore, we intend to enter into a colloquy with Senators HATFIELD, BYRD, BOND, and MIKULSKI to make it clear that North Dakota, should it apply for funding under the $100,000,000 being made available in this bill for the Community Development Block Grant Program, will be able to receive relocation assistance, if the President concurs that North Dakota should be designated as eligible for emergency disaster assistance.

Even though we are not seeking additional funding for relocation assistance in this bill, I would like to take a moment to detail North Dakota's relocation problems.

The contingency plan identifies the number of dwellings within the expanded flood plain that are in imminent danger of being destroyed when the lake reaches levels between 1,435 to 1,440 feet elevation. Since the lake is currently at an elevation level of 1,435.2, and is predicted to rise to a level of 1,438 this spring, flooding of many of these dwellings is all but certain.

The total number of individual dwellings identified in the contingency plan which are in danger of flooding consists of 148 homes and 4 apartment buildings totaling 90 units—a very significant number of structures in a small city of 7,958 people.

The city of Devils Lake provides retail services to approximately 77,000 individuals in a radius of 60 miles, including 10,600 native Americans. A survey conducted by the North Central Planning Council of Devils Lake estimates that over 1,600 jobs would be lost if flooding is allowed to occur. The overall economic impact of such a loss of employment in a small rural community, coupled with loss of homes, could devastate the region to such an extent that it may never fully recover.

People rely on the stability of the community for jobs and services. Flooding to this area could result in residents being forced to give up their hard earned way of life and relocate to areas outside of Devils Lake. This is simply not fair to hard working people who have built a stable community that is being assaulted by nature. Our amendment can prevent total dislocation from occurring. By providing relocation assistance through the community development block grant, we can begin moving residents and businesses from the flood plain to safer areas within the community. Relocations efforts will help ensure the continued economic viability of Devils Lake and save the Federal Government millions of dollars in the process.

Senator CONRAD and I ask for your support for these two amendments. Working together, we can prevent an imminent flooding disaster from occurring thereby saving the good people of Devils Lake, and saving the Federal Government needless and more costly expenditures. The stability and economic future of the Devils Lake Basin rests with this body.

In closing, there are many people I want to thank for their efforts in working with us to formulate these amendments. First, I would like to thank Senators BYRD and HATFIELD and their remarkable staffs for their support and invaluable assistance. I am especially grateful to Jim English for his vigilance and help throughout the process, and to Keith Kennedy for his support. I am also indebted to Senator MIKULSKI and Senator HOLLINGS and their staffs without whose efforts, we would not be offering these amendments today. Particular thanks go to Scott Gudes, Sue Massica, Sally Chadburn, Carrie Apostolou, Scott Corwin, and Bruce Evans. Finally, I want to thank all the Federal agencies that provided us good counsel and advice in a timely and professional manner—the Economic Development Administration, the Fish and Wildlife Service, HUD and FEMA, as well as the many State and local officials and community leaders who helped in this endeavor. We are most grateful for their invaluable assistance.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. I thank the Chair and I thank my colleague, Senator DORGAN. I rise today to join him in offering these amendments to cope with an emergency situation that exists in our State. In the last 2 years, Devils Lake has risen by 13 feet. It is now at a 120-year high. The National Weather Service has just informed us, on the first of this month, that they anticipate the lake will rise another 2½ or 3 feet this year. This is a tragedy and a disaster of staggering proportions. The lake has doubled in surface area in the last 2 years. It is threatening communities. It is threatening farmland. It is threatening roads. It is an economic catastrophe in this part of North Dakota.

We have worked together with FEMA, with the Corps of Engineers, and other relevant Federal agencies to develop a strategy and plan to cope with this crisis. Last week we asked the Appropriations Committee to give special consideration, in light of the new forecast which was just out as to the lake level rises that we could expect this year, to respond on an emergency basis.

The Appropriations Committee has responded, and I want to thank personally the chairman of the committee, Senator HATFIELD, for his prompt and sensitive response. I also thank Senator BYRD for his assistance. Because, without their help, we would face $50 million of additional damages this year. It makes no sense not to take steps now to avert the tragedy that is coming. We can save a lot of money by operating on the front end rather than just waiting to clean up the mess on the back end.

So, I again thank especially the chairman of this committee for his foresight and for his willingness to respond to what is clearly a crisis. I also thank the other members of the committee for recognizing the extreme nature of this emergency. I also thank my colleague for all of the hard work that has gone into putting together something that makes sense, with the Army Corps of Engineers, with the Federal Emergency Management Agency, and others.

Mr. DORGAN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, if I might make one additional point without imposing on the Senate much further, Senator GREGG and Senator HOLLINGS on the relevant subcommittee with respect to EDA have been most helpful to us. I appreciate that.

I do want, in just seconds, to make an observation about this basin. Devils Lake Basin is a closed basin that has experienced severe flooding difficulties. It is not a circumstance where a river runs wild for a month and houses go down the river and you see the problems of that kind of flooding. It is a closed basin where the water comes down from the top of the basin into the bottom of the basin. The people of this Devils Lake region have suffered enormously as a result of the flooding that has occurred. As Senator CONRAD said, it is at a 120-year high with more water expected. The damage has been substantial and will be increased more in the months ahead.

This attempts to address some of these difficulties. It is not the end of our need to address it, but it is nonetheless another step, and I very much appreciate the cooperation of Senator HATFIELD and Senator BYRD and the appropriate subcommittee people we worked with.

Mr. President, I yield the floor, and I ask the amendments be considered en bloc.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CONRAD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, might I just conclude by also thanking Senator MIKULSKI and Senator BOND for the great assistance they provided as well. We contacted them with the problem we were facing, as well as the chairman and the ranking member, and all of these Senators have really pitched in, which we deeply appreciate.

I would also like to thank Senator GORTON, as chairman of the Interior subcommittee, who also was very helpful.

Again, all of our colleagues have really pitched in and recognized an emergency situation.

I yield the floor.

Mr. HATFIELD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I want to affirm the statement made by the Senators from North Dakota regarding the fact this has been worked out to the satisfaction of both sides of the aisle and the subcommittee and the full committee. Again, I reiterate, a similar action was taken on behalf of the people of Washington, Idaho, and Oregon, who faced correlated and similar problems during recent floods as well, so it is not establishing any unique precedent. It is well established.

I commend the Senators from North Dakota for being so quick to recognize the needs of their people and to respond to those needs. It was a pleasure to work with them, to be helpful in this particular instance, as in previous instances—railroads, whatever it is. The Senators from North Dakota have always been very cooperative.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there be no further debate, the question is on agreeing to the two amendments en bloc.

The amendments (Nos. 3468 and 3469) were agreed to en bloc.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. CONRAD. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

APPOINTMENTS BY THE VICE PRESIDENT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will make three appointments on behalf of the Vice President.

The Chair, on behalf of the Vice President, pursuant to 10 U.S.C., 6968 9(a), appoints the following Senators to the Board of Visitors of the U.S. Naval Academy: The Senator from Oregon [Mr. HATFIELD] from the Committee on Appropriations; the Senator from Maryland [Ms. MIKULSKI] from the Committee on Appropriations; the Senator from Arizona [Mr. MCCAIN] from the Committee on Armed Services; and the Senator from Maryland [Mr. SARBANES] at large.

The Chair, on behalf of the Vice President, pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 4355(A), appoints the following Senators to the Board of Visitors of the U.S. Military Academy: The Senator from Mississippi [Mr. COCHRAN] from the Committee on Appropriations; the Senator from Nevada [Mr. REID] from the Committee on Appropriations; the Senator from Texas [Mrs. HUTCHISON] from the Committee on Armed Services; and the Senator from Michigan [Mr. LEVIN] at large.

The Chair, on behalf of the Vice President, pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 9355(a), appoints the following Senators to the Board of Visitors of the U.S. Air Force Academy: The Senator from Montana [Mr. BURNS] from the Committee on Appropriations; the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. HOLLINGS] from the Committee on Appropriations; the Senator from Idaho [Mr. KEMPTHORNE] from the Committee on Armed Services; and the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. EXON] at large.

Mr. HATFIELD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

BALANCED BUDGET DOWNPAYMENT ACT, II

The Senate continued with the consideration of the bill.

AMENDMENTS NOS. 3470 AND 3471 TO AMENDMENT NO. 3466

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I offer two amendments that have been cleared on both sides, technical in character. I will explain.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Daschle amendment will be laid aside. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Oregon [Mr. HATFIELD], for Mr. DOLE, for himself, Mr. HATCH, Mr. GREGG, and Mr. HOLLINGS, proposes an amendment numbered 3470 to amendment No. 3466.

The Senator from Oregon [Mr. HATFIELD], for Mr. HOLLINGS, for himself and Mr. INOUYE, proposes an amendment numbered 3471 to amendment No. 3466.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendments be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendments are as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 3470

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

Sec. 117. The definition of "educational expenses" in Section 200103 of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994, Public Law 103-322 is amended to read as follows:

"educational expenses" means expenses that are directly attributable to—

(A) a course of education leading to the award of the baccalaureate degree; or

(B) a course of graduate study following award of a baccalaureate degree, including the cost of tuition, fees, books, supplies, transportation, room and board and miscellaneous expenses.

AMENDMENT NO. 3471

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

"SEC. 411. Section 235 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1990 and 1991 (Public Law 101-246) is amended by inserting "Tinian," after "Sao Tome,".

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, let me say, first of all, they have no monetary impact. There is no budgetary problem on this matter. It is to clarify, in two instances—let me take them separately. One is on behalf of Senator DOLE, Senator HATCH, Senator GREGG, and Senator HOLLINGS.

This amendment broadens the definition of "educational expenses" covered under the Police Corps Program in the section of the bill dealing with the Commerce appropriations bill.

The second one is a Hollings-Inouye amendment to grant USIA multiyear contract authority for the Tinian Relay Station.

Again, I emphasize, they have been cleared on both sides. They have no budgetary impact. They are technical in character.

I urge the adoption, en bloc, of these amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendments en bloc.

The amendments (Nos. 3470 and 3471) were agreed to.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote, and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. HATFIELD. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. STEVENS). The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

WHITEWATER DEVELOPMENT CORP. AND RELATED MATTERS—MOTION TO PROCEED

CLOTURE MOTION

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I now move to proceed to Senate Resolution 227, the Whitewater legislation, and I send a cloture motion to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The cloture motion having been presented under rule XXII, the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, do hereby move to bring to a close debate on the motion to proceed to S. Res. 227 regarding the Whitewater extension:

Alfonse D'Amato, Trent Lott, C.S. Bond, Fred Thompson, Slade Gorton, Don Nickles, Paul Coverdell, Spencer Abraham, Chuck Grassley, Conrad Burns, Rod Grams, Richard G. Lugar, Mike DeWine, Mark Hatfield, Orrin G. Hatch, and Thad Cochran.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the vote occur on Wednesday, March 13, the time to be determined by the two leaders, and that the mandatory quorum under rule XXII be waived.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. I now withdraw the motion.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there now be a period for the transaction of morning business with Senators permitted to speak for up to 5 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Mr. Thomas, one of his secretaries.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

As in executive session the Presiding Officer laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting one withdrawal and sundry nominations which were referred to the Committee on Armed Services.

REPORT CONCERNING THE CONTINUATION OF NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO IRAN—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT RECEIVED DURING ADJOURNMENT—PM 129

Under the authority of the order of the Senate of January 4, 1995, the Secretary of the Senate, on March 8, 1996, during the adjournment of the Senate, received the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs:

To the Congress of the United States:

Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1622(d)) provides for the automatic termination of a national emergency unless, prior to the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date. In accordance with this provision, I have sent the enclosed notice, stating that the Iran emergency declared on March 15, 1995, pursuant to the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (50 U.S.C. 1701–1706) is to continue in effect beyond March 15, 1996, to the Federal Register for publication. This emergency is separate from that declared on November 14, 1979, in connection with the Iranian hostage crisis and therefore requires separate renewal of emergency authorities.

The factors that led me to declare a national emergency with respect to Iran on March 15, 1995, have not been resolved. The actions and policies of the Government of Iran, including its support for international terrorism, efforts to undermine the Middle East peace process, and its acquisition of weapons of mass destruction and the means to deliver them, continue to threaten the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States. Accordingly, I have determined that it is necessary to maintain in force the broad authorities that are in place by virtue of the March 15, 1995, declaration of emergency.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

THE WHITE HOUSE, March 8, 1996.

REPORT CONCERNING THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO IRAN—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT—PM 130

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs:

To the Congress of the United States:

I hereby report to the Congress on developments concerning the national emergency with respect to Iran that was declared in Executive Order No. 12957 of March 15, 1995, and matters relating to the measures in that order and in Executive Order No. 12959 of May 6, 1995. This report is submitted pursuant to section 204(c) of the International Emergency Economic Powers Act, 50 U.S.C. 1703(c) (IEEPA), and section 505(c) of the International Security and Development Cooperation Act of 1985, 22 U.S.C. 2349aa–9(c). This report discusses only matters concerning the national emergency with respect to Iran that was declared in Executive Order No. 12957 and matters relating to that Executive order and Executive Order No. 12959.

1. On March 15, 1995, I issued Executive Order No. 12957 (60 Fed. Reg. 14615, March 17, 1995) to declare a national emergency with respect to Iran pursuant to IEEPA, and to prohibit the financing, management, or supervision by U.S. persons of the development of Iranian petroleum resources. This action was in response to actions and policies of the Government of Iran, including support for international terrorism, efforts to undermine the Middle East peace process, and the acquisition of weapons of mass destruction and the means to deliver them. A copy of the order was provided to the Congress on March 15, 1995.

Following the imposition of these restrictions with regard to the development of Iranian petroleum resources, Iran continued to engage in activities that represent a threat to the peace and security of all nations, including Iran's continuing support for international terrorism, its support for acts that undermine the Middle East peace process, and its intensified efforts to acquire weapons of mass destruction. On May 6, 1995, I issued Executive Order No. 12959 to further respond to the Iranian threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States.

Executive Order No. 12959 (60 Fed. Reg. 24757, May 9, 1995) (1) prohibits exportation from the United States to Iran or to the Government of Iran of goods, technology, or services; (2) prohibits the reexportation of certain U.S. goods and technology to Iran from third countries; (3) prohibits transactions such as brokering and other dealing by United States persons in goods and services of Iranian origin or owned or controlled by the Government of Iran; (4) prohibits new investments by United States persons in Iran or in property owned or controlled by the Government of Iran; (5) prohibits U.S. companies and other United States persons from approving, facilitating, or financing performance by a foreign subsidiary or other entity owned or controlled by a United States person or reexport, investment, and certain trade transactions that a United States person is prohibited from performing; (6) continues the 1987 prohibition on the importation into the United States of goods and services of Iranian origin; (7) prohibits any transaction by any United States person or within the United States that evades or avoids or attempts to violate any prohibition of the order; and (8) allowed U.S. companies a 30-day period in which to perform trade transactions pursuant to contracts predating the Executive order.

In Executive Order No. 12959, I directed the Secretary of the Treasury to authorize through specific licensing certain transactions, including transactions by United States persons related to the Iran-United States Claims Tribunal in The Hague, established pursuant to the Algiers Accords, and related to other international obligations and United States Government functions, and transactions related to the export of agricultural commodities pursuant to preexisting contracts consistent with section 5712(c) of title 7, United States Code. I also directed the Secretary of the Treasury, in consultation with the Secretary of State, to consider authorizing United States persons through specific licensing to participate in market-based swaps of crude oil from the Caspian Sea area for Iranian crude oil in support of energy projects in Azerbaijan, Kazakhstan, and Turkmenistan.

Executive Order No. 12959 revoked sections 1 and 2 of Executive Order No. 12613 of October 29, 1987, and sections 1 and 2 of Executive Order No. 12957 of March 15, 1995, to the extent they are inconsistent with it. A copy of Executive Order No. 12959 was transmitted to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and President of the Senate by letters dated May 6, 1995.

2. There were no amendments to the Iranian Transactions Regulations, 31 CFR Part 560 (the "ITR") during the reporting period.

3. During the current 6-month period, the Department of the Treasury's Office of Foreign Assets Control (FAC) made numerous decisions with respect to applications for licenses to engage in transactions under the ITR, issuing 54 licensing determinations—both approvals and denials. The majority of denials were in response to requests to extend contract performance beyond the time specified by Executive Order No. 12959 and by FAC general license. Licenses were issued authorizing the continued operation of Iranian diplomatic accounts, powers of attorney, extensions of standby letters of credit, payments for trade transactions pursuant to contracts prior to May 6, 1995, and exportation of certain agricultural products contracted for prior to May 6, 1995. The FAC continues to review under section 560.528 requests for authorization to export and reexport goods, services, and technology to ensure the safety of civil aviation and safe operation of U.S.-origin commercial passenger aircraft in Iran. In light of statutory restrictions applicable to goods and technology involved in these cases, Treasury continues to consult and coordinate with the Departments of State and Commerce on these matters, consistent with section 4 of Executive Order No. 12959.

During the reporting period, FAC administered provisions on services related to maintaining Iranian bank accounts and identified and rejected Iran-related payments not authorized under the ITR. United States banks were notified that they could not process transactions on behalf of accounts held in the name of the Government of Iran or persons in Iran, with the exception of certain transactions related to interest accruals, customary service charges, the exportation of information or informational material, travel-related remittances, donations of articles to relieve human suffering, or lump sum closures of accounts by payment to their owners. United States banks continue to handle certain dollar payment transactions involving Iran between third-country banks that do not involve a direct credit or debit to Iranian accounts. Noncommercial family remittances involving Iran must be routed to or from non-U.S., non-Iranian offshore banks.

The FAC continues to coordinate closely with the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and the California banking authorities concerning the treatment of three Iranian bank agencies—Banks Sepah, Saderat, and Melli. Licenses have been issued to the Iranian bank agencies authorizing them to pay overhead expenses under the supervision of the California and New York banking departments while meeting obligations incurred prior to May 6, 1995. Authorization expired at the end of December, which had enabled them to make payments to U.S. exporters under letters of credit advised prior to June 6, 1995, where the underlying exports were completed in accordance with the Regulations or a specific license issued by FAC. The FAC also had permitted the agencies to offer discounted advance payments on deferred payment letters of credit under the same conditions.

4. The U.S. Customs Service has continued to effect numerous seizures of Iranian-origin merchandise, primarily carpets, for violation of the import prohibitions of the ITR. Various enforcement actions carried over from previous reporting periods are continuing and new reports of violations are being aggressively pursued.

5. The expenses incurred by the Federal Government in the 6-month period from September 15, 1995, through March 14, 1996, that are directly attributable to the exercise powers and authorities conferred by the declaration of a national emergency with respect to Iran are approximately $965,000, most of which represents wage and salary costs for Federal personnel. Personnel costs were largely centered in the Department of the Treasury (particularly in the Office of Foreign Assets Control, the U.S. Customs Service, the Office of the Under Secretary for Enforcement, and the Office of the General Counsel), the Department of State (particularly the Bureau of Economic and Business Affairs, the Bureau of Near Eastern Affairs, the Bureau of Politico-Military Affairs, and the Office of the Legal Adviser), and the Department of Commerce (the Bureau of Export Administration and the General Counsel's Office).

6. The situation reviewed above continues to involve important diplomatic, financial, and legal interests of the United States and its nationals and presents an extraordinary and unusual threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States. The declaration of the national emergency with respect to Iran contained in Executive Order No. 12957 and the comprehensive economic sanctions imposed by Executive Order No. 12959 underscore the United States Government's opposition to the actions and policies of the Government of Iran, particularly its support of international terrorism and its efforts to acquire weapons of mass destruction and the means to deliver them. The Iranian Transactions Regulations issued pursuant to Executive Orders No. 12957 and No. 12959 continue to advance important objectives in promoting the nonproliferation and antiterrorism policies of the United States. I shall exercise the powers at my disposal to deal with these problems and will report periodically to the Congress on significant developments.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

THE WHITE HOUSE, March 11, 1996.

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE RECEIVED DURING ADJOURNMENT

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

A bill to amend the Plant Variety Protection Act to provide plant variety protection to a tuber propagated plant variety if the variety has not been sold or otherwise disposed of in any area outside the United States for more than a period determined by the Secretary of Agriculture and the variety receives plant variety protection in any area outside the United States, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

By Mr. KERRY (for himself and Mr. LAUTENBERG):

S. 1603. A bill to amend the Small Business Act concerning the level of participation by the Small Business Administration in loans guaranteed under the Export Working Captial Program; to the Committee on Small Business.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. KERRY (for himself and Mr. LAUTENBERG):

S. 1603. A bill to amend the Small Business Act concerning the level of participation by the Small Business Administration in loans guaranteed under the Export Working Capital Program; to the Committee on Small Business.

SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION CORRECTIONS LEGISLATION

• Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation intended to correct a problem created last October when Congress passed S. 895, to strengthen and reduce the cost of the Small Business Administration's (SBA) 7(a) Guaranteed Loan Program and the 504 Certified Development Company Program. My bill will restore a level playing field in Federal export financing between small and large exporters and help assure small businesses do not lose export opportunities just because they cannot get the financing they need from banks.

S. 895, developed in response to a growing demand for SBA's 7(a) loan guarantees, expanded the amount of loan guarantee funding available to small businesses by decreasing the share of the guarantee for which the Federal Government is responsible from the then-current 90 percent to a maximum of 80 percent for loans of $100,000 or less, and to a maximum of 75 percent for loans from $100,000 to $750,000. As a subset of the 7(a) program, SBA's Export Working Capital Guarantee Program [EWCP] also had its Government loan guarantee portion adjusted downward. While equalizing the difference between the terms for regular 7(a) loan guarantees and export guarantees, this change penalized small business exporters vis-a-vis their larger counterparts: smaller exporters now receive less favorable financing terms through SBA than big exporters receive through the Export-Import Bank [Ex-Im Bank].

This change comes just 1 year after the SBA and Ex-Im Bank, in response to a directive from the Trade Policy Coordinating Committee [TPCC], had harmonized their export terms to provide a consistent 90 percent loan guarantee rate regardless of the size of the loan. The TPCC endorsed the harmonization to streamline the comparative strengths of Ex-Im Bank and SBA into a single U.S. Government program for the small and medium sized exporter. Through its many local offices, SBA is well positioned to provide assistance to small businesses at the local level. Ex-Im Bank, on the other hand, has only five regional offices and few personnel versed in the needs of small business.

Lenders obviously choose how to allocate their resources based upon the likely return of one transaction versus another. So, while small business working capital requirements tend to be relatively small in dollar amount terms—for example, $25,000 to $500,000—the amount of expenses/overhead devoted to a small transaction is the same as it would be for larger transactions—for example, more than $2 million. In addition, banks will avoid taking foreign lending risks if coverage is reduced. Banking practices are different for domestic lending and foreign lending. Banks will include almost any current domestic receivable in the borrowing base of the customer eligible for financing, but they will not include foreign receivables because they are perceived to be higher risks. SBA's EWCP converts foreign receivables into domestic receivables that can be financed. Finally, a number of exporters with small transactions are not considered bankable because they are new-to-export, having relied on family, friends, second mortgages, and credit cards to start their businesses. SBA helps move them closer to becoming bankable.

The legislation I am introducing will restore parity among small and large exporters in Federal export financing terms, and help assure that no small business loses an export sale just because the financing is not there. Mr. Bennett Schwartz of BayBank and who is also vice president of the Coalition of New England Companies for Trade, a group of more than 100 companies, makes a compelling case for this bill:

> The single greatest obstacle to small business exports is the inability to obtain adequate financing;
>
> The EWCP program was initiated only on October 1, 1994 and it is clear that the 90 percent guarantee provides a critically needed incentive for lenders to make these loans. At a 75/80 percent guarantee this already difficult to obtain financing will become even less attractive to banks and the loans will likely not be made;
>
> Under the harmonization of export finance programs with the Ex-Im Bank, whose Working Capital Guarantee program is not changed, small businesses will be discriminated against. In addition, the SBA underwriting criteria are different than Ex-Im's in that SBA emphasizes transactional based finance over balance sheet lending, precisely the type of financing most difficult to come by for small businesses.
>
> The average exporting deal for small businesses ranges from $30,000-$400,000. The average size of approved SBA EWCP loans has been $300,000.
>
> Many smaller banks without International Departments will participate in an SBA program because they are comfortable with the Agency. The SBA focus on providing advice on structuring a deal so that it meets a bank's criteria is particularly effective in making this type of program work.

The General Accounting Office also supports the principle behind this legislation, arguing there is a clear rationale for treating export guarantees differently than other 7(a) guarantees: banks that make export guarantees have a greater risk and lower profit than banks making other 7(a) loans. ECWP loans are short term and cannot be sold on the secondary market, making them relatively less profitable than conventional 7(a) loans. SBA testified before the House Small Business Committee last September 7 that a 90-percent loan guarantee rate for ECWP loans "will not really affect the Section 7(a) program subsidy rate * * * even if the ECWP doubles in the fiscal year 1996, it will still represent less than 1 percent of the total 7(a) loan portfolio." At the same hearing, a representative for the Bankers' Association for Foreign Trade argued the difference in the two guarantee rates would raise "serious concerns about the future involvement by banks in this area of trade finance."

Since October 1, 1994, the harmonized program has been solely responsible for ensuring 285.3 million dollars' worth of additional United States exports. In fiscal year 1995, SBA approved more than 132 transactions worth $44.3 million as compared to 77 transactions worth $27.4 million in fiscal year 1994. While these numbers clearly demonstrate to me the importance of the loan guarantees to small business exporters, in enacting S. 895 last year, Congress requested SBA to evaluate the impact of the disparity in export loan guarantee rates. SBA surveyed lenders and borrowers throughout the United States, using its field offices, small business associations, and the President's Export Council. Not surprisingly, the results of SBA's Impact Study,

> . . . overwhelmingly illustrate that the reduction in SBA's maximum guarantee percentage has had, and will continue to have, a detrimental effect on SBA's ability to expand access to working capital for small business exporters. Ultimately, this will likely have a negative effect on the ability of small businesses to enter the global marketplace as they continue to be unable to obtain the financing they critically need.

Specifically, the Impact Study found:

> Access to working capital trade finance by small businesses will be severely reduced. Three-quarters of the small businesses interviewed stated that the lower guarantee will have an adverse effect on their ability to obtain export financing.
>
> Many lenders will retreat from making trade finance loans due to decreased risk mitigation. Over half of the banks interviewed stated that they would not have made a loan under the EWCP at the 75/80 percent guarantee rate.

Small banks, in particular, will be less likely to offer export finance to their customers.

The ability of small business to compete in the global marketplace will be negatively affected.

Mr. President, small business exporters in Massachusetts tell me they need this legislation to help them continue to obtain critical financing. I am sure this is also the case for small business exporters across this Nation. At a time when exports are a key component of continued economic growth and the creation of family-wage jobs, it is incumbent upon Congress to do all it can to help rather than hurt America's small business exporters. I am pleased to have Senator LAUTENBERG join me in introducing this bill and urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1603

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Small Business Export Enhancement Act of 1996".

SEC. 2. LEVEL OF PARTICIPATION IN GUARANTEED LOANS UNDER EXPORT WORKING CAPITAL PROGRAM.

Section 7(a)(2) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(a)(2)) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(D) PARTICIPATION UNDER EXPORT WORKING CAPITAL PROGRAM.—Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), in an agreement to participate in a loan on a deferred basis under the Export Working Capital Program established pursuant to paragraph (14)(A), such participation by the Administration shall be equal to the rate specified under this paragraph as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of the Small Business Lending Enhancement Act of 1995.".●

GENERAL PROVISIONS—DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

SEC. 101. In addition to amounts otherwise made available in this title for official reception and representation expenses, a total of not to exceed $45,000 from funds appropriated to the Department of Justice in this title shall be available to the Attorney General for official reception and representation expenses in accordance with distributions, procedures, and regulations established by the Attorney General.

SEC. 102. Subject to section 102(b) of the Department of Justice and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1993, as amended by section 112 of this Act, authorities contained in Public Law 96-132, "The Department of Justice Appropriation Authorization Act, Fiscal Year 1980", shall remain in effect until the termination date of this Act or until the effective date of a Department of Justice Appropriation Authorization Act, whichever is earlier.

SEC. 103. None of the funds appropriated by this title shall be available to pay for an abortion, except where the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term, or in the case of rape: Provided, That should this prohibition be declared unconstitutional by a court of competent jurisdiction, this section shall be null and void.

SEC. 104. None of the funds appropriated under this title shall be used to require any person to perform, or facilitate in any way the performance of, any abortion.

SEC. 105. Nothing in the preceding section shall remove the obligation of the Director of the Bureau of Prisons to provide escort services necessary for a female inmate to receive such service outside the Federal facility: Provided, That nothing in this section in any way diminishes the effect of section 104 intended to address the philosophical beliefs of individual employees of the Bureau of Prisons.

SEC. 106. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, not to exceed $10,000,000 of the funds made available in this Act may be used to establish and publicize a program under which publicly-advertised, extraordinary rewards may be paid, which shall not be subject to spending limitations contained in sections 3059 and 3072 of title 18, United States Code: Provided, That any reward of $100,000 or more, up to a maximum of $2,000,000, may not be made without the personal approval of the President or the Attorney General and such approval may not be delegated.

SEC. 107. Not to exceed 5 percent of any appropriation made available for the current fiscal year for the Department of Justice in this Act, including those derived from the Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund, may be transferred between such appropriations, but no such appropriation, except "salaries and expenses, Community Relations Service" or as otherwise specifically provided, shall be increased by more than 10 percent by any such transfers: Provided, That any transfer pursuant to this section shall be treated as a reprogramming of funds under section 605 of this Act and shall not be available for obligation or expenditure except in compliance with the procedures set forth in that section.

SEC. 108. For fiscal year 1996 and each fiscal year thereafter, amounts in the Federal Prison System's Commissary Fund, Federal Prisons, which are not currently needed for operations, shall be kept on deposit or invested in obligations of, or guaranteed by, the United States and all earnings on such investment shall be deposited in the Commissary Fund.

SEC. 109. (a) Section 524(c)(8)(E) of title 28, United States Code, is amended by deleting "1994" and inserting "1995" in place thereof.

(b) Section 524(c)(9) is amended to read as follows: "(9) Following the completion of procedures for the forfeiture of property pursuant to any law enforced or administered by the Department, the Attorney General is authorized, at his discretion, to warrant clear title to any subsequent purchaser or transferee of such property.".

SEC. 110. Hereafter, notwithstanding any other provision of law—

(1) No transfers may be made from Department of Justice accounts other than those authorized in this Act, or in previous or subsequent appropriations Acts for the Department of Justice, or in part II of title 28 of the United States Code, or in section 10601 of title 42 of the United States Code; and

(2) No appropriation account within the Department of Justice shall have its allocation of funds controlled by other than an apportionment issued by the Office of Management and Budget or an allotment advice issued by the Department of Justice.

SEC. 111. (a) Section 1930(a)(6) of title 28, United States Code, is amended by striking "a plan is confirmed or".

(b) Section 589a(b)(5) of such title is amended by striking ";" and inserting, "until a reorganization plan is confirmed;".

(c) Section 589a(f) of such title is amended—

(1) in paragraph (2) by striking "." and inserting, "until a reorganization plan is confirmed;", and

(2) by inserting after paragraph (2) the following new paragraph:

"(3) 100 percent of the fees collected under section 1930(a)(6) of this title after a reorganization plan is confirmed.".

SEC. 112. Public Law 102-395, section 102 is amended as follows: (1) in subsection (b)(1) strike "years 1993, 1994, and 1995" and insert "year 1996"; (2) in subsection (b)(1)(C) strike "years 1993, 1994, and 1995" and insert "year 1996"; and (3) in subsection (b)(5)(A) strike "years 1993, 1994, and 1995" and insert "year 1996".

SEC. 113. Public Law 101-515 (104 Stat. 2112; 28 U.S.C. 534 note) is amended by inserting "and criminal justice information" after "for the automation of finger-print identification".

SEC. 114. (a) GRANT PROGRAM.—Subtitle A of title II of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 is amended to read as follows:

"Subtitle A—Violent Offender Incarceration and Truth-in-Sentencing Incentive Grants

"SEC. 20101. DEFINITIONS.

"As used in this subtitle—

"(1) the term 'indeterminate sentencing' means a system by which—

"(A) the court may impose a sentence of a range defined by statute; and

"(B) an administrative agency, generally the parole board, or the court, controls release within the statutory range;

"(2) the term 'sentencing guidelines' means a system of sentences which—

"(A) is established for use by a sentencing court in determining the sentence to be imposed in a criminal case; and

"(B) increases certainty in sentencing, thereby providing assurances to victims of the sentence to be served;

"(3) the term 'part 1 violent crime' means murder and nonnegligent manslaughter, forcible rape, robbery, and aggravated assault as reported to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for purposes of the Uniform Crime Reports; and

"(4) the term 'State' means a State of the United States, the District of Columbia, or any commonwealth, territory, or possession of the United States.

"SEC. 20102. AUTHORIZATION OF GRANTS.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—The Attorney General shall provide Violent Offender Incarceration grants under section 20103(a) and Truth-in-Sentencing Incentive grants under section 20103(b) to eligible States—

"(1) to build or expand correctional facilities to increase the bed capacity for the confinement of persons convicted of a part 1 violent crime or adjudicated delinquent for an act which if committed by an adult, would be a part 1 violent crime;

"(2) to build or expand temporary or permanent correctional facilities, including facilities on military bases, prison barges, and boot camps, for the confinement of convicted nonviolent offenders and criminal aliens, for the purpose of freeing suitable existing prison space for the confinement of persons convicted of a part 1 violent crime; and

"(3) to build or expand jails.

"(b) REGIONAL COMPACTS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), States may enter into regional compacts to carry out this subtitle. Such compacts shall be treated as States under this subtitle.

"(2) REQUIREMENT.—To be recognized as a regional compact for eligibility for a grant under section 20103 (a) or (b), each member State must be eligible individually.

"(3) LIMITATION ON RECEIPT OF FUNDS.—No State may receive a grant under this subtitle both individually and as part of a compact.

"(c) APPLICABILITY.—Notwithstanding the eligibility requirements of section 20103, a State that certifies to the Attorney General that, as of the date of enactment of the Department of Justice Appropriations Act, 1996, such State has enacted legislation in reliance on subtitle A of title II of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act, as enacted on September 13, 1994, and would in fact qualify under those provisions, shall be eligible to receive a grant for fiscal year 1996 as though such State qualifies under section 20103 of this subtitle.

"SEC. 20103. GRANT ELIGIBILITY.

"(a) VIOLENT OFFENDER INCARCERATION GRANTS.—To be eligible to receive a grant under this subtitle, a State shall submit an application to the Attorney General that provides assurances that the State has implemented, or will implement, correctional policies and programs, including truth-in-sentencing laws that ensure that violent offenders serve a substantial portion of the sentences imposed, that are designed to provide sufficiently severe punishment for violent offenders, including violent juvenile offenders, and that the prison time served is appropriately related to the determination that the inmate is a violent offender and for a period of time deemed necessary to protect the public.

"(b) TRUTH-IN-SENTENCING INCENTIVES.—

"(1) ELIGIBILITY.—To be eligible to receive an additional grant award under this subsection, a State shall submit an application to the Attorney General that demonstrates that—

"(A) such State has implemented truth-in-sentencing laws that—

"(i) require persons convicted of a part 1 violent crime to serve not less than 85 percent of the sentence imposed (not counting time not actually served, such as administrative or statutory incentives for good behavior); or

"(ii) result in persons convicted of a part 1 violent crime serving on average not less than 85 percent of the sentence imposed (not counting time not actually served, such as administrative or statutory incentives for good behavior);

"(B) such State has truth-in-sentencing laws that have been enacted, but not yet implemented, that require such State, not later than 3 years after such State submits an application to the Attorney General, to provide that persons convicted of a part 1 violent crime serve not less than 85 percent of the sentence imposed (not counting time not actually served, such as administrative or statutory incentives for good behavior);

"(C) in the case of a State that on the date of enactment of the Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996, practices indeterminate sentencing with regard to any part 1 violent crime, persons convicted of a part 1 violent crime in such State on average serve not less than 85 percent of the sentence established under the State's sentencing guidelines (not counting time not actually served, such as administrative or statutory incentives for good behavior); or

"(D) the number of new court commitments to prison for part 1 violent crimes has increased by 10 percent or more over the most recent 3-year period.

"(2) EXCEPTION.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), a State may provide that the Governor of the State may allow for the earlier release of—

"(A) a geriatric prisoner; or

"(B) a prisoner whose medical condition precludes the prisoner from posing a threat to the public, but only after a public hearing in which representatives of the public and the prisoner's victims have had an opportunity to be heard regarding a proposed release.

"SEC. 20104. SPECIAL RULES.

"(a) SHARING OF FUNDS WITH COUNTIES AND OTHER UNITS OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT.—

"(1) RESERVATION.—Each State shall reserve not more than 15 percent of the amount of funds allocated in a fiscal year pursuant to section 20105 for counties and units of local government to construct, develop, expand, modify, or improve jails and other correctional facilities.

"(2) FACTORS FOR DETERMINATION OF AMOUNT.—To determine the amount of funds to be reserved under this subsection, a State shall consider the burden placed on a county or unit of local government that results from the implementation of policies adopted by the State to carry out section 20103.

"(b) ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENT.—To be eligible to receive a grant under section 20103, a State shall provide assurances to the Attorney General that the State has implemented or will implement not later than 18 months after the date of the enactment of this subtitle policies that provide for the recognition of the rights and needs of crime victims.

"(c) FUNDS FOR JUVENILE OFFENDERS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this subtitle, if a State, or unit of local government located in a State that otherwise meets the requirements of section 20103, certifies to the Attorney General that exigent circumstances exist that require the State to expend funds to build or expand facilities to confine juvenile offenders other than juvenile offenders adjudicated delinquent for an act which, if committed by an adult, would be a part 1 violent crime, the State may use funds received under this subtitle to build or expand juvenile correctional facilities or pretrial detention facilities for juvenile offenders.

"(d) PRIVATE FACILITIES.—A State may use funds received under this subtitle for the privatization of facilities to carry out the purposes of section 20102.

"(e) DEFINITION.—In a case in which a State defines a part 1 violent crime differently than the definition provided in the Uniform Crime Reports, the Attorney General shall determine and designate whether the definition by such State is substantially similar to the definition provided in the Uniform Crime Reports.

"SEC. 20105. FORMULA FOR GRANTS.

"In determining the amount of funds that may be granted to each State eligible to receive a grant under section 20103, the Attorney General shall apply the following formula:

"(1) MINIMUM AMOUNT FOR GRANTS UNDER SECTION 20103(a).—Of the amount set aside for grants for section 20103(a), 0.75 percent shall be allocated to each eligible State, except that the United States Virgin Islands, American Samoa, Guam, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands shall each be allocated 0.05 percent.

"(2) MINIMUM AMOUNT FOR GRANTS UNDER SECTION 20103(b).—Of the amount set aside for additional grant awards under section 20103(b)—

"(A) if fewer than 20 States are awarded grants under section 20103(b), 2.5 percent of the amounts paid shall be allocated to each eligible State, except that the United States Virgin Islands, American Samoa, Guam, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands shall each be allocated 0.05 percent; and

"(B) if 20 or more States are awarded grants under section 20103(b), 2.0 percent of the amounts awarded shall be allocated to each eligible State, except that the United States Virgin Islands, American Samoa, Guam, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands shall each be allocated 0.04 percent.

"(3) ALLOCATION OF ADDITIONAL AMOUNTS.—

"(A) ALLOCATION OF REMAINING AMOUNTS UNDER SECTION 20103(a).—The amounts remaining after the application of paragraph (1) shall be allocated to each eligible State in the ratio that the population of such State bears to the population of all States.

"(B) DISTRIBUTION OF REMAINING AMOUNTS UNDER SECTION 20103(b).—The amounts remaining after the application of paragraph (2) shall be allocated to each eligible State in the ratio that the average annual number of part 1 violent crimes reported by such State to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the 3 years preceding the year in which the determination is made bears to the average annual number of part 1 violent crimes reported by all such States to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the 3 years preceding the year in which the determination is made.

"(C) UNAVAILABLE DATA.—If data regarding part 1 violent crimes in any State is unavailable for the 3 years preceding the year in which the determination is made or substantially inaccurate, the Attorney General shall utilize the best available comparable data regarding the number of violent crimes for the previous year for the State for the purposes of allocation of funds under this subtitle.

"(4) REGIONAL COMPACTS.—In determining the funds that States organized as a regional compact may receive, the Attorney General shall first apply the formula in either paragraph (1) or (2) and (3) of this section to each member State of the compact. The States organized as a regional compact may receive the sum of the amounts so determined.

"SEC. 20106. ACCOUNTABILITY.

"(a) FISCAL REQUIREMENTS.—A State that receives funds under this subtitle shall use accounting, audit, and fiscal procedures that conform to guidelines prescribed by the Attorney General, and shall ensure that any funds used to carry out the programs under section 20102(a) shall represent the best value for the State governments at the lowest possible cost and employ the best available technology.

"(b) ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS.—The administrative provisions of sections 801 and 802 of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 shall apply to the Attorney General under this subtitle in the same manner that such provisions apply to the officials listed in such sections.

"SEC. 20107. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—

"(1) AUTHORIZATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this subtitle—

"(A) $997,500,000 for fiscal year 1996;

"(C) $2,527,000,000 for fiscal year 1998;

"(D) $2,660,000,000 for fiscal year 1999; and

"(E) $2,753,100,000 for fiscal year 2000.

"(2) DISTRIBUTION.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to section 20108, of the amount appropriated pursuant to paragraph (1), the Attorney General shall reserve—

"(i) in fiscal year 1996, 50 percent for grants under section 20103(a), and 50 percent for additional incentive awards under section 20103(b);

"(ii) in fiscal year 1997, 30 percent for grants under section 20103(a), and 70 percent for additional incentive awards under section 20103(b);

"(iii) in fiscal year 1998, 20 percent for grants under section 20103(a), and 80 percent for additional incentive awards under section 20103(b);

"(iv) in fiscal year 1999, 15 percent for grants under section 20103(a), and 85 percent for additional incentive awards under section 20103(b); and

"(v) in fiscal year 2000, 10 percent for grants under section 20103(a), and 90 percent for additional incentive awards under section 20103(b);

"(B) DISTRIBUTION OF MINIMUM AMOUNTS.—The Attorney General shall distribute minimum amounts allocated under section 20105 (1) and (2) to an eligible State not later than 30 days after receiving an application that demonstrates that such State qualifies for a Violent Offender Incarceration grant under section 20103(a) or a Truth-in-Sentencing Incentive grant under section 20103(b).

"(b) LIMITATIONS ON FUNDS.—

"(1) USES OF FUNDS.—Except as provided in section 20110, funds made available pursuant to this section shall be used only to carry out the purposes described in section 20102(a).

"(2) NONSUPPLANTING REQUIREMENT.—Funds made available pursuant to this section shall not be used to supplant State funds, but shall be used to increase the amount of funds that would, in the absence of Federal funds, be made available from State sources.

"(3) ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS.—Not more than 3 percent of the funds made available pursuant to this section shall be used for administrative costs.

"(4) CARRYOVER OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Funds appropriated pursuant to this section during any fiscal year shall remain available until expended.

"(5) MATCHING FUNDS.—The Federal share of a grant received under this subtitle may not exceed 90 percent of the costs of a proposal as described in an application approved under this subtitle.

"SEC. 20108. PAYMENTS FOR INCARCERATION ON TRIBAL LANDS.

"(a) RESERVATION OF FUNDS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this subtitle, from amounts appropriated under section 20107 to carry out section 20103, the Attorney General shall reserve, to carry out this section—

"(1) 0.3 percent in each of fiscal years 1996 and 1997; and

"(2) 0.2 percent in each of fiscal years 1998, 1999, and 2000.

"(b) GRANTS TO INDIAN TRIBES.—From the amounts reserved under subsection (a), the Attorney General may make grants to Indian tribes for the purposes of constructing jails on tribal lands for the incarceration of offenders subject to tribal jurisdiction.

"(c) APPLICATIONS.—To be eligible to receive a grant under this section, an Indian tribe shall submit to the Attorney General an application in such form and containing such information as the Attorney General may by regulation require.

"SEC. 20109. PAYMENTS TO ELIGIBLE STATES FOR INCARCERATION OF CRIMINAL ALIENS.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—The Attorney General shall make a payment to each State which is eligible under section 242(j) of the Immigration and Nationality Act and which meets the eligibility requirements of section 20103, in such amount as is determined under section 242(j) and for which payment is not made to such State for such fiscal year under such section.

"(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this subtitle, there are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section from amounts authorized under section 20107, an amount which when added to amounts appropriated to carry out section 242(j) of the Immigration and Nationality Act for fiscal year 1996 equals $500,000,000 and for each of the fiscal years 1997 through 2000 does not exceed $650,000,000.

"(c) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than May 15, 1999, the Attorney General shall submit a report to the Congress which contains the recommendation of the Attorney General concerning the extension of the program under this section.

"SEC. 20110. SUPPORT OF FEDERAL PRISONERS IN NON-FEDERAL INSTITUTIONS.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—The Attorney General may make payments to States and units of local government for the purposes authorized in section 4013 of title 18, United States Code.

"(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this subtitle, there are authorized to be appropriated from amounts authorized under section 20107 for each of fiscal years 1996 through 2000 such sums as may be necessary to carry out this section.

"SEC. 20111. REPORT BY THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.

"Beginning on July 1, 1996, and each July 1 thereafter, the Attorney General shall report to the Congress on the implementation of this subtitle, including a report on the eligibility of the States under section 20103, and the distribution and use of funds under this subtitle.".

(b) PREFERENCE IN PAYMENTS.—Section 242(j)(4) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1252(j)(4)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(C) In carrying out paragraph (1)(A), the Attorney General shall give preference in making payments to States and political subdivisions of States which are ineligible for payments under section 20109 of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994.".

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) OMNIBUS CRIME CONTROL AND SAFE STREETS ACT OF 1968.—

(A) PART V.—Part V of title I of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 is repealed.

(B) FUNDING.—

(i) Section 1001(a) of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 is amended by striking paragraph (20).

(ii) Notwithstanding the provisions of subparagraph (A), any funds that remain available to an applicant under paragraph (20) of title I of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 shall be used in accordance with part V of such Act as if such Act was in effect on the day preceding the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) VIOLENT CRIME CONTROL AND LAW ENFORCEMENT ACT OF 1994.—

(A) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 is amended by striking the matter relating to title V.

(B) COMPLIANCE.—Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (1), any funds that remain available to an applicant under title V of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 shall be used in accordance with such subtitle as if such subtitle was in effect on the day preceding the date of enactment of this Act.

(C) TRUTH-IN-SENTENCING.—The table of contents of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 is amended by striking the matter relating to subtitle A of title II and inserting the following:

GENERAL PROVISIONS—DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

SEC. 201. During the current fiscal year, applicable appropriations and funds made available to the Department of Commerce by this Act shall be available for the activities specified in the Act of October 26, 1949 (15 U.S.C. 1514), to the extent and in the manner prescribed by the Act, and, notwithstanding 31 U.S.C. 3324, may be used for advanced payments not otherwise authorized only upon the certification of officials designated by the Secretary that such payments are in the public interest.

SEC. 202. During the current fiscal year, appropriations made available to the Department of Commerce by this Act for salaries and expenses shall be available for hire of passenger motor vehicles as authorized by 31 U.S.C. 1343 and 1344; services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109; and uniforms or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902).

SEC. 203. None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to support the hurricane reconnaissance aircraft and activities that are under the control of the United States Air Force or the United States Air Force Reserve.

SEC. 204. None of the funds provided in this or any previous Act, or hereinafter made available to the Department of Commerce shall be available to reimburse the Unemployment Trust Fund or any other fund or account of the Treasury to pay for any expenses paid before October 1, 1992, as authorized by section 8501 of title 5, United States Code, for services performed after April 20, 1990, by individuals appointed to temporary positions within the Bureau of the Census for purposes relating to the 1990 decennial census of population.

SEC. 205. Not to exceed 5 percent of any appropriation made available for the current fiscal year for the Department of Commerce in this Act may be transferred between such appropriations, but no such appropriation shall be increased by more than 10 percent by any such transfers: Provided, That any transfer pursuant to this section shall be treated as a reprogramming of funds under section 605 of this Act and shall not be available for obligation or expenditure except in compliance with the procedures set forth in that section.

SEC. 206. (a) Should legislation be enacted to dismantle or reorganize the Department of Commerce, the Secretary of Commerce, no later than 90 days thereafter, shall submit to the Committees on Appropriations of the House and the Senate a plan for transferring funds provided in this Act to the appropriate successor organizations: Provided, That the plan shall include a proposal for transferring or rescinding funds appropriated herein for agencies or programs terminated under such legislation: Provided further, That such plan shall be transmitted in accordance with section 605 of this Act.

(b) The Secretary of Commerce or the appropriate head of any successor organization(s) may use any available funds to carry out legislation dismantling or reorganizing the Department of Commerce to cover the costs of actions relating to the abolishment, reorganization or transfer of functions and any related personnel action, including voluntary separation incentives if authorized by such legislation: Provided, That the authority to transfer funds between appropriations accounts that may be necessary to carry out this section is provided in addition to authorities included under section 205 of this Act: Provided further, That use of funds to carry out this section shall be treated as a reprogramming of funds under section 605 of this Act and shall not be available for obligation or expenditure except in compliance with the procedures set forth in that section.

SEC. 207. None of the funds appropriated under this Act or any other law shall be used to implement subsections (a), (b), (c), (e), (g), or (i) of section 4 of the Endangered Species Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1533), until such time as legislation reauthorizing the Act is enacted or until the end of fiscal year 1996, whichever is earlier, except that monies appropriated under this Act may be used to delist or reclassify species pursuant to subsections 4(a)(2)(B), 4(c)(2)(B)(i), and 4(c)(2)(B)(ii) of the Act.

SEC. 208. Notwithstanding any other provision of law (including any regulation and including the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965), the transfer of title to the Rutland City Industrial Complex to Hilinex, Vermont (as related to Economic Development Administration Project Number 01-11-01742) shall not require compensation to the Federal Government for the fair share of the Federal Government of that real property.

SEC. 209. (a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Commerce, acting through the Assistant Secretary for Economic Development of the Department of Commerce, shall—

(1) not later than January 1, 1996, commence the demolition of the structures on, and the cleanup and environmental remediation on, the parcel of land described in subsection (b);

(2) not later than March 31, 1996, complete the demolition, cleanup, and environmental remediation under paragraph (1); and

(3) not later than April 1, 1996, convey the parcel of land described in subsection (b), in accordance with the requirements of section 120(h) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9620(h)), to the Tuscaloosa County Industrial Development Authority, on receipt of payment of the fair market value for the parcel by the Authority, as agreed on by the Secretary and the Authority.

(b) LAND PARCEL.—The parcel of land referred to in subsection (a) is the parcel of land consisting of approximately 41 acres in Holt, Alabama (in Tuscaloosa County), that is generally known as the "Central Foundry Property", as depicted on a map, and as described in a legal description, that the Secretary, acting through the Assistant Secretary for Economic Development, determines to be satisfactory.

SEC. 210. Any costs incurred by a Department or agency funded under this title resulting from personnel actions taken in response to funding reductions included in this title shall be absorbed within the total budgetary resources available to such Department or agency: Provided, That the authority to transfer funds between appropriations accounts as may be necessary to carry out this provision is provided in addition to authorities included elsewhere in this Act: Provided further, That use of funds to carry out this section shall be treated as a reprogramming of funds under section 605 of this Act and shall not be available for obligation or expenditure except in compliance with the procedures set forth in that section.

This title may be cited as the "Department of Commerce and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996".

TITLE III—THE JUDICIARY

SEC. 404. (a) No later than 90 days after enactment of legislation consolidating, reorganizing or downsizing the functions of the Department of State, the United States Information Agency, and the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, the Secretary of State, the Director of the United States Information Agency and the Director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency shall submit to the Committees on Appropriations of the House and the Senate a proposal for transferring or rescinding funds appropriated herein for functions that are consolidated, reorganized or downsized under such legislation: Provided, That such plan shall be transmitted in accordance with section 605 of this Act.

(b) The Secretary of State, the Director of the United States Information Agency, and the Director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, as appropriate, may use any available funds to cover the costs of actions to consolidate, reorganize or downsize the functions under their authority required by such legislation, and of any related personnel action, including voluntary separation incentives if authorized by such legislation: Provided, That the authority to transfer funds between appropriations accounts that may be necessary to carry out this section is provided in addition to authorities included under section 402 of this Act: Provided further, That use of funds to carry out this section shall be treated as a reprogramming of funds under section 605 of this Act and shall not be available for obligation or expenditure except in compliance with the procedures set forth in that section.

SEC. 405. Funds appropriated by this Act for the United States Information Agency, the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, and the Department of State may be obligated and expended notwithstanding section 701 of the United States Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948 and section 313 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995, section 53 of the Arms Control and Disarmament Act, and section 15 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956.

SEC. 406. Section 36(a)(1) of the State Department Authorities Act of 1956, as amended (22 U.S.C. 2708), is amended to delete "may pay a reward" and insert in lieu thereof "shall establish and publicize a program under which rewards may be paid".

SEC. 407. Section 8 of the Eisenhower Exchange Fellowship Act of 1990 is amended in the last sentence by striking "fiscal year 1995" and inserting "fiscal year 1999".

SEC. 408. Sections 6(a) and 6(b) of Public Law 101–454 are repealed. In addition, notwithstanding any other provision of law, Eisenhower Exchange Fellowships, Incorporated, may use one-third of any earned but unused trust income from the period 1992 through 1995 for Fellowship purposes in each of fiscal years 1996–1998.

SEC. 409. It is the sense of the Senate that none of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available pursuant to this Act should be used for the deployment of combat-equipped forces of the Armed Forces of the United States for any ground operations in Bosnia and Herzegovina unless—

(1) Congress approves in advance the deployment of such forces of the Armed Forces; or

(2) the temporary deployment of such forces of the Armed Forces of the United States into Bosnia and Herzegovina is necessary to evacuate United Nations peacekeeping forces from a situation of imminent danger, to undertake emergency air rescue operations, or to provide for the airborne delivery of humanitarian supplies, and the President reports as soon as practicable to Congress after the initiation of the temporary deployment, but in no case later than 48 hours after the initiation of the deployment.

SEC. 410. Any costs incurred by a Department or agency funded under this title resulting from personnel actions taken in response to funding reductions included in this title shall be absorbed within the total budgetary resources available to such Department or agency: Provided, That the authority to transfer funds between appropriations accounts as may be necessary to carry out this provision is provided in addition to authorities included elsewhere in this Act: Provided further, That use of funds to carry out this section shall be treated as a reprogramming of funds under section 605 of this Act and shall not be available for obligation or expenditure except in compliance with the procedures set forth in that section.

This title may be cited as the "Department of State and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996".

TITLE V—RELATED AGENCIES

LEGAL SERVICES CORPORATION

PAYMENT TO THE LEGAL SERVICES CORPORATION

For payment to the Legal Services Corporation to carry out the purposes of the Legal Services Corporation Act of 1974, as amended, $300,000,000, of which $291,000,000 is for basic field programs and required independent audits in accordance with section 509 of this Act; $1,500,000 is for the Office of the Inspector General, of which such amounts as may be necessary may be used to conduct additional audits of recipients in accordance with section 509 of this Act; and $7,500,000 is for management and administration: Provided, That $198,750,000 of the total amount provided under this heading for basic field programs shall not be available except for the competitive award of grants and contracts under section 503 of this Act.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS—LEGAL SERVICES CORPORATION

SEC. 501. (a) Funds appropriated under this Act to the Legal Services Corporation for basic field programs shall be distributed as follows:

(1) The Corporation shall define geographic areas and make the funds available for each geographic area on a per capita basis relative to the number of individuals in poverty determined by the Bureau of the Census to be within the geographic area, except as provided in paragraph (2)(B). Funds for such a geographic area may be distributed by the Corporation to 1 or more persons or entities eligible for funding under section 1006(a)(1)(A) of the Legal Services Corporation Act (42 U.S.C. 2996e(a)(1)(A)), subject to sections 502 and 504.

(2) Funds for grants from the Corporation, and contracts entered into by the Corporation for basic field programs, shall be allocated so as to provide—

(A) except as provided in subparagraph (B), an equal figure per individual in poverty for all geographic areas, as determined on the basis of the most recent decennial census of population conducted pursuant to section 141 of title 13, United States Code (or, in the case of the Republic of Palau, the Federated States of Micronesia, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, Alaska, Hawaii, and the United States Virgin Islands, on the basis of the adjusted population counts historically used as the basis for such determinations); and

(B) an additional amount for Native American communities that received assistance under the Legal Services Corporation Act for fiscal year 1995, so that the proportion of the funds appropriated to the Legal Services Corporation for basic field programs for fiscal year 1996 that is received by the Native American communities shall be not less than the proportion of such funds appropriated for fiscal year 1995 that was received by the Native American communities.

(b) As used in this section:

(1) The term "individual in poverty" means an individual who is a member of a family (of 1 or more members) with an income at or below the poverty line.

(2) The term "poverty line" means the poverty line (as defined by the Office of Management and Budget, and revised annually in accordance with section 673(2) of the Community Services Block Grant Act (42 U.S.C. 9902(2)) applicable to a family of the size involved.

SEC. 502. None of the funds appropriated in this Act to the Legal Services Corporation shall be used by the Corporation to make a grant, or enter into a contract, for the provision of legal assistance unless the Corporation ensures that the person or entity receiving funding to provide such legal assistance is—

(1) a private attorney admitted to practice in a State or the District of Columbia;

(2) a qualified nonprofit organization, chartered under the laws of a State or the District of Columbia, that—

(A) furnishes legal assistance to eligible clients; and

(B) is governed by a board of directors or other governing body, the majority of which is comprised of attorneys who—

(i) are admitted to practice in a State or the District of Columbia; and

(ii) are appointed to terms of office on such board or body by the governing body of a State, county, or municipal bar association, the membership of which represents a majority of the attorneys practicing law in the locality in which the organization is to provide legal assistance;

(3) a State or local government (without regard to section 1006(a)(1)(A)(ii) of the Legal Services Corporation Act (42 U.S.C. 2996e(a)(1)(A)(ii)); or

(4) a substate regional planning or coordination agency that serves a substate area and whose governing board is controlled by locally elected officials.

SEC. 503. (a)(1) Not later than April 1, 1996, the Legal Services Corporation shall implement a system of competitive awards of grants and contracts for all basic field programs, which shall apply to all such grants and contracts awarded by the Corporation after March 31, 1996, from funds appropriated in this Act.

(2) Any grant or contract awarded before April 1, 1996, by the Legal Services Corporation to a basic field program for 1996—

(A) shall not be for an amount greater than the amount required for the period ending March 31, 1996;

(B) shall terminate at the end of such period; and

(C) shall not be renewable except in accordance with the system implemented under paragraph (1).

(3) The amount of grants and contracts awarded before April 1, 1996, by the Legal Services Corporation for basic field programs for 1996 in any geographic area described in section 501 shall not exceed an amount equal to 3/12 of the total amount to be distributed for such programs for 1996 in such area.

(b) Not later than 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Legal Services Corporation shall promulgate regulations to implement a competitive selection process for the recipients of such grants and contracts.

(c) Such regulations shall specify selection criteria for the recipients, which shall include—

(1) a demonstration of a full understanding of the basic legal needs of the eligible clients to be served and a demonstration of the capability of serving the needs;

(2) the quality, feasibility, and cost effectiveness of a plan submitted by an applicant for the delivery of legal assistance to the eligible clients to be served; and

(3) the experience of the Legal Services Corporation with the applicant, if the applicant has previously received financial assistance from the Corporation, including the record of the applicant of past compliance with Corporation policies, practices, and restrictions.

(d) Such regulations shall ensure that timely notice regarding an opportunity to submit an application for such an award is published in periodicals of local and State bar associations and in at least 1 daily newspaper of general circulation in the area to be served by the person or entity receiving the award.

(e) No person or entity that was previously awarded a grant or contract by the Legal Services Corporation for the provision of legal assistance may be given any preference in the competitive selection process.

(f) For the purposes of the funding provided in this Act, rights under sections 1007(a)(9) and 1011 of the Legal Services Corporation Act (42 U.S.C. 2996f(a)(9) and 42 U.S.C. 2996j) shall not apply.

SEC. 504. (a) None of the funds appropriated in this Act to the Legal Services Corporation may be used to provide financial assistance to any person or entity (which may be referred to in this section as a "recipient")—

(1) that makes available any funds, personnel, or equipment for use in advocating or opposing any plan or proposal, or represents any party or participates in any other way in litigation, that is intended to or has the effect of altering, revising, or reapportioning a legislative, judicial, or elective district at any level of government, including influencing the timing or manner of the taking of a census;

(2) that attempts to influence the issuance, amendment, or revocation of any executive order, regulation, or other statement of general applicability and future effect by any Federal, State, or local agency;

(3) that attempts to influence any part of any adjudicatory proceeding of any Federal, State, or local agency if such part of the proceeding is designed for the formulation or modification of any agency policy of general applicability and future effect;

(4) that attempts to influence the passage or defeat of any legislation, constitutional amendment, referendum, initiative, or any similar procedure of the Congress or a State or local legislative body;

(5) that attempts to influence the conduct of oversight proceedings of the Corporation or any person or entity receiving financial assistance provided by the Corporation;

(6) that pays for any personal service, advertisement, telegram, telephone communication, letter, printed or written matter, administrative expense, or related expense, associated with an activity prohibited in this section;

(7) that initiates or participates in a class action suit;

(8) that files a complaint or otherwise initiates or participates in litigation against a defendant, or engages in a precomplaint settlement negotiation with a prospective defendant, unless—

(A) each plaintiff has been specifically identified, by name, in any complaint filed for purposes of such litigation or prior to the precomplaint settlement negotiation; and

(B) a statement or statements of facts written in English and, if necessary, in a language that the plaintiffs understand, that enumerate the particular facts known to the plaintiffs on which the complaint is based, have been signed by the plaintiffs, are kept on file by the recipient, and are made available to any Federal department or agency that is auditing or monitoring the activities of the Corporation or of the recipient, and to any auditor or monitor receiving Federal funds to conduct such auditing or monitoring, including any auditor or monitor of the Corporation:

Provided, That upon establishment of reasonable cause that an injunction is necessary to prevent probable, serious harm to such potential plaintiff, a court of competent jurisdiction may enjoin the disclosure of the identity of any potential plaintiff pending the outcome of such litigation or negotiations after notice and an opportunity for a hearing is provided to potential parties to the litigation or the negotiations: Provided further, That other parties to the litigation or negotiation shall have access to the statement of facts referred to in subparagraph (B) only through the discovery process after litigation has begun;

(9) unless—

(A) prior to the provision of financial assistance—

(i) if the person or entity is a nonprofit organization, the governing board of the person or entity has set specific priorities in writing, pursuant to section 1007(a)(2)(C)(i) of the Legal Services Corporation Act (42 U.S.C. 2996f(a)(2)(C)(i)), of the types of matters and cases to which the staff of the nonprofit organization shall devote time and resources; and

(ii) the staff of such person or entity has signed a written agreement not to undertake cases or matters other than in accordance with the specific priorities set by such governing board, except in emergency situations defined by such board and in accordance with the written procedures of such board for such situations; and

(B) the staff of such person or entity provides to the governing board on a quarterly basis, and to the Corporation on an annual basis, information on all cases or matters undertaken other than cases or matters undertaken in accordance with such priorities;

(10) unless—

(A) prior to receiving the financial assistance, such person or entity agrees to maintain records of time spent on each case or matter with respect to which the person or entity is engaged;

(B) any funds, including Interest on Lawyers Trust Account funds, received from a source other than the Corporation by the person or entity, and disbursements of such funds, are accounted for and reported as receipts and disbursements, respectively, separate and distinct from Corporation funds; and

(C) the person or entity agrees (notwithstanding section 1006(b)(3) of the Legal Services Corporation Act (42 U.S.C. 2996e(b)(3)) to make the records described in this paragraph available to any Federal department or agency that is auditing or monitoring the activities of the Corporation or of the recipient, and to any independent auditor or monitor receiving Federal funds-to conduct such auditing or monitoring, including any auditor or monitor of the Corporation;

(11) that provides legal assistance for or on behalf of any alien, unless the alien is present in the United States and is—

(A) an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence as defined in section 101(a)(20) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(20));

(B) an alien who—

(i) is married to a United States citizen or is a parent or an unmarried child under the age of 21 years of such a citizen; and

(ii) has filed an application to adjust the status of the alien to the status of a lawful permanent resident under the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101 et seq.), which application has not been rejected;

(C) an alien who is lawfully present in the United States pursuant to an admission under section 207 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1157) (relating to refugee admission) or who has been granted asylum by the Attorney General under such Act;

(D) an alien who is lawfully present in the United States as a result of withholding of deportation by the Attorney General pursuant to section 243(h) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1253(h));

(E) an alien to whom section 305 of the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (8 U.S.C. 1101 note) applies, but only to the extent that the legal assistance provided is the legal assistance described in such section; or

(F) an alien who is lawfully present in the United States as a result of being granted conditional entry to the United States before April 1, 1980, pursuant to section 203(a)(7) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1153(a)(7)), as in effect on March 31, 1980, because of persecution or fear of persecution on account of race, religion, or political calamity;

(12) that supports or conducts a training program for the purpose of advocating a particular public policy or encouraging a political activity, a labor or antilabor activity, a boycott, picketing, a strike, or a demonstration, including the dissemination of information about such a policy or activity, except that this paragraph shall not be construed to prohibit the provision of training to an attorney or a paralegal to prepare the attorney or paralegal to provide—

(A) adequate legal assistance to eligible clients; or

(B) advice to any eligible client as to the legal rights of the client;

(13) that claims (or whose employee claims), or collects and retains, attorneys' fees pursuant to any Federal or State law permitting or requiring the awarding of such fees;

(14) that participates in any litigation with respect to abortion;

(15) that participates in any litigation on behalf of a person incarcerated in a Federal, State, or local prison;

(16) that initiates legal representation or participates in any other way, in litigation, lobbying, or rulemaking, involving an effort to reform a Federal or State welfare system, except that this paragraph shall not be construed to preclude a recipient from representing an individual eligible client who is seeking specific relief from a welfare agency if such relief does not involve an effort to amend or otherwise challenge existing law in effect on the date of the initiation of the representation;

(17) that defends a person in a proceeding to evict the person from a public housing project if—

(A) the person has been charged with the illegal sale or distribution of a controlled substance; and

(B) the eviction proceeding is brought by a public housing agency because the illegal drug activity of the person threatens the health or safety of another tenant residing in the public housing project or employee of the public housing agency;

(18) unless such person or entity agrees that the person or entity, and the employees of the person or entity, will not accept employment resulting from in-person unsolicited advice to a nonattorney that such nonattorney should obtain counsel or take legal action, and will not refer such nonattorney to another person or entity or an employee of the person or entity, that is receiving financial assistance provided by the Corporation; or

(19) unless such person or entity enters into a contractual agreement to be subject to all provisions of Federal law relating to the proper use of Federal funds, the violation of which shall render any grant or contractual agreement to provide funding null and void, and, for such purposes, the Corporation shall be considered to be a Federal agency and all funds provided by the Corporation shall be considered to be Federal funds provided by grant or contract.

(b) Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit a recipient from using funds from a source other than the Legal Services Corporation for the purpose of contacting, communicating with, or responding to a request from, a State or local government agency, a State or local legislative body or committee, or a member thereof, regarding funding for the recipient, including a pending or proposed legislative or agency proposal to fund such recipient.

(c) Not later than 30 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Legal Services Corporation shall promulgate a suggested list of priorities that boards of directors may use in setting priorities under subsection (a)(9).

(d)(1) The Legal Services Corporation shall not accept any non-Federal funds, and no recipient shall accept funds from any source other than the Corporation, unless the Corporation or the recipient, as the case may be, notifies in writing the source of the funds that the funds may not be expended for any purpose prohibited by the Legal Services Corporation Act or this title.

(2) Paragraph (1) shall not prevent a recipient from—

(A) receiving Indian tribal funds (including funds from private nonprofit organizations for the benefit of Indians or Indian tribes) and expending the tribal funds in accordance with the specific purposes for which the tribal funds are provided; or

(B) using funds received from a source other than the Legal Services Corporation to provide legal assistance to a covered individual if such funds are used for the specific purposes for which such funds were received, except that such funds may not be expended by recipients for any purpose prohibited by this Act or by the Legal Services Corporation Act.

(e) As used in this section:

(1) The term "controlled substance" has the meaning given the term in section 102 of the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. 802).

(2) The term "covered individual" means any person who—

(A) except as provided in subparagraph (B), meets the requirements of this Act and the Legal Services Corporation Act relating to eligibility for legal assistance; and

(B) may or may not be financially unable to afford legal assistance.

(3) The term "public housing project" has the meaning as used within, and the term "public housing agency" has the meaning given the term, in section 3 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437a).

SEC. 505. None of the funds appropriated in this Act to the Legal Services Corporation or provided by the Corporation to any entity or person may be used to pay membership dues to any private or nonprofit organization.

SEC. 506. None of the funds appropriated in this Act to the Legal Services Corporation may be used by any person or entity receiving financial assistance from the Corporation to file or pursue a lawsuit against the Corporation.

SEC. 507. None of the funds appropriated in this Act to the Legal Services Corporation may be used for any purpose prohibited or contrary to any of the provisions of authorization legislation for fiscal year 1996 for the Legal Services Corporation that is enacted into law. Upon the enactment of such Legal Services Corporation reauthorization legislation, funding provided in this Act shall from that date be subject to the provisions of that legislation and any provisions in this Act that are inconsistent with that legislation shall no longer have effect.

SEC. 508. (a) The requirements of section 504 shall apply to the activities of a recipient described in section 504, or an employee of such a recipient, during the provision of legal assistance for a case or matter, if the recipient or employee begins to provide the legal assistance on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

(b) If the recipient or employee began to provide legal assistance for the case or matter prior to the date of enactment of this Act—

(1) each of the requirements of section 504 (other than paragraphs (7), (11), and (15) of subsection (a) of such section) shall, beginning on the date of enactment of this Act, apply to the activities of the recipient or employee during the provision of legal assistance for the case or matter; and

(2) the requirements of paragraphs (7), (11), and (15) of section 504(a) shall apply—

(A) beginning on the date of enactment of this Act, to the activities of the recipient or employee during the provision of legal assistance for any additional related claim for which the recipient or employee begins to provide legal assistance on or after such date; and

(B) beginning July 1, 1996, to all other activities of the recipient or employee during the provision of legal assistance for the case or matter.

(c) The Legal Services Corporation shall, every 60 days, submit to the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and House of Representatives a report setting forth the status of cases and matters referred to in subsection (b)(2).

SEC. 509. (a) An audit of each person or entity receiving financial assistance from the Legal Services Corporation under this Act (referred to in this section as a "recipient") shall be conducted in accordance with generally accepted government auditing standards and guidance established by the Office of the Inspector General and shall report whether—

(1) the financial statements of the recipient present fairly its financial position and the results of its financial operations in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles;

(2) the recipient has internal control systems to provide reasonable assurance that it is managing funds, regardless of source, in compliance with Federal laws and regulations; and

(3) the recipient has complied with Federal laws and regulations applicable to funds received, regardless of source.

(b) In carrying out the requirements of subsection (a)(3), the auditor shall select and test a representative number of transactions and report all instances of noncompliance to the recipient. The recipient shall report any noncompliance found by the auditor during the audit under this section within 5 calendar days to the Office of the Inspector General. If the recipient fails to report the noncompliance, the auditor shall report the noncompliance directly to the Office of the Inspector General within 5 calendar days of the recipient's failure to report.

(c) The audits required under this section shall be provided for by the recipients and performed by independent public accountants. The cost of such audits shall be shared on a pro rata basis among all of the recipient's funding providers and the appropriate share shall be an allowable charge to the Federal funds provided by the Legal Services Corporation. No audit costs may be charged to the Federal funds when the audit required by this section has not been made in accordance with the guidance promulgated by the Office of the Inspector General.

If the recipient fails to have an acceptable audit in accordance with the guidance promulgated by the Office of the Inspector General, the following sanctions shall be available to the Corporation as recommended by the Office of the Inspector General:

(1) the withholding of a percentage of the recipient's funding until the audit is completed satisfactorily.

(2) the suspension of recipient's funding until an acceptable audit is completed.

(d) The Office of the Inspector General may remove, suspend, or bar an independent public accountant, upon a showing of good cause, from performing audit services required by this section. The Office of the Inspector General shall develop and issue rules of practice to implement this paragraph.

(e) Any independent public accountant performing an audit under this section who subsequently ceases to be the accountant for the recipient shall promptly notify the Office of the Inspector General pursuant to such rules as the Office of the Inspector General shall prescribe.

(f) Audits conducted in accordance with this section shall be in lieu of the financial audits otherwise required by section 1009(c) of the Legal Services Corporation Act (42 U.S.C. 2996h(c)).

(g) The Office of the Inspector General is authorized to conduct on-site monitoring, audits, and inspections in accordance with Federal standards.

(h) Notwithstanding section 1006(b)(3) of the Legal Services Corporation Act (42 U.S.C. 2996e(b)(3)), financial records, time records, retainer agreements, client trust fund and eligibility records, and client names, for each recipient shall be made available to any auditor or monitor of the recipient, including any Federal department or agency that is auditing or monitoring the activities of the Corporation or of the recipient, and any independent auditor or monitor receiving Federal funds to conduct such auditing or monitoring, including any auditor or monitor of the Corporation, except for reports or records subject to the attorney-client privilege.

(i) The Legal Services Corporation shall not disclose any name or document referred to in subsection (h), except to—

(1) a Federal, State, or local law enforcement official; or

(2) an official of an appropriate bar association for the purpose of enabling the official to conduct an investigation of a rule of professional conduct.

(j) The recipient management shall be responsible for expeditiously resolving all reported audit reportable conditions, findings, and recommendations, including those of sub-recipients.

(k) The Legal Services Corporation shall—

(1) Follow up on significant reportable conditions, findings, and recommendations found by the independent public accountants and reported to Corporation management by the Office of the Inspector General to ensure that instances of deficiencies and noncompliance are resolved in a timely manner, and

(2) Develop procedures to ensure effective follow-up that meet at a minimum the requirements of Office of Management and Budget Circular Number A-50.

(l) The requirements of this section shall apply to a recipient for its first fiscal year beginning on or after January 1, 1996.

TITLE VI—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 601. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes not authorized by the Congress.

SEC. 602. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 603. The expenditure of any appropriation under this Act for any consulting service through procurement contract, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 3109, shall be limited to those contracts where such expenditures are a matter of public record and available for public inspection, except where otherwise provided under existing law, or under existing Executive order issued pursuant to existing law.

SEC. 604. If any provision of this Act or the application of such provision to any person or circumstances shall be held invalid, the remainder of the Act and the application of each provision to persons or circumstances other than those as to which it is held invalid shall not be affected thereby.

SEC. 605 (a) None of the funds provided under this Act, or provided under previous Appropriations Acts to the agencies funded by this Act that remain available for obligation or expenditure in fiscal year 1996, or provided from any accounts in the Treasury of the United States derived by the collection of fees available to the agencies funded by this Act, shall be available for obligation or expenditure through a reprogramming of funds which (1) creates new programs; (2) eliminates a program, project, or activity; (3) increases funds or personnel by any means for any project or activity for which funds have been denied or restricted; (4) relocates an office or employees; (5) reorganizes offices, programs, or activities; or (6) contracts out or privatizes any functions or activities presently performed by Federal employees; unless the Appropriations Committees of both Houses of Congress are notified fifteen days in advance of such reprogramming of funds.

(b) None of the funds provided under this Act, or provided under previous Appropriations Acts to the agencies funded by this Act that remain available for obligation or expenditure in fiscal year 1996, or provided from any accounts in the Treasury of the United States derived by the collection of fees available to the agencies funded by this Act, shall be available for obligation or expenditure for activities, programs, or projects through a reprogramming of funds in excess of $500,000 or 10 percent, whichever is less, that (1) augments existing programs, projects, or activities; (2) reduces by 10 percent funding for any existing program, project, or activity, or numbers of personnel by 10 percent as approved by Congress; or (3) results from any general savings from a reduction in personnel which would result in a change in existing programs, activities, or projects as approved by Congress; unless the Appropriations Committees of both Houses of Congress are notified fifteen days in advance of such reprogramming of funds.

SEC. 606. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for the construction, repair (other than emergency repair), overhaul, conversion, or modernization of vessels for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration in shipyards located outside of the United States.

SEC. 607. (a) PURCHASE OF AMERICAN-MADE EQUIPMENT AND PRODUCTS.—It is the sense of the Congress that, to the greatest extent practicable, all equipment and products purchased with funds made available in this Act should be American-made.

(b) NOTICE REQUIREMENT.—In providing financial assistance to, or entering into any contract with, any entity using funds made available in this Act, the head of each Federal agency, to the greatest extent practicable, shall provide to such entity a notice describing the statement made in subsection (a) by the Congress.

SEC. 608. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to implement, administer, or enforce any guidelines of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission covering harassment based on religion, when it is made known to the Federal entity or official to which such funds are made available that such guidelines do not differ in any respect from the proposed guidelines published by the Commission on October 1, 1993 (58 Fed. Reg. 51266).

SEC. 610. None of the funds made available by this Act may be used for any United Nations undertaking when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds (1) that the United Nations undertaking is a peacekeeping mission, (2) that such undertaking will involve United States Armed Forces under the command or operational control of a foreign national, and (3) that the President's military advisors have not submitted to the President a recommendation that such involvement is in the national security interests of the United States and the President has not submitted to the Congress such a recommendation.

SEC. 611. None of the funds made available in this Act shall be used to provide the following amenities or personal comforts in the Federal prison system—

(1) in-cell television viewing except for prisoners who are segregated from the general prison population for their own safety;

(2) the viewing of R, X, and NC–17 rated movies, through whatever medium presented;

(3) any instruction (live or through broadcasts) or training equipment for boxing, wrestling, judo, karate, or other martial art, or any bodybuilding or weightlifting equipment of any sort;

(4) possession of in-cell coffee pots, hot plates, or heating elements; or

(5) the use or possession of any electric or electronic musical instrument.

SEC. 612. None of the funds made available in title II for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration under the heading "Fleet Modernization, Shipbuilding and Conversion" may be used to implement sections 603, 604, and 605 of Public Law 102–567.

SEC. 613. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for "USIA Television Marti Program" under the Television Broadcasting to Cuba Act or any other program of United States Government television broadcasts to Cuba, when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that such use would be inconsistent with the applicable provisions of the March 1995 Office of Cuba Broadcasting Reinventing Plan of the United States Information Agency.

SEC. 614. (a)(1) Section 5002 of title 18, United States Code, is repealed.

(2) The table of sections for chapter 401 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by striking out the item relating to the Advisory Corrections Council.

(b) This section shall take effect 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 615. Any costs incurred by a Department or agency funded under this Act resulting from personnel actions taken in response to funding reductions included in this Act shall be absorbed within the total budgetary resources available to such Department or agency: Provided, That the authority to transfer funds between appropriations accounts as may be necessary to carry out this provision is provided in addition to authorities included elsewhere in this Act: Provided further, That use of funds to carry out this section shall be treated as a reprogramming of funds under section 605 of this Act and shall not be available for obligation or expenditure except in compliance with the procedures set forth in that section.

SEC. 616. Section 201(a) of Public Law 104–99 is repealed.

TITLE VIII—PRISON LITIGATION REFORM

SEC. 801. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the "Prison Litigation Reform Act of 1995".

SEC. 802. APPROPRIATE REMEDIES FOR PRISON CONDITIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 3626 of title 18, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3626. Appropriate remedies with respect to prison conditions

"(a) REQUIREMENTS FOR RELIEF.—

"(1) PROSPECTIVE RELIEF.—(A) Prospective relief in any civil action with respect to prison conditions shall extend no further than necessary to correct the violation of the Federal right of a particular plaintiff or plaintiffs. The court shall not grant or approve any prospective relief unless the court finds that such relief is narrowly drawn, extends no further than necessary to correct the violation of the Federal right, and is the least intrusive means necessary to correct the violation of the Federal right. The court shall give substantial weight to any adverse impact on public safety or the operation of a criminal justice system caused by the relief.

"(B) The court shall not order any prospective relief that requires or permits a government official to exceed his or her authority under State or local law or otherwise violates State or local law, unless—

"(i) Federal law permits such relief to be ordered in violation of State or local law;

"(ii) the relief is necessary to correct the violation of a Federal right; and

"(iii) no other relief will correct the violation of the Federal right.

"(C) Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the courts, in exercising their remedial powers, to order the construction of prisons or the raising of taxes, or to repeal or detract from otherwise applicable limitations on the remedial powers of the courts.

"(2) PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIVE RELIEF.—In any civil action with respect to prison conditions, to the extent otherwise authorized by law, the court may enter a temporary restraining order or an order for preliminary injunctive relief. Preliminary injunctive relief must be narrowly drawn, extend no further than necessary to correct the harm the court finds requires preliminary relief, and be the least intrusive means necessary to correct that harm. The court shall give substantial weight to any adverse impact on public safety or the operation of a criminal justice system caused by the preliminary relief and shall respect the principles of comity set out in paragraph (1)(B) in tailoring any preliminary relief. Preliminary injunctive relief shall automatically expire on the date that is 90 days after its entry, unless the court makes the findings required under subsection (a)(1) for the entry of prospective relief and makes the order final before the expiration of the 90-day period.

"(3) PRISONER RELEASE ORDER.—(A) In any civil action with respect to prison conditions, no prisoner release order shall be entered unless—

"(i) a court has previously entered an order for less intrusive relief that has failed to remedy the deprivation of the Federal right sought to be remedied through the prisoner release order; and

"(ii) the defendant has had a reasonable amount of time to comply with the previous court orders.

"(B) In any civil action in Federal court with respect to prison conditions, a prisoner release order shall be entered only by a three-judge court in accordance with section 2284 of title 28, if the requirements of subparagraph (E) have been met.

"(C) A party seeking a prisoner release order in Federal court shall file with any request for such relief, a request for a three-judge court and materials sufficient to demonstrate that the requirements of subparagraph (A) have been met.

"(D) If the requirements under subparagraph (A) have been met, a Federal judge before whom a civil action with respect to prison conditions is pending who believes that a prison release order should be considered may sua sponte request the convening of a three-judge court to determine whether a prisoner release order should be entered.

"(E) The three-judge court shall enter a prisoner release order only if the court finds by clear and convincing evidence that—

"(i) crowding is the primary cause of the violation of a Federal right; and

"(ii) no other relief will remedy the violation of the Federal right.

"(F) Any State or local official or unit of government whose jurisdiction or function includes the appropriation of funds for the construction, operation, or maintenance of program facilities, or the prosecution or custody of persons who may be released from, or not admitted to, a prison as a result of a prisoner release order shall have standing to oppose the imposition or continuation in effect of such relief and to seek termination of such relief, and shall have the right to intervene in any proceeding relating to such relief.

"(b) TERMINATION OF RELIEF.—

"(1) TERMINATION OF PROSPECTIVE RELIEF.—(A) In any civil action with respect to prison conditions in which prospective relief is ordered, such relief shall be terminable upon the motion of any party or intervener—

"(i) 2 years after the date the court granted or approved the prospective relief;

"(ii) 1 year after the date the court has entered an order denying termination of prospective relief under this paragraph; or

"(iii) in the case of an order issued on or before the date of enactment of the Prison Litigation Reform Act, 2 years after such date of enactment.

"(B) Nothing in this section shall prevent the parties from agreeing to terminate or modify relief before the relief is terminated under subparagraph (A).

"(2) IMMEDIATE TERMINATION OF PROSPECTIVE RELIEF.—In any civil action with respect to prison conditions, a defendant or intervener shall be entitled to the immediate termination of any prospective relief if the relief was approved or granted in the absence of a finding by the court that the relief is narrowly drawn, extends no further than necessary to correct the violation of the Federal right, and is the least intrusive means necessary to correct the violation of the Federal right.

"(3) LIMITATION.—Prospective relief shall not terminate if the court makes written findings based on the record that prospective relief remains necessary to correct a current or ongoing violation of the Federal right, extends no further than necessary to correct the violation of the Federal right, and that the prospective relief is narrowly drawn and the least intrusive means to correct the violation.

"(4) TERMINATION OR MODIFICATION OF RELIEF.—Nothing in this section shall prevent any party or intervener from seeking modification or termination before the relief is terminable under paragraph (1) or (2), to the extent that modification or termination would otherwise be legally permissible.

"(c) SETTLEMENTS.—

"(1) CONSENT DECREES.—In any civil action with respect to prison conditions, the court shall not enter or approve a consent decree unless it complies with the limitations on relief set forth in subsection (a).

"(2) PRIVATE SETTLEMENT AGREEMENTS.—(A) Nothing in this section shall preclude parties from entering into a private settlement agreement that does not comply with the limitations on relief set forth in subsection (a), if the terms of that agreement are not subject to court enforcement other than the reinstatement of the civil proceeding that the agreement settled.

"(B) Nothing in this section shall preclude any party claiming that a private settlement agreement has been breached from seeking in State court any remedy available under State law.

"(d) STATE LAW REMEDIES.—The limitations on remedies in this section shall not apply to relief entered by a State court based solely upon claims arising under State law.

"(e) PROCEDURE FOR MOTIONS AFFECTING PROSPECTIVE RELIEF.—

"(1) GENERALLY.—The court shall promptly rule on any motion to modify or terminate prospective relief in a civil action with respect to prison conditions.

"(2) AUTOMATIC STAY.—Any prospective relief subject to a pending motion shall be automatically stayed during the period—

"(A)(i) beginning on the 30th day after such motion is filed, in the case of a motion made under paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (b); or

"(ii) beginning on the 180th day after such motion is filed, in the case of a motion made under any other law; and

"(B) ending on the date the court enters a final order ruling on the motion.

"(f) SPECIAL MASTERS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—(A) In any civil action in a Federal court with respect to prison conditions, the court may appoint a special master who shall be disinterested and objective and who will give due regard to the public safety, to conduct hearings on the record and prepare proposed findings of fact.

"(B) The court shall appoint a special master under this subsection during the remedial phase of the action only upon a finding that the remedial phase will be sufficiently complex to warrant the appointment.

"(2) APPOINTMENT.—(A) If the court determines that the appointment of a special master is necessary, the court shall request that the defendant institution and the plaintiff each submit a list of not more than 5 persons to serve as a special master.

"(B) Each party shall have the opportunity to remove up to 3 persons from the opposing party's list.

"(C) The court shall select the master from the persons remaining on the list after the operation of subparagraph (B).

"(3) INTERLOCUTORY APPEAL.—Any party shall have the right to an interlocutory appeal of the judge's selection of the special master under this subsection, on the ground of partiality.

"(4) COMPENSATION.—The compensation to be allowed to a special master under this section shall be based on an hourly rate not greater than the hourly rate established under section 3006A for payment of court-appointed counsel, plus costs reasonably incurred by the special master. Such compensation and costs shall be paid with funds appropriated to the Judiciary.

"(5) REGULAR REVIEW OF APPOINTMENT.—In any civil action with respect to prison conditions in which a special master is appointed under this subsection, the court shall review the appointment of the special master every 6 months to determine whether the services of the special master continue to be required under paragraph (1). In no event shall the appointment of a special master extend beyond the termination of the relief.

"(6) LIMITATIONS ON POWERS AND DUTIES.—A special master appointed under this subsection—

"(A) may be authorized by a court to conduct hearings and prepare proposed findings of fact, which shall be made on the record;

"(B) shall not make any findings or communications ex parte;

"(C) may be authorized by a court to assist in the development of remedial plans; and

"(D) may be removed at any time, but shall be relieved of the appointment upon the termination of relief.

"(g) DEFINITIONS.—As used in this section—

"(1) the term 'consent decree' means any relief entered by the court that is based in whole or in part upon the consent or acquiescence of the parties but does not include private settlements;

"(2) the term 'civil action with respect to prison conditions' means any civil proceeding arising under Federal law with respect to the conditions of confinement or the effects of actions by government officials on the lives of persons confined in prison, but does not include habeas corpus proceedings challenging the fact or duration of confinement in prison;

"(3) the term 'prisoner' means any person subject to incarceration, detention, or admission to any facility who is accused of, convicted of, sentenced for, or adjudicated delinquent for, violations of criminal law or the terms and conditions of parole, probation, pretrial release, or diversionary program;

"(4) the term 'prisoner release order' includes any order, including a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunctive relief, that has the purpose or effect of reducing or limiting the prison population, or that directs the release from or nonadmission of prisoners to a prison;

"(5) the term 'prison' means any Federal, State, or local facility that incarcerates or detains juveniles or adults accused of, convicted of, sentenced for, or adjudicated delinquent for, violations of criminal law;

"(6) the term 'private settlement agreement' means an agreement entered into among the parties that is not subject to judicial enforcement other than the reinstatement of the civil proceeding that the agreement settled;

"(7) the term 'prospective relief' means all relief other than compensatory monetary damages;

"(8) the term 'special master' means any person appointed by a Federal court pursuant to Rule 53 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure or pursuant to any inherent power of the court to exercise the powers of a master, regardless of the title or description given by the court; and

"(9) the term 'relief' means all relief in any form that may be granted or approved by the court, and includes consent decrees but does not include private settlement agreements.".

(b) APPLICATION OF AMENDMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 3626 of title 18, United States Code, as amended by this section, shall apply with respect to all prospective relief whether such relief was originally granted or approved before, on, or after the date of the enactment of this title.

(2) TECHNICAL AMENDMENT.—Subsections (b) and (d) of section 20409 of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 are repealed.

(c) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections at the beginning of subchapter C of chapter 229 of title 18, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"3626. Appropriate remedies with respect to prison conditions.".

SEC. 803. AMENDMENTS TO CIVIL RIGHTS OF INSTITUTIONALIZED PERSONS ACT.

(a) INITIATION OF CIVIL ACTIONS.—Section 3(c) of the Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons Act (42 U.S.C. 1997a(c)) (referred to in this section as the "Act") is amended to read as follows:

"(c) The Attorney General shall personally sign any complaint filed pursuant to this section.".

(b) CERTIFICATION REQUIREMENTS.—Section 4 of the Act (42 U.S.C. 1997b) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)—

(A) by striking "he" each place it appears and inserting "the Attorney General"; and

(B) by striking "his" and inserting "the Attorney General's"; and

(2) by amending subsection (b) to read as follows:

"(b) The Attorney General shall personally sign any certification made pursuant to this section.".

(c) INTERVENTION IN ACTIONS.—Section 5 of the Act (42 U.S.C. 1997c) is amended—

(1) in subsection (b)—

(A) in paragraph (1), by striking "he" each place it appears and inserting "the Attorney General"; and

(B) by amending paragraph (2) to read as follows:

"(2) The Attorney General shall personally sign any certification made pursuant to this section."; and

(2) by amending subsection (c) to read as follows:

"(c) The Attorney General shall personally sign any motion to intervene made pursuant to this section.".

(d) SUITS BY PRISONERS.—Section 7 of the Act (42 U.S.C. 1997e) is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 7. SUITS BY PRISONERS.

"(a) APPLICABILITY OF ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES.—No action shall be brought with respect to prison conditions under section 1979 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (42 U.S.C. 1983), or any other Federal law, by a prisoner confined in any jail, prison, or other correctional facility until such administrative remedies as are available are exhausted.

"(b) FAILURE OF STATE TO ADOPT OR ADHERE TO ADMINISTRATIVE GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE.—The failure of a State to adopt or adhere to an administrative grievance procedure shall not constitute the basis for an action under section 3 or 5 of this Act.

"(c) DISMISSAL.—(1) The court shall on its own motion or on the motion of a party dismiss any action brought with respect to prison conditions under section 1979 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (42 U.S.C. 1983), or any other Federal law, by a prisoner confined in any jail, prison, or other correctional facility if the court is satisfied that the action is frivolous, malicious, fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, or seeks monetary relief from a defendant who is immune from such relief.

"(2) In the event that a claim is, on its face, frivolous, malicious, fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, or seeks monetary relief from a defendant who is immune from such relief, the court may dismiss the underlying claim without first requiring the exhaustion of administrative remedies.

"(d) ATTORNEY'S FEES.—(1) In any action brought by a prisoner who is confined to any jail, prison, or other correctional facility, in which attorney's fees are authorized under section 2 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (42 U.S.C. 1988), such fees shall not be awarded, except to the extent that—

"(A) the fee was directly and reasonably incurred in proving an actual violation of the plaintiff's rights protected by a statute pursuant to which a fee may be awarded under section 2 of the Revised Statutes; and

"(B)(i) the amount of the fee is proportionately related to the court ordered relief for the violation; or

"(ii) the fee was directly and reasonably incurred in enforcing the relief ordered for the violation.

"(2) Whenever a monetary judgment is awarded in an action described in paragraph (1), a portion of the judgment (not to exceed 25 percent) shall be applied to satisfy the amount of attorney's fees awarded against the defendant. If the award of attorney's fees is not greater than 150 percent of the judgment, the excess shall be paid by the defendant.

"(3) No award of attorney's fees in an action described in paragraph (1) shall be based on an hourly rate greater than 150 percent of the hourly rate established under section 3006A of title 18, United States Code, for payment of court-appointed counsel.

"(4) Nothing in this subsection shall prohibit a prisoner from entering into an agreement to pay an attorney's fee in an amount greater than the amount authorized under this subsection, if the fee is paid by the individual rather than by the defendant pursuant to section 2 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (42 U.S.C. 1988).

"(e) LIMITATION ON RECOVERY.—No Federal civil action may be brought by a prisoner confined in a jail, prison, or other correctional facility, for mental or emotional injury suffered while in custody without a prior showing of physical injury.

"(f) HEARINGS.—(1) To the extent practicable, in any action brought with respect to prison conditions in Federal court pursuant to section 1979 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (42 U.S.C. 1983), or any other Federal law, by a prisoner confined in any jail, prison, or other correctional facility, pretrial proceedings in which the prisoner's participation is required or permitted shall be conducted by telephone, video conference, or other telecommunications technology without removing the prisoner from the facility in which the prisoner is confined.

"(2) Subject to the agreement of the official of the Federal, State, or local unit of government with custody over the prisoner, hearings may be conducted at the facility in which the prisoner is confined. To the extent practicable, the court shall allow counsel to participate by telephone, video conference, or other communications technology in any hearing held at the facility.

"(g) WAIVER OF REPLY.—(1) Any defendant may waive the right to reply to any action brought by a prisoner confined in any jail, prison, or other correctional facility under section 1979 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (42 U.S.C. 1983) or any other Federal law. Notwithstanding any other law or rule of procedure, such waiver shall not constitute an admission of the allegations contained in the complaint. No relief shall be granted to the plaintiff unless a reply has been filed.

"(2) The court may require any defendant to reply to a complaint brought under this section if it finds that the plaintiff has a reasonable opportunity to prevail on the merits.

"(h) DEFINITION.—As used in this section, the term 'prisoner' means any person incarcerated or detained in any facility who is accused of, convicted of, sentenced for, or adjudicated delinquent for, violations of criminal law or the terms and conditions of parole, probation, pretrial release, or diversionary program.".

(e) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Section 8 of the Act (42 U.S.C. 1997f) is amended by striking "his report" and inserting "the report".

(f) NOTICE TO FEDERAL DEPARTMENTS.—Section 10 of the Act (42 U.S.C. 1997h) is amended—

(1) by striking "his action" and inserting "the action"; and

(2) by striking "he is satisfied" and inserting "the Attorney General is satisfied".

(E) by striking "he" each place it appears and inserting "the person";

(F) by adding immediately after paragraph (1), the following new paragraph:

"(2) A prisoner seeking to bring a civil action or appeal a judgment in a civil action or proceeding without prepayment of fees or security therefor, in addition to filing the affidavit filed under paragraph (1), shall submit a certified copy of the trust fund account statement (or institutional equivalent) for the prisoner for the 6-month period immediately preceding the filing of the complaint or notice of appeal, obtained from the appropriate official of each prison at which the prisoner is or was confined."; and

(G) by striking "An appeal" and inserting "(3) An appeal";

(2) by redesignating subsections (b), (c), (d), and (e) as subsections (c), (d), (e), and (f), respectively;

(3) by inserting after subsection (a) the following new subsection:

"(b)(1) Notwithstanding subsection (a), if a prisoner brings a civil action or files an appeal in forma pauperis, the prisoner shall be required to pay the full amount of a filing fee. The court shall assess and, when funds exist, collect, as a partial payment of any court fees required by law, an initial partial filing fee of 20 percent of the greater of—

"(A) the average monthly deposits to the prisoner's account; or

"(B) the average monthly balance in the prisoner's account for the 6-month period immediately preceding the filing of the complaint or notice of appeal.

"(2) After payment of the initial partial filing fee, the prisoner shall be required to make monthly payments of 20 percent of the preceding month's income credited to the prisoner's account. The agency having custody of the prisoner shall forward payments from the prisoner's account to the clerk of the court each time the amount in the account exceeds $10 until the filing fees are paid.

"(3) In no event shall the filing fee collected exceed the amount of fees permitted by statute for the commencement of a civil action or an appeal of a civil action or criminal judgment.

"(4) In no event shall a prisoner be prohibited from bringing a civil action or appealing a civil or criminal judgment for the reason that the prisoner has no assets and no means by which to pay the initial partial filing fee.";

(4) in subsection (c), as redesignated by paragraph (2), by striking "subsection (a) of this section" and inserting "subsections (a) and (b) and the prepayment of any partial filing fee as may be required under subsection (b)"; and

(5) by amending subsection (e), as redesignated by paragraph (2), to read as follows:

"(e)(1) The court may request an attorney to represent any person unable to afford counsel.

"(2) Notwithstanding any filing fee, or any portion thereof, that may have been paid, the court shall dismiss the case at any time if the court determines that—

"(A) the allegation of poverty is untrue; or

"(B) the action or appeal—

"(i) is frivolous or malicious;

"(ii) fails to state a claim on which relief may be granted; or

"(iii) seeks monetary relief against a defendant who is immune from such relief.".

(b) EXCEPTION TO DISCHARGE OF DEBT IN BANKRUPTCY PROCEEDING.—Section 523(a) of title 11, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in paragraph (16), by striking the period at the end and inserting "; or"; and

(2) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(17) for a fee imposed by a court for the filing of a case, motion, complaint, or appeal, or for other costs and expenses assessed with respect to such filing, regardless of an assertion of poverty by the debtor under section 1915 (b) or (f) of title 28, or the debtor's status as a prisoner, as defined in section 1915(h) of title 28.".

(c) COSTS.—Section 1915(f) of title 28, United States Code (as redesignated by subsection (a)(2)), is amended—

(1) by striking "(f) Judgment" and inserting "(f)(1) Judgment";

(2) by striking "cases" and inserting "proceedings"; and

(3) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(2)(A) If the judgment against a prisoner includes the payment of costs under this subsection, the prisoner shall be required to pay the full amount of the costs ordered.

"(B) The prisoner shall be required to make payments for costs under this subsection in the same manner as is provided for filing fees under subsection (a)(2).

"(C) In no event shall the costs collected exceed the amount of the costs ordered by the court.".

(d) SUCCESSIVE CLAIMS.—Section 1915 of title 28, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(g) In no event shall a prisoner bring a civil action or appeal a judgment in a civil action or proceeding under this section if the prisoner has, on 3 or more prior occasions, while incarcerated or detained in any facility, brought an action or appeal in a court of the United States that was dismissed on the grounds that it is frivolous, malicious, or fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, unless the prisoner is under imminent danger of serious physical injury.".

(e) DEFINITION.—Section 1915 of title 28, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(h) As used in this section, the term 'prisoner' means any person incarcerated or detained in any facility who is accused of, convicted of, sentenced for, or adjudicated delinquent for, violations of criminal law or the terms and conditions of parole, probation, pretrial release, or diversionary program.".

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Chief Financial Officer established under section 302 of Public Law 104–8, approved April 17, 1995 (109 Stat. 142) shall, on behalf of the Mayor, adjust appropriations and expenditures for personal and nonpersonal services, together with the related full-time equivalent positions, in accordance with the direction of the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Authority such that there is a net reduction of $165,837,000, within or among one or several of the various appropriation headings in this Act, pursuant to section 208 of Public Law 104–8, approved April 17, 1995 (109 Stat. 134).

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 101. The expenditure of any appropriation under this Act for any consulting service through procurement contract, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 3109, shall be limited to those contracts where such expenditures are a matter of public record and available for public inspection, except where otherwise provided under existing law, or under existing Executive order issued pursuant to existing law.

SEC. 102. Except as otherwise provided in this Act, all vouchers covering expenditures of appropriations contained in this Act shall be audited before payment by the designated certifying official and the vouchers as approved shall be paid by checks issued by the designated disbursing official.

SEC. 103. Whenever in this Act, an amount is specified within an appropriation for particular purposes or objects of expenditure, such amount, unless otherwise specified, shall be considered as the maximum amount that may be expended for said purpose or object rather than an amount set apart exclusively therefor.

SEC. 104. Appropriations in this Act shall be available, when authorized by the Mayor, for allowances for privately owned automobiles and motorcycles used for the performance of official duties at rates established by the Mayor: Provided, That such rates shall not exceed the maximum prevailing rates for such vehicles as prescribed in the Federal Property Management Regulations 101–7 (Federal Travel Regulations).

SEC. 105. Appropriations in this Act shall be available for expenses of travel and for the payment of dues of organizations concerned with the work of the District of Columbia government, when authorized by the Mayor: Provided, That the Council of the District of Columbia and the District of Columbia Courts may expend such funds without authorization by the Mayor.

SEC. 106. There are appropriated from the applicable funds of the District of Columbia such sums as may be necessary for making refunds and for the payment of judgments that have been entered against the District of Columbia government: Provided, That nothing contained in this section shall be construed as modifying or affecting the provisions of section 11(c)(3) of title XII of the District of Columbia Income and Franchise Tax Act of 1947, approved March 31, 1956 (70 Stat. 78; Public Law 84–460; D.C. Code, sec. 47–1812.11(c)(3)).

SEC. 107. Appropriations in this Act shall be available for the payment of public assistance without reference to the requirement of section 544 of the District of Columbia Public Assistance Act of 1982, effective April 6, 1982 (D.C. Law 4–101; D.C. Code, sec. 3–205.44), and for the non-Federal share of funds necessary to qualify for Federal assistance under the Juvenile Delinquency Prevention and Control Act of 1968, approved July 31, 1968 (82 Stat. 462; Public Law 90–445, 42 U.S.C. 3801 et seq.).

SEC. 108. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 109. No funds appropriated in this Act for the District of Columbia government for the operation of educational institutions, the compensation of personnel, or for other educational purposes may be used to permit, encourage, facilitate, or further partisan political activities. Nothing herein is intended to prohibit the availability of school buildings for the use of any community or partisan political group during non-school hours.

SEC. 110. The annual budget for the District of Columbia government for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997, shall be transmitted to the Congress no later than April 15, 1996 or as provided for under the provisions of Public Law 104–8, approved April 17, 1995.

SEC. 111. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be made available to pay the salary of any employee of the District of Columbia government whose name, title, grade, salary, past work experience, and salary history are not available for inspection by the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations, the House Committee on Government Reform and Oversight, District of Columbia Subcommittee, the Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management, of the Senate Committee on Governmental Affairs, and the Council of the District of Columbia, or their duly authorized representative: Provided, That none of the funds contained in this Act shall be made available to pay the salary of any employee of the District of Columbia government whose name and salary are not available for public inspection.

SEC. 112. There are appropriated from the applicable funds of the District of Columbia such sums as may be necessary for making payments authorized by the District of Columbia Revenue Recovery Act of 1977, effective September 23, 1977 (D.C. Law 2–20; D.C. Code, sec. 47–421 et seq.).

SEC. 113. No part of this appropriation shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes or implementation of any policy including boycott designed to support or defeat legislation pending before Congress or any State legislature.

SEC. 114. At the start of the fiscal year, the Mayor shall develop an annual plan, by quarter and by project, for capital outlay borrowings: Provided, That within a reasonable time after the close of each quarter, the Mayor shall report to the Council of the District of Columbia and the Congress the actual borrowings and spending progress compared with projections.

SEC. 115. The Mayor shall not borrow any funds for capital projects unless the Mayor has obtained prior approval from the Council of the District of Columbia, by resolution, identifying the projects and amounts to be financed with such borrowings.

SEC. 116. The Mayor shall not expend any moneys borrowed for capital projects for the operating expenses of the District of Columbia government.

SEC. 117. None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be obligated or expended by reprogramming except pursuant to advance approval of the reprogramming granted according to the procedure set forth in the Joint Explanatory Statement of the Committee of Conference (House Report No. 96–443), which accompanied the District of Columbia Appropriation Act, 1980, approved October 30, 1979 (93 Stat. 713; Public Law 96–93), as modified in House Report No. 98–265, and in accordance with the Reprogramming Policy Act of 1980, effective September 16, 1980 (D.C. Law 3–100; D.C. Code, sec. 47–361 et seq.): Provided, That for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996 the above shall apply except as modified by Public Law 104–8.

SEC. 118. None of the Federal funds provided in this Act shall be obligated or expended to provide a personal cook, chauffeur, or other personal servants to any officer or employee of the District of Columbia.

SEC. 119. None of the Federal Funds provided in this Act shall be obligated or expended to procure passenger automobiles as defined in the Automobile Fuel Efficiency Act of 1980, approved October 10, 1980 (94 Stat. 1824; Public Law 96–425; 15 U.S.C. 2001(2)), with an Environmental Protection Agency estimated miles per gallon average of less than 22 miles per gallon: Provided, That this section shall not apply to security, emergency rescue, or armored vehicles.

SEC. 120. (a) Notwithstanding section 422(7) of the District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act of 1973, approved December 24, 1973 (87 Stat. 790; Public Law 93–198; D.C. Code, sec. 1–242(7)), the City Administrator shall be paid, during any fiscal year, a salary at a rate established by the Mayor, not to exceed the rate established for level IV of the Executive Schedule under 5 U.S.C. 5315.

(b) For purposes of applying any provision of law limiting the availability of funds for payment of salary or pay in any fiscal year, the highest rate of pay established by the Mayor under subsection (a) of this section for any position for any period during the last quarter of calendar year 1995 shall be deemed to be the rate of pay payable for that position for September 30, 1995.

(c) Notwithstanding section 4(a) of the District of Columbia Redevelopment Act of 1945, approved August 2, 1946 (60 Stat. 793; Public Law 79–592; D.C. Code, sec. 5–803(a)), the Board of Directors of the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency shall be paid, during any fiscal year, per diem compensation at a rate established by the Mayor.

SEC. 121. Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, the provisions of the District of Columbia Government Comprehensive Merit Personnel Act of 1978, effective March 3, 1979 (D.C. Law 2-139; D.C. Code, sec. 1-601.1 et seq.), enacted pursuant to section 422(3) of the District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act of 1973, approved December 24, 1973 (87 Stat. 790; Public Law 93-198; D.C. Code, sec. 1-242(3)), shall apply with respect to the compensation of District of Columbia employees: Provided, That for pay purposes, employees of the District of Columbia government shall not be subject to the provisions of title 5 of the United States Code.

SEC. 122. The Director of the Department of Administrative Services may pay rentals and repair, alter, and improve rented premises, without regard to the provisions of section 322 of the Economy Act of 1932 (Public Law 72-212; 40 U.S.C. 278a), upon a determination by the Director, that by reason of circumstances set forth in such determination, the payment of these rents and the execution of this work, without reference to the limitations of section 322, is advantageous to the District in terms of economy, efficiency, and the District's best interest.

SEC. 123. No later than 30 days after the end of the first quarter of the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, the Mayor of the District of Columbia shall submit to the Council of the District of Columbia the new fiscal year 1996 revenue estimates as of the end of the first quarter of fiscal year 1996. These estimates shall be used in the budget request for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997. The officially revised estimates at midyear shall be used for the midyear report.

SEC. 124. No sole source contract with the District of Columbia government or any agency thereof may be renewed or extended without opening that contract to the competitive bidding process as set forth in section 303 of the District of Columbia Procurement Practices Act of 1985, effective February 21, 1986 (D.C. Law 6-85; D.C. Code, sec. 1-1183.3), except that the District of Columbia Public Schools may renew or extend sole source contracts for which competition is not feasible or practical, provided that the determination as to whether to invoke the competitive bidding process has been made in accordance with duly promulgated Board of Education rules and procedures.

SEC. 125. For purposes of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, approved December 12, 1985 (99 Stat. 1037; Public Law 99-177), as amended, the term "program, project, and activity" shall be synonymous with and refer specifically to each account appropriating Federal funds in this Act, and any sequestration order shall be applied to each of the accounts rather than to the aggregate total of those accounts: Provided, That sequestration orders shall not be applied to any account that is specifically exempted from sequestration by the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, approved December 12, 1985 (99 Stat. 1037; Public Law 99-177), as amended.

SEC. 126. In the event a sequestration order is issued pursuant to the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, approved December 12, 1985 (99 Stat. 1037: Public Law 99-177), as amended, after the amounts appropriated to the District of Columbia for the fiscal year involved have been paid to the District of Columbia, the Mayor of the District of Columbia shall pay to the Secretary of the Treasury, within 15 days after receipt of a request therefor from the Secretary of the Treasury, such amounts as are sequestered by the order: Provided, That the sequestration percentage specified in the order shall be applied proportionately to each of the Federal appropriation accounts in this Act that are not specifically exempted from sequestration by the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, approved December 12, 1985 (99 Stat. 1037; Public Law 99-177), as amended.

SEC. 127. For the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, the District of Columbia shall pay interest on its quarterly payments to the United States that are made more than 60 days from the date of receipt of an itemized statement from the Federal Bureau of Prisons of amounts due for housing District of Columbia convicts in Federal penitentiaries for the preceding quarter.

SEC. 128. Nothing in this Act shall be construed to authorize any office, agency or entity to expend funds for programs or functions for which a reorganization plan is required but has not been approved by the Council pursuant to section 422(12) of the District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act of 1973, approved December 24, 1973 (87 Stat. 790; Public Law 93-198; D.C. Code, sec. 1-242(12)) and the Governmental Reorganization Procedures Act of 1981, effective October 17, 1981 (D.C. Law 4-42; D.C. Code, sec. 1-299.1 to 1-299.7). Appropriations made by this Act for such programs or functions are conditioned on the approval by the Council, prior to October 1, 1995, of the required reorganization plans.

SEC. 129. (a) An entity of the District of Columbia government may accept and use a gift or donation during fiscal year 1996 if—

(1) the Mayor approves the acceptance and use of the gift or donation: Provided, That the Council of the District of Columbia may accept and use gifts without prior approval by the Mayor; and

(2) the entity uses the gift or donation to carry out its authorized functions or duties.

(b) Each entity of the District of Columbia government shall keep accurate and detailed records of the acceptance and use of any gift or donation under subsection (a) of this section, and shall make such records available for audit and public inspection.

(c) For the purposes of this section, the term "entity of the District of Columbia government" includes an independent agency of the District of Columbia.

(d) This section shall not apply to the District of Columbia Board of Education, which may, pursuant to the laws and regulations of the District of Columbia, accept and use gifts to the public schools without prior approval by the Mayor.

SEC. 130. None of the Federal funds provided in this Act may be used by the District of Columbia to provide for salaries, expenses, or other costs associated with the offices of United States Senator or United States Representative under section 4(d) of the District of Columbia Statehood Constitutional Convention Initiatives of 1979, effective March 10, 1981 (D.C. Law 3-171; D.C. Code, sec. 1-113(d)).

PROHIBITION AGAINST USE OF FUNDS FOR ABORTIONS

SEC. 131. None of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be expended for any abortion except where the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term or where the pregnancy is the result of an act of rape or incest.

PROHIBITION ON DOMESTIC PARTNERS ACT

SEC. 132. No funds made available pursuant to any provision of this Act shall be used to implement or enforce any system of registration of unmarried, cohabiting couples whether they are homosexual, lesbian, or heterosexual, including but not limited to registration for the purpose of extending employment, health, or governmental benefits to such couples on the same basis that such benefits are extended to legally married couples; nor shall any funds made available pursuant to any provision of this Act otherwise be used to implement or enforce D.C. Act 9-188, signed by the Mayor of the District of Columbia on April 15, 1992.

COMPENSATION FOR THE COMMISSION ON JUDICIAL DISABILITIES AND TENURE AND FOR THE JUDICIAL NOMINATION COMMISSION

SEC. 133. Sections 431(f) and 433(b)(5) of the District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act, approved December 24, 1973 (87 Stat. 813; Public Law 93-198; D.C. Code, secs. 11-1524 and title 11, App. 433), are amended to read as follows:

(a) Section 431(f) (D.C. Code, sec. 11-1524) is amended to read as follows:

"(f) Members of the Tenure Commission shall serve without compensation for services rendered in connection with their official duties on the Commission.".

(b) Section 433(b)(5) (title 11, App. 433) is amended to read as follows:

"(5) Members of the Commission shall serve without compensation for services rendered in connection with their official duties on the Commission.".

MULTIYEAR CONTRACTS

SEC. 134. Section 451 of the District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act of 1973, approved December 24, 1973 (87 Stat. 803; Public Law 93-198; D.C. Code, sec. 1-1130), is amended by adding a new subsection (c) to read as follows:

"(c)(1) The District may enter into multiyear contracts to obtain goods and services for which funds would otherwise be available for obligation only within the fiscal year for which appropriated.

"(2) If the funds are not made available for the continuation of such a contract into a subsequent fiscal year, the contract shall be cancelled or terminated, and the cost of cancellation or termination may be paid from—

"(A) appropriations originally available for the performance of the contract concerned;

"(B) appropriations currently available for procurement of the type of acquisition covered by the contract, and not otherwise obligated; or

"(C) funds appropriated for those payments.

"(3) No contract entered into under this section shall be valid unless the Mayor submits the contract to the Council for its approval and the Council approves the contract (in accordance with criteria established by act of the Council). The Council shall be required to take affirmative action to approve the contract within 45 days. If no action is taken to approve the contract within 45 calendar days, the contract shall be deemed disapproved.".

CALCULATED REAL PROPERTY TAX RATE RESCISSION AND REAL PROPERTY TAX FREEZE

SEC. 135. The District of Columbia Real Property Tax Revision Act of 1974, approved September 3, 1974 (88 Stat. 1051; D.C. Code, sec. 47-801 et seq.), is amended as follows:

(1) Section 412 (D.C. Code, sec. 47-812) is amended as follows:

(A) Subsection (a) is amended by striking the third and fourth sentences and inserting the following sentences in their place: "If the Council does extend the time for establishing the rates of taxation on real property, it must establish those rates for the tax year by permanent legislation. If the Council does not establish the rates of taxation of real property by October 15, and does not extend the time for establishing rates, the rates of taxation applied for the prior year shall be the rates of taxation applied during the tax year.".

(B) A new subsection (a-2) is added to read as follows:

"(a-2) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a) of this section, the real property tax rates for taxable real property in the District of Columbia for the tax year beginning October 1, 1995, and ending September 30, 1996, shall be the same rates in effect for the tax year beginning October 1, 1993, and ending September 30, 1994.".

(2) Section 413(c) (D.C. Code, sec. 47-815(c)) is repealed.

Code, sec. 47-301), or before submitting their respective budgets directly to the Council.

Public School Employee Evaluations

SEC. 143. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, rule, or regulation, the evaluation process and instruments for evaluating District of Columbia Public Schools employees shall be a non-negotiable item for collective bargaining purposes.

Position Vacancies

SEC. 144. (a) No agency, including an independent agency, shall fill a position wholly funded by appropriations authorized by this Act, which is vacant on October 1, 1995, or becomes vacant between October 1, 1995, and September 30, 1996, unless the Mayor or independent agency submits a proposed resolution of intent to fill the vacant position to the Council. The Council shall be required to take affirmative action on the Mayor's resolution within 30 legislative days. If the Council does not affirmatively approve the resolution within 30 legislative days, the resolution shall be deemed disapproved.

(b) No reduction in the number of full-time equivalent positions or reduction-in-force due to privatization or contracting out shall occur if the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance

Authority, established by section 101(a) of the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Act of 1995, approved April 17, 1995 (109 Stat. 97; Public Law 104–8), disallows the full-time equivalent position reduction provided in this act in meeting the maximum ceiling of 35,984 for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996.

(c) This section shall not prohibit the appropriate personnel authority from filling a vacant position with a District government employee currently occupying a position that is funded with appropriated funds.

(d) This section shall not apply to local school-based teachers, school-based officers, or school-based teachers' aides; or court personnel covered by title 11 of the D.C. Code, except chapter 23.

Modifications of Board of Education Reduction-in-Force Procedures

SEC. 145. The District of Columbia Government Comprehensive Merit Personnel Act of 1978, effective March 3, 1979 (D.C. Law 2–139; D.C. Code, sec. 1–601.1 et seq.), is amended as follows:

(a) Section 301 (D.C. Code, sec. 1–603.1) is amended as follows:

(1) A new paragraph (13A) is added to read as follows:

"(13A) 'Nonschool-based personnel' means any employee of the District of Columbia Public Schools who is not based at a local school or who does not provide direct services to individual students.".

(2) A new paragraph (15A) is added to read as follows:

"(15A) 'School administrators' means principals, assistant principals, school program directors, coordinators, instructional supervisors, and support personnel of the District of Columbia Public Schools.".

(b) Section 801A(b)(2) (D.C. Code, sec. 1–609.1(b)(2)) is amended by adding a new subparagraph (L–i) to read as follows:

"(L–i) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Board of Education shall not issue rules that require or permit nonschool-based personnel or school administrators to be assigned or reassigned to the same competitive level as classroom teachers;"

(c) Section 2402 (D.C. Code, sec. 1–625.2) is amended by adding a new subsection (f) to read as follows:

"(f) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Board of Education shall not require or permit nonschool-based personnel or school administrators to be assigned or reassigned to the same competitive level as classroom teachers.".

SEC. 146. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, rule, or regulation, an employee of the District of Columbia Public Schools shall be—

(1) classified as an Educational Service employee;

(2) placed under the personnel authority of the Board of Education; and

(3) subject to all Board of Education rules.

(b) School-based personnel shall constitute a separate competitive area from nonschool-based personnel who shall not compete with school-based personnel for retention purposes.

SEC. 147. None of the funds provided in this Act may be used directly or indirectly for the renovation of the property located at 227 7th Street Southeast (commonly known as Eastern Market), except that funds provided in this Act may be used for the regular maintenance and upkeep of the current structure and grounds located at such property.

Capital Project Employees

SEC. 148. (a) Not later than 15 days after the end of every fiscal quarter (beginning October 1, 1995), the Mayor shall submit to the Council of the District of Columbia, the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Authority, and the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate a report with respect to the employees on the capital project budget for the previous quarter.

(b) Each report submitted pursuant to subsection (a) of this section shall include the following information—

(1) a list of all employees by position, title, grade and step;

(2) a job description, including the capital project for which each employee is working;

(3) the date that each employee began working on the capital project and the ending date that each employee completed or is projected to complete work on the capital project; and

(4) a detailed explanation justifying why each employee is being paid with capital funds.

Modification of Reduction-in-Force Procedures

SEC. 149. The District of Columbia Government Comprehensive Merit Personnel Act of 1978, effective March 3, 1979 (D.C. Law 2–139; D.C. Code, sec. 1–601.1 et seq.), is amended as follows:

(a) Section 2401 (D.C. Code, sec. 1–625.1) is amended by amending the third sentence to read as follows: "A personnel authority may establish lesser competitive areas within an agency on the basis of all or a clearly identifiable segment of an agency's mission or a division or major subdivision of an agency.".

(b) A new section 2406 is added to read as follows:

"SEC. 2406. Abolishment of positions for Fiscal Year 1996.

"(a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, regulation, or collective bargaining agreement either in effect or to be negotiated while this legislation is in effect for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, each agency head is authorized, within the agency head's discretion, to identify positions for abolishment.

"(b) Prior to February 1, 1996, each personnel authority shall make a final determination that a position within the personnel authority is to be abolished.

"(c) Notwithstanding any rights or procedures established by any other provision of this title, any District government employee, regardless of date of hire, who encumbers a position identified for abolishment shall be separated without competition or assignment rights, except as provided in this section.

"(d) An employee affected by the abolishment of a position pursuant to this section who, but for this section would be entitled to compete for retention, shall be entitled to 1 round of lateral competition pursuant to Chapter 24 of the District of Columbia Personnel Manual, which shall be limited to positions in the employee's competitive level.

"(e) Each employee who is a bona fide resident of the District of Columbia shall have added 5 years to his or her creditable service for reduction-in-force purposes. For purposes of this subsection only, a nonresident District employee who was hired by the District government prior to January 1, 1980, and has not had a break in service since that date, or a former employee of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services at Saint Elizabeths Hospital who accepted employment with the District government on October 1, 1987, and has not had a break in service since that date, shall be considered a District resident.

"(f) Each employee selected for separation pursuant to this section shall be given written notice of at least 30 days before the effective date of his or her separation.

"(g) Neither the establishment of a competitive area smaller than an agency, nor the determination that a specific position is to be abolished, nor separation pursuant to his section shall be subject to review except as follows—

"(1) an employee may file a complaint contesting a determination or a separation pursuant to title XV of this Act or section 303 of the Human Rights Act of 1977, effective December 13, 1977 (D.C. Law 2–38; D.C. Code, sec. 1–2543); and

"(2) an employee may file with the Office of Employee Appeals an appeal contesting that the separation procedures of subsections (d) and (f) of this section were not properly applied.

"(h) An employee separated pursuant to this section shall be entitled to severance pay in accordance with title XI of this Act, except that the following shall be included in computing creditable service for severance pay for employees separated pursuant to this section—

"(1) four years for an employee who qualified for veteran's preference under this act, and

"(2) three years for an employee who qualified for residency preference under this act.

"(i) Separation pursuant to this section shall not affect an employee's rights under either the Agency Reemployment Priority Program or the Displaced Employee Program established pursuant to Chapter 24 of the District Personnel Manual.

"(j) The Mayor shall submit to the Council a listing of all positions to be abolished by agency and responsibility center by March 1, 1996, or upon the delivery of termination notices to individual employees.

"(k) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 1708 or section 2402(d), the provisions of this act shall not be deemed negotiable.

"(l) A personnel authority shall cause a 30-day termination notice to be served, no later than September 1, 1996, on any incumbent employee remaining in any position identified to be abolished pursuant to subsection (b) of this section".

Sec. 150. (a) CEILING ON TOTAL OPERATING EXPENSES.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the total amount appropriated in this Act for operating expenses for the District of Columbia for fiscal year 1996 under the caption "Division of Expenses" shall not exceed $4,994,000,000 of which $165,339,000 shall be from intra-District funds.

(b) ACCEPTANCE AND USE OF GRANTS NOT INCLUDED IN CEILING.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding subsection (a), the Mayor of the District of Columbia may accept, obligate, and expend Federal, private, and other grants received by the District government that are not reflected in the amounts appropriated in this Act.

(2) REQUIREMENT OF CHIEF FINANCIAL OFFICER REPORT AND FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY AND MANAGEMENT ASSISTANCE AUTHORITY APPROVAL.—No such Federal, private, or other grant may be accepted, obligated, or expended pursuant to paragraph (1) until—

(A) the Chief Financial Officer of the District submits to the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Authority established by Public Law 104–8 (109 Stat. 97) a report setting forth detailed information regarding such grant; and

(B) the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Authority has reviewed and approved the acceptance, obligation, and expenditure of such grant in accordance with review and approval procedures consistent with the provisions of Public Law 104-8.

(3) PROHIBITION ON SPENDING IN ANTICIPATION OF APPROVAL OR RECEIPT.—No amount may be obligated or expended from the general fund or other funds of the District government in anticipation of the approval or receipt of a grant under paragraph (2)(B) or in anticipation of the approval or receipt of a Federal, private, or other grant not subject to such paragraph.

(4) MONTHLY REPORTS.—The Chief Financial Officer of the District shall prepare a monthly report setting forth detailed information regarding all Federal, private, and other grants subject to this subsection. Each such report shall be submitted to the Council of the District of Columbia, and to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate, not later than 15 days after the end of the month covered by the report.

PLANS FOR LORTON CORRECTIONAL COMPLEX

SEC. 151. (a) DEVELOPMENT OF PLANS.—Not later than March 15, 1996, the District of Columbia shall develop a series of alternative plans meeting the requirements of subsection (b) for the use and operation of the Lorton Correctional Complex (hereafter in this section referred to as the "Complex"), including—

(1) a plan under which the Complex will be closed;

(2) a plan under which the Complex will remain in operation under the management of the District of Columbia subject to such modifications as the District considers appropriate;

(3) a plan under which the Complex will be operated under the management of the Federal government;

(4) a plan under which the Complex will be operated under private management; and

(5) such other plans as the District of Columbia considers appropriate.

(b) REQUIREMENTS FOR PLANS.—Each of the plans developed by the District of Columbia under subsection (a) shall meet the following requirements:

(1) The plan shall provide for an appropriate transition period not to exceed 5 years in length.

(2) The plan shall include provisions specifying how and to what extent the District will utilize alternative management, including the private sector, for the operation of correctional facilities for the District, and shall include provisions describing the treatment under such alternative management (including under contracts) of site selection, design, financing, construction, and operation of correctional facilities for the District.

(3) The plan shall include a description of any legislation required to implenent the plan.

(4) The plan shall include an implementation schedule, together with specific performance measures and timelines to determine the extent to which the District is meeting the schedule during the transition period.

(5) Under the plan, the Mayor of the District of Columbia shall submit a semi-annual report to the President, Congress, and the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Authority describing the actions taken by the District under the plan, and in addition shall regularly report to the President, Congress, and the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Authority on all significant measures taken under the plan as soon as such measures are taken.

(6) For each of the years during which the plan is in effect, the plan shall be consistent with the financial plan and budget for the District of Columbia for the year under subtitle A of title II of the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Act of 1995.

(c) SUBMISSION OF PLAN.—Upon completing the development of the plans under subsection (a), the District of Columbia shall submit the plans to the President, Congress, and the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Authority.

PROHIBITION AGAINST ADOPTION BY UNMARRIED COUPLES

SEC. 152. (a) IN GENERAL.—Section 16-302, D.C. Code, is amended—

(1) by striking "Any person" and inserting "(a) Subject to subsection (b), any person"; and

(2) by adding at the end the following subsection:

"(b)(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), no person may join in a petition under this section unless the person is the spouse of the petitioner.

"(2) An unmarried person may file a petition for adoption where no other person joins in the petition or where the co-petitioner is the natural parent of the child.".

TECHNICAL CORRECTIONS TO FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY AND MANAGEMENT ASSISTANCE ACT

SEC. 153. (a) REQUIRING GSA TO PROVIDE SUPPORT SERVICES.—Section 103(f) of the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Act of 1995 is amended by striking "may provide" and inserting "shall promptly provide".

(b) AVAILABILITY OF CERTAIN FEDERAL BENEFITS FOR INDIVIDUALS WHO BECOME EMPLOYED BY THE AUTHORITY.—

(1) FORMER FEDERAL EMPLOYEES.—Subsection (e) of section 102 of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(e) PRESERVATION OF RETIREMENT AND CERTAIN OTHER RIGHTS OF FEDERAL EMPLOYEES WHO BECOME EMPLOYED BY THE AUTHORITY.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Any Federal employee who becomes employed by the Authority—

"(A) may elect, for the purposes set forth in paragraph (2)(A), to be treated, for so long as that individual remains continuously employed by the Authority, as if such individual had not separated from service with the Federal Government, subject to paragraph (3); and

"(B) shall, if such employee subsequently becomes reemployed by the Federal Government, be entitled to have such individual's service with the Authority treated, for purposes of determining the appropriate leave accrual rate, as if it had been service with the Federal Government.

"(2) EFFECT OF AN ELECTION.—An election made by an individual under the provisions of paragraph (1)(A)—

"(A) shall qualify such individual for the treatment describe in such provisions for purposes of—

"(i) chapter 83 or 84 of title 5, United States Code, as appropriate (relating to retirement), including the Thrift Savings Plan;

"(ii) chapter 87 of such title (relating to life insurance); and

"(iii) chapter 89 of such title (relating to health insurance); and

"(B) shall disqualify such individual, while such election remains in effect, from participating in the programs offered by the government of the District of Columbia (if any) corresponding to the respective programs referred to in subparagraph (A).

"(3) CONDITIONS FOR AN ELECTION TO BE EFFECTIVE.—An election made by an individual under paragraph (1)(A) shall be ineffective unless—

"(A) it is made before such individual separates from service with the Federal Government; and

"(B) such individual's service with the Authority commences within 3 days after so separating (not counting any holiday observed by the government of the District of Columbia).

"(4) CONTRIBUTIONS.—If an individual makes an election under paragraph (1)(A), the Authority shall, in accordance with applicable provisions of law referred to in paragraph (2)(A), be responsible for making the same deductions from pay and the same agency contributions as would be required if it were a Federal agency.

"(5) REGULATIONS.—Any regulations necessary to carry out this subsection shall be prescribed in consultation with the Authority by—

"(A) the Office of Personnel Management, to the extent that any program administered by the office is involved;

"(B) the appropriate office or agency of the government of the District of Columbia, to the extent that any program administered by such office or agency is involved; and

"(C) the Executive Director referred to in section 8474 of title 5, United States Code, to the extent that the Thrift Savings Plan is involved.".

(2) OTHER INDIVIDUALS.—Section 102 of such Act is further amended by adding at the end the following:

"(f) FEDERAL BENEFITS FOR OTHERS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Office of Personnel Management, in conjunction with each corresponding office or agency of the government of the District of Columbia and in consultation with the Authority, shall prescribe regulations under which any individual who becomes employed by the Authority (under circumstances other than as described in subsection (e)) may elect either—

(A) to be deemed a Federal employee for purposes of the programs referred to in subsection (e)(2)(A) (i)–(iii); or

"(B) to participate in 1 or more of the corresponding programs offered by the government of the District of Columbia.

"(2) EFFECT OF AN ELECTION.—An individual who elects the option under subparagraph (A) or (B) of paragraph (1) shall be disqualified, while such election remains in effect, from participating in any of the programs referred to in the other such subparagraph.

"(3) DEFINITION OF 'CORRESPONDING OFFICE OR AGENCY'.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the term 'corresponding office or agency of the government of the District of Columbia' means, with respect to any program administered by the Office of Personnel Management, the office or agency responsible for administering the corresponding program (if any) offered by the government of the District of Columbia.

"(4) THRIFT SAVINGS PLAN.—To the extent that the Thrift Savings Plan is involved, the preceding provisions of this subsection shall be applied by substituting 'the Executive Director referred to in section 8474 of title 5, United States Code' for 'the Office of Personnel Management'.".

(3) "Effective date; additional election for former federal employees serving on date of enactment; election for employees appointed during interim period.—

(A) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Not later than 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act, there shall be prescribed in consultation with the Authority (and take effect)—

(i) regulations to carry out the amendments made by this subsection; and

(ii) any other regulations necessary to carry out this subsection.

(B) Additional election for former federal employees serving on date of enactment.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—Any former Federal employee employed by the Authority on the effective date of the regulations referred to in subparagraph (A)(i) may, within such period as may be provided for under those regulations, make an election similar, to the maximum extent practicable, to the election provided for under section 102(e) of the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Act of 1995, as amended by this subsection. Such regulations shall be prescribed jointly by the Office of Personnel Management and each corresponding office or agency of the government of the District of Columbia (in the same manner as provided for in section 102(f) of such Act, as so amended).

(ii) EXCEPTION.—An election under this subparagraph may not be made by any individual who—

(I) is not then participating in a retirement system for Federal employees (disregarding Social Security); or

(II) is then participating in any program of the government of the District of Columbia referred to in section 102(e)(2)(B) of such Act (as so amended).

(C) ELECTION FOR EMPLOYEES APPOINTED DURING INTERIM PERIOD.—

(i) FROM THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.—Subsection (e) of section 102 of the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Act of 1995 (as last in effect before the date of enactment of this Act) shall be deemed to have remained in effect for purposes of any Federal employee who becomes employed by the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Authority during the period beginning on such date of enactment and ending on the day before the effective date of the regulations prescribed to carry out subparagraph (B).

(ii) OTHER INDIVIDUALS.—The regulations prescribed to carry out subsection (f) of section 102 of the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Act of 1995 (as amended by this subsection) shall include provisions under which an election under such subsection shall be available to any individual who—

(I) becomes employed by the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Authority during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending on the day before the effective date of such regulations;

(II) would have been eligible to make an election under such regulations had those regulations been in effect when such individual became so employed; and

(III) is not then participating in any program of the government of the District of Columbia referred to in subsection (f)(1)(B) of such section 102 (as so amended).

(c) EXEMPTION FROM LIABILITY FOR CLAIMS FOR AUTHORITY EMPLOYEES.—Section 104 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking "the Authority and its members" and inserting "the Authority, its members, and its employees"; and

(2) by striking "the District of Columbia" and inserting "the Authority or its members or employees or the District of Columbia".

(d) PERMITTING REVIEW OF EMERGENCY LEGISLATION.—Section 203(a)(3) of such Act is amended by striking subparagraph (C).

SEC. 2003. GENERAL EFFECTIVE DATE.

Except as otherwise provided in this title, this title shall be effective during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending 5 years after such date.

Subtitle A—District of Columbia Reform Plan

SEC. 2101. LONG-TERM REFORM PLAN.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) PLAN.—The Superintendent, with the approval of the Board of Education, shall submit to the Mayor, the District of Columbia Council, the Authority, the Consensus Commission, and the appropriate congressional committees, a long-term reform plan, not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, and each February 15 thereafter. The long-term reform plan shall be consistent with the financial plan and budget for the District of Columbia for fiscal year 1996, and each financial plan and budget for a subsequent fiscal year, as the case may be, required under section 201 of the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Act of 1995.

(2) CONSULTATION.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—In developing the long-term reform plan, the Superintendent—

(i) shall consult with the Board of Education, the Mayor, the District of Columbia Council, the Authority, and the Consensus Commission; and

(ii) shall afford the public, interested organizations, and groups an opportunity to present their views and make recommendations regarding the long-term reform plan.

(B) SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDATIONS.—The Superintendent shall include in the long-term plan a summary of the recommendations made under subparagraph (A)(ii) and the response of the Superintendent to the recommendations.

(b) CONTENTS.—

(1) AREAS TO BE ADDRESSED.—The long-term reform plan shall describe how the District of Columbia public schools will become a world-class education system that prepares students for lifetime learning in the 21st century and which is on a par with the best education systems of other cities, States, and nations. The long-term reform plan shall include a description of how the District of Columbia public schools will accomplish the following:

(A) Achievement at nationally and internationally competitive levels by students attending District of Columbia public schools.

(B) The preparation of students for the workforce, including—

(i) providing special emphasis for students planning to obtain a postsecondary education; and

(ii) the development of individual career paths.

(C) The improvement of the health and safety of students in District of Columbia public schools.

(D) Local school governance, decentralization, autonomy, and parental choice among District of Columbia public schools.

(E) The implementation of a comprehensive and effective adult education and literacy program.

(F) The identification, beginning in grade 3, of each student who does not meet minimum standards of academic achievement in reading, writing, and mathematics in order to ensure that such student meets such standards prior to grade promotion.

(G) The achievement of literacy, and the possession of the knowledge and skills necessary to think critically, communicate effectively, and perform competently on districtwide assessments, by students attending District of Columbia public schools prior to such student's completion of grade 8.

(H) The establishment of after-school programs that promote self-confidence, self-discipline, self-respect, good citizenship, and respect for leaders, through such activities as arts classes, physical fitness programs, and community service.

(I) Steps necessary to establish an electronic data transfer system.

(J) Encourage parental involvement in all school activities, particularly parent teacher conferences.

(K) Development and implementation, through the Board of Education and the Superintendent, of a uniform dress code for the District of Columbia public schools, that—

(i) shall include a prohibition of gang membership symbols;

(ii) shall take into account the relative costs of any such code for each student; and

(iii) may include a requirement that students wear uniforms.

(L) The establishment of classes, beginning not later than grade 3, to teach students how to use computers effectively.

(M) The development of community schools that enable District of Columbia public schools to collaborate with other public and nonprofit agencies and organizations, local businesses, recreational, cultural, and other community and human service entities, for the purpose of meeting the needs and expanding the opportunities available to residents of the communities served by such schools.

(N) The establishment of programs which provide counseling, mentoring (especially peer mentoring), academic support, outreach, and supportive services to elementary, middle, and secondary school students who are at risk of dropping out of school.

(O) The establishment of a comprehensive remedial education program to assist students who do not meet basic literacy standards, or the criteria of promotion gates established in section 2421.

(P) The establishment of leadership development projects for middle school principals, which projects shall increase student learning and achievement and strengthen such principals as instructional school leaders.

(Q) The implementation of a policy for performance-based evaluation of principals and teachers, after consultation with the Superintendent and unions (including unions that represent teachers and unions that represent principals).

(R) The implementation of policies that require competitive appointments for all District of Columbia public school positions.

(S) The implementation of policies regarding alternative teacher certification requirements.

(T) The implementation of testing requirements for teacher licensing renewal.

(U) A review of the District of Columbia public school central office budget and staffing reductions for each fiscal year compared to the level of such budget and reductions at the end of fiscal year 1995.

(V) The implementation of the discipline policy for the District of Columbia public schools in order to ensure a safe, disciplined environment conducive to learning.

(2) OTHER INFORMATION.—For each of the items described in subparagraphs (A) through (V) of paragraph (1), the long-term reform plan shall include—

(A) a statement of measurable, objective performance goals;

(B) a description of the measures of performance to be used in determining whether the Superintendent and Board of Education have met the goals;

(C) dates by which the goals shall be met;

(D) plans for monitoring and reporting progress to District of Columbia residents, the Mayor, the District of Columbia Council, the Authority, the Consensus Commission, and the appropriate congressional committees regarding the carrying out of the long-term reform plan; and

(E) the title of the management employee of the District of Columbia public schools most directly responsible for the achievement of each goal and, with respect to each such employee, the title of the employee's immediate supervisor or superior.

(c) AMENDMENTS.—The Superintendent, with the approval of the Board of Education, shall submit any amendment to the long-term reform plan to the Mayor, the District of Columbia Council, the Authority, the Consensus Commission, and the appropriate congressional committees. Any amendment to the long-term reform plan shall be consistent with the financial plan and budget for fiscal year 1996, and each financial plan and budget for a subsequent fiscal year, as the case may be, for the District of Columbia required under section 201 of the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Act of 1995.

(i) the total number of parents of minor students attending the school; and

(ii) the total number of adult students attending the school; and

(B) is endorsed by at least two-thirds of full-time teachers employed in the school.

(c) NEW SCHOOL.—An eligible applicant seeking to establish in the District of Columbia a public charter school, but not seeking to convert a District of Columbia public school or a private or independent school into a public charter school, shall file with an eligible chartering authority for approval a petition to establish a public charter school that meets the requirements of section 2202.

SEC. 2202. CONTENTS OF PETITION.

A petition under section 2201 to establish a public charter school shall include the following:

(1) A statement defining the mission and goals of the proposed school and the manner in which the school will meet the content standards, and conduct the districtwide assessments, described in section 2411(b).

(2) A statement of the need for the proposed school in the geographic area of the school site.

(3) A description of the proposed instructional goals and methods for the proposed school, which shall include, at a minimum—

(A) the area of focus of the proposed school, such as mathematics, science, or the arts, if the school will have such a focus;

(B) the methods that will be used, including classroom technology, to provide students with the knowledge, proficiency, and skills needed—

(i) to become nationally and internationally competitive students and educated individuals in the 21st century; and

(ii) to perform competitively on any districtwide assessments; and

(C) the methods that will be used to improve student self-motivation, classroom instruction, and learning for all students.

(4) A description of the scope and size of the proposed school's program that will enable students to successfully achieve the goals established by the school, including the grade levels to be served by the school and the projected and maximum enrollment of each grade level.

(5) A description of the plan for evaluating student academic achievement at the proposed school and the procedures for remedial action that will be used by the school when the academic achievement of a student falls below the expectations of the school.

(6) An operating budget for the first 2 years of the proposed school that is based on anticipated enrollment and contains—

(A) a description of the method for conducting annual audits of the financial, administrative, and programmatic operations of the school;

(B) either—

(i) an identification of the site where the school will be located, including a description of any buildings on the site and any buildings proposed to be constructed on the site; or

(ii) a timetable by which such an identification will be made;

(C) a description of any major contracts planned, with a value equal to or exceeding $10,000, for equipment and services, leases, improvements, purchases of real property, or insurance; and

(D) a timetable for commencing operations as a public charter school.

(7) A description of the proposed rules and policies for governance and operation of the proposed school.

(8) Copies of the proposed articles of incorporation and bylaws of the proposed school.

(9) The names and addresses of the members of the proposed Board of Trustees and the procedures for selecting trustees.

(10) A description of the student enrollment, admission, suspension, expulsion, and other disciplinary policies and procedures of the proposed school, and the criteria for making decisions in such areas.

(11) A description of the procedures the proposed school plans to follow to ensure the health and safety of students, employees, and guests of the school and to comply with applicable health and safety laws, and all applicable civil rights statutes and regulations of the Federal Government and the District of Columbia.

(12) An explanation of the qualifications that will be required of employees of the proposed school.

(13) An identification, and a description, of the individuals and entities submitting the petition, including their names and addresses, and the names of the organizations or corporations of which such individuals are directors or officers.

(14) A description of how parents, teachers, and other members of the community have been involved in the design and will continue to be involved in the implementation of the proposed school.

(15) A description of how parents and teachers will be provided an orientation and other training to ensure their effective participation in the operation of the public charter school.

(16) An assurance the proposed school will seek, obtain, and maintain accreditation from at least one of the following:

(A) The Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools.

(B) The Association of Independent Maryland Schools.

(C) The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

(D) The Virginia Association of Independent Schools.

(E) American Montessori Internationale.

(F) The American Montessori Society.

(G) The National Academy of Early Childhood Programs.

(H) Any other accrediting body deemed appropriate by the eligible chartering authority that granted the charter to the school.

(17) In the case that the proposed school's educational program includes preschool or prekindergarten, an assurance the proposed school will be licensed as a child development center by the District of Columbia Government not later than the first date on which such program commences.

(18) An explanation of the relationship that will exist between the public charter school and the school's employees.

(19) A statement of whether the proposed school elects to be treated as a local educational agency or a District of Columbia public school for purposes of part B of the Individuals With Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. 1411 et seq.) and section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (20 U.S.C. 794), and notwithstanding any other provision of law the eligible chartering authority shall not have the authority to approve or disapprove such election.

SEC. 2203. PROCESS FOR APPROVING OR DENYING PUBLIC CHARTER SCHOOL PETITIONS.

(a) SCHEDULE.—An eligible chartering authority shall establish a schedule for receiving petitions to establish a public charter school and shall publish any such schedule in the District of Columbia Register and newspapers of general circulation.

(b) PUBLIC HEARING.—Not later than 45 days after a petition to establish a public charter school is filed with an eligible chartering authority, the eligible chartering authority shall hold a public hearing on the petition to gather the information that is necessary for the eligible chartering authority to make the decision to approve or deny the petition.

(c) NOTICE.—Not later than 10 days prior to the scheduled date of a public hearing on a petition to establish a public charter school, an eligible chartering authority—

(1) shall publish a notice of the hearing in the District of Columbia Register and newspapers of general circulation; and

(2) shall send a written notification of the hearing date to the eligible applicant who filed the petition.

(d) APPROVAL.—Subject to subsection (i), an eligible chartering authority may approve a petition to establish a public charter school, if—

(1) the eligible chartering authority determines that the petition satisfies the requirements of this subtitle;

(2) the eligible applicant who filed the petition agrees to satisfy any condition or requirement, consistent with this subtitle and other applicable law, that is set forth in writing by the eligible chartering authority as an amendment to the petition; and

(3) the eligible chartering authority determines that the public charter school has the ability to meet the educational objectives outlined in the petition.

(e) TIMETABLE.—An eligible chartering authority shall approve or deny a petition to establish a public charter school not later than 45 days after the conclusion of the public hearing on the petition.

(f) EXTENSION.—An eligible chartering authority and an eligible applicant may agree to extend the 45-day time period referred to in subsection (e) by a period that shall not exceed 30 days.

(g) DENIAL EXPLANATION.—If an eligible chartering authority denies a petition or finds the petition to be incomplete, the eligible chartering authority shall specify in writing the reasons for its decision and indicate, when the eligible chartering authority determines appropriate, how the eligible applicant who filed the petition may revise the petition to satisfy the requirements for approval.

(h) APPROVED PETITION.—

(1) NOTICE.—Not later than 10 days after an eligible chartering authority approves a petition to establish a public charter school, the eligible chartering authority shall provide a written notice of the approval, including a copy of the approved petition and any conditions or requirements agreed to under subsection (d)(2), to the eligible applicant and to the Chief Financial Officer of the District of Columbia. The eligible chartering authority shall publish a notice of the approval of the petition in the District of Columbia Register and newspapers of general circulation.

(2) CHARTER.—The provisions described in paragraphs (1), (7), (8), (11), (16), (17), and (18) of section 2202 of a petition to establish a public charter school that are approved by an eligible chartering authority, together with any amendments to the petition containing conditions or requirements agreed to by the eligible applicant under subsection (d)(2), shall be considered a charter granted to the school by the eligible chartering authority.

(i) NUMBER OF PETITIONS.—

(1) FIRST YEAR.—For academic year 1996-1997, not more than 10 petitions to establish public charter schools may be approved under this subtitle.

(2) SUBSEQUENT YEARS.—For academic year 1997-1998 and each academic year thereafter each eligible chartering authority shall not approve more than 5 petitions to establish a public charter school under this subtitle.

(j) EXCLUSIVE AUTHORITY OF THE ELIGIBLE CHARTERING AUTHORITY.—No governmental entity, elected official, or employee of the District of Columbia shall make, participate in making, or intervene in the making of, the decision to approve or deny a petition to establish a public charter school, except for officers or employees of the eligible chartering authority with which the petition is filed.

SEC. 2204. DUTIES, POWERS, AND OTHER REQUIREMENTS, OF PUBLIC CHARTER SCHOOLS.

(a) DUTIES.—A public charter school shall comply with all of the terms and provisions of its charter.

(b) POWERS.—A public charter school shall have the following powers:

(1) To adopt a name and corporate seal, but only if the name selected includes the words "public charter school".

(2) To acquire real property for use as the public charter school's facilities, from public or private sources.

(3) To receive and disburse funds for public charter school purposes.

(4) Subject to subsection (c)(1), to secure appropriate insurance and to make contracts and leases, including agreements to procure or purchase services, equipment, and supplies.

(5) To incur debt in reasonable anticipation of the receipt of funds from the general fund of the District of Columbia or the receipt of Federal or private funds.

(6) To solicit and accept any grants or gifts for public charter school purposes, if the public charter school—

(A) does not accept any grants or gifts subject to any condition contrary to law or contrary to its charter; and

(B) maintains for financial reporting purposes separate accounts for grants or gifts.

(7) To be responsible for the public charter school's operation, including preparation of a budget and personnel matters.

(8) To sue and be sued in the public charter school's own name.

(c) PROHIBITIONS AND OTHER REQUIREMENTS.—

(1) CONTRACTING AUTHORITY.—

(A) NOTICE REQUIREMENT.—Except in the case of an emergency (as determined by the eligible chartering authority of a public charter school), with respect to any contract proposed to be awarded by the public charter school and having a value equal to or exceeding $10,000, the school shall publish a notice of a request for proposals in the District of Columbia Register and newspapers of general circulation not less than 30 days prior to the award of the contract.

(B) SUBMISSION TO THE AUTHORITY.—

(i) DEADLINE FOR SUBMISSION.—With respect to any contract described in subparagraph (A) that is awarded by a public charter school, the school shall submit to the Authority, not later than 3 days after the date on which the award is made, all bids for the contract received by the school, the name of the contractor who is awarded the contract, and the rationale for the award of the contract.

(ii) EFFECTIVE DATE OF CONTRACT.—

(I) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subclause (II), a contract described in subparagraph (A) shall become effective on the date that is 15 days after the date the school makes the submission under clause (i) with respect to the contract, or the effective date specified in the contract, whichever is later.

(II) EXCEPTION.—A contract described in subparagraph (A) shall be considered null and void if the Authority determines, within 12 days of the date the school makes the submission under clause (i) with respect to the contract, that the contract endangers the economic viability of the public charter school.

(2) TUITION.—A public charter school may not charge tuition, fees, or other mandatory payments, except to nonresident students, or for field trips or similar activities.

(3) CONTROL.—A public charter school—

(A) shall exercise exclusive control over its expenditures, administration, personnel, and instructional methods, within the limitations imposed in this subtitle; and

(B) shall be exempt from District of Columbia statutes, policies, rules, and regulations established for the District of Columbia public schools by the Superintendent, Board of Education, Mayor, District of Columbia Council, or Authority, except as otherwise provided in the school's charter or this subtitle.

(4) HEALTH AND SAFETY.—A public charter school shall maintain the health and safety of all students attending such school.

(5) CIVIL RIGHTS AND IDEA.—The Age Discrimination Act of 1975 (42 U.S.C. 6101 et seq.), title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 U.S.C. 2000d et seq.), title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (20 U.S.C. 1681 et seq.), section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 794), part B of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. 1411 et seq.), and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 12101 et seq.), shall apply to a public charter school.

(6) GOVERNANCE.—A public charter school shall be governed by a Board of Trustees in a manner consistent with the charter granted to the school and the provisions of this subtitle.

(7) OTHER STAFF.—No employee of the District of Columbia public schools may be required to accept employment with, or be assigned to, a public charter school.

(8) OTHER STUDENTS.—No student enrolled in a District of Columbia public school may be required to attend a public charter school.

(9) TAXES OR BONDS.—A public charter school shall not levy taxes or issue bonds.

(10) CHARTER REVISION.—A public charter school seeking to revise its charter shall prepare a petition for approval of the revision and file the petition with the eligible chartering authority that granted the charter. The provisions of section 2203 shall apply to such a petition in the same manner as such provisions apply to a petition to establish a public charter school.

(11) ANNUAL REPORT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—A public charter school shall submit an annual report to the eligible chartering authority that approved its charter and to the Consensus Commission. The school shall permit a member of the public to review any such report upon request.

(B) CONTENTS.—A report submitted under subparagraph (A) shall include the following data:

(i) A report on the extent to which the school is meeting its mission and goals as stated in the petition for the charter school.

(ii) Student performance on any districtwide assessments.

(iii) Grade advancement for students enrolled in the public charter school.

(iv) Graduation rates, college admission test scores, and college admission rates, if applicable.

(v) Types and amounts of parental involvement.

(vi) Official student enrollment.

(vii) Average daily attendance.

(viii) Average daily membership.

(ix) A financial statement audited by an independent certified public accountant in accordance with Government auditing standards for financial audits issued by the Comptroller General of the United States.

(x) A report on school staff indicating the qualifications and responsibilities of such staff.

(xi) A list of all donors and grantors that have contributed monetary or in-kind donations having a value equal to or exceeding $500 during the year that is the subject of the report.

(C) NONIDENTIFYING DATA.—Data described in clauses (i) through (ix) of subparagraph (B) that are included in an annual report shall not identify the individuals to whom the data pertain.

(12) CENSUS.—A public charter school shall provide to the Board of Education student enrollment data necessary for the Board of Education to comply with section 3 of article II of the Act of February 4, 1925 (D.C. Code, sec. 31-404) (relating to census of minors).

(13) COMPLAINT RESOLUTION PROCESS.—A public charter school shall establish an informal complaint resolution process.

(14) PROGRAM OF EDUCATION.—A public charter school shall provide a program of education which shall include one or more of the following:

(A) Preschool.

(B) Prekindergarten.

(C) Any grade or grades from kindergarten through grade 12.

(D) Residential education.

(E) Adult, community, continuing, and vocational education programs.

(15) NONSECTARIAN NATURE OF SCHOOLS.—A public charter school shall be nonsectarian and shall not be affiliated with a sectarian school or religious institution.

(16) NONPROFIT STATUS OF SCHOOL.—A public charter school shall be organized under the District of Columbia Nonprofit Corporation Act (D.C. Code, sec. 29-501 et seq.).

(17) IMMUNITY FROM CIVIL LIABILITY.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—A public charter school, and its incorporators, Board of Trustees, officers, employees, and volunteers, shall be immune from civil liability, both personally and professionally, for any act or omission within the scope of their official duties unless the act or omission—

(i) constitutes gross negligence;

(ii) constitutes an intentional tort; or

(iii) is criminal in nature.

(B) COMMON LAW IMMUNITY PRESERVED.—Subparagraph (A) shall not be construed to abrogate any immunity under common law of a person described in such subparagraph.

SEC. 2205. BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF A PUBLIC CHARTER SCHOOL.

(a) BOARD OF TRUSTEES.—The members of a Board of Trustees of a public charter school shall be elected or selected pursuant to the charter granted to the school. Such Board of Trustees shall have an odd number of members that does not exceed 7, of which—

(1) a majority shall be residents of the District of Columbia; and

(2) at least 2 shall be parents of a student attending the school.

(b) ELIGIBILITY.—An individual is eligible for election or selection to the Board of Trustees of a public charter school if the person—

(1) is a teacher or staff member who is employed at the school;

(2) is a parent of a student attending the school; or

(3) meets the election or selection criteria set forth in the charter granted to the school.

(c) ELECTION OR SELECTION OF PARENTS.—In the case of the first Board of Trustees of a public charter school to be elected or selected after the date on which the school is granted a charter, the election or selection of the members under subsection (a)(2) shall occur on the earliest practicable date after classes at the school have commenced. Until such date, any other members who have been elected or selected shall serve as an interim Board of Trustees. Such an interim Board of Trustees may exercise all of the powers, and shall be subject to all of the duties, of a Board of Trustees.

(d) FIDUCIARIES.—The Board of Trustees of a public charter school shall be fiduciaries of the school and shall set overall policy for the school. The Board of Trustees may make final decisions on matters related to the operation of the school, consistent with the charter granted to the school, this subtitle, and other applicable law.

SEC. 2206. STUDENT ADMISSION, ENROLLMENT, AND WITHDRAWAL.

(a) OPEN ENROLLMENT.—Enrollment in a public charter school shall be open to all students who are residents of the District of Columbia and, if space is available, to nonresident students who meet the tuition requirement in subsection (e).

(b) CRITERIA FOR ADMISSION.—A public charter school may not limit enrollment on the basis of a student's race, color, religion, national origin, language spoken, intellectual or athletic ability, measures of achievement or aptitude, or status as a student with special needs. A public charter school may limit enrollment to specific grade levels.

(c) RANDOM SELECTION.—If there are more applications to enroll in a public charter school from students who are residents of the District of Columbia than there are spaces available, students shall be admitted using a random selection process.

(d) ADMISSION TO AN EXISTING SCHOOL.—During the 5-year period beginning on the date that a petition, filed by an eligible applicant seeking to convert a District of Columbia public school or a private or independent school into a public charter school, is approved, the school may give priority in enrollment to—

(1) students enrolled in the school at the time the petition is granted;

(2) the siblings of students described in paragraph (1); and

(3) in the case of the conversion of a District of Columbia public school, students who reside within the attendance boundaries, if any, in which the school is located.

(e) NONRESIDENT STUDENTS.—Nonresident students shall pay tuition to attend a public charter school at the applicable rate established for District of Columbia public schools administered by the Board of Education for the type of program in which the student is enrolled.

(f) STUDENT WITHDRAWAL.—A student may withdraw from a public charter school at any time and, if otherwise eligible, enroll in a District of Columbia public school administered by the Board of Education.

(g) EXPULSION AND SUSPENSION.—The principal of a public charter school may expel or suspend a student from the school based on criteria set forth in the charter granted to the school.

SEC. 2207. EMPLOYEES.

(a) EXTENDED LEAVE OF ABSENCE WITHOUT PAY.—

(1) LEAVE OF ABSENCE FROM DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—The Superintendent shall grant, upon request, an extended leave of absence, without pay, to an employee of the District of Columbia public schools for the purpose of permitting the employee to accept a position at a public charter school for a 2-year term.

(2) REQUEST FOR EXTENSION.—At the end of a 2-year term referred to in paragraph (1), an employee granted an extended leave of absence without pay under such paragraph may submit a request to the Superintendent for an extension of the leave of absence for an unlimited number of 2-year terms. The Superintendent may not unreasonably (as determined by the eligible chartering authority) withhold approval of the request.

(3) RIGHTS UPON TERMINATION OF LEAVE.—An employee granted an extended leave of absence without pay for the purpose described in paragraph (1) or (2) shall have the same rights and benefits under law upon termination of such leave of absence as an employee of the District of Columbia public schools who is granted an extended leave of absence without pay for any other purpose.

(b) RETIREMENT SYSTEM.—

(1) CREDITABLE SERVICE.—An employee of a public charter school who has received a leave of absence under subsection (a) shall receive creditable service, as defined in section 2604 of D.C. Law 2-139, effective March 3, 1979 (D.C. Code, sec. 1-627.4) and the rules established under such section, for the period of the employee's employment at the public charter school.

(2) AUTHORITY TO ESTABLISH SEPARATE SYSTEM.—A public charter school may establish a retirement system for employees under its authority.

(3) ELECTION OF RETIREMENT SYSTEM.—A former employee of the District of Columbia public schools who becomes an employee of a public charter school within 60 days after the date the employee's employment with the District of Columbia public schools is terminated may, at the time the employee commences employment with the public charter school, elect—

(A) to remain in a District of Columbia Government retirement system and continue to receive creditable service for the period of their employment at a public charter school; or

(B) to transfer into a retirement system established by the public charter school pursuant to paragraph (2).

(4) PROHIBITED EMPLOYMENT CONDITIONS.—No public charter school may require a former employee of the District of Columbia public schools to transfer to the public charter school's retirement system as a condition of employment.

(5) CONTRIBUTIONS.—

(A) EMPLOYEES ELECTING NOT TO TRANSFER.—In the case of a former employee of the District of Columbia public schools who elects to remain in a District of Columbia Government retirement system pursuant to paragraph (3)(A), the public charter school that employs the person shall make the same contribution to such system on behalf of the person as the District of Columbia would have been required to make if the person had continued to be an employee of the District of Columbia public schools.

(B) EMPLOYEES ELECTING TO TRANSFER.—In the case of a former employee of the District of Columbia public schools who elects to transfer into a retirement system of a public charter school pursuant to paragraph (3)(B), the applicable District of Columbia Government retirement system from which the former employee is transferring shall compute the employee's contribution to that system and transfer this amount, to the retirement system of the public charter school.

(c) EMPLOYMENT STATUS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law and except as provided in this section, an employee of a public charter school shall not be considered to be an employee of the District of Columbia Government for any purpose.

SEC. 2208. REDUCED FARES FOR PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION.

A student attending a public charter school shall be eligible for reduced fares on the Metrobus and Metrorail Transit System on the same terms and conditions as are applicable under section 2 of D.C. Law 2-152, effective March 9, 1979 (D.C. Code, sec. 44-216 et seq.), to a student attending a District of Columbia public school.

SEC. 2209. DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA PUBLIC SCHOOL SERVICES TO PUBLIC CHARTER SCHOOLS.

The Superintendent may provide services, such as facilities maintenance, to public charter schools. All compensation for costs of such services shall be subject to negotiation and mutual agreement between a public charter school and the Superintendent.

SEC. 2210. APPLICATION OF LAW.

(a) ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY EDUCATION ACT OF 1965.—

(1) TREATMENT AS LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCY.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—For any fiscal year, a public charter school shall be considered to be a local educational agency for purposes of part A of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6311 et seq.), and shall be eligible for assistance under such part, if the fraction the numerator of which is the number of low-income students enrolled in the public charter school during the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which the determination is made and the denominator of which is the total number of students enrolled in such public charter school for such preceding year, is equal to or greater than the lowest fraction determined for any District of Columbia public school receiving assistance under such part A where the numerator is the number of low-income students enrolled in such public school for such preceding year and the denominator is the total number of students enrolled in such public school for such preceding year.

(B) DEFINITION.—For the purposes of this subsection, the term "low-income student" means a student from a low-income family determined according to the measure adopted by the District of Columbia to carry out the provisions of part A of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 that is consistent with the measures described in section 1113(a)(5) of such Act (20 U.S.C. 6313(a)(5)) for the fiscal year for which the determination is made.

(2) ALLOCATION FOR FISCAL YEARS 1996 THROUGH 1998.—

(A) PUBLIC CHARTER SCHOOLS.—For fiscal years 1996 through 1998, each public charter school that is eligible to receive assistance under part A of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 shall receive a portion of the District of Columbia's total allocation under such part which bears the same ratio to such total allocation as the number described in subparagraph (C) bears to the number described in subparagraph (D).

(B) DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—For fiscal years 1996 through 1998, the District of Columbia public schools shall receive a portion of the District of Columbia's total allocation under part A of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 which bears the same ratio to such total allocation as the total of the numbers described in clauses (ii) and (iii) of subparagraph (D) bears to the aggregate total described in subparagraph (D).

(C) NUMBER OF ELIGIBLE STUDENTS ENROLLED IN THE PUBLIC CHARTER SCHOOL.—The number described in this subparagraph is the number of low-income students enrolled in the public charter school during the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which the determination is made.

(D) AGGREGATE NUMBER OF ELIGIBLE STUDENTS.—The number described in this subparagraph is the aggregate total of the following numbers:

(i) The number of low-income students who, during the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which the determination is made, were enrolled in a public charter school.

(ii) The number of low-income students who, during the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which the determination is made, were enrolled in a District of Columbia public school selected to provide services under part A of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

(iii) The number of low-income students who, during the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which the determination is made—

(I) were enrolled in a private or independent school; and

(II) resided in an attendance area of a District of Columbia public school selected to provide services under part A of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

(3) ALLOCATION FOR FISCAL YEAR 1999 AND THEREAFTER.—

(A) CALCULATION BY SECRETARY.—Notwithstanding sections 1124(a)(2), 1124A(a)(4), and 1125(d) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6333(a)(2), 6334(a)(4), and 6335(d)), for fiscal year 1999 and each fiscal year thereafter, the total allocation under part A of title I of such Act for all local educational agencies in the District of Columbia, including public charter schools that are eligible to receive assistance under such part, shall be calculated by the Secretary of Education. In making such calculation, such Secretary shall treat all such local educational agencies as if such agencies were a single local educational agency for the District of Columbia.

(B) ALLOCATION.—

(i) PUBLIC CHARTER SCHOOLS.—For fiscal year 1999 and each fiscal year thereafter, each public charter school that is eligible to receive assistance under part A of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 shall receive a portion of the total allocation calculated under subparagraph (A) which bears the same ratio to such total allocation as the number described in paragraph (2)(C) bears to the aggregate total described in paragraph (2)(D).

(ii) DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA PUBLIC SCHOOL.—For fiscal year 1999 and each fiscal year thereafter, the District of Columbia public schools shall receive a portion of the total allocation calculated under subparagraph (A) which bears the same ratio to such total allocation as the total of the numbers described in clauses (ii) and (iii) of paragraph (2)(D) bears to the aggregate total described in paragraph (2)(D).

(4) USE OF ESEA FUNDS.—The Board of Education may not direct a public charter school in the school's use of funds under part A of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

(5) ESEA REQUIREMENTS.—Except as provided in paragraph (6), a public charter school receiving funds under part A of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6301 et seq.) shall comply with all requirements applicable to schools receiving such funds.

(6) INAPPLICABILITY OF CERTAIN ESEA PROVISIONS.—The following provisions of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 shall not apply to a public charter school:

(A) Paragraphs (5) and (8) of section 1112(b) (20 U.S.C. 6312(b)).

(B) Paragraphs (1)(A), (1)(B), (1)(C), (1)(D), (1)(F), (1)(H), and (3) of section 1112(c) (20 U.S.C. 6312(c)).

(C) Section 1113 (20 U.S.C. 6313).

(D) Section 1115A (20 U.S.C. 6316).

(E) Subsections (a), (b), and (c) of section 1116 (20 U.S.C. 6317).

(F) Subsections (d) and (e) of section 1118 (20 U.S.C. 6319).

(G) Section 1120 (20 U.S.C. 6321).

(H) Subsections (a) and (c) of section 1120A (20 U.S.C. 6322).

(I) Section 1126 (20 U.S.C. 6337).

(b) PROPERTY AND SALES TAXES.—A public charter school shall be exempt from District of Columbia property and sales taxes.

(c) EDUCATION OF CHILDREN WITH DISABILITIES.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, each public charter school shall elect to be treated as a local educational agency or a District of Columbia public school for the purpose of part B of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. 1411 et seq.) and section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 794).

SEC. 2211. POWERS AND DUTIES OF ELIGIBLE CHARTERING AUTHORITIES.

(a) OVERSIGHT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—An eligible chartering authority—

(A) shall monitor the operations of each public charter school to which the eligible chartering authority has granted a charter;

(B) shall ensure that each such school complies with applicable laws and the provisions of the charter granted to such school; and

(C) shall monitor the progress of each such school in meeting student academic achievement expectations specified in the charter granted to such school.

(2) PRODUCTION OF BOOKS AND RECORDS.—An eligible chartering authority may require a public charter school to which the eligible chartering authority has granted a charter to produce any book, record, paper, or document, if the eligible chartering authority determines that such production is necessary for the eligible chartering authority to carry out its functions under this subtitle.

(b) FEES.—

(1) APPLICATION FEE.—An eligible chartering authority may charge an eligible applicant a fee, not to exceed $150, for processing a petition to establish a public charter school.

(2) ADMINISTRATION FEE.—In the case of an eligible chartering authority that has granted a charter to a public charter school, the eligible chartering authority may charge the school a fee, not to exceed one-half of one percent of the annual budget of the school, to cover the cost of undertaking the ongoing administrative responsibilities of the eligible chartering authority with respect to the school that are described in this subtitle. The school shall pay the fee to the eligible chartering authority not later than November 15 of each year.

(c) IMMUNITY FROM CIVIL LIABILITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—An eligible chartering authority, the Board of Trustees of such an eligible chartering authority, and a director, officer, employee, or volunteer of such an eligible chartering authority, shall be immune from civil liability, both personally and professionally, for any act or omission within the scope of their official duties unless the act or omission—

(A) constitutes gross negligence;

(B) constitutes an intentional tort; or

(C) is criminal in nature.

(2) COMMON LAW IMMUNITY PRESERVED.—Paragraph (1) shall not be construed to abrogate any immunity under common law of a person described in such paragraph.

(d) ANNUAL REPORT.—On or before July 30 of each year, each eligible chartering authority that issues a charter under this subtitle shall submit a report to the Mayor, the District of Columbia Council, the Board of Education, the Secretary of Education, the appropriate congressional committees, and the Consensus Commission that includes the following information:

(1) A list of the members of the eligible chartering authority and the addresses of such members.

(2) A list of the dates and places of each meeting of the eligible chartering authority during the year preceding the report.

(3) The number of petitions received by the eligible chartering authority for the conversion of a District of Columbia public school or a private or independent school to a public charter school, and for the creation of a new school as a public charter school.

(4) The number of petitions described in paragraph (3) that were approved and the number that were denied, as well as a summary of the reasons for which such petitions were denied.

(5) A description of any new charters issued by the eligible chartering authority during the year preceding the report.

(6) A description of any charters renewed by the eligible chartering authority during the year preceding the report.

(7) A description of any charters revoked by the eligible chartering authority during the year preceding the report.

(8) A description of any charters refused renewal by the eligible chartering authority during the year preceding the report.

(9) Any recommendations the eligible chartering authority has concerning ways to improve the administration of public charter schools.

SEC. 2212. CHARTER RENEWAL.

(a) TERM.—A charter granted to a public charter school shall remain in force for a 5-year period, but may be renewed for an unlimited number of times, each time for a 5-year period.

(b) APPLICATION FOR CHARTER RENEWAL.—In the case of a public charter school that desires to renew its charter, the Board of Trustees of the school shall file an application to renew the charter with the eligible chartering authority that granted the charter not later than 120 days nor earlier than 365 days before the expiration of the charter. The application shall contain the following:

(1) A report on the progress of the public charter school in achieving the goals, student academic achievement expectations, and other terms of the approved charter.

(2) All audited financial statements for the public charter school for the preceding 4 years.

(c) APPROVAL OF CHARTER RENEWAL APPLICATION.—The eligible chartering authority that granted a charter shall approve an application to renew the charter that is filed in accordance with subsection (b), except that the eligible chartering authority shall not approve such application if the eligible chartering authority determines that—

(1) the school committed a material violation of applicable laws or a material violation of the conditions, terms, standards, or procedures set forth in its charter, including violations relating to the education of children with disabilities; or

(2) the school failed to meet the goals and student academic achievement expectations set forth in its charter.

(d) PROCEDURES FOR CONSIDERATION OF CHARTER RENEWAL.—

(1) NOTICE OF RIGHT TO HEARING.—An eligible chartering authority that has received an application to renew a charter that is filed by a Board of Trustees in accordance with subsection (b) shall provide to the Board of Trustees written notice of the right to an informal hearing on the application. The eligible chartering authority shall provide the notice not later than 15 days after the date on which the eligible chartering authority received the application.

(2) REQUEST FOR HEARING.—Not later than 15 days after the date on which a Board of Trustees receives a notice under paragraph (1), the Board of Trustees may request, in writing, an informal hearing on the application before the eligible chartering authority.

(3) DATE AND TIME OF HEARING.—

(A) NOTICE.—Upon receiving a timely written request for a hearing under paragraph (2), an eligible chartering authority shall set a date and time for the hearing and shall provide reasonable notice of the date and time, as well as the procedures to be followed at the hearing, to the Board of Trustees.

(B) DEADLINE.—An informal hearing under this subsection shall take place not later than 30 days after an eligible chartering authority receives a timely written request for the hearing under paragraph (2).

(4) FINAL DECISION.—

(A) DEADLINE.—An eligible chartering authority shall render a final decision, in writing, on an application to renew a charter—

(i) not later than 30 days after the date on which the eligible chartering authority provided the written notice of the right to a hearing, in the case of an application with respect to which such a hearing is not held; and

(ii) not later than 30 days after the date on which the hearing is concluded, in the case of an application with respect to which a hearing is held.

(B) REASONS FOR NONRENEWAL.—An eligible chartering authority that denies an application to renew a charter shall state in its decision the reasons for denial.

(5) ALTERNATIVES UPON NONRENEWAL.—If an eligible chartering authority denies an application to renew a charter granted to a public charter school, the Board of Education may—

(A) manage the school directly until alternative arrangements can be made for students at the school; or

(B) place the school in a probationary status that requires the school to take remedial actions, to be determined by the Board of Education, that directly relate to the grounds for the denial.

(6) JUDICIAL REVIEW.—

(A) AVAILABILITY OF REVIEW.—A decision by an eligible chartering authority to deny an application to renew a charter shall be subject to judicial review by an appropriate court of the District of Columbia.

(B) STANDARD OF REVIEW.—A decision by an eligible chartering authority to deny an application to renew a charter shall be upheld unless the decision is arbitrary and capricious or clearly erroneous.

SEC. 2213. CHARTER REVOCATION.

(a) CHARTER OR LAW VIOLATIONS.—An eligible chartering authority that has granted a charter to a public charter school may revoke the charter if the eligible chartering authority determines that the school has committed a violation of applicable laws or a material violation of the conditions, terms, standards, or procedures set forth in the charter, including violations relating to the education of children with disabilities.

(b) FISCAL MISMANAGEMENT.—An eligible chartering authority that has granted a charter to a public charter school shall revoke the charter if the eligible chartering authority determines that the school—

(1) has engaged in a pattern of nonadherence to generally accepted accounting principles;

(2) has engaged in a pattern of fiscal mismanagement; or

(3) is no longer economically viable.

(c) PROCEDURES FOR CONSIDERATION OF REVOCATION.—

(1) NOTICE OF RIGHT TO HEARING.—An eligible chartering authority that is proposing to revoke a charter granted to a public charter school shall provide to the Board of Trustees of the school a written notice stating the reasons for the proposed revocation. The notice shall inform the Board of Trustees of the right of the Board of Trustees to an informal hearing on the proposed revocation.

(2) REQUEST FOR HEARING.—Not later than 15 days after the date on which a Board of Trustees receives a notice under paragraph (1), the Board of Trustees may request, in writing, an informal hearing on the proposed revocation before the eligible chartering authority.

(3) DATE AND TIME OF HEARING.—

(A) NOTICE.—Upon receiving a timely written request for a hearing under paragraph (2), an eligible chartering authority shall set a date and time for the hearing and shall provide reasonable notice of the date and time, as well as the procedures to be followed at the hearing, to the Board of Trustees.

(B) DEADLINE.—An informal hearing under this subsection shall take place not later than 30 days after an eligible chartering authority receives a timely written request for the hearing under paragraph (2).

(4) FINAL DECISION.—

(A) DEADLINE.—An eligible chartering authority shall render a final decision, in writing, on the revocation of a charter—

(i) not later than 30 days after the date on which the eligible chartering authority provided the written notice of the right to a hearing, in the case of a proposed revocation with respect to which such a hearing is not held; and

(ii) not later than 30 days after the date on which the hearing is concluded, in the case of a proposed revocation with respect to which a hearing is held.

(B) REASONS FOR REVOCATION.—An eligible chartering authority that revokes a charter shall state in its decision the reasons for the revocation.

(5) ALTERNATIVES UPON REVOCATION.—If an eligible chartering authority revokes a charter granted to a public charter school, the Board of Education may manage the school directly until alternative arrangements can be made for students at the school.

(6) JUDICIAL REVIEW.—

(A) AVAILABILITY OF REVIEW.—A decision by an eligible chartering authority to revoke a charter shall be subject to judicial review by an appropriate court of the District of Columbia.

(B) STANDARD OF REVIEW.—A decision by an eligible chartering authority to revoke a charter shall be upheld unless the decision is arbitrary and capricious or clearly erroneous.

SEC. 2214. PUBLIC CHARTER SCHOOL BOARD.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—There is established within the District of Columbia Government a Public Charter School Board (in this section referred to as the "Board").

(2) MEMBERSHIP.—The Secretary of Education shall present the Mayor a list of 15 individuals the Secretary determines are qualified to serve on the Board. The Mayor, in consultation with the District of Columbia City Council, shall appoint 7 individuals from the list to serve on the Board. The Secretary of Education shall recommend, and the Mayor shall appoint, members to serve on the Board so that a knowledge of each of the following areas is represented on the Board:

(A) Research about and experience in student learning, quality teaching, and evaluation of and accountability in successful schools.

(B) The operation of a financially sound enterprise, including leadership and management techniques, as well as the budgeting and accounting skills critical to the startup of a successful enterprise.

(C) The educational, social, and economic development needs of the District of Columbia.

(D) The needs and interests of students and parents in the District of Columbia, as well as methods of involving parents and other members of the community in individual schools.

(3) VACANCIES.—Any time there is a vacancy in the membership of the Board, the Secretary of Education shall present the Mayor a list of 3 individuals the Secretary determines are qualified to serve on the Board. The Mayor, in consultation with the District of Columbia Council, shall appoint 1 individual from the list to serve on the Board. The Secretary shall recommend and the Mayor shall appoint, such member of the Board taking into consideration the criteria described in paragraph (2). Any member appointed to fill a vacancy occurring prior to the expiration of the term of a predecessor shall be appointed only for the remainder of the term.

(4) TIME LIMIT FOR APPOINTMENTS.—If, at any time, the Mayor does not appoint members to the Board sufficient to bring the Board's membership to 7 within 30 days of receiving a recommendation from the Secretary of Education under paragraph (2) or (3), the Secretary shall make such appointments as are necessary to bring the membership of the Board to 7.

(5) TERMS OF MEMBERS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Members of the Board shall serve for terms of 4 years, except that, of the initial appointments made under paragraph (2), the Mayor shall designate—

(i) 2 members to serve terms of 3 years;

(ii) 2 members to serve terms of 2 years; and

(iii) 1 member to serve a term of 1 year.

(B) REAPPOINTMENT.—Members of the Board shall be eligible to be reappointed for one 4-year term beyond their initial term of appointment.

(6) INDEPENDENCE.—No person employed by the District of Columbia public schools or a public charter school shall be eligible to be a member of the Board or to be employed by the Board.

(b) OPERATIONS OF THE BOARD.—

(1) CHAIR.—The members of the Board shall elect from among their membership 1 individual to serve as Chair. Such election shall be held each year after members of the Board have been appointed to fill any vacancies caused by the regular expiration of previous members' terms, or when requested by a majority vote of the members of the Board.

(2) QUORUM.—A majority of the members of the Board, not including any positions that may be vacant, shall constitute a quorum sufficient for conducting the business of the Board.

(3) MEETINGS.—The Board shall meet at the call of the Chair, subject to the hearing requirements of sections 2203, 2212(d)(3), and 2213(c)(3).

(c) NO COMPENSATION FOR SERVICE.—Members of the Board shall serve without pay, but may receive reimbursement for any reasonable and necessary expenses incurred by reason of service on the Board.

(d) PERSONNEL AND RESOURCES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to such rules as may be made by the Board, the Chair shall have the power to appoint, terminate, and fix the pay of an Executive Director and such other personnel of the Board as the Chair considers necessary, but no individual so appointed shall be paid in excess of the rate payable for level EG–16 of the Educational Service of the District of Columbia.

(2) SPECIAL RULE.—The Board is authorized to use the services, personnel, and facilities of the District of Columbia.

(e) EXPENSES OF BOARD.—Any expenses of the Board shall be paid from such funds as may be available to the Mayor.

(f) AUDIT.—The Board shall provide for an audit of the financial statements of the Board by an independent certified public accountant in accordance with Government auditing standards for financial audits issued by the Comptroller General of the United States.

(g) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this section and conducting the Board's functions required by this subtitle, there are authorized to be appropriated $300,000 for fiscal year 1996 and such sums as may be necessary for each of the 4 succeeding fiscal years.

SEC. 2215. FEDERAL ENTITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The following Federal agencies and federally established entities are encouraged to explore whether it is feasible for the agency or entity to establish one or more public charter schools:

(1) The Library of Congress.

(2) The National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

(3) The Drug Enforcement Administration.

(4) The National Science Foundation.

(5) The Department of Justice.

(6) The Department of Defense.

(7) The Department of Education.

(8) The Smithsonian Institution, including the National Zoological Park, the National Museum of American History, the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, and the National Gallery of Art.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 120 days after date of enactment of this Act, any agency or institution described in subsection (a) that has explored the feasibility of establishing a public charter school shall report its determination on the feasibility to the appropriate committees of the Congress.

Subtitle C—Even Start

SEC. 2301. AMENDMENTS FOR EVEN START PROGRAMS.

(a) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Section 1002 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6302) is amended by striking subsection (b) and inserting the following:

"(b) EVEN START.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—For the purpose of carrying out part B, there are authorized to be appropriated $118,000,000 for fiscal year 1995 and such sums as may be necessary for each of the four succeeding fiscal years.

"(2) DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.—For the purpose of carrying out Even Start programs in the District of Columbia described in section 1211, there are authorized to be appropriated—

"(A) $2,000,000 for fiscal year 1996;

"(B) $3,500,000 for fiscal year 1997;

"(C) $5,000,000 for fiscal year 1998;

"(D) $5,000,000 for fiscal year 1999; and

"(E) $5,000,000 for fiscal year 2000.".

(b) EVEN START FAMILY-LITERACY PROGRAMS.—Part B of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6361 et seq.) is amended—

(1) in section 1202(a)(1) (20 U.S.C. 6362(a)(1)), by inserting "(1)" after "1002(b)";

(2) in section 1202(b) (20 U.S.C. 6362(b)), by inserting "(1)" after "1002(b)";

(3) in section 1202(d)(3) (20 U.S.C. 6362(d)(3)), by inserting "(1)" after "1002(b)";

(4) in section 1204(a) (20 U.S.C. 6364(a)), by inserting "intensive" after "cost of providing";

(5) in section 1205(4) (20 U.S.C. 6365(4)), by inserting ", intensive" after "high-quality"; and

(6) by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 1211. DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA EVEN START INITIATIVES.

"(a) DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA PROGRAM AUTHORIZED.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—In addition to any grant for the District of Columbia authorized under section 1202, the Secretary shall provide grants, on a competitive basis, to eligible entities to enable such entities to carry out Even Start programs in the District of Columbia that build on the findings of the National Evaluation of the Even Start Family Literacy Program, such as providing intensive services in early childhood education, parent training, and adult literacy or adult education.

"(2) NUMBER OF GRANTS.—The Secretary shall award—

"(A) not more than 8 grants under this section for fiscal year 1996;

"(B) not more than 14 grants under this section for fiscal year 1997;

"(C) not more than 20 grants under this section for each of the fiscal years 1998 and 1999; and

"(D) not more than 20 grants under this section, or such number as the Secretary determines appropriate taking into account the results of evaluations described in subsection (i), for fiscal year 2000.

"(b) DEFINITION.—For the purpose of this section, the term 'eligible entity' means a partnership composed of at least—

"(1) a District of Columbia public school;

"(2) the local educational agency in existence on September 1, 1995 for the District of Columbia, any other public organization, or an institution of higher education (as defined in section 1201(a) of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1141(a))); and

"(3) a private nonprofit community-based organization.

"(c) USES OF FUNDS; FEDERAL SHARE.—

"(1) COMPLIANCE.—Each eligible entity that receives funds under this section shall comply with section 1204(a) and 1204(b)(3), relating to the use of such funds.

"(2) FEDERAL SHARE.—Each program funded under this section is subject to the Federal share requirement of section 1204(b)(1), except that the Secretary may waive that requirement, in whole or in part, for any eligible entity that demonstrates to the Secretary's satisfaction that such entity otherwise would not be able to participate in the program under this section.

"(3) MINIMUM.—Except as provided in paragraph (4), each eligible entity selected to receive a grant under this section shall receive not more than $250,000 in any fiscal year, except that the Secretary may increase such amount if the Secretary determines that—

"(A) such entity needs additional funds to be effective; and

"(B) the increase will not reduce the amount of funds available to other eligible entities that receive funds under this section.

"(4) REMAINING FUNDS.—If funds remain after payments are made under paragraph (3) for any fiscal year, the Secretary shall make such remaining funds available to each eligible entity receiving a grant under this section for such year in an amount that bears the same relation to such funds as the amount each such entity received under this section bears to the amount all such entities received under this section.

"(d) PROGRAM ELEMENTS.—Each program assisted under this section shall comply with the program elements described in section 1205, including intensive high quality instruction programs of early childhood education, parent training, and adult literacy or adult education.

"(e) ELIGIBLE PARTICIPANTS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Individuals eligible to participate in a program under this section are—

"(A) the parent or parents of a child described in subparagraph (B), or any other adult who is substantially involved in the day-to-day care of the child, if such parent or adult—

"(i) is eligible to participate in an adult education program under the Adult Education Act; or

"(ii) is attending, or is eligible by age to attend, a District of Columbia public school; and

"(B) any child, from birth through age 7, of an individual described in subparagraph (A).

"(2) ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS.—The eligibility factors described in section 1206(b) shall apply to programs under this section, except that for purposes of this section—

"(A) the reference in paragraph (1) to subsection (a) shall be read to refer to paragraph (1); and

"(B) references in such section to this part shall be read to refer to this section.

"(f) APPLICATIONS.—Each eligible entity that wishes to receive a grant under this section shall submit an application to the Secretary at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary may require.

"(g) SELECTION OF GRANTEES.—In awarding grants under this section, the Secretary shall—

"(1) use the selection criteria described in subparagraphs (A) through (F), and (H), of section 1208(a)(1); and

"(2) give priority to applications for programs that—

"(A) target services to schools in which a schoolwide program is being conducted under section 1114; or

"(B) are located in areas designated as empowerment zones or enterprise communities.

"(h) DURATION OF PROGRAMS.—The priority for subgrants described in section 1208(a)(2), and the progress requirement described in section 1208(b)(4), shall apply to grants made under this section, except that—

"(1) references in those sections to the State educational agency and to subgrants shall be read to refer to the Secretary and to grants under this section, respectively; and

"(2) notwithstanding section 1208(b), the Secretary shall not provide continuation funding to a grant recipient under this section if the Secretary determines, after affording the recipient notice and an opportunity for a hearing, that the recipient has not made substantial progress in accomplishing the objectives of this section.

"(i) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE AND EVALUATION.—

"(1) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—(A) The Secretary shall use not more than 5 percent of the amounts authorized under section 1002(b)(2) for any fiscal year—

"(i) to provide technical assistance to eligible entities, including providing funds to one or more District of Columbia nonprofit organizations to enable such organizations to provide technical assistance to eligible entities in the areas of community development and coalition building; and

"(ii) for the evaluation conducted pursuant to paragraph (2).

"(B) The Secretary shall allocate 5 percent of the amounts authorized under section 1002(b)(2) for any fiscal year to enter into a contract with the National Center for Family Literacy for the provision of technical assistance to eligible entities.

"(2) EVALUATION.—(A) The Secretary shall use funds available under paragraph (1)(A)—

"(i) to provide for independent evaluations of programs under this section in order to determine the effectiveness of such programs in providing high quality family literacy services, including—

"(I) intensive and high quality early childhood education;

"(II) intensive and high quality services in adult literacy or adult education;

"(III) intensive and high quality services in parent training;

"(IV) coordination with related programs; and

"(V) training of related personnel in appropriate skill areas; and

"(ii) to determine if the grant amount provided to eligible recipients to carry out such projects is appropriate to accomplish the objectives of this section.

"(B)(i) Such evaluation shall be conducted by individuals not directly involved in the administration of a program operated with funds provided under this section. Such independent evaluators and the program administrators shall jointly develop evaluation criteria which provide for appropriate analysis of the factors listed in subparagraph (A).

"(ii) In order to determine a program's effectiveness, each evaluation shall contain objective measures of such effectiveness, and whenever feasible, shall contain the specific views of program participants about such programs.

"(C) The Secretary shall prepare and submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report regarding the results of such evaluations not later than March 1, 1999. The Secretary shall provide an interim report regarding the results of such evaluations by March 1, 1998.".

Subtitle D—World Class Schools Task Force, Core Curriculum, Content Standards, Assessments, and Promotion Gates

PART 1—WORLD CLASS SCHOOLS TASK FORCE, CORE CURRICULUM, CONTENT STANDARDS, AND ASSESSMENTS

SEC. 2411. GRANT AUTHORIZED AND RECOMMENDATION REQUIRED.

(a) GRANT AUTHORIZED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Superintendent is authorized to award a grant to a World Class Schools Task Force to enable such task force to make the recommendation described in subsection (b).

(2) DEFINITION.—For the purpose of this subtitle, the term "World Class Schools Task Force" means 1 nonprofit organization located in the District of Columbia that—

(A) has a national reputation for advocating content standards;

(B) has a national reputation for advocating a strong liberal arts curriculum;

(C) has experience with at least 4 urban school districts for the purpose of establishing content standards;

(D) has developed and managed professional development programs in science, mathematics, the humanities and the arts; and

(E) is governed by an independent board of directors composed of citizens with a variety of experiences in education and public policy.

(b) RECOMMENDATION REQUIRED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The World Class Schools Task Force shall recommend to the Superintendent, the Board of Education, and the District of Columbia Goals Panel the following:

(A) Content standards in the core academic subjects that are developed by working with the District of Columbia community, which standards shall be developed not later than 12 months after the date of enactment of this Act.

(B) A core curriculum developed by working with the District of Columbia community, which curriculum shall include the teaching of computer skills.

(C) Districtwide assessments for measuring student achievement in accordance with content standards developed under subparagraph (A). Such assessments shall be developed at several grade levels, including at a minimum, the grade levels with respect to which the Superintendent establishes promotion gates under section 2421. To the extent feasible, such assessments shall, at a minimum, be designed to provide information that permits comparisons between—

(i) individual District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools; and

(ii) individual students attending such schools.

(D) Model professional development programs for teachers using the standards and curriculum developed under subparagraphs (A) and (B).

(2) SPECIAL RULE.—The World Class Schools Task Force is encouraged, to the extent practicable, to develop districtwide assessments described in paragraph (1)(C) that permit comparisons among—

(A) individual District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools, and individual students attending such schools; and

(B) students of other nations.

(c) CONTENT.—The content standards and assessments recommended under subsection (b) shall be judged by the World Class Schools Task Force to be world class, including having a level of quality and rigor, or being analogous to content standards and assessments of other States or nations (including nations whose students historically score high on international studies of student achievement).

(d) SUBMISSION TO BOARD OF EDUCATION FOR ADOPTION.—If the content standards, curriculum, assessments, and programs recommended under subsection (b) are approved by the Superintendent, the Superintendent may submit such content standards, curriculum, assessments, and programs to the Board of Education for adoption.

SEC. 2412. CONSULTATION.

The World Class Schools Task Force shall conduct its duties under this part in consultation with—

(1) the District of Columbia Goals Panel;

(2) officials of the District of Columbia public schools who have been identified by the Superintendent as having responsibilities relevant to this part, including the Deputy Superintendent for Curriculum;

(3) the District of Columbia community, with particular attention given to educators, and parent and business organizations; and

(4) any other persons or groups that the task force deems appropriate.

SEC. 2413. ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS.

The World Class Schools Task Force shall ensure public access to its proceedings (other than proceedings, or portions of proceedings, relating to internal personnel and management matters) that are relevant to its duties under this part and shall make available to the public, at reasonable cost, transcripts of such proceedings.

SEC. 2414. CONSULTANTS.

Upon the request of the World Class Schools Task Force, the head of any department or agency of the Federal Government may detail any of the personnel of such agency to such task force to assist such task force in carrying out such task force's duties under this part.

SEC. 2415. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There are authorized to be appropriated $2,000,000 for fiscal year 1996 to carry out this part. Such funds shall remain available until expended.

PART 2—PROMOTION GATES

SEC. 2421. PROMOTION GATES.

(a) KINDERGARTEN THROUGH 4TH GRADE.—Not later than one year after the date of adoption in accordance with section 2411(d) of the assessments described in section 2411(b)(1)(C), the Superintendent shall establish and implement promotion gates for mathematics, reading, and writing, for not less than 1 grade level from kindergarten through grade 4, including at least grade 4, and shall establish dates for establishing such other promotion gates for other subject areas.

(b) 5TH THROUGH 8TH GRADES.—Not later than one year after the adoption in accordance with section 2411(d) of the assessments described in section 2411(b)(1)(C), the Superintendent shall establish and implement promotion gates with respect to not less than one grade level from grade 5 through grade 8, including at least grade 8.

(c) 9TH THROUGH 12TH GRADES.—Not later than one year after the adoption in accordance with section 2411(d) of the assessments described in section 2411(b)(1)(C), the Superintendent shall establish and implement promotion gates with respect to not less than one grade level from grade 9 through grade 12, including at least grade 12.

Subtitle E—Per Capita District of Columbia Public School and Public Charter School Funding

SEC. 2501. ANNUAL BUDGETS FOR SCHOOLS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—For fiscal year 1997 and for each subsequent fiscal year, the Mayor shall make annual payments from the general fund of the District of Columbia in accordance with the formula established under subsection (b).

(b) FORMULA.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Mayor and the District of Columbia Council, in consultation with the Board of Education and the Superintendent, shall establish on or before April 15, 1996, a formula to determine the amount of—

(A) the annual payment to the Board of Education for the operating expenses of the District of Columbia public schools, which for purposes of this paragraph includes the operating expenses of the Board of Education and the Office of the Superintendent; and

(B) the annual payment to each public charter school for the operating expenses of each public charter school.

(2) FORMULA CALCULATION.—Except as provided in paragraph (3), the amount of the annual payment under paragraph (1) shall be calculated by multiplying a uniform dollar amount used in the formula established under such paragraph by—

(A) the number of students calculated under section 2502 that are enrolled at District of Columbia public schools, in the case of the payment under paragraph (1)(A); or

(B) the number of students calculated under section 2502 that are enrolled at each public charter school, in the case of a payment under paragraph (1)(B).

(3) Exceptions.—

(A) Formula.—Notwithstanding paragraph (2), the Mayor and the District of Columbia Council, in consultation with the Board of Education and the Superintendent, may adjust the formula to increase or decrease the amount of the annual payment to the District of Columbia public schools or each public charter school based on a calculation of—

(i) the number of students served by such schools in certain grade levels; and

(ii) the cost of educating students at such certain grade levels.

(B) Payment.—Notwithstanding paragraph (2), the Mayor and the District of Columbia Council, in consultation with the Board of Education and the Superintendent, may adjust the amount of the annual payment under paragraph (1) to increase the amount of such payment if a District of Columbia public school or a public charter school serves a high number of students—

(i) with special needs; or

(ii) who do not meet minimum literacy standards.

SEC. 2502. CALCULATION OF NUMBER OF STUDENTS.

(a) School Reporting Requirement.—

(1) In general.—Not later than September 15, 1996, and not later than September 15 of each year thereafter, each District of Columbia public school and public charter school shall submit a report to the Mayor and the Board of Education containing the information described in subsection (b) that is applicable to such school.

(2) Special rule.—Not later than April 1, 1997, and not later than April 1 of each year thereafter, each public charter school shall submit a report in the same form and manner as described in paragraph (1) to ensure accurate payment under section 2503(a)(2)(B)(ii).

(b) Calculation of Number of Students.—Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, and not later than October 15 of each year thereafter, the Board of Education shall calculate the following:

(1) The number of students, including nonresident students and students with special needs, enrolled in each grade from kindergarten through grade 12 of the District of Columbia public schools and in public charter schools, and the number of students whose tuition for enrollment in other schools is paid for with funds available to the District of Columbia public schools.

(2) The amount of fees and tuition assessed and collected from the nonresident students described in paragraph (1).

(3) The number of students, including nonresident students, enrolled in preschool and prekindergarten in the District of Columbia public schools and in public charter schools.

(4) The amount of fees and tuition assessed and collected from the nonresident students described in paragraph (3).

(5) The number of full time equivalent adult students enrolled in adult, community, continuing, and vocational-education programs in the District of Columbia public schools and in public charter schools.

(6) The amount of fees and tuition assessed and collected from resident and nonresident adult students described in paragraph (5).

(7) The number of students, including nonresident students, enrolled in nongrade level programs in District of Columbia public schools and in public charter schools.

(8) The amount of fees and tuition assessed and collected from nonresident students described in paragraph (7).

(c) Annual Reports.—Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, and not later than October 15 of each year thereafter, the Board of Education shall prepare and submit to the Authority, the Mayor, the District of Columbia Council, the Consensus Commission, the Comptroller General of the United States, and the appropriate congressional committees a report containing a summary of the most recent calculations made under subsection (b).

(d) Audit of Initial Calculations.—

(1) In general.—The Board of Education shall arrange with the Authority to provide for the conduct of an independent audit of the initial calculations described in subsection (b).

(2) Conduct of audit.—In conducting the audit, the independent auditor—

(A) shall provide an opinion as to the accuracy of the information contained in the report described in subsection (c); and

(B) shall identify any material weaknesses in the systems, procedures, or methodology used by the Board of Education—

(i) in determining the number of students, including nonresident students, enrolled in the District of Columbia public schools and in public charter schools, and the number of students whose tuition for enrollment in other school systems is paid for by funds available to the District of Columbia public schools; and

(ii) in assessing and collecting fees and tuition from nonresident students.

(3) Submission of audit.—Not later than 45 days, or as soon thereafter as is practicable, after the date on which the Authority receives the initial annual report from the Board of Education under subsection (c), the Authority shall submit to the Board of Education, the Mayor, the District of Columbia Council, and the appropriate congressional committees, the audit conducted under this subsection.

(4) Cost of the audit.—The Board of Education shall reimburse the Authority for the cost of the independent audit, solely from amounts appropriated to the Board of Education for staff, stipends, and other-than-personal-services of the Board of Education by an Act making appropriations for the District of Columbia.

SEC. 2503. PAYMENTS.

(a) In General.—

(1) Escrow for public charter schools.—Except as provided in subsection (b), for any fiscal year, not later than 10 days after the date of enactment of an Act making appropriations for the District of Columbia for such fiscal year, the Mayor shall place in escrow an amount equal to the aggregate of the amounts determined under section 2501(b)(1)(B) for use only by District of Columbia public charter schools.

(2) Transfer of escrow funds.—

(A) Initial payment.—Not later than October 15, 1996, and not later than October 15 of each year thereafter, the Mayor shall transfer, by electronic funds transfer, an amount equal to 75 percent of the amount of the annual payment for each public charter school determined by using the formula established pursuant to section 2501(b) to a bank designated by such school.

(B) Final payment.—

(i) Except as provided in clause (ii), not later than May 1, 1997, and not later than May 1 of each year thereafter, the Mayor shall transfer the remainder of the annual payment for a public charter school in the same manner as the initial payment was made under subparagraph (A).

(ii) Not later than March 15, 1997, and not later than March 15 of each year thereafter, if the enrollment number of a public charter school has changed from the number reported to the Mayor and the Board of Education, as required under section 2502(a), the Mayor shall increase the payment in an amount equal to 50 percent of the amount provided for each student who has enrolled in such school in excess of such enrollment number, or shall reduce the payment in an amount equal to 50 percent of the amount provided for each student who has withdrawn or dropped out of such school below such enrollment number.

(C) Pro rata reduction or increase in payments.—

(i) Pro rata reduction.—If the funds made available to the District of Columbia Government for the District of Columbia public school system and each public charter school for any fiscal year are insufficient to pay the full amount that such system and each public charter school is eligible to receive under this subtitle for such year, the Mayor shall ratably reduce such amounts for such year on the basis of the formula described in section 2501(b).

(ii) Increase.—If additional funds become available for making payments under this subtitle for such fiscal year, amounts that were reduced under subparagraph (A) shall be increased on the same basis as such amounts were reduced.

(D) Unexpended funds.—Any funds that remain in the escrow account for public charter schools on September 30 of a fiscal year shall revert to the general fund of the District of Columbia.

(b) Exception for New Schools.—

(1) Authorization.—There are authorized to be appropriated $200,000 for each fiscal year to carry out this subsection.

(2) Disbursement to mayor.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall make available and disburse to the Mayor, not later than August 1 of each of the fiscal years 1996 through 2000, such funds as have been appropriated under paragraph (1).

(3) Escrow.—The Mayor shall place in escrow, for use by public charter schools, any sum disbursed under paragraph (2) and not paid under paragraph (4).

(4) Payments to schools.—The Mayor shall pay to public charter schools described in paragraph (5), in accordance with this subsection, any sum disbursed under paragraph (2).

(5) Schools described.—The schools referred to in paragraph (4) are public charter schools that—

(A) did not operate as public charter schools during any portion of the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which funds are authorized to be appropriated under paragraph (1); and

(B) operated as public charter schools during the fiscal year for which funds are authorized to be appropriated under paragraph (1).

(6) Formula.—

(A) 1996.—The amount of the payment to a public charter school described in paragraph (5) that begins operation in fiscal year 1996 shall be calculated by multiplying $6,300 by 1/12 of the total anticipated enrollment as set forth in the petition to establish the public charter school; and

(B) 1997 through 2000.—The amount of the payment to a public charter school described in paragraph (5) that begins operation in any of fiscal years 1997 through 2000 shall be calculated by multiplying the uniform dollar amount used in the formula established under section 2501(b) by 1/12 of the total anticipated enrollment as set forth in the petition to establish the public charter school.

(7) PAYMENT TO SCHOOLS.—

(A) TRANSFER.—On September 1 of each of the years 1996 through 2000, the Mayor shall transfer, by electronic funds transfer, the amount determined under paragraph (6) for each public charter school from the escrow account established under subsection (a) to a bank designated by each such school.

(B) PRO RATA AND REMAINING FUNDS.—Subparagraphs (C) and (D) of subsection (a)(2) shall apply to payments made under this subsection, except that for purposes of this subparagraph references to District of Columbia public schools in such subparagraphs (C) and (D) shall be read to refer to public charter schools.

Subtitle F—School Facilities Repair and Improvement

SEC. 2550. DEFINITIONS.

For purposes of this subtitle—

(1) the term "facilities" means buildings, structures, and real property of the District of Columbia public schools, except that such term does not include any administrative office building that is not located in a building containing classrooms; and

(2) the term "repair and improvement" includes administration, construction, and renovation.

PART 1—SCHOOL FACILITIES

SEC. 2551. TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act the Administrator of the General Services Administration shall enter into a Memorandum of Agreement or Understanding (referred to in this subtitle as the "Agreement") with the Superintendent regarding the terms under which the Administrator will provide technical assistance and related services with respect to District of Columbia public schools facilities management in accordance with this section.

(b) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE AND RELATED SERVICES.—The technical assistance and related services described in subsection (a) shall include—

(1) the Administrator consulting with and advising District of Columbia public school personnel responsible for public schools facilities management, including repair and improvement with respect to facilities management of such schools;

(2) the Administrator assisting the Superintendent in developing a systemic and comprehensive facilities revitalization program, for the repair and improvement of District of Columbia public school facilities, which program shall—

(A) include a list of facilities to be repaired and improved in a recommended order of priority;

(B) provide the repair and improvement required to support modern technology; and

(C) take into account the Preliminary Facilities Master Plan 2005 (prepared by the Superintendent's Task Force on Education Infrastructure for the 21st Century);

(3) the method by which the Superintendent will accept donations of private goods and services for use by the District of Columbia public schools without regard to any law or regulation of the District of Columbia;

(4) the Administrator recommending specific repair and improvement projects in District of Columbia public school facilities to the Superintendent that are appropriate for completion by members and units of the National Guard and the Reserves in accordance with the program developed under paragraph (2);

(5) upon the request of the Superintendent, the Administrator assisting the appropriate District of Columbia public school officials in the preparation of an action plan for the performance of any repair and improvement recommended in the program developed under paragraph (2), which action plan shall detail the technical assistance and related services the Administrator proposes to provide in the accomplishment of the repair and improvement;

(6) upon the request of the Superintendent, and if consistent with the efficient use of resources as determined by the Administrator, the coordination of the accomplishment of any repair and improvement in accordance with the action plan prepared under paragraph (5), except that in carrying out this paragraph, the Administrator shall not be subject to the requirements of title III of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (41 U.S.C. 251 et seq.), the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 401 et seq.), nor shall such action plan be subject to review under the bid protest procedures described in sections 3551 through 3556 of title 31, United States Code, or the Contract Disputes Act of 1978 (41 U.S.C. 601 et seq.);

(7) providing access for the Administrator to all District of Columbia public school facilities as well as permitting the Administrator to request and obtain any record or document regarding such facilities as the Administrator determines necessary, except that any such record or document shall not become a record (as defined in section 552a of title 5, United States Code) of the General Services Administration; and

(8) the Administrator making recommendations regarding how District of Columbia public school facilities may be used by the District of Columbia community for multiple purposes.

(c) AGREEMENT PROVISIONS.—The Agreement shall include—

(1) the procedures by which the Superintendent and Administrator will consult with respect to carrying out this section, including reasonable time frames for such consultation;

(2) the scope of the technical assistance and related services to be provided by the General Services Administration in accordance with this section;

(3) assurances by the Administrator and the Superintendent to cooperate with each other in any way necessary to ensure implementation of the Agreement, including assurances that funds available to the District of Columbia shall be used to pay the obligations of the District of Columbia public school system that are incurred as a result of actions taken under, or in furtherance of, the Agreement, in addition to funds available to the Administrator for purposes of this section; and

(4) the duration of the Agreement, except that in no event shall the Agreement remain in effect later than the day that is 24 months after the date that the Agreement is signed, or the day that the agency designated pursuant to section 2552(a)(2) assumes responsibility for the District of Columbia public school facilities, whichever day is earlier.

(d) LIMITATION ON ADMINISTRATOR'S LIABILITY.—No claim, suit, or action may be brought against the Administrator in connection with the discharge of the Administrator's responsibilities under this subtitle.

(e) SPECIAL RULE.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Administrator is authorized to accept and use a conditioned gift made for the express purpose of repairing or improving a District of Columbia public school, except that the Administrator shall not be required to carry out any repair or improvement under this section unless the Administrator accepts a donation of private goods or services sufficient to cover the costs of such repair or improvement.

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This subtitle shall cease to be effective on the earlier day specified in subsection (c)(4).

SEC. 2552. FACILITIES REVITALIZATION PROGRAM.

(a) PROGRAM.—Not later than 24 months after the date that the Agreement is signed, the Mayor and the District of Columbia Council in consultation with the Administrator, the Authority, the Board of Education, and the Superintendent, shall—

(1) design and implement a comprehensive long-term program for the repair and improvement, and maintenance and management, of the District of Columbia public school facilities, which program shall incorporate the work completed in accordance with the program described in section 2551(b)(2); and

(2) designate a new or existing agency or authority within the District of Columbia Government to administer such program.

(b) PROCEEDS.—Such program shall include—

(1) identifying short-term funding for capital and maintenance of facilities, which may include retaining proceeds from the sale or lease of a District of Columbia public school facility; and

(2) identifying and designating long-term funding for capital and maintenance of facilities.

(c) IMPLEMENTATION.—Upon implementation of such program, the agency or authority created or designated pursuant to subsection (a)(2) shall assume authority and responsibility for the repair and improvement, and maintenance and management, of District of Columbia public schools.

SEC. 2553. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR ENGINEERING PLANS.

There are authorized to be appropriated to the Administrator, $500,000 for fiscal year 1996, which funds only shall be available for the costs of engineering plans developed to carry out this subtitle.

SEC. 2561. WAIVERS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) REQUIREMENTS WAIVED.—Subject to subsection (b), all District of Columbia fees and all requirements contained in the document entitled "District of Columbia Public Schools Standard Contract Provisions" (as such document was in effect on November 2, 1995 and including any revisions or modifications to such document) published by the District of Columbia public schools for use with construction or maintenance projects, are waived, for purposes of repair and improvement of District of Columbia public schools facilities for a period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending 24 months after such date.

(2) DONATIONS.—An employer may accept, and persons may voluntarily donate, materials and services for the repair and improvement of a District of Columbia public school facility: Provided, That the provision of voluntary labor meets the requirements of 29 U.S.C. 203(e)(4).

(b) LIMITATION.—A waiver under subsection (a) shall not apply to requirements under 40 U.S.C. 276a–276a–7.

PART 3—GIFTS, DONATIONS, BEQUESTS, AND DEVISES

SEC. 2571. GIFTS, DONATIONS, BEQUESTS, AND DEVISES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—A District of Columbia public school or a public charter school may accept directly from any person a gift, donation, bequest, or devise of any property, real or personal, without regard to any law or regulation of the District of Columbia.

(b) TAX LAWS.—For the purposes of the income tax, gift tax, and estate tax laws of the Federal Government, any money or other property given, donated, bequeathed, or devised to a District of Columbia public school or a public charter school, shall be deemed to have been given, donated, bequeathed, or devised to or for the use of the District of Columbia.

Subtitle G—Residential School

SEC. 2601. RESIDENTIAL SCHOOL AUTHORIZED.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Superintendent is authorized to develop a plan to establish for the District of Columbia a residential school for academic year 1997–1998 and to assist in the startup of such school.

(b) PLAN REQUIREMENTS.—If developed, the plan for the residential school shall include, at a minimum—

(1) options for the location of the school, including the renovation or construction of a facility;

(2) financial plans for the facility, including annual costs to operate the school, capital expenditures required to open the facility, maintenance of facilities, and staffing costs; and

(3) staff development and training plans.

SEC. 2602. USE OF FUNDS.

Funds under this subtitle may be used—

(1) to develop the plan described in section 2601; and

(2) for capital costs associated with the startup of a residential school, including the purchase of real and personal property and the renovation or construction of facilities.

SEC. 2603. FUTURE FUNDING.

The Superintendent shall identify, not later than December 31, 1996, in a report to the Mayor, the District of Columbia Council, the Authority, and the appropriate congressional committees, non-Federal funding sources for the operation of the residential school.

SEC. 2604. GIFTS.

The Superintendent may accept donations of money, property, and personal services for purposes of the establishment and operation of the residential school.

(b) CAPITAL COSTS.—There are authorized to be appropriated $1,900,000 for fiscal year 1997 to carry out section 2602(2).

Subtitle H—Progress Reports and Accountability

SEC. 2651. SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT ON REFORMS.

Not later than December 1, 1996, the Superintendent shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees, the Board of Education, the Mayor, the Consensus Commission, and the District of Columbia Council a report regarding the progress of the District of Columbia public schools toward achieving the goals of the long-term reform plan.

SEC. 2652. DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COUNCIL REPORT.

Not later than April 1, 1997, the Chairperson of the District of Columbia Council shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report describing legislative and other actions the District of Columbia Council has taken or will take to facilitate the implementation of the goals of the long-term reform plan.

Subtitle I—Partnerships With Business

SEC. 2701. PURPOSE.

The purpose of this subtitle is—

(1) to leverage private sector funds utilizing initial Federal investments in order to provide students and teachers within the District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools with access to state-of-the-art educational technology;

(2) to establish a regional job training and employment center;

(3) to strengthen workforce preparation initiatives for students within the District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools;

(4) to coordinate private sector investments in carrying out this title; and

(5) to assist the Superintendent with the development of individual career paths in accordance with the long-term reform plan.

SEC. 2702. DUTIES OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Not later than 45 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Superintendent shall provide a grant to a private, nonprofit corporation that meets the eligibility criteria under section 2703 for the purposes of carrying out the duties under sections 2704 and 2707.

SEC. 2703. ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA FOR PRIVATE, NONPROFIT CORPORATION.

A private, nonprofit corporation shall be eligible to receive a grant under section 2702 if the corporation is a national business organization incorporated in the District of Columbia, that—

(1) has a board of directors which includes members who are also chief executive officers of technology-related corporations involved in education and workforce development issues;

(2) has extensive practical experience with initiatives that link business resources and expertise with education and training systems;

(3) has experience in working with State and local educational agencies throughout the United States with respect to the integration of academic studies with workforce preparation programs; and

(4) has a nationwide structure through which additional resources can be leveraged and innovative practices disseminated.

SEC. 2704. DUTIES OF THE PRIVATE, NONPROFIT CORPORATION.

(a) DISTRICT EDUCATION AND LEARNING TECHNOLOGIES ADVANCEMENT COUNCIL.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—The private, nonprofit corporation shall establish a council to be known as the "District Education and Learning Technologies Advancement Council" (in this subtitle referred to as the "council").

(2) MEMBERSHIP.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The private, nonprofit corporation shall appoint members to the council. An individual shall be appointed as a member to the council on the basis of the commitment of the individual, or the entity which the individual is representing, to providing time, energy, and resources to the council.

(B) COMPENSATION.—Members of the council shall serve without compensation.

(3) DUTIES.—The council—

(A) shall advise the private, nonprofit corporation with respect to the duties of the corporation under subsections (b) through (e) of this section; and

(B) shall assist the corporation in leveraging private sector resources for the purpose of carrying out such duties.

(b) ACCESS TO STATE-OF-THE-ART EDUCATIONAL TECHNOLOGY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The private, nonprofit corporation, in conjunction with the Superintendent, students, parents, and teachers, shall establish and implement strategies to ensure access to state-of-the-art educational technology within the District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools.

(2) ELECTRONIC DATA TRANSFER SYSTEM.—The private, nonprofit corporation shall assist the Superintendent in acquiring the necessary equipment, including computer hardware and software, to establish an electronic data transfer system. The private, nonprofit corporation shall also assist in arranging for training of District of Columbia public school employees in using such equipment.

(3) TECHNOLOGY ASSESSMENT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—In establishing and implementing the strategies under paragraph (1), the private, nonprofit corporation, not later than September 1, 1996, shall provide for an assessment of the availability, on the date of enactment of this Act, of state-of-the-art educational technology within the District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools.

(B) CONDUCT OF ASSESSMENT.—In providing for the assessment under subparagraph (A), the private, nonprofit corporation—

(i) shall provide for onsite inspections of the state-of-the-art educational technology within a minimum sampling of District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools; and

(ii) shall ensure proper input from students, parents, teachers, and other school officials through the use of focus groups and other appropriate mechanisms.

(C) RESULTS OF ASSESSMENT.—The private, nonprofit corporation shall ensure that the assessment carried out under this paragraph provides, at a minimum, necessary information on state-of-the-art educational technology within the District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools, including—

(i) the extent to which typical District of Columbia public schools have access to such state-of-the-art educational technology and training for such technology;

(ii) how such schools are using such technology;

(iii) the need for additional technology and the need for infrastructure for the implementation of such additional technology;

(iv) the need for computer hardware, software, training, and funding for such additional technology or infrastructure; and

(v) the potential for computer linkages among District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools.

(4) SHORT-TERM TECHNOLOGY PLAN.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Based upon the results of the technology assessment under paragraph (3), the private, nonprofit corporation shall develop a 3-year plan that includes goals, priorities, and strategies for obtaining the resources necessary to implement strategies to ensure access to state-of-the-art educational technology within the District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools.

(B) IMPLEMENTATION.—The private, nonprofit corporation, in conjunction with schools, students, parents, and teachers, shall implement the plan developed under subparagraph (A).

(5) LONG-TERM TECHNOLOGY PLAN.—Prior to the completion of the implementation of the short-term technology plan under paragraph (4), the private, nonprofit corporation shall develop a plan under which the corporation will continue to coordinate the donation of private sector resources for maintaining the continuous improvement and upgrading of state-of-the-art educational technology within the District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools.

(c) DISTRICT EMPLOYMENT AND LEARNING CENTER.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—The private, nonprofit corporation shall establish a center to be known as the "District Employment and Learning Center" (in this subtitle referred to as the "center"), which shall serve as a regional institute providing job training and employment assistance.

(2) DUTIES.—

(A) JOB TRAINING AND EMPLOYMENT ASSISTANCE PROGRAM.—The center shall establish a program to provide job training and employment assistance in the District of Columbia and shall coordinate with career preparation programs in existence on the date of enactment of this Act, such as vocational education, school-to-work, and career academies in the District of Columbia public schools.

(B) CONDUCT OF PROGRAM.—In carrying out the program established under subparagraph (A), the center—

(i) shall provide job training and employment assistance to youths who have attained the age of 18 but have not attained the age of 26, who are residents of the District of Columbia, and who are in need of such job training and employment assistance for an appropriate period not to exceed 2 years;

(ii) shall work to establish partnerships and enter into agreements with appropriate agencies of the District of Columbia Government to serve individuals participating in appropriate Federal programs, including programs under the Job Training Partnership Act (29 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.), the Job Opportunities and Basic Skills Training Program under part F of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 681 et seq.), the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Education Act (20 U.S.C. 2301 et seq.), and the School-to-Work Opportunities Act of 1994 (20 U.S.C. 6101 et seq.);

(iii) shall conduct such job training, as appropriate, through a consortium of colleges, universities, community colleges, businesses, and other appropriate providers, in the District of Columbia metropolitan area;

(iv) shall design modular training programs that allow students to enter and leave the training curricula depending on their opportunities for job assignments with employers; and

(v) shall utilize resources from businesses to enhance work-based learning opportunities and facilitate access by students to work-based learning and work experience through temporary work assignments with employers in the District of Columbia metropolitan area.

(C) COMPENSATION.—The center may provide compensation to youths participating in the program under this paragraph for part-time work assigned in conjunction with training. Such compensation may include need-based payments and reimbursement of expenses.

(d) WORKFORCE PREPARATION INITIATIVES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The private, nonprofit corporation shall establish initiatives with the District of Columbia public schools, and public charter schools, appropriate governmental agencies, and businesses and other private entities, to facilitate the integration of rigorous academic studies with workforce preparation programs in District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools.

(2) CONDUCT OF INITIATIVES.—In carrying out the initiatives under paragraph (1), the private, nonprofit corporation shall, at a minimum, actively develop, expand, and promote the following programs:

(A) Career academy programs in secondary schools, as such programs are established in certain District of Columbia public schools, which provide a school-within-a-school concept, focusing on career preparation and the integration of the academy programs with vocational and technical curriculum.

(B) Programs carried out in the District of Columbia that are funded under the School-to-Work Opportunities Act of 1994 (20 U.S.C. 6101 et seq.).

(e) PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM FOR TEACHERS AND ADMINISTRATORS.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT OF PROGRAM.—The private, nonprofit corporation shall establish a consortium consisting of the corporation, teachers, school administrators, and the consortium of universities located in the District of Columbia (in existence on the date of the enactment of this Act), for the purpose of establishing a program for the professional development of teachers and school administrators employed by the District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools.

(2) CONDUCT OF PROGRAM.—In carrying out the program established under paragraph (1), the consortium established under such paragraph, in consultation with the task force established under subtitle D and the Superintendent, at a minimum, shall provide for the following:

(A) Professional development for teachers consistent with the model professional development programs for teachers under section 2411(b)(4), or consistent with the core curriculum developed by the Superintendent under section 2411(b)(2), as the case may be, except that for fiscal year 1996, such professional development shall focus on curriculum for elementary school grades in reading and mathematics that have been demonstrated to be effective for students from low-income backgrounds.

(B) Professional development for principals, with a special emphasis on middle school principals, focusing on effective practices that reduce the number of students who drop out of school.

(C) Private sector training of teachers in the use, application, and operation of state-of-the-art technology in education.

(D) Training for school principals and other school administrators in effective private sector management practices for the purpose of site-based management in the District of Columbia public schools, and training in the management of public charter schools established in accordance with this title.

SEC. 2705. MATCHING FUNDS.

The private, nonprofit corporation, to the extent practicable, shall provide matching funds, or in-kind contributions, or a combination thereof, for the purpose of carrying out the duties of the corporation under section 2704, as follows:

(1) For fiscal year 1996, the nonprofit corporation shall provide matching funds or in-kind contributions of $1 for every $1 of Federal funds provided under this subtitle for such year for activities under section 2704.

(2) For fiscal year 1997, the nonprofit corporation shall provide matching funds or in-kind contributions of $3 for every $1 of Federal funds provided under this subtitle for such year for activities under section 2704.

(3) For fiscal year 1998, the nonprofit corporation shall provide matching funds or in-kind contributions of $5 for every $1 of Federal funds provided under this subtitle for such year for activities under section 2704.

SEC. 2706. REPORT.

The private, nonprofit corporation shall prepare and submit to the appropriate congressional committees on a quarterly basis, or, with respect to fiscal year 1996, on a biannual basis, a report which shall contain—

(1) the activities the corporation has carried out, including the duties of the corporation described in section 2704, for the 3-month period ending on the date of the submission of the report, or, with respect to fiscal year 1996, the 6-month period ending on the date of the submission of the report;

(2) an assessment of the use of funds or other resources donated to the corporation;

(3) the results of the assessment carried out under section 2704(b)(3); and

(4) a description of the goals and priorities of the corporation for the 3-month period beginning on the date of the submission of the report, or, with respect to fiscal year 1996, the 6-month period beginning on the date of the submission of the report.

SEC. 2707. JOBS FOR D.C. GRADUATES PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The nonprofit corporation shall establish a program, to be known as the "Jobs for D.C. Graduates Program", to assist District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools in organizing and implementing a school-to-work transition system, which system shall give priority to providing assistance to at-risk youths and disadvantaged youths.

(b) CONDUCT OF PROGRAM.—In carrying out the program established under subsection (a), the nonprofit corporation, consistent with the policies of the nationally recognized Jobs for America's Graduates, Inc., shall—

(1) establish performance standards for such program;

(2) provide ongoing enhancement and improvements in such program;

(3) provide research and reports on the results of such program; and

(4) provide preservice and inservice training.

SEC. 2708. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

(a) AUTHORIZATION.—

(1) DELTA COUNCIL; ACCESS TO STATE-OF-THE-ART EDUCATIONAL TECHNOLOGY; AND WORKFORCE PREPARATION INITIATIVES.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out subsections (a), (b), and (d) of section 2704, $1,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1996, 1997, and 1998.

(2) DEAL CENTER.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out section 2704(c), $2,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1996, 1997, and 1998.

(3) PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM FOR TEACHERS AND ADMINISTRATORS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out section 2704(e), $1,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1996, 1997, and 1998.

(A) $2,000,000 for fiscal year 1996; and

(B) $3,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1997 through 2000.

(b) AVAILABILITY.—Amounts authorized to be appropriated under subsection (a) are authorized to remain available until expended.

SEC. 2709. TERMINATION OF FEDERAL SUPPORT; SENSE OF THE CONGRESS RELATING TO CONTINUATION OF ACTIVITIES.

(a) TERMINATION OF FEDERAL SUPPORT.—The authority under this subtitle to provide assistance to the private, nonprofit corporation or any other entity established pursuant to this subtitle shall terminate on October 1, 1998.

(b) Sense of the Congress Relating to Continuation of Activities.—It is the sense of the Congress that—

(1) the activities of the private, nonprofit corporation under section 2704 should continue to be carried out after October 1, 1998, with resources made available from the private sector; and

(2) the corporation should provide oversight and coordination for such activities after such date.

Subtitle J—Management and Fiscal Accountability

SEC. 2751. MANAGEMENT SUPPORT SYSTEMS.

(a) Food Services and Security Services.—Notwithstanding any other law, rule, or regulation, the Board of Education shall enter into a contract for academic year 1995-1996 and each succeeding academic year, for the provision of all food services operations and security services for the District of Columbia public schools, unless the Superintendent determines that it is not feasible and provides the Superintendent's reasons in writing to the Board of Education and the Authority.

(b) Development of New Management and Data Systems.—Notwithstanding any other law, rule, or regulation, the Board of Education shall, in academic year 1995-1996, consult with the Authority on the development of new management and data systems, as well as training of personnel to use and manage the systems in areas of budget, finance, personnel and human resources, management information services, procurement, supply management, and other systems recommended by the Authority. Such plans shall be consistent with, and contemporaneous to, the District of Columbia Government's development and implementation of a replacement for the financial management system for the District of Columbia Government in use on the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 2752. ANNUAL REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.

(a) In General.—The Board of Education shall annually compile an accurate and verifiable report on the positions and employees in the District of Columbia public school system. The annual report shall set forth—

(1) the number of validated schedule A positions in the District of Columbia public schools for fiscal year 1995, fiscal year 1996, and thereafter on a full-time equivalent basis, including a compilation of all positions by control center, responsibility center, funding source, position type, position title, pay plan, grade, and annual salary; and

(2) a compilation of all employees in the District of Columbia public schools as of December 31, of the year preceding the year for which the report is made, verified as to its accuracy in accordance with the functions that each employee actually performs, by control center, responsibility center, agency reporting code, program (including funding source), activity, location for accounting purposes, job title, grade and classification, annual salary, and position control number.

(b) Submission.—The annual report required by subsection (a) shall be submitted to the Congress, the Mayor, the District of Columbia Council, the Consensus Commission, and the Authority, not later than February 8, 1996, and each February 8 thereafter.

SEC. 2753. ANNUAL BUDGETS AND BUDGET REVISIONS.

(a) In General.—Not later than October 1, 1996, or prior to 15 calendar days after the date of the enactment of the District of Columbia Appropriations Act, 1996, whichever occurs first, and each succeeding year thereafter, the Board of Education shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees, the Mayor, the District of Columbia Council, the Consensus Commission, and the Authority, a revised appropriated funds operating budget for the District of Columbia public school system for such fiscal year that is consistent with the total amount appropriated in an Act making appropriations for the District of Columbia for such fiscal year and that realigns budgeted data for personal services and other than personal services, with anticipated actual expenditures.

(b) Submission.—The revised budget required by subsection (a) shall be submitted in the format of the budget that the Board of Education submits to the Mayor for inclusion in the Mayor's budget submission to the District of Columbia Council pursuant to section 442 of the District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act, Public Law 93-198 (D.C. Code, sec. 47-301).

SEC. 2754. ACCESS TO FISCAL AND STAFFING DATA.

(a) In General.—The budget, financial-accounting, personnel, payroll, procurement, and management information systems of the District of Columbia public schools shall be coordinated and interface with related systems of the District of Columbia Government.

(b) Access.—The Board of Education shall provide read-only access to its internal financial management systems and all other data bases to designated staff of the Mayor, the Council, the Authority, and appropriate congressional committees.

SEC. 2755. DEVELOPMENT OF FISCAL YEAR 1997 BUDGET REQUEST.

(a) In General.—The Board of Education shall develop its fiscal year 1997 gross operating budget and its fiscal year 1997 appropriated funds budget request in accordance with this section.

(b) Fiscal Year 1996 Budget Revision.—Not later than February 15, 1996, the Board of Education shall develop, approve, and submit to the Mayor, the District of Columbia Council, the Authority, and appropriate congressional committees, a revised fiscal year 1996 gross operating budget that reflects the amount appropriated in the District of Columbia Appropriations Act, 1996, and which—

(1) is broken out on the basis of appropriated funds and nonappropriated funds, control center, responsibility center, agency reporting code, object class, and object; and

(2) indicates by position title, grade, and agency reporting code, all staff allocated to each District of Columbia public school as of October 15, 1995, and indicates on an object class basis all other-than-personal-services financial resources allocated to each school.

(c) Zero-Base Budget.—For fiscal year 1997, the Board of Education shall build its gross operating budget and appropriated funds request from a zero-base, starting from the local school level through the central office level.

(d) School-by-School Budgets.—The Board of Education's initial fiscal year 1997 gross operating budget and appropriated funds budget request submitted to the Mayor, the District of Columbia Council, and the Authority shall contain school-by-school budgets and shall also—

(1) be broken out on the basis of appropriated funds and nonappropriated funds, control center, responsibility center, agency reporting code, object class, and object;

(2) indicate by position title, grade, and agency reporting code all staff budgeted for each District of Columbia public school, and indicate on an object class basis all other-than-personal-services financial resources allocated to each school; and

(3) indicate the amount and reason for all changes made to the initial fiscal year 1997 gross operating budget and appropriated funds request from the revised fiscal year 1996 gross operating budget required by subsection (b).

SEC. 2756. TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS.

Section 1120A of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6322) is amended—

(1) in subsection (b)(1), by—

(A) striking "(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B), a State" and inserting "A State"; and

(B) striking subparagraph (B); and

(2) by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(d) Exclusion of Funds.—For the purpose of complying with subsections (b) and (c), a State or local educational agency may exclude supplemental State or local funds expended in any school attendance area or school for programs that meet the intent and purposes of this part.".

Subtitle K—Personal Accountability and Preservation of School-Based Resources

SEC. 2801. PRESERVATION OF SCHOOL-BASED STAFF POSITIONS.

(a) Restrictions on Reductions of School-Based Employees.—To the extent that a reduction in the number of full-time equivalent positions for the District of Columbia public schools is required to remain within the number of full-time equivalent positions established for the public schools in appropriations Acts, no reductions shall be made from the full-time equivalent positions for school-based teachers, principals, counselors, librarians, or other school-based educational positions that were established as of the end of fiscal year 1995, unless the Authority makes a determination based on student enrollment that—

(1) fewer school-based positions are needed to maintain established pupil-to-staff ratios; or

(2) reductions in positions for other than school-based employees are not practicable.

(b) Definition.—The term "school-based educational position" means a position located at a District of Columbia public school or other position providing direct support to students at such a school, including a position for a clerical, stenographic, or secretarial employee, but not including any part-time educational aide position.

SEC. 2802. MODIFICATIONS OF BOARD OF EDUCATION REDUCTION-IN-FORCE PROCEDURES.

The District of Columbia Government Comprehensive Merit Personnel Act of 1978 (D.C. Code, sec. 1-601.1 et seq.) is amended—

(1) in section 301 (D.C. Code, sec. 1.603.1)—

(A) by inserting after paragraph (13), the following new paragraph:

"(13A) The term 'nonschool-based personnel' means any employee of the District of Columbia public schools who is not based at a local school or who does not provide direct services to individual students."; and

(B) by inserting after paragraph (15), the following new paragraph:

"(15A) The term 'school administrators' means principals, assistant principals, school program directors, coordinators, instructional supervisors, and support personnel of the District of Columbia public schools.";

(2) in section 801A(b)(2) (D.C. Code, sec. 1-609.1(b)(2)(L)—

(A) by striking "(L) reduction-in-force" and inserting "(L)(i) reduction-in-force"; and

(B) by inserting after subparagraph (L)(i), the following new clause:

"(ii) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Board of Education shall not issue rules that require or permit nonschool-based personnel or school administrators to be assigned or reassigned to the same competitive level as classroom teachers;"; and

(3) in section 2402 (D.C. Code, sec. 1-625.2), by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(f) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Board of Education shall not require or permit nonschool-based personnel or school administrators to be assigned or reassigned to the same competitive level as classroom teachers.".

SEC. 2803. PUBLIC SCHOOL EMPLOYEE EVALUATIONS.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, rule, or regulation, the evaluation process and instruments for evaluating District of Columbia public school employees shall be a nonnegotiable item for collective bargaining purposes.

SEC. 2804. PERSONAL AUTHORITY FOR PUBLIC SCHOOL EMPLOYEES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, rule, or regulation, an employee of a District of Columbia public school shall be—

(1) classified as an educational service employee;

(2) placed under the personnel authority of the Board of Education; and

(3) subject to all Board of Education rules.

(b) SCHOOL-BASED PERSONNEL.—School-based personnel shall constitute a separate competitive area from nonschool-based personnel who shall not compete with school-based personnel for retention purposes.

Subtitle E—Establishment and Organization of the Commission on Consensus Reform in the District of Columbia Public Schools

SEC. 2851. COMMISSION ON CONSENSUS REFORM IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—There is established within the District of Columbia Government a Commission on Consensus Reform in the District of Columbia Public Schools, consisting of 7 members to be appointed in accordance with paragraph (2).

(2) MEMBERSHIP.—The Consensus Commission shall consist of the following members:

(A) 1 member to be appointed by the President chosen from a list of 3 proposed members submitted by the Majority Leader of the Senate.

(B) 1 member to be appointed by the President chosen from a list of 3 proposed members submitted by the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

(C) 2 members to be appointed by the President, of which 1 shall represent the local business community and 1 of which shall be a teacher in a District of Columbia public school.

(D) The President of the District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers.

(E) The President of the Board of Education.

(F) The Superintendent.

(G) The Mayor and District of Columbia Council Chairman shall each name 1 nonvoting ex officio member.

(H) The Chief of the National Guard Bureau who shall be an ex officio member.

(3) TERMS OF SERVICE.—The members of the Consensus Commission shall serve for a term of 3 years.

(4) VACANCIES.—Any vacancy in the membership of the Consensus Commission shall be filled by the appointment of a new member in the same manner as provided for the vacated membership. A member appointed under this paragraph shall serve the remaining term of the vacated membership.

(5) QUALIFICATIONS.—Members of the Consensus Commission appointed under subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C) of paragraph (2) shall be residents of the District of Columbia and shall have a knowledge of public education in the District of Columbia.

(6) CHAIR.—The Chair of the Consensus Commission shall be chosen by the Consensus Commission from among its members, except that the President of the Board of Education and the Superintendent shall not be eligible to serve as Chair.

(7) NO COMPENSATION FOR SERVICE.—Members of the Consensus Commission shall serve without pay, but may receive reimbursement for any reasonable and necessary expenses incurred by reason of service on the Consensus Commission.

(b) EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR.—The Consensus Commission shall have an Executive Director who shall be appointed by the Chair with the consent of the Consensus Commission. The Executive Director shall be paid at a rate determined by the Consensus Commission, except that such rate may not exceed the highest rate of pay payable for level EG-16 of the Educational Service of the District of Columbia.

(c) STAFF.—With the approval of the Chair and the Authority, the Executive Director may appoint and fix the pay of additional personnel as the Executive Director considers appropriate, except that no individual appointed by the Executive Director may be paid at a rate greater than the rate of pay for the Executive Director.

(d) SPECIAL RULE.—The Board of Education, or the Authority, shall reprogram such funds, as the Chair of the Consensus Commission shall in writing request, from amounts available to the Board of Education.

SEC. 2852. PRIMARY PURPOSE AND FINDINGS.

(a) PURPOSE.—The primary purpose of the Consensus Commission is to assist in developing a long-term reform plan that has the support of the District of Columbia community through the participation of representatives of various critical segments of such community in helping to develop and approve the plan.

(b) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) experience has shown that the failure of the District of Columbia educational system has been due more to the failure to implement a plan than the failure to develop a plan;

(2) national studies indicate that 50 percent of secondary school graduates lack basic literacy skills, and over 30 percent of the 7th grade students in the District of Columbia public schools drop out of school before graduating;

(3) standard student assessments indicate only average performance for grade level and fail to identify individual students who lack basic skills, allowing too many students to graduate lacking these basic skills and diminishing the worth of a diploma;

(4) experience has shown that successful schools have good community, parent, and business involvement;

(5) experience has shown that reducing dropout rates in the critical middle and secondary school years requires individual student involvement and attention through such activities as arts or athletics; and

(6) experience has shown that close coordination between educators and business persons is required to provide noncollege-bound students the skills necessary for employment, and that personal attention is vitally important to assist each student in developing an appropriate career path.

SEC. 2853. DUTIES AND POWERS OF THE CONSENSUS COMMISSION.

(a) PRIMARY RESPONSIBILITY.—The Board of Education and the Superintendent shall have primary responsibility for developing and implementing the long-term reform plan for education in the District of Columbia.

(b) DUTIES.—The Consensus Commission shall—

(1) identify any obstacles to implementation of the long-term reform plan and suggest ways to remove such obstacles;

(2) assist in developing programs that—

(A) ensure every student in a District of Columbia public school achieves basic literacy skills;

(B) ensure every such student possesses the knowledge and skills necessary to think critically and communicate effectively by the completion of grade 8; and

(C) lower the dropout rate in the District of Columbia public schools;

(3) assist in developing districtwide assessments, including individual assessments, that identify District of Columbia public school students who lack basic literacy skills, with particular attention being given to grade 4 and the middle school years, and establish procedures to ensure that a teacher is made accountable for the performance of every such student in such teacher's class;

(4) make recommendations to improve community, parent, and business involvement in District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools;

(5) assess opportunities in the District of Columbia to increase individual student involvement and attention through such activities as arts or athletics, and make recommendations on how to increase such involvement; and

(6) assist in the establishment of procedures that ensure every District of Columbia public school student is provided the skills necessary for employment, including the development of individual career paths.

(c) POWERS.—The Consensus Commission shall have the following powers:

(1) To monitor and comment on the development and implementation of the long-term reform plan.

(2) To exercise its authority, as provided in this subtitle, as necessary to facilitate implementation of the long-term reform plan.

(3) To review and comment on the budgets of the Board of Education, the District of Columbia public schools and public charter schools.

(4) To recommend rules concerning the management and direction of the Board of Education that address obstacles to the development or implementation of the long-term reform plan.

(5) To review and comment on the core curriculum for kindergarten through grade 12 developed under subtitle D.

(6) To review and comment on a core curriculum for prekindergarten, vocational and technical training, and adult education.

(7) To review and comment on all other educational programs carried out by the Board of Education and public charter schools.

(8) To review and comment on the districtwide assessments for measuring student achievement in the core curriculum developed under subtitle D.

(9) To review and comment on the model professional development programs for teachers using the core curriculum developed under subtitle D.

(d) LIMITATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in this subtitle, the Consensus Commission shall have no powers to involve itself in the management or operation of the Board of Education with respect to the implementation of the long-term reform plan.

(2) SPECIAL RULE.—If the Consensus Commission determines that the Board of Education has failed to take an action necessary to develop or implement the long-term reform plan or that the Board of Education is unable to do so, the Consensus Commission shall request the Authority to take appropriate action, and the Authority shall take such action as the Authority deems appropriate, to develop or implement, as the case may be, the long-term reform plan.

SEC. 2854. IMPROVING ORDER AND DISCIPLINE.

(a) COMMUNITY SERVICE REQUIREMENT FOR SUSPENDED STUDENTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Any student suspended from classes at a District of Columbia public school who is required to serve the suspension outside the school shall perform community service for the period of suspension. The community service required by this subsection shall be subject to rules and regulations promulgated by the Mayor.

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This subsection shall take effect on the first day of the 1996–1997 academic year.

(b) EXPIRATION DATE.—This section, and sections 2101(b)(1)(K) and 2851(a)(2)(H), shall cease to be effective on the last day of the 1997–1998 academic year.

(c) REPORT.—The Consensus Commission shall study the effectiveness of the policies implemented pursuant to this section in improving order and discipline in District of Columbia public schools and report its findings to the appropriate congressional committees not later than 60 days prior to the last day of the 1997–1998 academic year.

SEC. 2855. EDUCATIONAL PERFORMANCE AUDITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Consensus Commission may examine and request the Inspector General of the District of Columbia or the Authority to audit the records of the Board of Education to ensure, monitor, and evaluate the performance of the Board of Education with respect to compliance with the long-term reform plan and such plan's overall educational achievement. The Consensus Commission shall conduct an annual review of the educational performance of the Board of Education with respect to meeting the goals of such plan for such year. The Board of Education shall cooperate and assist in the review or audit as requested by the Consensus Commission.

(b) AUDIT.—The Consensus Commission may examine and request the Inspector General of the District of Columbia or the Authority to audit the records of any public charter school to assure, monitor, and evaluate the performance of the public charter school with respect to the content standards and districtwide assessments described in section 2411(b). The Consensus Commission shall receive a copy of each public charter school's annual report.

SEC. 2856. INVESTIGATIVE POWERS.

The Consensus Commission may investigate any action or activity which may hinder the progress of any part of the long-term reform plan. The Board of Education shall cooperate and assist the Consensus Commission in any investigation. Reports of the findings of any such investigation shall be provided to the Board of Education, the Superintendent, the Mayor, the District of Columbia Council, the Authority, and the appropriate congressional committees.

SEC. 2857. RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE CONSENSUS COMMISSION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Consensus Commission may at any time submit recommendations to the Board of Education, the Mayor, the District of Columbia Council, the Authority, the Board of Trustees of any public charter school and the Congress with respect to actions the District of Columbia Government or the Federal Government should take to ensure implementation of the long-term reform plan.

(b) AUTHORITY ACTIONS.—Pursuant to the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Act of 1995 or upon the recommendation of the Consensus Commission, the Authority may take whatever actions the Authority deems necessary to ensure the implementation of the long-term reform plan.

SEC. 2858. EXPIRATION DATE.

Except as otherwise provided in this subtitle, this subtitle shall be effective during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending 7 years after such date.

Subtitle M—Parent Attendance at Parent-Teacher Conferences

SEC. 2901. POLICY.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Mayor is authorized to develop and implement a policy encouraging all residents of the District of Columbia with children attending a District of Columbia public school to attend and participate in at least one parent-teacher conference every 90 days during the academic year.

(c) Such amounts as may be necessary for programs, projects or activities provided for in the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996 at a rate of operations and to the extent and in the manner provided as follows, to be effective as if it had been enacted into law as the regular appropriations Act:

AN ACT

Making appropriations for the Department of the Interior and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, and for other purposes.

TITLE I—DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

MANAGEMENT OF LANDS AND RESOURCES

For expenses necessary for protection, use, improvement, development, disposal, cadastral surveying, classification, acquisition of easements and other interests in lands, and performance of other functions, including maintenance of facilities, as authorized by law, in the management of lands and their resources under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management, including the general administration of the Bureau, and assessment of mineral potential of public lands pursuant to Public Law 96-487 (16 U.S.C. 3150(a)), $567,152,000, to remain available until expended, of which $2,000,000 shall be available for assessment of the mineral potential of public lands in Alaska pursuant to section 1010 of Public Law 96-487 (16 U.S.C. 3150), and of which $4,000,000 shall be derived from the special receipt account established by section 4 of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965, as amended (16 U.S.C. 460l-6a(i)): Provided, That appropriations herein made shall not be available for the destruction of healthy, unadopted, wild horses and burros in the care of the Bureau or its contractors; and in addition, $27,650,000 for Mining Law Administration program operations, to remain available until expended, to be reduced by amounts collected by the Bureau of Land Management and credited to this appropriation from annual mining claim fees so as to result in a final appropriation estimated at not more than $567,152,000: Provided further, That in addition to funds otherwise available, and to remain available until expended, not to exceed $5,000,000 from annual mining claim fees shall be credited to this account for the costs of administering the mining claim fee program, and $2,000,000 from communication site rental fees established by the Bureau.

WILDLAND FIRE MANAGEMENT

For necessary expenses for fire use and management, fire preparedness, emergency presuppression, suppression operations, emergency rehabilitation, and renovation or construction of fire facilities in the Department of the Interior, $235,924,000, to remain available until expended, of which not to exceed $5,025,000, shall be available for the renovation or construction of fire facilities: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, persons hired pursuant to 43 U.S.C. 1469 may be furnished subsistence and lodging without cost from funds available from this appropriation: Provided further, That such funds are also available for repayment of advances to other appropriation accounts from which funds were previously transferred for such purposes: Provided further, That unobligated balances of amounts previously appropriated to the Fire Protection and Emergency Department of the Interior Firefighting Fund may be transferred or merged with this appropriation.

CENTRAL HAZARDOUS MATERIALS FUND

For expenses necessary for use by the Department of the Interior and any of its component offices and bureaus for the remedial action, including associated activities, of hazardous waste substances, pollutants, or contaminants pursuant to the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, as amended (42 U.S.C. 9601 et seq.), $10,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That, notwithstanding 31 U.S.C. 3302, sums recovered from or paid by a party in advance of or as reimbursement for remedial action or response activities conducted by the Department pursuant to sections 107 or 113(f) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, as amended (42 U.S.C. 9607 or 9613(f)), shall be credited to this account and shall be available without further appropriation and shall remain available until expended: Provided further, That such sums recovered from or paid by any party are not limited to monetary payments and may include stocks, bonds or other personal or real property, which may be retained, liquidated, or otherwise disposed of by the Secretary of the Interior and which shall be credited to this account.

CONSTRUCTION AND ACCESS

For acquisition of lands and interests therein, and construction of buildings, recreation facilities, roads, trails, and appurtenant facilities, $3,115,000, to remain available until expended.

PAYMENTS IN LIEU OF TAXES

For expenses necessary to implement the Act of October 20, 1976, as amended (31 U.S.C. 6901–07), $101,500,000, of which not to exceed $400,000 shall be available for administrative expenses.

LAND ACQUISITION

For expenses necessary to carry out the provisions of sections 205, 206, and 318(d) of Public Law 94–579 including administrative expenses and acquisition of lands or waters, or interests therein, $12,800,000 to be derived from the Land and Water Conservation Fund, to remain available until expended.

OREGON AND CALIFORNIA GRANT LANDS

For expenses necessary for management, protection, and development of resources and for construction, operation, and maintenance of access roads, reforestation, and other improvements on the revested Oregon and California Railroad grant lands, on other Federal lands in the Oregon and California land-grant counties of Oregon, and on adjacent rights-of-way; and acquisition of lands or interests therein including existing connecting roads on or adjacent to such grant lands; $97,452,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That 25 per centum of the aggregate of all receipts during the current fiscal year from the revested Oregon and California Railroad grant lands is hereby made a charge against the Oregon and California land-grant fund and shall be transferred to the General Fund in the Treasury in accordance with the provisions of the second paragraph of subsection (b) of title II of the Act of August 28, 1937 (50 Stat. 876).

RANGE IMPROVEMENTS

For rehabilitation, protection, and acquisition of lands and interests therein, and improvement of Federal rangelands pursuant to section 401 of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976 (43 U.S.C. 1701), notwithstanding any other Act, sums equal to 50 per centum of all moneys received during the prior fiscal year under sections 3 and 15 of the Taylor Grazing Act (43 U.S.C. 315 et seq.) and the amount designated for range improvements from grazing fees and mineral leasing receipts from Bankhead-Jones lands transferred to the Department of the Interior pursuant to law, but not less than $9,113,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That not to exceed $600,000 shall be available for administrative expenses.

SERVICE CHARGES, DEPOSITS, AND FORFEITURES

For administrative expenses and other costs related to processing application documents and other authorizations for use and disposal of public lands and resources, for costs of providing copies of official public land documents, for monitoring construction, operation, and termination of facilities in conjunction with use authorizations, and for rehabilitation of damaged property, such amounts as may be collected under sections 209(b), 304(a), 304(b), 305(a), and 504(g) of the Act approved October 21, 1976 (43 U.S.C. 1701), and sections 101 and 203 of Public Law 93–153, to be immediately available until expended: Provided, That notwithstanding any provision to the contrary of section 305(a) of the Act of October 21, 1976 (43 U.S.C. 1735(a)), any moneys that have been or will be received pursuant to that section, whether as a result of forfeiture, compromise, or settlement, if not appropriate for refund pursuant to section 305(c) of that Act (43 U.S.C. 1735(c)), shall be available and may be expended under the authority of this or subsequent appropriations Acts by the Secretary to improve, protect, or rehabilitate any public lands administered through the Bureau of Land Management which have been damaged by the action of a resource developer, purchaser, permittee, or any unauthorized person, without regard to whether all moneys collected from each such forfeiture, compromise, or settlement are used on the exact lands damage to which led to the forfeiture, compromise, or settlement: Provided further, That such moneys are in excess of amounts needed to repair damage to the exact land for which collected.

MISCELLANEOUS TRUST FUNDS

In addition to amounts authorized to be expended under existing law, there is hereby appropriated such amounts as may be contributed under section 307 of the Act of October 21, 1976 (43 U.S.C. 1701), and such amounts as may be advanced for administrative costs, surveys, appraisals, and costs of making conveyances of omitted lands under section 211(b) of that Act, to remain available until expended.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Appropriations for the Bureau of Land Management shall be available for purchase, erection, and dismantlement of temporary structures, and alteration and maintenance of necessary buildings and appurtenant facilities to which the United States has title; up to $100,000 for payments, at the discretion of the Secretary, for information or evidence concerning violations of laws administered by the Bureau of Land Management; miscellaneous and emergency expenses of enforcement activities authorized or approved by the Secretary and to be accounted for solely on his certificate, not to exceed $10,000: Provided, That notwithstanding 44 U.S.C. 501, the Bureau may, under cooperative cost-sharing and partnership arrangements authorized by law, procure printing services from cooperators in connection with jointly-produced publications for which the cooperators share the cost of printing either in cash or in services, and the Bureau determines the cooperator is capable of meeting accepted quality standards.

UNITED STATES FISH AND WILDLIFE SERVICE

RESOURCE MANAGEMENT

For expenses necessary for scientific and economic studies, conservation, management, investigations, protection, and utilization of fishery and wildlife resources, except whales, seals, and sea lions, and for the performance of other authorized functions related to such resources; for the general administration of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service; and for maintenance of the herd of long-horned cattle on the Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge; and not less than $1,000,000 for high priority projects within the scope of the approved budget which shall be carried out by the Youth Conservation Corps as authorized by the Act of August 13, 1970, as amended by Public Law 93–408, $497,670,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 1997, of which $11,557,000 shall be available until expended for operation and maintenance of fishery mitigation facilities constructed by the Corps of Engineers under the Lower Snake River Compensation Plan, authorized by the Water Resources Development Act of 1976 (90 Stat. 2921), to compensate for loss of fishery resources from water development projects on the Lower Snake River: Provided, That unobligated and unexpended balances in the Resource Management account at the end of fiscal year 1995, shall be merged with and made a part of the fiscal year 1996 Resource Management appropriation, and shall remain available for obligation until September 30, 1997: Provided further, That no monies appropriated under this Act or any other law shall be used to implement subsections (a), (b), (c), (e), (g), or (i) of section 4 of the Endangered Species Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1533), until such time as legislation reauthorizing the Act is enacted or until the end of fiscal year 1996, whichever is earlier, except that monies appropriated under this Act may be used to delist or reclassify species pursuant to subsections 4(a)(2)(B), 4(c)(2)(B)(i), and 4(c)(2)(B)(ii) of the Act.

CONSTRUCTION

For construction and acquisition of buildings and other facilities required in the conservation, management, investigation, protection, and utilization of fishery and wildlife resources, and the acquisition of lands and interests therein; $37,655,000, to remain available until expended.

NATURAL RESOURCE DAMAGE ASSESSMENT FUND

To conduct natural resource damage assessment activities by the Department of the Interior necessary to carry out the provisions of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act, as amended (42 U.S.C. 9601, et seq.), Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended (33 U.S.C. 1251, et seq.), the Oil Pollution Act of 1990 (Public Law 101–380), and the Act of July 27, 1990 (Public Law 101–337); $4,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That sums provided by any party in fiscal year 1996 and thereafter are not limited to monetary payments and may include stocks, bonds or other personal or real property, which may be retained, liquidated or otherwise disposed of by the Secretary and such sums or properties shall be utilized for the restoration of injured resources, and to conduct new damage assessment activities.

LAND ACQUISITION

For expenses necessary to carry out the provisions of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965, as amended (16 U.S.C. 4601–4–11), including administrative expenses, and for acquisition of land or waters, or interest therein, in accordance with statutory authority applicable to the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, $36,900,000, to be derived from the Land and Water Conservation Fund, to remain available until expended.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Appropriations and funds available to the United States Fish and Wildlife Service shall be available for purchase of not to exceed 113 passenger motor vehicles; not to exceed $400,000 for payment, at the discretion of the Secretary, for information, rewards, or evidence concerning violations of laws administered by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, and miscellaneous and emergency expenses of enforcement activities, authorized or approved by the Secretary and to be accounted for solely on his certificate; repair of damage to public roads within and adjacent to reservation areas caused by operations of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service; options for the purchase of land at not to exceed $1 for each option; facilities incident to such public recreational uses on conservation areas as are consistent with their primary purpose; and the maintenance and improvement of aquaria, buildings, and other facilities under the jurisdiction of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service and to which the United States has title, and which are utilized pursuant to law in connection with management and investigation of fish and wildlife resources: Provided, That notwithstanding 44 U.S.C. 501, the Service may, under cooperative cost sharing and partnership arrangements authorized by law, procure printing services from cooperators in connection with jointly-produced publications for which the cooperators share at least one-half the cost of printing either in cash or services and the Service determines the cooperator is capable of meeting accepted quality standards: Provided further, That the United States Fish and Wildlife Service may accept donated aircraft as replacements for existing aircraft: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of the Interior may not spend any of the funds appropriated in this Act for the purchase of lands or interests in lands to be used in the establishment of any new unit of the National Wildlife Refuge System unless the purchase is approved in advance by the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations in compliance with the reprogramming procedures contained in House Report 103-551: Provided further, That none of the funds made available in this Act may be used by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service to impede or delay the issuance of a wetlands permit by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers to the City of Lake Jackson, Texas, for the development of a public golf course west of Buffalo Camp Bayou between the Brazos River and Highway 332: Provided further, That the Director of the Fish and Wildlife Service may charge reasonable fees for expenses to the Federal Government for providing training by the National Education and Training Center: Provided further, That all training fees collected shall be available to the Director, until expended, without further appropriation, to be used for the costs of training and education provided by the National Education and Training Center: Provided further, That with respect to lands leased for farming pursuant to Public Law 88-567, if for any reason the Secretary disapproves for use in 1996 or does not finally approve for use in 1996 any pesticide or chemical which was approved for use in 1995 or had been requested for use in 1996 by the submission of a pesticide use proposal as of September 19, 1995, none of the funds in this Act may be used to develop, implement, or enforce regulations or policies (including pesticide use proposals) related to the use of chemicals and pest management that are more restrictive than the requirements of applicable State and Federal laws related to the use of chemicals and pest management practices on non-Federal lands.

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE

OPERATION OF THE NATIONAL PARK SYSTEM

For expenses necessary for the management, operation, and maintenance of areas and facilities administered by the National Park Service (including special road maintenance service to trucking permittees on a reimbursable basis), and for the general administration of the National Park Service, including not to exceed $1,593,000 for the Volunteers-in-Parks program, and not less than $1,000,000 for high priority projects within the scope of the approved budget which shall be carried out by the Youth Conservation Corps as authorized by the Act of August 13, 1970, as amended by Public Law 93-408, $1,086,014,000, without regard to the Act of August 24, 1912, as amended (16 U.S.C. 451), of which not to exceed $72,000,000, to remain available until expended is to be derived from the special fee account established pursuant to title V, section 5201, of Public Law 100-203.

NATIONAL RECREATION AND PRESERVATION

For expenses necessary to carry out recreation programs, natural programs, cultural programs, environmental compliance and review, international park affairs, statutory or contractual aid for other activities, and grant administration, not otherwise provided for, $37,649,000: Provided, That $236,000 of the funds provided herein are for the William O. Douglas Outdoor Education Center, subject to authorization.

HISTORIC PRESERVATION FUND

For expenses necessary in carrying out the provisions of the Historic Preservation Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 915), as amended (16 U.S.C. 470), $36,212,000, to be derived from the Historic Preservation Fund, established by section 108 of that Act, as amended, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 1997.

CONSTRUCTION

For construction, improvements, repair or replacement of physical facilities, $143,225,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That not to exceed $4,500,000 of the funds provided herein shall be paid to the Army Corps of Engineers for modifications authorized by section 104 of the Everglades National Park Protection and Expansion Act of 1989: Provided further, That funds provided under this head, derived from the Historic Preservation Fund, established by the Historic Preservation Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 915), as amended (16 U.S.C. 470), may be available until expended to render sites safe for visitors and for building stabilization.

LAND AND WATER CONSERVATION FUND

(RESCISSION)

The contract authority provided for fiscal year 1996 by 16 U.S.C. 460l-10a is rescinded.

LAND ACQUISITION AND STATE ASSISTANCE

For expenses necessary to carry out the provisions of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965, as amended (16 U.S.C. 460l-4-11), including administrative expenses, and for acquisition of lands or waters, or interest therein, in accordance with statutory authority applicable to the National Park Service, $49,100,000, to be derived from the Land and Water Conservation Fund, to remain available until expended, and of which $1,500,000 is to administer the State assistance program: Provided, That any funds made available for the purpose of acquisition of the Elwha and Glines dams shall be used solely for acquisition, and shall not be expended until the full purchase amount has been appropriated by the Congress.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Appropriations for the National Park Service shall be available for the purchase of not to exceed 518 passenger motor vehicles, of which 323 shall be for replacement only, including not to exceed 411 for police-type use, 12 buses, and 5 ambulances: Provided, That none of the funds appropriated to the National Park Service may be used to process any grant or contract documents which do not include the text of 18 U.S.C. 1913: Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated to the National Park Service may be used to implement an agreement for the redevelopment of the southern end of Ellis Island until such agreement has been submitted to the Congress and shall not be implemented prior to the expiration of 30 calendar days (not including any day in which either House of Congress is not in session because of adjournment of more than three calendar days to a day certain) from the receipt by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the Senate of a full and comprehensive report on the development of the southern end of Ellis Island, including the facts and circumstances relied upon in support of the proposed project.

None of the funds in this Act may be spent by the National Park Service for activities taken in direct response to the United Nations Biodiversity Convention.

The National Park Service may enter into cooperative agreements that involve the transfer of National Park Service appropriated funds to State, local and tribal governments, other public entities, educational institutions, and private nonprofit organizations for the public purpose of carrying out National Park Service programs.

The National Park Service shall, within existing funds, conduct a Feasibility Study for a northern access route into Denali National Park and Preserve in Alaska, to be completed within one year of the enactment of this Act and submitted to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations and to the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources and the House Committee on Resources. The Feasibility Study shall ensure that resource impacts from any plan to create such access route are evaluated with accurate information and according to a process that takes into consideration park values, visitor needs, a full range of alternatives, the viewpoints of all interested parties, including the tourism industry and the State of Alaska, and potential needs for compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act. The Study shall also address the time required for development of alternatives and identify all associated costs.

This Feasibility Study shall be conducted solely by the National Park Service planning personnel permanently assigned to National Park Service offices located in the State of Alaska in consultation with the State of Alaska Department of Transportation.

UNITED STATES GEOLOGICAL SURVEY

SURVEYS, INVESTIGATIONS, AND RESEARCH

For expenses necessary for the United States Geological Survey to perform surveys, investigations, and research covering topography, geology, hydrology, and the mineral and water resources of the United States, its Territories and possessions, and other areas as authorized by law (43 U.S.C. 31, 1332 and 1340); classify lands as to their mineral and water resources; give engineering supervision to power permittees and Federal Energy Regulatory Commission licensees; administer the minerals exploration program (30 U.S.C. 641); and publish and disseminate data relative to the foregoing activities; and to conduct inquiries into the economic conditions affecting mining and materials processing industries (30 U.S.C. 3, 21a, and 1603; 50 U.S.C. 98g(1)) and related purposes as authorized by law and to publish and disseminate data; $729,995,000, of which $62,130,000 shall be available for cooperation with States or municipalities for water resources investigations, and of which $137,000,000 for resource research and the operations of Cooperative Research Units shall remain available until September 30, 1997, and of which $16,000,000 shall remain available until expended for conducting inquiries into the economic conditions affecting mining and materials processing industries: Provided, That no part of this appropriation shall be used to pay more than one-half the cost of any topographic mapping or water resources investigations carried on in cooperation with any State or municipality: Provided further, That funds available herein for resource research may be used for the purchase of not to exceed 61 passenger motor vehicles, of which 55 are for replacement only: Provided further, That none of the funds available under this head for resource research shall be used to conduct new surveys on private property, including new aerial surveys for the designation of habitat under the Endangered Species Act, except when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that the survey or research has been requested and authorized in writing by the property owner or the owner's authorized representative: Provided further, That none of the funds provided herein for resource research may be used to administer a volunteer program when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that the volunteers are not properly trained or that information gathered by the volunteers is not carefully verified: Provided further, That no later than April 1, 1996, the Director of the United States Geological Survey shall issue agency guidelines for resource research that ensure that scientific and technical peer review is utilized as fully as possible in selection of projects for funding and ensure the validity and reliability of research and data collection on Federal lands: Provided further, That no funds available for resource research may be used for any activity that was not authorized prior to the establishment of the National Biological Survey: Provided further, That once every five years the National Academy of Sciences shall review and report on the resource research activities of the Survey: Provided further, That if specific authorizing legislation is enacted during or before the start of fiscal year 1996, the resource research component of the Survey should comply with the provisions of that legislation: Provided further, That unobligated and unexpended balances in the National Biological Survey, Research, inventories and surveys account at the end of fiscal year 1995, shall be merged with and made a part of the United States Geological Survey, Surveys, investigations, and research account and shall remain available for obligation until September 30, 1996: Provided further, That the authority granted to the United States Bureau of Mines to conduct mineral surveys and to determine mineral values by section 603 of Public Law 94–579 is hereby transferred to, and vested in, the Director of the United States Geological Survey.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

The amount appropriated for the United States Geological Survey shall be available for purchase of not to exceed 22 passenger motor vehicles, for replacement only; reimbursement to the General Services Administration for security guard services; contracting for the furnishing of topographic maps and for the making of geophysical or other specialized surveys when it is administratively determined that such procedures are in the public interest; construction and maintenance of necessary buildings and appurtenant facilities; acquisition of lands for gauging stations and observation wells; expenses of the United States National Committee on Geology; and payment of compensation and expenses of persons on the rolls of the United States Geological Survey appointed, as authorized by law, to represent the United States in the negotiation and administration of interstate compacts: Provided, That activities funded by appropriations herein made may be accomplished through the use of contracts, grants, or cooperative agreements as defined in 31 U.S.C. 6302, et seq.

MINERALS MANAGEMENT SERVICE

ROYALTY AND OFFSHORE MINERALS MANAGEMENT

For expenses necessary for minerals leasing and environmental studies, regulation of industry operations, and collection of royalties, as authorized by law; for enforcing laws and regulations applicable to oil, gas, and other minerals leases, permits, licenses and operating contracts; and for matching grants or cooperative agreements; including the purchase of not to exceed eight passenger motor vehicles for replacement only; $182,339,000, of which not less than $70,105,000 shall be available for royalty management activities; and an amount not to exceed $15,400,000 for the Technical Information Management System and Related Activities of the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) Lands Activity, to be credited to this appropriation and to remain available until expended, from additions to receipts resulting from increases to rates in effect on August 5, 1993, from rate increases to fee collections for OCS administrative activities performed by the Minerals Management Service over and above the rates in effect on September 30, 1993, and from additional fees for OCS administrative activities established after September 30, 1993: Provided, That beginning in fiscal year 1996 and thereafter, fees for royalty rate relief applications shall be established (and revised as needed) in Notices to Lessees, and shall be credited to this account in the program areas performing the function, and remain available until expended for the costs of administering the royalty rate relief authorized by 43 U.S.C. 1337(a)(3): Provided further, That $1,500,000 for computer acquisitions shall remain available until September 30, 1997: Provided further, That funds appropriated under this Act shall be available for the payment of interest in accordance with 30 U.S.C. 1721 (b) and (d): Provided further, That not to exceed $3,000 shall be available for reasonable expenses related to promoting volunteer beach and marine cleanup activities: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, $15,000 under this head shall be available for refunds of overpayments in connection with certain Indian leases in which the Director of the Minerals Management Service concurred with the claimed refund due, to pay amounts owed to Indian allottees or Tribes, or to correct prior unrecoverable erroneous payments: Provided further, That beginning in fiscal year 1996 and thereafter, the Secretary shall take appropriate action to collect unpaid and underpaid royalties and late payment interest owed by Federal and Indian mineral lessees and other royalty payors on amounts received in settlement or other resolution of disputes under, and for partial or complete termination of, sales agreements for minerals from Federal and Indian leases.

OIL SPILL RESEARCH

For necessary expenses to carry out the purposes of title I, section 1016, title IV, sections 4202 and 4303, title VII, and title VIII, section 8201 of the Oil Pollution Act of 1990, $6,440,000, which shall be derived from the Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund, to remain available until expended.

BUREAU OF MINES

MINES AND MINERALS

For expenses necessary for, and incidental to, the closure of the United States Bureau of Mines, $64,000,000, to remain available until expended, of which not to exceed $5,000,000 may be used for the completion and/or transfer of certain ongoing projects within the United States Bureau of Mines, such projects to be identified by the Secretary of the Interior within 90 days of enactment of this Act: Provided, That there hereby are transferred to, and vested in, the Secretary of Energy: (1) the functions pertaining to the promotion of health and safety in mines and the mineral industry through research vested by law in the Secretary of the Interior or the United States Bureau of Mines and performed in fiscal year 1995 by the United States Bureau of Mines at its Pittsburgh Research Center in Pennsylvania, and at its Spokane Research Center in Washington; (2) the functions pertaining to the conduct of inquiries, technological investigations and research concerning the extraction, processing, use and disposal of mineral substances vested by law in the Secretary of the Interior or the United States Bureau of Mines and performed in fiscal year 1995 by the United States Bureau of Mines under the minerals and materials science programs at its Pittsburgh Research Center in Pennsylvania, and at its Albany Research Center in Oregon; and (3) the functions pertaining to mineral reclamation industries and the development of methods for the disposal, control, prevention, and reclamation of mineral waste products vested by law in the Secretary of the Interior or the United States Bureau of Mines and performed in fiscal year 1995 by the United States Bureau of Mines at its Pittsburgh Research Center in Pennsylvania: Provided further, That, if any of the same functions were performed in fiscal year 1995 at locations other than those listed above, such functions shall not be transferred to the Secretary of Energy from those other locations: Provided further, That the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, in consultation with the Secretary of Energy and the Secretary of the Interior, is authorized to make such determinations as may be necessary with regard to the transfer of functions which relate to or are used by the Department of the Interior, or component thereof affected by this transfer of functions, and to make such dispositions of personnel, facilities, assets, liabilities, contracts, property, records, and unexpended balances of appropriations, authorizations, allocations, and other funds held, used, arising from, available to or to be made available in connection with, the functions transferred herein as are deemed necessary to accomplish the purposes of this transfer: Provided further, That all reductions in personnel complements resulting from the provisions of this Act shall, as to the functions transferred to the Secretary of Energy, be done by the Secretary of the Interior as though these transfers had not taken place but had been required of the Department of the Interior by all other provisions of this Act before the transfers of function became effective: Provided further, That the transfers of function to the Secretary of Energy shall become effective on the date specified by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, but in no event later than 90 days after enactment into law of this Act: Provided further, That the reference to "function" includes, but is not limited to, any duty, obligation, power, authority, responsibility, right, privilege, and activity, or the plural thereof, as the case may be.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

The Secretary is authorized to accept lands, buildings, equipment, other contributions, and fees from public and private sources, and to prosecute projects using such contributions and fees in cooperation with other Federal, State or private agencies: Provided, That the Bureau of Mines is authorized, during the current fiscal year, to sell directly or through any Government agency, including corporations, any metal or mineral products that may be manufactured in pilot plants operated by the Bureau of Mines, and the proceeds of such sales shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary is authorized to convey, without reimbursement, title and all interest of the United States in property and facilities of the United States Bureau of Mines in Juneau, Alaska, to the City and Borough of Juneau, Alaska; in Tuscaloosa, Alabama, to the University of Alabama; in Rolla, Missouri, to the University of Missouri-Rolla; and in other localities to such university or government entities as the Secretary deems appropriate.

OFFICE OF SURFACE MINING RECLAMATION AND ENFORCEMENT

REGULATION AND TECHNOLOGY

For necessary expenses to carry out the provisions of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977, Public Law 95–87, as amended, including the purchase of not to exceed 15 passenger motor vehicles for replacement only; $95,470,000, and notwithstanding 31 U.S.C. 3302, an additional amount shall be credited to this account, to remain available until expended, from performance bond forfeitures in fiscal year 1996: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of the Interior, pursuant to regulations, may utilize directly or through grants to States, moneys collected in fiscal year 1996 pursuant to the assessment of civil penalties under section 518 of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 (30 U.S.C. 1268), to reclaim lands adversely affected by coal mining practices after August 3, 1977, to remain available until expended: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, appropriations for the Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement may provide for the travel and per diem expenses of State and tribal personnel attending Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement sponsored training.

ABANDONED MINE RECLAMATION FUND

For necessary expenses to carry out the provisions of title IV of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977, Public Law 95–87, as amended, including the purchase of not more than 22 passenger motor vehicles for replacement only, $173,887,000, to be derived from receipts of the Abandoned Mine Reclamation Fund and to remain available until expended: Provided, That grants to minimum program States will be $1,500,000 per State in fiscal year 1996: Provided further, That of the funds herein provided up to $18,000,000 may be used for the emergency program authorized by section 410 of Public Law 95–87, as amended, of which no more than 25 per centum shall be used for emergency reclamation projects in any one State and funds for Federally-administered emergency reclamation projects under this proviso shall not exceed $11,000,000: Provided further, That prior year unobligated funds appropriated for the emergency reclamation program shall not be subject to the 25 per centum limitation per State and may be used without fiscal year limitation for emergency projects: Provided further, That pursuant to Public Law 97–365, the Department of the Interior is authorized to utilize up to 20 per centum from the recovery of the delinquent debt owed to the United States Government to pay for contracts to collect these debts: Provided further, That funds made available to States under title IV of Public Law 95–87 may be used, at their discretion, for any required non-Federal share of the cost of projects funded by the Federal Government for the purpose of environmental restoration related to treatment or abatement of acid mine drainage from abandoned mines: Provided further, That such projects must be consistent with the purposes and priorities of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act.

BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS

OPERATION OF INDIAN PROGRAMS

For operation of Indian programs by direct expenditure, contracts, cooperative agreements, compacts, and grants including expenses necessary to provide education and welfare services for Indians, either directly or in cooperation with States and other organizations, including payment of care, tuition, assistance, and other expenses of Indians in boarding homes, or institutions, or schools; grants and other assistance to needy Indians; maintenance of law and order; management, development, improvement, and protection of resources and appurtenant facilities under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, including payment of irrigation assessments and charges; acquisition of water rights; advances for Indian industrial and business enterprises; operation of Indian arts and crafts shops and museums; development of Indian arts and crafts, as authorized by law; for the general administration of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, including such expenses in field offices; maintaining of Indian reservation roads as defined in section 101 of title 23, United States Code; and construction, repair, and improvement of Indian housing, $1,384,434,000, of which not to exceed $100,255,000 shall be for welfare assistance grants and not to exceed $104,626,000 shall be for payments to tribes and tribal organizations for contract support costs associated with ongoing contracts or grants or compacts entered into with the Bureau of Indian Affairs prior to fiscal year 1996, as authorized by the Indian Self-Determination Act of 1975, as amended, and up to $5,000,000 shall be for the Indian Self-Determination Fund, which shall be available for the transitional cost of initial or expanded tribal contracts, grants, compacts, or cooperative agreements with the Bureau of Indian Affairs under the provisions of the Indian Self-Determination Act; and of which not to exceed $330,711,000 for school operations costs of Bureau-funded schools and other education programs shall become available for obligation on July 1, 1996, and shall remain available for obligation until September 30, 1997; and of which not to exceed $68,209,000 for higher education scholarships, adult vocational training, and assistance to public schools under the Act of April 16, 1934 (48 Stat. 596), as amended (25 U.S.C. 452 et seq.), shall remain available for obligation until September 30, 1997; and of which not to exceed $71,854,000 shall remain available until expended for housing improvement, road maintenance, attorney fees, litigation support, self-governance grants, the Indian Self-Determination Fund, and the Navajo-Hopi Settlement Program: Provided, That tribes and tribal contractors may use their tribal priority allocations for unmet indirect costs of ongoing contracts, grants or compact agreements: Provided further, That funds made available to tribes and tribal organizations through contracts or grants obligated during fiscal year 1996, as authorized by the Indian Self-Determination Act of 1975 (88 Stat. 2203; 25 U.S.C. 450 et seq.), or grants authorized by the Indian Education Amendments of 1988 (25 U.S.C. 2001 and 2008A) shall remain available until expended by the contractor or grantee: Provided further, That to provide funding uniformity within a Self-Governance Compact, any funds provided in this Act with availability for more than one year may be reprogrammed to one year availability but shall remain available within the Compact until expended: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, Indian tribal governments may, by appropriate changes in eligibility criteria or by other means, change eligibility for general assistance or change the amount of general assistance payments for individuals within the service area of such tribe who are otherwise deemed eligible for general assistance payments so long as such changes are applied in a consistent manner to individuals similarly situated: Provided further, That any savings realized by such changes shall be available for use in meeting other priorities of the tribes: Provided further, That any net increase in costs to the Federal Government which result solely from tribally increased payment levels for general assistance shall be met exclusively from funds available to the tribe from within its tribal priority allocation: Provided further, That any forestry funds allocated to a tribe which remain unobligated as of September 30, 1996, may be transferred during fiscal year 1997 to an Indian forest land assistance account established for the benefit of such tribe within the tribe's trust fund account: Provided further, That any such unobligated balances not so transferred shall expire on September 30, 1997: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, no funds available to the Bureau of Indian Affairs, other than the amounts provided herein for assistance to public schools under the Act of April 16, 1934 (48 Stat. 596), as amended (25 U.S.C.

452 et seq.), shall be available to support the operation of any elementary or secondary school in the State of Alaska in fiscal year 1996: Provided further, That funds made available in this or any other Act for expenditure through September 30, 1997 for schools funded by the Bureau of Indian Affairs shall be available only to the schools which are in the Bureau of Indian Affairs school system as of September 1, 1995: Provided further, That no funds available to the Bureau of Indian Affairs shall be used to support expanded grades for any school beyond the grade structure in place at each school in the Bureau of Indian Affairs school system as of October 1, 1995: Provided further, That notwithstanding the provisions of 25 U.S.C. 2011(h)(1)(B) and (c), upon the recommendation of a local school board for a Bureau of Indian Affairs operated school, the Secretary shall establish rates of basic compensation or annual salary rates for the positions of teachers and counselors (including dormitory and homeliving counselors) at the school at a level not less than that for comparable positions in public school districts in the same geographic area, to become effective on July 1, 1997: Provided further, That of the funds available only through September 30, 1995, not to exceed $8,000,000 in unobligated and unexpended balances in the Operation of Indian Programs account shall be merged with and made a part of the fiscal year 1996 Operation of Indian Programs appropriation, and shall remain available for obligation for employee severance, relocation, and related expenses, until March 31, 1996.

GENERAL PROVISIONS, DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

SEC. 101. Appropriations made in this title shall be available for expenditure or transfer (within each bureau or office), with the approval of the Secretary, for the emergency reconstruction, replacement, or repair of aircraft, buildings, utilities, or other facilities or equipment damaged or destroyed by fire, flood, storm, or other unavoidable causes: Provided, That no funds shall be made available under this authority until funds specifically made available to the Department of the Interior for emergencies shall have been exhausted: Provided further, That all funds used pursuant to this section are hereby designated by Congress to be "emergency requirements" pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(D) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 and must be replenished by a supplemental appropriation which must be requested as promptly as possible.

SEC. 102. The Secretary may authorize the expenditure or transfer of any no year appropriation in this title, in addition to the amounts included in the budget programs of the several agencies, for the suppression or emergency prevention of forest or range fires on or threatening lands under the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior; for the emergency rehabilitation of burned-over lands under its jurisdiction; for emergency actions related to potential or actual earthquakes, floods, volcanoes, storms, or other unavoidable causes; for contingency planning subsequent to actual oilspills; response and natural resource damage assessment activities related to actual oilspills; for the prevention, suppression, and control of actual or potential grasshopper and Mormon cricket outbreaks on lands under the jurisdiction of the Secretary, pursuant to the authority in section 1773(b) of Public Law 99-198 (99 Stat. 1658); for emergency reclamation projects under section 410 of Public Law 95-87; and shall transfer, from any no year funds available to the Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, such funds as may be necessary to permit assumption of regulatory authority in the event a primacy State is not carrying out the regulatory provisions of the Surface Mining Act: Provided, That appropriations made in this title for fire suppression purposes shall be available for the payment of obligations incurred during the preceding fiscal year, and for reimbursement to other Federal agencies for destruction of vehicles, aircraft, or other equipment in connection with their use for fire suppression purposes, such reimbursement to be credited to appropriations currently available at the time of receipt thereof: Provided further, That for emergency rehabilitation and wildfire suppression activities, no funds shall be made available under this authority until funds appropriated to the "Emergency Department of the Interior Firefighting Fund" shall have been exhausted: Provided further, That all funds used pursuant to this section are hereby designated by Congress to be "emergency requirements" pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(D) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 and must be replenished by a supplemental appropriation which must be requested as promptly as possible: Provided further, That such replenishment funds shall be used to reimburse, on a pro rata basis, accounts from which emergency funds were transferred.

SEC. 103. Appropriations made in this title shall be available for operation of warehouses, garages, shops, and similar facilities, wherever consolidation of activities will contribute to efficiency or economy, and said appropriations shall be reimbursed for services rendered to any other activity in the same manner as authorized by sections 1535 and 1536 of title 31, United States Code: Provided, That reimbursements for costs and supplies, materials, equipment, and for services rendered may be credited to the appropriation current at the time such reimbursements are received.

SEC. 104. Appropriations made to the Department of the Interior in this title shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, when authorized by the Secretary, in total amount not to exceed $500,000; hire, maintenance, and operation of aircraft; hire of passenger motor vehicles; purchase of reprints; payment for telephone service in private residences in the field, when authorized under regulations approved by the Secretary; and the payment of dues, when authorized by the Secretary, for library membership in societies or associations which issue publications to members only or at a price to members lower than to subscribers who are not members.

SEC. 105. Appropriations available to the Department of the Interior for salaries and expenses shall be available for uniforms or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902 and D.C. Code 4-204).

SEC. 106. Appropriations made in this title shall be available for obligation in connection with contracts issued for services or rentals for periods not in excess of twelve months beginning at any time during the fiscal year.

SEC. 107. Appropriations made in this title from the Land and Water Conservation Fund for acquisition of lands and waters, or interests therein, shall be available for transfer, with the approval of the Secretary, between the following accounts: Bureau of Land Management, Land acquisition, United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Land acquisition, and National Park Service, Land acquisition and State assistance. Use of such funds are subject to the reprogramming guidelines of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations.

SEC. 108. Prior to the transfer of Presidio properties to the Presidio Trust, when authorized, the Secretary may not obligate in any calendar month more than 1/12 of the fiscal year 1996 appropriation for operation of the Presidio: Provided, That this section shall expire on December 31, 1995.

SEC. 109. Section 6003 of Public Law 101-380 is hereby repealed.

SEC. 110. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act may be obligated or expended by the Secretary of the Interior for developing, promulgating, and thereafter implementing a rule concerning rights-of-way under section 2477 of the Revised Statutes.

SEC. 111. No funds provided in this title may be expended by the Department of the Interior for the conduct of offshore leasing and related activities placed under restriction in the President's moratorium statement of June 26, 1990, in the areas of Northern, Central, and Southern California; the North Atlantic; Washington and Oregon; and the Eastern Gulf of Mexico south of 26 degrees north latitude and east of 86 degrees west longitude.

SEC. 112. No funds provided in this title may be expended by the Department of the Interior for the conduct of leasing, or the approval or permitting of any drilling or other exploration activity, on lands within the North Aleutian Basin planning area.

SEC. 113. No funds provided in this title may be expended by the Department of the Interior for the conduct of preleasing and leasing activities in the Eastern Gulf of Mexico for Outer Continental Shelf Lease Sale 151 in the Outer Continental Shelf Natural Gas and Oil Resource Management Comprehensive Program, 1992–1997.

SEC. 114. No funds provided in this title may be expended by the Department of the Interior for the conduct of preleasing and leasing activities in the Atlantic for Outer Continental Shelf Lease Sale 164 in the Outer Continental Shelf Natural Gas and Oil Resource Management Comprehensive Program, 1992–1997.

SEC. 115. (a) Of the funds appropriated by this Act or any subsequent Act providing for appropriations in fiscal years 1996 and 1997, not more than 50 percent of any self-governance funds that would otherwise be allocated to each Indian tribe in the State of Washington shall actually be paid to or on account of such Indian tribe from and after the time at which such tribe shall—

(1) take unilateral action that adversely impacts the existing rights to and/or customary uses of, nontribal member owners of fee simple land within the exterior boundary of the tribe's reservation to water, electricity, or any other similar utility or necessity for the nontribal members' residential use of such land; or

(2) restrict or threaten to restrict said owners use of or access to publicly maintained rights-of-way necessary or desirable in carrying the utilities or necessities described above.

(b) Such penalty shall not attach to the initiation of any legal actions with respect to such rights or the enforcement of any final judgments, appeals from which have been exhausted, with respect thereto.

SEC. 116. Within 30 days after the enactment of this Act, the Department of the Interior shall issue a specific schedule for the completion of the Lake Cushman Land Exchange Act (Public Law 102–436) and shall complete the exchange not later than September 30, 1996.

SEC. 117. Notwithstanding Public Law 90–544, as amended, the National Park Service is authorized to expend appropriated funds for maintenance and repair of the Company Creek Road in the Lake Chelan National Recreation Area: Provided, That appropriated funds shall not be expended for the purpose of improving the property of private individuals unless specifically authorized by law.

SEC. 118. Section 4(b) of Public Law 94–241 (90 Stat. 263) as added by section 10 of Public Law 99–396 is amended by deleting "until Congress otherwise provides by law." and inserting in lieu thereof: "except that, for fiscal years 1996 through 2002, payments to the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands pursuant to the multi-year funding agreements contemplated under the Covenant shall be $11,000,000 annually, subject to an equal local match and all other requirements set forth in the Agreement of the Special Representatives on Future Federal Financial Assistance of the Northern Mariana Islands, executed on December 17, 1992 between the special representative of the President of the United States and special representatives of the Governor of the Northern Mariana Islands with any additional amounts otherwise made available under this section in any fiscal year and not required to meet the schedule of payments in this subsection to be provided as set forth in subsection (c) until Congress otherwise provides by law.

"(c) The additional amounts referred to in subsection (b) shall be made available to the Secretary for obligation as follows:

"(1) for fiscal years 1996 through 2001, $4,580,000 annually for capital infrastructure projects as Impact Aid for Guam under section 104(c)(6) of Public Law 99–239;

"(2) for fiscal year 1996, $7,700,000 shall be provided for capital infrastructure projects in American Samoa; $4,420,000 for resettlement of Rongelap Atoll; and

"(3) for fiscal years 1997 and thereafter, all such amounts shall be available solely for capital infrastructure projects in Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, the Republic of Palau, the Federated States of Micronesia and the Republic of the Marshall Islands: Provided, That, in fiscal year 1997, $3,000,000 of such amounts shall be made available to the College of the Northern Marianas and beginning in fiscal year 1997, and in each year thereafter, not to exceed $3,000,000 may be allocated, as provided in appropriations Acts, to the Secretary of the Interior for use by Federal agencies or the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands to address immigration, labor, and law enforcement issues in the Northern Mariana Islands. The specific projects to be funded in American Samoa shall be set forth in a five-year plan for infrastructure assistance developed by the Secretary of the Interior in consultation with the American Samoa Government and updated annually and submitted to the Congress concurrent with the budget justifications for the Department of the Interior. In developing budget recommendations for capital infrastructure funding, the Secretary shall indicate the highest priority projects, consider the extent to which particular projects are part of an overall master plan, whether such project has been reviewed by the Corps of Engineers and any recommendations made as a result of such review, the extent to which a set-aside for maintenance would enhance the life of the project, the degree to which a local cost-share requirement would be consistent with local economic and fiscal capabilities, and may propose an incremental set-aside, not to exceed $2,000,000 per year, to remain available without fiscal year limitation, as an emergency fund in the event of natural or other disasters to supplement other assistance in the repair, replacement, or hardening of essential facilities: Provided further, That the cumulative amount set aside for such emergency fund may not exceed $10,000,000 at any time.

"(d) Within the amounts allocated for infrastructure pursuant to this section, and subject to the specific allocations made in subsection (c), additional contributions may be made, as set forth in appropriations Acts, to assist in the resettlement of Rongelap Atoll: Provided, That the total of all contributions from any Federal source after enactment of this Act may not exceed $32,000,000 and shall be contingent upon an agreement, satisfactory to the President, that such contributions are a full and final settlement of all obligations of the United States to assist in the resettlement of Rongelop Atoll and that such funds will be expended solely on resettlement activities and will be properly audited and accounted for. In order to provide such contributions in a timely manner, each Federal agency providing assistance or services, or conducting activities, in the Republic of the Marshall Islands, is authorized to make funds available through the Secretary of the Interior, to assist in the resettlement of Rongelap. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to limit the provision of ex gratia assistance pursuant to section 105(c)(2) of the Compact of Free Association Act of 1985 (Public Law 99–239, 99 Stat. 1770, 1792) including for individuals choosing not to resettle at Rongelap, except that no such assistance for such individuals may be provided until the Secretary notifies the Congress that the full amount of all funds necessary for resettlement at Rongelap has been provided.".

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS, FOREST SERVICE

Appropriations to the Forest Service for the current fiscal year shall be available for: (a) purchase of not to exceed 183 passenger motor vehicles of which 32 will be used primarily for law enforcement purposes and of which 151 shall be for replacement; acquisition of 22 passenger motor vehicles from excess sources, and hire of such vehicles; operation and maintenance of aircraft, the purchase of not to exceed two for replacement only, and acquisition of 20 aircraft from excess sources; notwithstanding other provisions of law, existing aircraft being replaced may be sold, with proceeds derived or trade-in value used to offset the purchase price for the replacement aircraft; (b) services pursuant to the second sentence of section 706(a) of the Organic Act of 1944 (7 U.S.C. 2225), and not to exceed $100,000 for employment under 5 U.S.C. 3109; (c) purchase, erection, and alteration of buildings and other public improvements (7 U.S.C. 2250); (d) acquisition of land, waters, and interests therein, pursuant to the Act of August 3, 1956 (7 U.S.C. 428a); (e) for expenses pursuant to the Volunteers in the National Forest Act of 1972 (16 U.S.C. 558a, 558d, 558a note); and (f) for debt collection contracts in accordance with 31 U.S.C. 3718(c).

None of the funds made available under this Act shall be obligated or expended to change the boundaries of any region, to abolish any region, to move or close any regional office for research, State and private forestry, or National Forest System administration of the Forest Service, Department of Agriculture, or to implement any reorganization, "reinvention" or other type of organizational restructuring of the Forest Service, other than the relocation of the Regional Office for Region 5 of the Forest Service from San Francisco to excess military property at Mare Island, Vallejo, California, without the consent of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations and the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry and the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources in the United States Senate and the Committee on Agriculture and the Committee on Resources in the United States House of Representatives.

Any appropriations or funds available to the Forest Service may be advanced to the Fire and Emergency Suppression appropriation and may be used for forest firefighting and the emergency rehabilitation of burned-over lands under its jurisdiction: Provided, That no funds shall be made available under this authority until funds appropriated to the "Emergency Forest Service Firefighting Fund" shall have been exhausted.

Any funds available to the Forest Service may be used for retrofitting Mare Island facilities to accommodate the relocation: Provided, That funds for the move must come from funds otherwise available to Region 5: Provided further, That any funds to be provided for such purposes shall only be available upon approval of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations.

Funds appropriated to the Forest Service shall be available for assistance to or through the Agency for International Development and the Foreign Agricultural Service in connection with forest and rangeland research, technical information, and assistance in foreign countries, and shall be available to support forestry and related natural resource activities outside the United States and its territories and possessions, including technical assistance, education and training, and cooperation with United States and international organizations.

None of the funds made available to the Forest Service under this Act shall be subject to transfer under the provisions of section 702(b) of the Department of Agriculture Organic Act of 1944 (7 U.S.C. 2257) or 7 U.S.C. 147b unless the proposed transfer is approved in advance by the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations in compliance with the reprogramming procedures contained in House Report 103–551.

No funds appropriated to the Forest Service shall be transferred to the Working Capital Fund of the Department of Agriculture without the approval of the Chief of the Forest Service.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any appropriations or funds available to the Forest Service may be used to disseminate program information to private and public individuals and organizations through the use of nonmonetary items of nominal value and to provide nonmonetary awards of nominal value and to incur necessary expenses for the nonmonetary recognition of private individuals and organizations that make contributions to Forest Service programs.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, money collected, in advance or otherwise, by the Forest Service under authority of section 101 of Public Law 93–153 (30 U.S.C. 185(1)) as reimbursement of administrative and other costs incurred in processing pipeline right-of-way or permit applications and for costs incurred in monitoring the construction, operation, maintenance, and termination of any pipeline and related facilities, may be used to reimburse the applicable appropriation to which such costs were originally charged.

Funds available to the Forest Service shall be available to conduct a program of not less than $1,000,000 for high priority projects within the scope of the approved budget which shall be carried out by the Youth Conservation Corps as authorized by the Act of August 13, 1970, as amended by Public Law 93–408.

None of the funds available in this Act shall be used for timber sale preparation using clearcutting in hardwood stands in excess of 25 percent of the fiscal year 1989 harvested volume in the Wayne National Forest, Ohio: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to hardwood stands damaged by natural disaster: Provided further, That landscape architects shall be used to maintain a visually pleasing forest.

Any money collected from the States for fire suppression assistance rendered by the Forest Service on non-Federal lands not in the vicinity of National Forest System lands shall be used to reimburse the applicable appropriation and shall remain available until expended as the Secretary may direct in conducting activities authorized by 16 U.S.C. 2101 (note), 2101–2110, 1606, and 2111.

Of the funds available to the Forest Service, $1,500 is available to the Chief of the Forest Service for official reception and representation expenses.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Forest Service is authorized to employ or otherwise contract with persons at regular rates of pay, as determined by the Service, to perform work occasioned by emergencies such as fires, storms, floods, earthquakes or any other unavoidable cause without regard to Sundays, Federal holidays, and the regular workweek.

To the greatest extent possible, and in accordance with the Final Amendment to the Shawnee National Forest Plan, none of the funds available in this Act shall be used for preparation of timber sales using clearcutting or other forms of even aged management in hardwood stands in the Shawnee National Forest, Illinois.

Funds appropriated to the Forest Service shall be available for interactions with and providing technical assistance to rural communities for sustainable rural development purposes.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, eighty percent of the funds appropriated to the Forest Service in the National Forest System and Construction accounts and planned to be allocated to activities under the "Jobs in the Woods" program for projects on National Forest land in the State of Washington may be granted directly to the Washington State Department of Fish and Wildlife for accomplishment of planned projects. Twenty percent of said funds shall be retained by the Forest Service for planning and administering projects. Project selection and prioritization shall be accomplished by the Forest Service with such consultation with the State of Washington as the Forest Service deems appropriate.

For one year after enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall continue the current Tongass Land Management Plan (TLMP) and may accommodate commercial tourism (if an agreement is signed between the Forest Service and the Alaska Visitors' Association) except that during this period, the Secretary shall maintain at least the number of acres of suitable available and suitable scheduled timber lands, and Allowable Sale Quantity as identified in the Preferred Alternative (Alternative P) in the Tongass Land and Resources Management Plan and Final Environmental Impact Statement (dated October 1992) as selected in the Record of Decision Review Draft #3–2/93. Nothing in this paragraph shall be interpreted to mandate clear-cutting or require the sale of timber and nothing in this paragraph, including the ASQ identified in Alternative P, shall be construed to limit the Secretary's consideration of new information or to prejudice future revision, amendment or modification of TLMP based upon sound, verifiable scientific data.

If the Forest Service determines in a Supplemental Evaluation to an Environmental Impact Statement that no additional analysis under the National Environmental Policy Act or section 810 of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act is necessary for any timber sale or offering which has been prepared for acceptance by, or award to, a purchaser after December 31, 1988, that has been subsequently determined by the Forest Service to be available for sale or offering to one or more other purchaser, the change of purchasers for whatever reason shall not be considered a significant new circumstance, and the Forest Service may offer or award such timber sale or offering to a different purchaser or offeree, notwithstanding any other provision of law. A determination by the Forest Service pursuant to this paragraph shall not be subject to judicial review.

None of the funds appropriated under this Act for the Forest Service shall be made available for the purpose of applying paint to rocks, or rock colorization: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Forest Service shall not require of any individual or entity, as part of any permitting process under its authority, or as a requirement of compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4231 et seq.), the painting or colorization of rocks.

DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY

FOSSIL ENERGY RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

For necessary expenses in carrying out fossil energy research and development activities, under the authority of the Department of Energy Organization Act (Public Law 95–91), including the acquisition of interest, including defeasible and equitable interests in any real property or any facility or for plant or facility acquisition or expansion, and for promoting health and safety in mines and the mineral industry through research (30 U.S.C. 3, 861(b), and 951(a)), for conducting inquiries, technological investigations and research concerning the extraction, processing, use, and disposal of mineral substances without objectionable social and environmental costs (30 U.S.C. 3, 1602, and 1603), and for the development of methods for the disposal, control, prevention, and reclamation of waste products in the mining, minerals, metal, and mineral reclamation industries (30 U.S.C. 3 and 21a), $416,943,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That no part of the sum herein made available shall be used for the field testing of nuclear explosives in the recovery of oil and gas.

ALTERNATIVE FUELS PRODUCTION

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

Monies received as revenue sharing from the operation of the Great Plains Gasification Plant shall be immediately transferred to the General Fund of the Treasury.

NAVAL PETROLEUM AND OIL SHALE RESERVES

For necessary expenses in carrying out naval petroleum and oil shale reserve activities, $148,786,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That the requirements of 10 U.S.C. 7430(b)(2)(B) shall not apply to fiscal year 1996: Provided further, That section 501 of Public Law 101–45 is hereby repealed.

ENERGY CONSERVATION

For necessary expenses in carrying out energy conservation activities, $553,137,000, to remain available until expended, including, notwithstanding any other provision of law, the excess amount for fiscal year 1996 determined under the provisions of section 3003(d) of Public Law 99–509 (15 U.S.C. 4502), and of which $16,000,000 shall be derived from available unobligated balances in the Biomass Energy Development account: Provided, That $140,696,000 shall be for use in energy conservation programs as defined in section 3008(3) of Public Law 99–509 (15 U.S.C. 4507) and shall not be available until excess amounts are determined under the provisions of section 3003(d) of Public Law 99–509 (15 U.S.C. 4502): Provided further, That notwithstanding section 3003(d)(2) of Public Law 99–509 such sums shall be allocated to the eligible programs as follows: $114,196,000 for the weatherization assistance program and $26,500,000 for the State energy conservation program.

ECONOMIC REGULATION

For necessary expenses in carrying out the activities of the Economic Regulatory Administration and the Office of Hearings and Appeals, $6,297,000, to remain available until expended.

STRATEGIC PETROLEUM RESERVE

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For necessary expenses for Strategic Petroleum Reserve facility development and operations and program management activities pursuant to the Energy Policy and Conservation Act of 1975, as amended (42 U.S.C. 6201 et seq.), $287,000,000, to remain available until expended, of which $187,000,000 shall be derived by transfer of unobligated balances from the "SPR petroleum account" and $100,000,000 shall be derived by transfer from the "SPR Decommissioning Fund": Provided, That notwithstanding section 161 of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act, the Secretary shall draw down and sell up to seven million barrels of oil from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve: Provided further, That the proceeds from the sale shall be deposited into a special account in the Treasury, to be established and known as the "SPR Decommissioning Fund", and shall be available for the purpose of removal of oil from and decommissioning of the Weeks Island site and for other purposes related to the operations of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

SPR PETROLEUM ACCOUNT

Notwithstanding 42 U.S.C. 6240(d) the United States share of crude oil in Naval Petroleum Reserve Numbered 1 (Elk Hills) may be sold or otherwise disposed of to other than the Strategic Petroleum Reserve: Provided, That outlays in fiscal year 1996 resulting from the use of funds in this account shall not exceed $5,000,000.

ENERGY INFORMATION ADMINISTRATION

For necessary expenses in carrying out the activities of the Energy Information Administration, $72,266,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That notwithstanding section 4(d) of the Service Contract Act of 1965 (41 U.S.C. 353(d)) or any other provision of law, funds appropriated under this heading hereafter may be used to enter into a contract for end use consumption surveys for a term not to exceed eight years: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, hereafter the Manufacturing Energy Consumption Survey shall be conducted on a triennial basis.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS, DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY

Appropriations under this Act for the current fiscal year shall be available for hire of passenger motor vehicles; hire, maintenance, and operation of aircraft; purchase, repair, and cleaning of uniforms; and reimbursement to the General Services Administration for security guard services.

From appropriations under this Act, transfers of sums may be made to other agencies of the Government for the performance of work for which the appropriation is made.

None of the funds made available to the Department of Energy under this Act shall be used to implement or finance authorized price support or loan guarantee programs unless specific provision is made for such programs in an appropriations Act.

The Secretary is authorized to accept lands, buildings, equipment, and other contributions from public and private sources and to prosecute projects in cooperation with other agencies, Federal, State, private, or foreign: Provided, That revenues and other moneys received by or for the account of the Department of Energy or otherwise generated by sale of products in connection with projects of the Department appropriated under this Act may be retained by the Secretary of Energy, to be available until expended, and used only for plant construction, operation, costs, and payments to cost-sharing entities as provided in appropriate cost-sharing contracts or agreements: Provided further, That the remainder of revenues after the making of such payments shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts: Provided further, That any contract, agreement, or provision thereof entered into by the Secretary pursuant to this authority shall not be executed prior to the expiration of 30 calendar days (not including any day in which either House of Congress is not in session because of adjournment of more than three calendar days to a day certain) from the receipt by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the Senate of a full comprehensive report on such project, including the facts and circumstances relied upon in support of the proposed project.

No funds provided in this Act may be expended by the Department of Energy to prepare, issue, or process procurement documents for programs or projects for which appropriations have not been made.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

INDIAN HEALTH SERVICE

INDIAN HEALTH SERVICES

For expenses necessary to carry out the Act of August 5, 1954 (68 Stat. 674), the Indian Self-Determination Act, the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, and titles II and III of the Public Health Service Act with respect to the Indian Health Service, $1,747,842,000, together with payments received during the fiscal year pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 300aaa–2 for services furnished by the Indian Health Service: Provided, That funds made available to tribes and tribal organizations through contracts, grant agreements, or any other agreements or compacts authorized by the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act of 1975 (88 Stat. 2203; 25 U.S.C. 450), shall be deemed to be obligated at the time of the grant or contract award and thereafter shall remain available to the tribe or tribal organization without fiscal year limitation: Provided further, That $12,000,000 shall remain available until expended, for the Indian Catastrophic Health Emergency Fund: Provided further, That $350,564,000 for contract medical care shall remain available for obligation until September 30, 1997: Provided further, That of the funds provided, not less than $11,306,000 shall be used to carry out the loan repayment program under section 108 of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, as amended: Provided further, That funds provided in this Act may be used for one-year contracts and grants which are to be performed in two fiscal years, so long as the total obligation is recorded in the year for which the funds are appropriated: Provided further, That the amounts collected by the Secretary of Health and Human Services under the authority of title IV of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act shall be available for two fiscal years after the fiscal year in which they were collected, for the purpose of achieving compliance with the applicable conditions and requirements of titles XVIII and XIX of the Social Security Act (exclusive of planning, design, or construction of new facilities): Provided further, That of the funds provided, $7,500,000 shall remain available until expended, for the Indian Self-Determination Fund, which shall be available for the transitional costs of initial or expanded tribal contracts, grants or cooperative agreements with the Indian Health Service under the provisions of the Indian Self-Determination Act: Provided further, That funding contained herein, and in any earlier appropriations Acts for scholarship programs under the Indian Health Care Improvement Act (25 U.S.C. 1613) shall remain available for obligation until September 30, 1997: Provided further, That amounts received by tribes and tribal organizations under title IV of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, as amended, shall be reported and accounted for and available to the receiving tribes and tribal organizations until expended.

INDIAN HEALTH FACILITIES

For construction, repair, maintenance, improvement, and equipment of health and related auxiliary facilities, including quarters for personnel; preparation of plans, specifications, and drawings; acquisition of sites, purchase and erection of modular buildings, and purchases of trailers; and for provision of domestic and community sanitation facilities for Indians, as authorized by section 7 of the Act of August 5, 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2004a), the Indian Self-Determination Act and the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, and for expenses necessary to carry out the Act of August 5, 1954 (68 Stat. 674), the Indian Self-Determination Act, the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, and titles II and III of the Public Health Service Act with respect to environmental health and facilities support activities of the Indian Health Service, $238,958,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds appropriated for the planning, design, construction or renovation of health facilities for the benefit of an Indian tribe or tribes may be used to purchase land for sites to construct, improve, or enlarge health or related facilities.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS, INDIAN HEALTH SERVICE

Appropriations in this Act to the Indian Health Service shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109 but at rates not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the maximum rate payable for senior-level positions under 5 U.S.C. 5376; hire of passenger motor vehicles and aircraft; purchase of medical equipment; purchase of reprints; purchase, renovation and erection of modular buildings and renovation of existing facilities; payments for telephone service in private residences in the field, when authorized under regulations approved by the Secretary; and for uniforms or allowances therefor as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901–5902); and for expenses of attendance at meetings which are concerned with the functions or activities for which the appropriation is made or which will contribute to improved conduct, supervision, or management of those functions or activities: Provided, That in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, non-Indian patients may be extended health care at all tribally administered or Indian Health Service facilities, subject to charges, and the proceeds along with funds recovered under the Federal Medical Care Recovery Act (42 U.S.C. 2651–53) shall be credited to the account of the facility providing the service and shall be available without fiscal year limitation: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other law or regulation, funds transferred from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to the Indian Health Service shall be administered under Public Law 86–121 (the Indian Sanitation Facilities Act) and Public Law 93–638, as amended: Provided further, That funds appropriated to the Indian Health Service in this Act, except those used for administrative and program direction purposes, shall not be subject to limitations directed at curtailing Federal travel and transportation: Provided further, That the Indian Health Service shall neither bill nor charge those Indians who may have the economic means to pay unless and until such time as Congress has agreed upon a specific policy to do so and has directed the Indian Health Service to implement such a policy: Provided further, That, notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds previously or herein made available to a tribe or tribal organization through a contract, grant or agreement authorized by title I of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act of 1975 (88 Stat. 2203; 25 U.S.C. 450), may be deobligated and reobligated to a self-governance funding agreement under title III of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act of 1975 and thereafter shall remain available to the tribe or tribal organization without fiscal year limitation: Provided further, That none of the funds made available to the Indian Health Service in this Act shall be used to implement the final rule published in the Federal Register on September 16, 1987, by the Department of Health and Human Services, relating to eligibility for the health care services of the Indian Health Service until the Indian Health Service has submitted a budget request reflecting the increased costs associated with the proposed final rule, and such request has been included in an appropriations Act and enacted into law: Provided further, That funds made available in this Act are to be apportioned to the Indian Health Service as appropriated in this Act, and accounted for in the appropriation structure set forth in this Act: Provided further, That the appropriation structure for the Indian Health Service may not be altered without advance approval of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations.

TITLE III—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 301. The expenditure of any appropriation under this Act for any consulting service through procurement contract, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 3109, shall be limited to those contracts where such expenditures are a matter of public record and available for public inspection, except where otherwise provided under existing law, or under existing Executive order issued pursuant to existing law.

SEC. 302. No part of any appropriation under this Act shall be available to the Secretary of the Interior or the Secretary of Agriculture for the leasing of oil and natural gas by noncompetitive bidding on publicly owned lands within the boundaries of the Shawnee National Forest, Illinois: Provided, That nothing herein is intended to inhibit or otherwise affect the sale, lease, or right to access to minerals owned by private individuals.

SEC. 303. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for any activity or the publication or distribution of literature that in any way tends to promote public support or opposition to any legislative proposal on which congressional action is not complete.

SEC. 304. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 305. None of the funds provided in this Act to any department or agency shall be obligated or expended to provide a personal cook, chauffeur, or other personal servants to any officer or employee of such department or agency except as otherwise provided by law.

SEC. 306. No assessments may be levied against any program, budget activity, subactivity, or project funded by this Act unless notice of such assessments and the basis therefor are presented to the Committees on Appropriations and are approved by such Committees.

SEC. 307. (a) COMPLIANCE WITH BUY AMERICAN ACT.—None of the funds made available in this Act may be expended by an entity unless the entity agrees that in expending the funds the entity will comply with sections 2 through 4 of the Act of March 3, 1933 (41 U.S.C. 10a–10c; popularly known as the "Buy American Act").

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS; REQUIREMENT REGARDING NOTICE.—

(1) PURCHASE OF AMERICAN-MADE EQUIPMENT AND PRODUCTS.—In the case of any equipment or product that may be authorized to be purchased with financial assistance provided using funds made available in this Act, it is the sense of the Congress that entities receiving the assistance should, in expending the assistance, purchase only American-made equipment and products.

(2) NOTICE TO RECIPIENTS OF ASSISTANCE.—In providing financial assistance using funds made available in this Act, the head of each Federal agency shall provide to each recipient of the assistance a notice describing the statement made in paragraph (1) by the Congress.

(c) PROHIBITION OF CONTRACTS WITH PERSONS FALSELY LABELING PRODUCTS AS MADE IN AMERICA.—If it has been finally determined by a court or Federal agency that any person intentionally affixed a label bearing a "Made in America" inscription, or any inscription with the same meaning, to any product sold in or shipped to the United States that is not made in the United States, the person shall be ineligible to receive any contract or subcontract made with funds made available in this Act, pursuant to the debarment, suspension, and ineligibility procedures described in sections 9.400 through 9.409 of title 48, Code of Federal Regulations.

SEC. 308. None of the funds in this Act may be used to plan, prepare, or offer for sale timber from trees classified as giant sequoia (sequoiadendron giganteum) which are located on National Forest System or Bureau of Land Management lands in a manner different than such sales were conducted in fiscal year 1995.

SEC. 309. None of the funds made available by this Act may be obligated or expended by the National Park Service to enter into or implement a concession contract which permits or requires the removal of the underground lunchroom at the Carlsbad Caverns National Park.

SEC. 310. Where the actual costs of construction projects under self-determination contracts, compacts, or grants, pursuant to Public Laws 93–638, 103–413, or 100–297, are less than the estimated costs thereof, use of the resulting excess funds shall be determined by the appropriate Secretary after consultation with the tribes.

SEC. 311. Notwithstanding Public Law 103–413, quarterly payments of funds to tribes and tribal organizations under annual funding agreements pursuant to section 108 of Public Law 93–638, as amended, may be made on the first business day following the first day of a fiscal quarter.

SEC. 312. None of funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act may be used for the AmeriCorps program, unless the relevant agencies of the Department of the Interior and/or Agriculture follow appropriate reprogramming guidelines: Provided, That if no funds are provided for the AmeriCorps program by the VA–HUD and Independent Agencies fiscal year 1996 appropriations bill, then none of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act may be used for the AmeriCorps programs.

SEC. 313. (a) On or before April 1, 1996, the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation shall—

(1) transfer and assign in accordance with this section all of its rights, title, and interest in and to all of the leases, covenants, agreements, and easements it has executed or will execute by March 31, 1996, in carrying out its powers and duties under the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation Act (40 U.S.C. 871–885) and the Federal Triangle Development Act (40 U.S.C. 1101–1109) to the General Services Administration, National Capital Planning Commission, or the National Park Service; and

(2) except as provided by subsection (d), transfer all rights, title, and interest in and to all property, both real and personal, held in the name of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation to the General Services Administration.

(b) The responsibilities of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation transferred to the General Services Administration under subsection (a) include, but are not limited to, the following:

(1) Collection of revenue owed the Federal Government as a result of real estate sales or lease agreements entered into by the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation and private parties, including, at a minimum, with respect to the following projects:

(A) The Willard Hotel property on Square 225.

(B) The Gallery Row project on Square 457.

(C) The Lansburgh's project on Square 431.

(D) The Market Square North project on Square 407.

(2) Collection of sale or lease revenue owed the Federal Government (if any) in the event two undeveloped sites owned by the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation on Squares 457 and 406 are sold or leased prior to April 1, 1996.

(3) Application of collected revenue to repay United States Treasury debt incurred by the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation in the course of acquiring real estate.

(4) Performing financial audits for projects in which the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation has actual or potential revenue expectation, as identified in paragraphs (1) and (2), in accordance with procedures described in applicable sale or lease agreements.

(5) Disposition of real estate properties which are or become available for sale and lease or other uses.

(6) Payment of benefits in accordance with the Uniform Relocation Assistance and Real Property Acquisitions Policies Act of 1970 to which persons in the project area squares are entitled as a result of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation's acquisition of real estate.

(7) Carrying out the responsibilities of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation under the Federal Triangle Development Act (40 U.S.C. 1101–1109), including responsibilities for managing assets and liabilities of the Corporation under such Act.

(c) In carrying out the responsibilities of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation transferred under this section, the Administrator of the General Services Administration shall have the following powers:

(1) To acquire lands, improvements, and properties by purchase, lease or exchange, and to sell, lease, or otherwise dispose of real or personal property as necessary to complete the development plan developed under section 5 of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation Act of 1972 (40 U.S.C. 874) if a notice of intention to carry out such acquisition or disposal is first transmitted to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure and the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Environment and Public Works and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate and at least 60 days elapse after the date of such transmission.

(2) To modify from time to time the plan referred to in paragraph (1) if such modification is first transmitted to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure and the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Environment and Public Works and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate and at least 60 days elapse after the date of such transmission.

(3) To maintain any existing Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation insurance programs.

(4) To enter into and perform such leases, contracts, or other transactions with any agency or instrumentality of the United States, the several States, or the District of Columbia or with any person, firm, association, or corporation as may be necessary to carry out the responsibilities of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation under the Federal Triangle Development Act (40 U.S.C. 1101–1109).

(5) To request the Council of the District of Columbia to close any alleys necessary for the completion of development in Square 457.

(6) To use all of the funds transferred from the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation or income earned on Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation property to complete any pending development projects.

(d)(1)(A) On or before April 1, 1996, the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation shall transfer all its right, title, and interest in and to the property described in subparagraph (B) to the National Park Service, Department of the Interior.

(B) The property referred to in subparagraph (A) is the property located within the Pennsylvania Avenue National Historic Site depicted on a map entitled "Pennsylvania Avenue National Historic Park", dated June 1, 1995, and numbered 840–82441, which shall be on file and available for public inspection in the offices of the National Park Service, Department of the Interior. The Pennsylvania Avenue National Historic Site includes the parks, plazas, sidewalks, special lighting, trees, sculpture, and memorials.

(2) Jurisdiction of Pennsylvania Avenue and all other roadways from curb to curb shall remain with the District of Columbia but vendors shall not be permitted to occupy street space except during temporary special events.

(3) The National Park Service shall be responsible for management, administration, maintenance, law enforcement, visitor services, resource protection, interpretation, and historic preservation at the Pennsylvania Avenue National Historic Site.

(4) The National Park Service may enter into contracts, cooperative agreements, or other transactions with any agency or instrumentality of the United States, the several States, or the District of Columbia or with any person, firm, association, or corporation as may be deemed necessary or appropriate for the conduct of special events, festivals, concerts, or other art and cultural programs at the Pennsylvania Avenue National Historic Site or may establish a nonprofit foundation to solicit funds for such activities.

(e) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the responsibility for ensuring that development or redevelopment in the Pennsylvania Avenue area is carried out in accordance with the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation Plan—1974, as amended, is transferred to the National Capital Planning Commission or its successor commencing April 1, 1996.

(f) SAVINGS PROVISIONS.—

(1) REGULATIONS.—Any regulations prescribed by the Corporation in connection with the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation Act of 1972 (40 U.S.C. 871–885) and the Federal Triangle Development Act (40 U.S.C. 1101–1109) shall continue in effect until suspended by regulations prescribed by the Administrator of the General Services Administration.

(2) EXISTING RIGHTS, DUTIES, AND OBLIGATIONS NOT AFFECTED.—Subsection (a) shall not be construed as affecting the validity of any right, duty, or obligation of the United States or any other person arising under or pursuant to any contract, loan, or other instrument or agreement which was in effect on the day before the date of the transfers under subsection (a).

(3) CONTINUATION OF SUITS.—No action or other proceeding commenced by or against the Corporation in connection with administration of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation Act of 1972 (40 U.S.C. 871–885) and the Federal Triangle Development Act (40 U.S.C. 1101–1109) shall abate by reason of enactment and implementation of this Act, except that the General Services Administration shall be substituted for the Corporation as a party to any such action or proceeding.

(g) Section 3(b) of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation Act of 1972 (40 U.S.C. 872(b)) is amended as follows:

"(b) The Corporation shall be dissolved on or before April 1, 1996. Upon dissolution, assets, obligations, indebtedness, and all unobligated and unexpended balances of the Corporation shall be transferred in accordance with the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996.".

SEC. 314. (a) Except as provided in subsection (b), no part of any appropriation contained in this Act or any other Act shall be obligated or expended for the operation or implementation of the Interior Columbia Basin Ecosystem Management Project (hereinafter "Project").

(b) From the funds appropriated to the Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management: a sum of $4,000,000 is made available for the Executive Steering Committee of the Project to publish, and submit to the Congress, by May 31, 1996, an assessment of the National Forest System lands and lands administered by the Bureau of Land Management within the area encompassed by the Project. The assessment shall be accompanied by two draft Environmental Impact Statements that: are not decisional and not subject to judicial review; contain a range of alternatives, without the identification of a preferred alternative or management recommendation; and provide a methodology for conducting any cumulative effects analysis required by section 102(2) of the National Environmental Policy Act (42 U.S.C. 433(2)) in the preparation of amendments to resource management plans pursuant to subsection (c). The assessment shall incorporate all existing relevant scientific information including, but not limited to, information on landscape dynamics, forest and rangeland health conditions, fisheries, and watersheds and the implications of each as they relate to federal forest and rangeland health. The assessment and draft Environmental Impact Statements shall not be: the subject of consultation or conferencing pursuant to section 7 of the Endangered Species Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1536); accompanied by any record of decision or other National Environmental Policy Act documentation; or applied or used to regulate non-federal lands. The Executive Steering Committee shall release the draft Environmental Impact Statements for a ninety day public comment period and include a summary of the public comments received in the submission to Congress.

(c)(1) From the funds appropriated to the Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management, based on the documents prepared pursuant to subsection (b) and any other guidance or policy issued prior to the date of enactment of this section, and in consultation with the affected Governor, and county commissioners, each Forest Supervisor and District Manager with responsibility for a national forest or a unit of land administered by the Bureau of Land Management (hereinafter "forest") within the area encompassed by the Project shall review the resource management plan (hereinafter "plan") for such forest and develop, by an amendment to such plan, a modification of or alternative to any policy which is applicable to such plan upon the date of enactment of this section (whether or not such policy has been added to such plan by amendment), including any policy which is, or is intended to be, of limited duration, and which the Project addresses, to meet the specific conditions of such forest. Each amendment shall: contain the modified or alternative policy developed pursuant to this paragraph, be directed solely to and affect only such plan; address the specific conditions of the forest to which the plan applies and the relationship of the modified or alternative policy to such conditions; and, to the maximum extent practicable, establish site-specific standards in lieu of imposing general standards applicable to multiple sites.

(2)(A) Each amendment prepared pursuant to paragraph (1) shall comply with any applicable requirements of section 102(2) of the National Environmental Policy Act, except that any cumulative effects analysis conducted in accordance with the methodology provided pursuant to subsection (b) shall be deemed to meet any requirement of such Act for such analysis.

(B) Any policy adopted in an amendment prepared pursuant to paragraph (1) which is a modification of or alternative to a policy referred to in paragraph (1) upon which consultation or conferencing has occurred pursuant to section 7 of the Endangered Species Act of 1973 shall not again be subject to the consultation or conferencing provisions of such section 7. Any other consultation or conferencing required by such section 7 shall be conducted separately on each amendment prepared pursuant to paragraph (1): Provided, That, except as provided in this subparagraph, no other consultation shall be undertaken on such amendments, on any project or activity which is consistent with an applicable amendment, on any policy referred to in paragraph (1), or on any portion of any plan related to such policy or the species to which such policy applies.

(3) Each amendment prepared pursuant to paragraph (1) shall be adopted on or before March 31, 1997, and no policy referred to in paragraph (1), or any provision of a plan or other planning document incorporating such policy, shall be effective in any forest subject to the Project on or after such date, or after an amendment to the plan which applies to such forest is adopted pursuant to this subsection, whichever occurs first.

(4) On the signing of a record of decision or equivalent document making an amendment for the Clearwater National Forest pursuant to paragraph (1), the requirement for revision referred to in this Stipulation of Dismissal dated September 13, 1993, applicable to such Forest is deemed to be satisfied, and the interim management direction provisions contained in the Stipulation of Dismissal shall be of no further effect with respect to such Forest.

SEC. 315. RECREATIONAL FEE DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM.—(a) The Secretary of the Interior (acting through the Bureau of Land Management, the National Park Service and the United States Fish and Wildlife Service) and the Secretary of Agriculture (acting through the Forest Service) shall each implement a fee program to demonstrate the feasibility of user-generated cost recovery for the operation and maintenance of recreation areas or sites and habitat enhancement projects on Federal lands.

(b) In carrying out the pilot program established pursuant to this section, the appropriate Secretary shall select from areas under the jurisdiction of each of the four agencies referred to in subsection (a) no fewer than 10, but as many as 50, areas, sites or projects for fee demonstration. For each such demonstration, the Secretary, notwithstanding any other provision of law—

(1) shall charge and collect fees for admission to the area or for the use of outdoor recreation sites, facilities, visitor centers, equipment, and services by individuals and groups, or any combination thereof;

(2) shall establish fees under this section based upon a variety of cost recovery and fair market valuation methods to provide a broad basis for feasibility testing;

(3) may contract, including provisions for reasonable commissions, with any public or private entity to provide visitor services, including reservations and information, and may accept services of volunteers to collect fees charged pursuant to paragraph (1);

(4) may encourage private investment and partnerships to enhance the delivery of quality customer services and resource enhancement, and provide appropriate recognition to such partners or investors; and

(5) may assess a fine of not more than $100 for any violation of the authority to collect fees for admission to the area or for the use of outdoor recreation sites, facilities, visitor centers, equipment, and services.

(c)(1) Amounts collected at each fee demonstration area, site or project shall be distributed as follows:

(A) Of the amount in excess of 104% of the amount collected in fiscal year 1995, and thereafter annually adjusted upward by 4%, eighty percent to a special account in the Treasury for use without further appropriation, by the agency which administers the site, to remain available for expenditures in accordance with paragraph (2)(A).

(B) Of the amount in excess of 104% of the amount collected in fiscal year 1995, and thereafter annually adjusted upward by 4%, twenty percent to a special account in the Treasury for use without further appropriation, by the agency which administers the site, to remain available for expenditure in accordance with paragraph (2)(B).

(C) For agencies other than the Fish and Wildlife Service, up to 15% of current year collections of each agency, but not greater than fee collection costs for that fiscal year, to remain available for expenditure without further appropriation in accordance with paragraph (2)(C).

(D) For agencies other than the Fish and Wildlife Service, the balance to the special account established pursuant to subparagraph (A) of section 4(i)(1) of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act, as amended.

(E) For the Fish and Wildlife Service, the balance shall be distributed in accordance with section 201(c) of the Emergency Wetlands Resources Act.

(2)(A) Expenditures from site specific special funds shall be for further activities of the area, site or project from which funds are collected, and shall be accounted for separately.

(B) Expenditures from agency specific special funds shall be for use on an agency-wide basis and shall be accounted for separately.

(C) Expenditures from the fee collection support fund shall be used to cover fee collection costs in accordance with section 4(i)(1)(B) of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act, as amended: Provided, That funds unexpended and unobligated at the end of the fiscal year shall not be deposited into the special account established pursuant to section 4(i)(1)(A) of said Act and shall remain available for expenditure without further appropriation.

(3) In order to increase the quality of the visitor experience at public recreational areas and enhance the protection of resources, amounts available for expenditure under this section may only be used for the area, site or project concerned, for backlogged repair and maintenance projects (including projects relating to health and safety) and for interpretation, signage, habitat or facility enhancement, resource preservation, annual operation (including fee collection), maintenance, and law enforcement relating to public use. The agencywide accounts may be used for the same purposes set forth in the preceding sentence, but for areas, sites or projects selected at the discretion of the respective agency head.

(d)(1) Amounts collected under this section shall not be taken into account for the purposes of the Act of May 23, 1908 and the Act of March 1, 1911 (16 U.S.C. 500), the Act of March 4, 1913 (16 U.S.C. 501), the Act of July 22, 1937 (7 U.S.C. 1012), the Act of August 8, 1937 and the Act of May 24, 1939 (43 U.S.C. 1181f et seq.), the Act of June 14, 1926 (43 U.S.C. 869-4), chapter 69 of title 31, United States Code, section 401 of the Act of June 15, 1935 (16 U.S.C. 715s), the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965 (16 U.S.C. 4601), and any other provision of law relating to revenue allocation.

(2) Fees charged pursuant to this section shall be in lieu of fees charged under any other provision of law.

(e) The Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of Agriculture shall carry out this section without promulgating regulations.

(f) The authority to collect fees under this section shall commence on October 1, 1995, and end on September 30, 1998. Funds in accounts established shall remain available through September 30, 2001.

SEC. 316. Section 2001(a)(2) of Public Law 104-19 is amended as follows: Strike "September 30, 1997" and insert in lieu thereof "December 31, 1996".

SEC. 317. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for any program, project, or activity when it is made known to the Federal entity or official to which the funds are made available that the program, project, or activity is not in compliance with any applicable Federal law relating to risk assessment, the protection of private property rights, or unfunded mandates.

SEC. 318. None of the funds provided in this Act may be made available for the Mississippi River Corridor Heritage Commission.

SEC. 319. GREAT BASIN NATIONAL PARK.—Section 3 of the Great Basin National Park Act of 1986 (16 U.S.C. 410mm-1) is amended—

(1) in the first sentence of subsection (e) by striking "shall" and inserting "may"; and

(2) in subsection (f)—

(A) by striking "At the request" and inserting the following:

"(1) EXCHANGES.—At the request";

(B) by striking "grazing permits" and inserting "grazing permits and grazing leases"; and

(C) by adding after "Federal lands." the following:

"(2) ACQUISITION BY DONATION.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may acquire by donation valid existing permits and grazing leases authorizing grazing on land in the park.

(B) TERMINATION.—The Secretary shall terminate a grazing permit or grazing lease acquired under subparagraph (A) so as to end grazing previously authorized by the permit or lease.".

SEC. 320. None of the funds made available in this Act shall be used by the Department of Energy in implementing the Codes and Standards Program to propose, issue, or prescribe any new or amended standard: Provided, That this section shall expire on September 30, 1996: Provided further, That nothing in this section shall preclude the Federal Government from promulgating rules concerning energy efficiency standards for the construction of new federally-owned commercial and residential buildings.

SEC. 321. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used (1) to demolish the bridge between Jersey City, New Jersey, and Ellis Island; or (2) to prevent pedestrian use of such bridge, when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that such pedestrian use is consistent with generally accepted safety standards.

SEC. 322. (a) None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available pursuant to this Act shall be obligated or expended to accept or process applications for a patent for any mining or mill site claim located under the general mining laws.

(b) The provisions of subsection (a) shall not apply if the Secretary of the Interior determines that, for the claim concerned: (1) a patent application was filed with the Secretary on or before September 30, 1994, and (2) all requirements established under sections 2325 and 2326 of the Revised Statutes (30 U.S.C. 29 and 30) for vein or lode claims and sections 2329, 2330, 2331, and 2333 of the Revised Statutes (30 U.S.C. 35, 36, and 37) for placer claims, and section 2337 of the Revised Statutes (30 U.S.C. 42) for mill site claims, as the case may be, were fully complied with by the applicant by that date.

(c) PROCESSING SCHEDULE.—For those applications for patents pursuant to subsection (b) which were filed with the Secretary of the Interior, prior to September 30, 1994, the Secretary of the Interior shall—

(1) Within three months of the enactment of this Act, file with the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations and the Committee on Resources of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources of the United States Senate a plan which details how the Department of the Interior will make a final determination as to whether or not an applicant is entitled to a patent under the general mining laws on at least 90 percent of such applications within five years of the enactment of this Act and file reports annually thereafter with the same committees detailing actions taken by the Department of the Interior to carry out such plan; and

(2) Take such actions as may be necessary to carry out such plan.

(d) MINERAL EXAMINATIONS.—In order to process patent applications in a timely and responsible manner, upon the request of a patent applicant, the Secretary of the Interior shall allow the applicant to fund a qualified third-party contractor to be selected by the Bureau of Land Managment to conduct a mineral examination of the mining claims or mill sites contained in a patent application as set forth in subsection (b). The Bureau of Land Management shall have the sole responsibility to choose and pay the third-party contractor in accordance with the standard procedures employed by the Bureau of Land Management in the retention of third-party contractors.

SEC. 323. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act may be used for the purposes of acquiring lands in the counties of Lawrence, Monroe, or Washington, Ohio, for the Wayne National Forest.

SEC. 324. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act or any other Act shall be expended or obligated to fund the activities of the Office of Forestry and Economic Development after December 31, 1995.

SEC. 325. Amend section 2001(k) of Public Law 104–19 by striking "in fiscal years 1995 and 1996" in paragraph (1) and adding paragraph (4) to read:

"(4) TIMING AND CONDITIONS OF ALTERNATIVE VOLUME.—For any sale subject to paragraph (2) of this subsection, the Secretary concerned shall, and for any other sale subject to this subsection, the Secretary concerned may, within 45 days of the date of enactment of this paragraph, reach agreement with the purchaser to identify and provide, by a date agreed to by the purchaser, a volume, value and kind of timber satisfactory to the purchaser to substitute for all or a portion of the timber subject to the sale, which shall be subject to the original terms of the contract except as otherwise agreed, and shall be subject to paragraph (1). After the agreed date for providing alternative timber the purchaser may operate the original sale under the terms of paragraph (1) until the Secretary concerned designates and the purchaser accepts alternative timber under this paragraph. Any sale subject to this subsection shall be awarded, released, and completed pursuant to paragraph (1) for a period equal to the length of the original contract, and shall not count against current allowable sale quantities or timber sales to be offered under subsections (b) and (d)."

"(5) BUY-OUT AUTHORIZATION.—The Secretary concerned is authorized to permit a requesting purchaser of any sale subject to this subsection to return to the Government all or a specific volume of timber under the sale contract, and shall pay to such purchaser upon tender of such volume a buy-out payment for such volume from any funds available to the Secretary concerned except from accounts governing or related to forest land management, fire fighting, timber sale preparation, harvest administration, road construction and maintenance, timber sale program support; any accounts associated with preparing or administering the sale of timber from any public lands under the jurisdiction of the Secretary concerned, range or minerals management; or any permanent appropriation or trust funds. Such volume and such payment shall be mutually agreed to by the Secretary and the purchaser. The authority provided by this paragraph to reach such agreement shall expire 45 days after the enactment of this paragraph."

SEC. 326. (a) LAND EXCHANGE.—The Secretary of the Interior (hereinafter referred to as the "Secretary") is authorized to convey to the Boise Cascade Corporation (hereinafter referred to as the "Corporation"), a corporation formed under the statutes of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business at Boise, Idaho, title to approximately seven acres of land, more or less, located in sections 14 and 23, township 36 north, range 37 east, Willamette Meridian, Stevens County, Washington, further identified in the records of the Bureau of Reclamation, Department of the Interior, as Tract No. GC–19860, and to accept from the Corporation in exchange therefor, title to approximately one hundred and thirty-six acres of land located in section 19, township 37 north, range 38 east and section 33, township 38 north, range 37 east, Willamette Meridian, Stevens County, Washington, and further identified in the records of the Bureau of Reclamation, Department of the Interior, as Tract No. GC–19858 and Tract No. GC–19859, respectively.

(b) APPRAISAL.—The properties so exchanged either shall be approximately equal in fair market value or if they are not approximately equal, shall be equalized by the payment of cash to the Corporation or to the Secretary as required or in the event the value of the Corporation's lands is greater, the acreage may be reduced so that the fair market value is approximately equal: Provided, That the Secretary shall order appraisals made of the fair market value of each tract of land included in the exchange without consideration for improvements thereon: Provided further, That any cash payment received by the Secretary shall be covered in the Reclamation Fund and credited to the Columbia Basin project.

(c) ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS.—Costs of conducting the necessary land surveys, preparing the legal descriptions of the lands to be conveyed, performing the appraisals, and administrative costs incurred in completing the exchange shall be borne by the Corporation.

(d) LIABILITY FOR HAZARDOUS SUBSTANCES.—(1) The Secretary shall not acquire any lands under this Act if the Secretary determines that such lands, or any portion thereof, have become contaminated with hazardous substances (as defined in the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (42 U.S.C. 9601)).

(2) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the United States shall have no responsibility or liability with respect to any hazardous wastes or other substances placed on any of the lands covered by this Act after their transfer to the ownership of any party, but nothing in this Act shall be construed as either diminishing or increasing any responsibility or liability of the United States based on the condition of such lands on the date of their transfer to the ownership of another party. The Corporation shall indemnify the United States for liabilities arising under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (42 U.S.C. 9601), and the Resource Conservation Recovery Act (42 U.S.C. 6901 et seq.).

(e) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act.

SEC. 327. TIMBER SALES PIPELINE RESTORATION FUNDS.—(a) The Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of the Interior shall each establish a Timber Sales Pipeline Restoration Fund (hereinafter "Agriculture Fund" and "Interior Fund" or "Funds"). Any revenues received from sales released under section 2001(k) of the fiscal year 1995 Supplemental Appropriations for Disaster Assistance and Rescissions Act, minus the funds necessary to make payments to States or local governments under other law concerning the distribution of revenues derived from the affected lands, which are in excess of $37,500,000 (hereinafter "excess revenues") shall be deposited into the Funds. The distribution of excess revenues between the Agriculture Fund and Interior Fund shall be calculated by multiplying the total of excess revenues times a fraction with a denominator of the total revenues received from all sales released under such section 2001(k) and numerators of the total revenues received from such sales on lands within the National Forest System and the total revenues received from such sales on lands administered by the Bureau of Land Management, respectively: Provided, That revenues or portions thereof from sales released under such section 2001(k), minus the amounts necessary for State and local government payments and other necessary deposits, may be deposited into the Funds immediately upon receipt thereof and subsequently redistributed between the Funds or paid into the United States Treasury as miscellaneous receipts as may be required when the calculation of excess revenues is made.

(b)(1) From the funds deposited into the Agriculture Fund and into the Interior Fund pursuant to subsection (a)—

(A) seventy-five percent shall be available, without fiscal year limitation or further appropriation, for preparation of timber sales, other than salvage sales as defined in section 2001(a)(3) of the fiscal year 1995 Supplemental Appropriations for Disaster Assistance and Rescissions Act, which—

(i) are situated on lands within the National Forest System and lands administered by the Bureau of Land Management, respectively; and

(ii) are in addition to timber sales for which funds are otherwise available in this Act or other appropriations Acts; and

(B) twenty-five percent shall be available, without fiscal year limitation or further appropriation, to expend on the backlog of recreation projects on lands within the National Forest System and lands administered by the Bureau of Land Management, respectively.

(2) Expenditures under this subsection for preparation of timber sales may include expenditures for Forest Service activities within the forest land management budget line item and associated timber roads, and Bureau of Land Management activities within the Oregon and California grant lands account and the forestry management area account, as determined by the Secretary concerned.

(c) Revenues received from any timber sale prepared under subsection (b) or under this subsection, minus the amounts necessary for State and local government payments and other necessary deposits, shall be deposited into the Fund from which funds were expended on such sale. Such deposited revenues shall be available for preparation of additional timber sales and completion of additional recreation projects in accordance with the requirements set forth in subsection (b).

(d) The Secretary concerned shall terminate all payments into the Agriculture Fund or the Interior Fund, and pay any unobligated funds in the affected Fund into the United States Treasury as miscellaneous receipts, whenever the Secretary concerned makes a finding, published in the Federal Register, that sales sufficient to achieve the total allowable sales quantity of the National Forest System for the Forest Service or the allowable sales level for the Oregon and California grant lands for the Bureau of Land Management, respectively, have been prepared.

(e) Any timber sales prepared and recreation projects completed under this section shall comply with all applicable environmental and natural resource laws and regulations.

(f) The Secretary concerned shall report annually to the Committees on Appropriations of the United States Senate and the House of Representatives on expenditures made from the Fund for timber sales and recreation projects, revenues received into the Fund from timber sales, and timber sale preparation and recreation project work undertaken during the previous year and projected for the next year under the Fund. Such information shall be provided for each Forest Service region and Bureau of Land Management State office.

(g) The authority of this section shall terminate upon the termination of both Funds in accordance with the provisions of subsection (d).

SEC. 328. Of the funds provided to the National Endowment for the Arts:

(a) The Chairperson shall only award a grant to an individual if such grant is awarded to such individual for a literature fellowship, National Heritage Fellowship, or American Jazz Masters Fellowship.

(b) The Chairperson shall establish procedures to ensure that no funding provided through a grant, except a grant made to a State or regional group, may be used to make a grant to any other organization or individual to conduct activity independent of the direct grant recipient. Nothing in this subsection shall prohibit payments made in exchange for goods and services.

(c) No grant shall be used for seasonal support to a group, unless the application is specific to the contents of the season, including identified programs and/or projects.

SEC. 329. DELAY IN IMPLEMENTATION OF THE ADMINISTRATION'S RANGELAND REFORM PROGRAM.—None of the funds made available under this or any other Act may be used to implement or enforce the final rule published by the Secretary of the Interior on February 22, 1995 (60 Fed. Reg. 9894), making amendments to parts 4, 1780, and 4100 of title 43, Code of Federal Regulations, to take effect August 21, 1995, until November 21, 1995. None of the funds made available under this or any other Act may be used to publish proposed or enforce final regulations governing the management of livestock grazing on lands administered by the Forest Service until November 21, 1995.

SEC. 330. Section 1864 of title 18, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in subsection (b)—

(A) in paragraph (2), by striking "twenty" and inserting "40";

(B) in paragraph (3), by striking "ten" and inserting "20";

(C) in paragraph (4), by striking "if damage exceeding $10,000 to the property of any individual results," and inserting "if damage to the property of any individual results or if avoidance costs have been incurred exceeding $10,000, in the aggregate,"; and

(D) in paragraph (4), by striking "ten" and inserting "20";

(2) in subsection (c) by striking "ten" and inserting "20";

(3) in subsection (d), by—

(A) striking "and" at the end of paragraph (2);

(B) striking the period at the end of paragraph (3) and inserting "; and"; and

(C) adding at the end the following:

"(4) the term 'avoidance costs' means costs incurred by any individual for the purpose of—

"(A) detecting a hazardous or injurious device; or

"(B) preventing death, serious bodily injury, bodily injury, or property damage likely to result from the use of a hazardous or injurious device in violation of subsection (a)."; and

(4) by adding at the end thereof the following:

"(e) Any person injured as the result of a violation of subsection (a) may commence a civil action on his own behalf against any person who is alleged to be in violation of subsection (a). The district courts shall have jurisdiction, without regard to the amount in controversy or the citizenship of the parties, in such civil actions. The court may award, in addition to monetary damages for any injury resulting from an alleged violation of subsection (a), costs of litigation, including reasonable attorney and expert witness fees, to any prevailing or substantially prevailing party, whenever the court determines such award is appropriate.".

SEC. 331. (a) PURPOSES OF NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE ARTS.—Section 2 of the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities Act of 1965, as amended (20 U.S.C. 951), sets out findings and purposes for which the National Endowment for the Arts was established, among which are—

(1) "The arts and humanities belong to all the people of the United States";

(2) "The arts and humanities reflect the high place accorded by the American people . . . to the fostering of mutual respect for the diverse beliefs and values of all persons and groups";

(3) "Public funding of the arts and humanities is subject to the conditions that traditionally govern the use of public money [and] such funding should contribute to public support and confidence in the use of taxpayer funds"; and

(4) "Public funds provided by the Federal Government must ultimately serve public purposes the Congress defines".

(b) ADDITIONAL CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS.—Congress further finds and declares that the use of scarce funds, which have been taken from all taxpayers of the United States, to promote, disseminate, sponsor, or produce any material or performance that—

(1) denigrates the religious objects or religious beliefs of the adherents of a particular religion, or

(2) depicts or describes, in a patently offensive way, sexual or excretory activities or organs,

is contrary to the express purposes of the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities Act of 1965, as amended.

(c) PROHIBITION ON FUNDING THAT IS NOT CONSISTENT WITH THE PURPOSES OF THE ACT.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, none of the scarce funds which have been taken from all taxpayers of the United States and made available under this Act to the National Endowment for the Arts may be used to promote, disseminate, sponsor, or produce any material or performance that—

(1) denigrates the religious objects or religious beliefs of the adherents of a particular religion, or

(2) depicts or describes, in a patently offensive way, sexual or excretory activities or organs,

and this prohibition shall be strictly applied without regard to the content or viewpoint of the material or performance.

(d) SECTION NOT TO AFFECT OTHER WORKS.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to affect in any way the freedom of any artist or performer to create any material or performance using funds which have not been made available under this Act to the National Endowment for the Arts.

SEC. 332. For purposes related to the closure of the Bureau of Mines, funds made available to the United States Geological Survey, the United States Bureau of Mines, and the Bureau of Land Management shall be available for transfer, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, among the following accounts: United States Geological Survey, Surveys, investigations, and research; Bureau of Mines, Mines and minerals; and Bureau of Land Management, Management of lands and resources. The Secretary of Energy shall reimburse the Secretary of the Interior, in an amount to be determined by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, for the expenses of the transferred functions between October 1, 1995 and the effective date of the transfers of function. Such transfers shall be subject to the reprogramming guidelines of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations.

SEC. 333. No funds appropriated under this or any other Act shall be used to review or modify sourcing areas previously approved under section 490(c)(3) of the Forest Resources Conservation and Shortage Relief Act of 1990 (Public Law 101–382) or to enforce or implement Federal regulations 36 CFR part 223 promulgated on September 8, 1995. The regulations and interim rules in effect prior to September 8, 1995 (36 CFR 223.48, 36 CFR 223.87, 36 CFR 223 Subpart D, 36 CFR 223 Subpart F, and 36 CFR 261.6) shall remain in effect. The Secretary of Agriculture or the Secretary of the Interior shall not adopt any policies concerning Public Law 101–382 or existing regulations that would restrain domestic transportation or processing of timber from private lands or impose additional accountability requirements on any timber. The Secretary of Commerce shall extend until September 30, 1996, the order issued under section 491(b)(2)(A) of Public Law 101–382 and shall issue an order under section 491(b)(2)(B) of such law that will be effective October 1, 1996.

SEC. 334. The National Park Service, in accordance with the Memorandum of Agreement between the United States National Park Service and the City of Vancouver dated November 4, 1994, shall permit general aviation on its portion of Pearson Field in Vancouver, Washington until the year 2022, during which time a plan and method for transitioning from general aviation aircraft to historic aircraft shall be completed; such transition to be accomplished by that date. This action shall not be construed to limit the authority of the Federal Aviation Administration over air traffic control or aviation activities at Pearson Field or limit operations and airspace of Portland International Airport.

SEC. 335. The United States Forest Service approval of Alternative site 2 (ALT 2), issued on December 6, 1993, is hereby authorized and approved and shall be deemed to be consistent with, and permissible under, the terms of Public Law 100–696 (the Arizona-Idaho Conservation Act of 1988).

SEC. 336. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no funds made available to the Department of the Interior or the Department of Agriculture by this or any other act, through May 15, 1997, may be used to prepare, issue, or implement regulations, rules, or policies pursuant to Title VIII of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act to assert jurisdiction, management, or control over navigable waters transferred to the State of Alaska pursuant to the Submerged Lands Act of 1953 or the Alaska Statehood Act of 1959.

SEC. 337. Upon enactment of this Act, the following provisions of Public Law 104–92, Public Law 104–91, and Public Law 104–99 that would continue to have effect after March 15, 1996, are superseded:

Section 101 of Public Law 104–92, as amended: (1) the paragraph dealing with general welfare assistance payments and foster care payments funded under the account heading "Operations of Indian Programs"; and (2) the paragraph dealing with the visitor services in the National Park System, the National Wildlife Refuges, the National Forests, the Smithsonian Institution facilities, the National Gallery of Art, the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, and the United States Holocaust Memorial.

Section 101(a) of Public Law 104–91: (1) the paragraph dealing with visitor services on the public lands managed by the Bureau of Land Management; and (2) the paragraph dealing with Self-Determination and Self-Governance projects and activities under the account heading "Operations of Indian Programs" and the account heading "Indian Health Service".

Section 123 of Public Law 104–99.

Section 124 of Public Law 104–99.

This Act may be cited as the "Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996".

(d) Such amounts as may be necessary for programs, projects or activities provided for in the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996 at a rate of operations and to the extent and in the manner provided as follows, to be effective as if it had been enacted into law as the regular appropriations Act:

AN ACT

Making appropriations for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and related agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996 and for other purposes.

TITLE I—DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

EMPLOYMENT AND TRAINING ADMINISTRATION

TRAINING AND EMPLOYMENT SERVICES

For expenses necessary to carry into effect the Job Training Partnership Act, as amended, including the purchase and hire of passenger motor vehicles, the construction, alteration, and repair of buildings and other facilities, and the purchase of real property for training centers as authorized by the Job Training Partnership Act; title II of the Civil Rights Act of 1991; the Women in Apprenticeship and Nontraditional Occupations Act; National Skill Standards Act of 1994; and the School-to-Work Opportunities Act; $3,308,978,000 plus reimbursements, of which $3,091,759,000 is available for obligation for the period July 1, 1996 through June 30, 1997; of which $121,467,000 is available for the period July 1, 1996 through June 30, 1999 for necessary expenses of construction, rehabilitation, and acquisition of Job Corps centers; and of which $95,000,000 shall be available from July 1, 1996 through September 30, 1997, for carrying out activities of the School-to-Work Opportunities Act: Provided, That $52,502,000 shall be for carrying out section 401 of the Job Training Partnership Act, $69,285,000 shall be for carrying out section 402 of such Act, $7,300,000 shall be for carrying out section 441 of such Act, $8,000,000 shall be for all activities conducted by and through the National Occupational Information Coordinating Committee under such Act, $745,700,000 shall be for carrying out title II, part A of such Act, and $326,672,000 shall be for carrying out title II, part C of such Act: Provided further, That no funds from any other appropriation shall be used to provide meal services at or for Job Corps centers: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Labor may waive any of the requirements contained in sections 4, 104, 105, 107, 108, 121, 164, 204, 253, 254, 264, 301, 311, 313, 314, and 315 of the Job Training Partnership Act in order to assist States in improving State workforce development systems, pursuant to a request submitted by a State that has prior to the date of enactment of this Act executed a Memorandum of Understanding with the United States requiring such State to meet agreed upon outcomes: Provided further, That funds used from this Act to carry out title III of the Job Training Partnership Act shall not be subject to the limitation contained in subsection (b) of section 315 of such Act; that the waiver allowing a reduction in the cost limitation relating to retraining services described in subsection (a)(2) of such section 315 may be granted with respect to funds from this Act if a substate grantee demonstrates to the Governor that such waiver is appropriate due to the availability of low-cost retraining services, is necessary to facilitate the provision of needs-related payments to accompany long-term training, or is necessary to facilitate the provision of appropriate basic readjustment services and that funds used from this Act to carry out the Secretary's discretionary grants under part B of such title III may be used to provide needs-related payments to participants who, in lieu of meeting the requirements relating to enrollment in training under section 314(e) of such Act, are enrolled in training by the end of the sixth week after funds have been awarded: Provided further, That service delivery areas may transfer funding provided herein under authority of title II–C of the Job Training Partnership Act to the program authorized by title II–B of that Act, if such transfer is approved by the Governor: Provided further, That service delivery areas and substate areas may transfer funding provided herein under authority of title II–A and title III of the Job Training Partnership Act between the programs authorized by those titles of the Act, if such transfer is approved by the Governor: Provided further, That, notwithstanding any other provision of law, any proceeds from the sale of Job Corps Center facilities shall be retained by the Secretary of Labor to carry out the Job Corps program.

COMMUNITY SERVICE EMPLOYMENT FOR OLDER AMERICANS

To carry out the activities for national grants or contracts with public agencies and public or private nonprofit organizations under paragraph (1)(A) of section 506(a) of title V of the Older Americans Act of 1965, as amended, or to carry out older worker activities as subsequently authorized, $273,000,000.

To carry out the activities for grants to States under paragraph (3) of section 506(a) of title V of the Older Americans Act of 1965, as amended, or to carry out older worker activities as subsequently authorized, $77,000,000.

SEC. 506. (a) PURCHASE OF AMERICAN-MADE EQUIPMENT AND PRODUCTS.—It is the sense of the Congress that, to the greatest extent practicable, all equipment and products purchased with funds made available in this Act should be American-made.

(b) NOTICE REQUIREMENT.—In providing financial assistance to, or entering into any contract with, any entity using funds made available in this Act, the head of each Federal agency, to the greatest extent practicable, shall provide to such entity a notice describing the statement made in subsection (a) by the Congress.

SEC. 507. When issuing statements, press releases, requests for proposals, bid solicitations and other documents describing projects or programs funded in whole or in part with Federal money, all grantees receiving Federal funds, including but not limited to State and local governments and recipients of Federal research grants, shall clearly state (1) the percentage of the total costs of the program or project which will be financed with Federal money, (2) the dollar amount of Federal funds for the project or program, and (3) percentage and dollar amount of the total costs of the project or program that will be financed by nongovernmental sources.

SEC. 508. None of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be expended for any abortion except when it is made known to the Federal entity or official to which funds are appropriated under this Act that such procedure is necessary to save the life of the mother or that the pregnancy is the result of an act of rape or incest.

SEC. 509. Notwithstanding any other provision of law—

(1) no amount may be transferred from an appropriation account for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education except as authorized in this or any subsequent appropriation act, or in the Act establishing the program or activity for which funds are contained in this Act;

(2) no department, agency, or other entity, other than the one responsible for administering the program or activity for which an appropriation is made in this Act, may exercise authority for the timing of the obligation and expenditure of such appropriation, or for the purposes for which it is obligated and expended, except to the extent and in the manner otherwise provided in sections 1512 and 1513 of title 31, United States Code; and

(3) no funds provided under this Act shall be available for the salary (or any part thereof) of an employee who is reassigned on a temporary detail basis to another position in the employing agency or department or in any other agency or department, unless the detail is independently approved by the head of the employing department or agency.

SEC. 510. LIMITATION ON USE OF FUNDS.—None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for the expenses of an electronic benefit transfer (EBT) task force.

SEC. 511. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to enforce the requirements of section 428(b)(1)(U)(iii) of the Higher Education Act of 1965 with respect to any lender when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that the lender has a loan portfolio under part B of title IV of such Act that is equal to or less than $5,000,000.

SEC. 512. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for Pell Grants under subpart 1 of part A of title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 to students attending an institution of higher education that is ineligible to participate in a loan program under such title as a result of a default determination under section 435(a)(2) of such Act, unless such institution has a participation rate index (as defined at 34 CFR 668.17) that is less than or equal to 0.0375.

SEC. 513. No more than 1 percent of salaries appropriated for each Agency in this Act may be expended by that Agency on cash performance awards: Provided, That of the budgetary resources available to Agencies in this Act for salaries and expenses during fiscal year 1996, $30,500,000, to be allocated by the Office of Management and Budget, are permanently canceled: Provided further, That the foregoing proviso shall not apply to the Food and Drug Administration and the Indian Health Service.

SEC. 514. (a) HIGH COST TRAINING EXCEPTION.—Section 428H(d)(2) of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1078–8(d)(2)) is amended by striking out the period at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof a semicolon and the following:

"except in cases where the Secretary determines, that a higher amount is warranted in order to carry out the purpose of this part with respect to students engaged in specialized training requiring exceptionally high costs of education, but the annual insurable limit per student shall not be deemed to be exceeded by a line of credit under which actual payments by the lender to the borrower will not be made in any years in excess of the annual limit.".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall be effective for loans made to cover the cost of instruction for periods of enrollment beginning on or after July 1, 1996.

This Act may be cited as the "Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996".

(e) Such amounts as may be necessary for programs, projects or activities provided for in the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996 at a rate of operations and to the extent and in the manner provided as follows, to be effective as if it had been enacted into law as the regular appropriations Act:

AN ACT

Making appropriations for the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and for sundry independent agencies, boards, commissions, corporations, and offices for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, and for other purposes.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 101. Any appropriation for 1996 for "Compensation and pensions", "Readjustment benefits", and "Veterans insurance and indemnities" may be transferred to any other of the mentioned appropriations.

SEC. 102. Appropriations available to the Department of Veterans Affairs for 1996 for salaries and expenses shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

SEC. 103. No part of the appropriations in this Act for the Department of Veterans Affairs (except the appropriations for "Construction, major projects", "Construction, minor projects", and the "Parking revolving fund") shall be available for the purchase of any site for or toward the construction of any new hospital or home.

SEC. 104. No part of the foregoing appropriations shall be available for hospitalization or examination of any persons except beneficiaries entitled under the laws bestowing such benefits to veterans, unless reimbursement of cost is made to the appropriation at such rates as may be fixed by the Secretary of Veterans Affairs.

SEC. 105. Appropriations available to the Department of Veterans Affairs for fiscal year 1996 for "Compensation and pensions", "Readjustment benefits", and "Veterans insurance and indemnities" shall be available for payment of prior year accrued obligations required to be recorded by law against the corresponding prior year accounts within the last quarter of fiscal year 1995.

SEC. 106. Appropriations accounts available to the Department of Veterans Affairs for fiscal year 1996 shall be available to pay prior year obligations of corresponding prior year appropriations accounts resulting from title X of the Competitive Equality Banking Act, Public Law 100–86, except that if such obligations are from trust fund accounts they shall be payable from "Compensation and pensions".

SEC. 108. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs is authorized to transfer, without compensation or reimbursement, the jurisdiction and control of a parcel of land consisting of approximately 6.3 acres, located on the south edge of the Department of Veterans Affairs Medical and Regional Office Center, Wichita, Kansas, including buildings Nos. 8 and 30 and other improvements thereon, to the Secretary of Transportation for the purpose of expanding and modernizing United States Highway 54: Provided, That if necessary, the exact acreage and legal description of the real property transferred shall be determined by a survey satisfactory to the Secretary of Veterans Affairs and the Secretary of Transportation shall bear the cost of such survey: Provided further, That the Secretary of Transportation shall be responsible for all costs associated with the transferred land and improvements thereon, and compliance with all existing statutes and regulations: Provided further, That the Secretary of Veterans Affairs and the Secretary of Transportation may require such additional terms and conditions as each Secretary considers appropriate to effectuate this transfer of land.

TITLE II

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

HOUSING PROGRAMS

ANNUAL CONTRIBUTIONS FOR ASSISTED HOUSING

For assistance under the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended ("the Act" herein) (42 U.S.C. 1437), not otherwise provided for, $10,103,795,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That of the total amount provided under this head, $160,000,000 shall be for the development or acquisition cost of public housing for Indian families, including amounts for housing under the mutual help homeownership opportunity program under section 202 of the Act (42 U.S.C.

1437bb): Provided further, That of the total amount provided under this head, $2,500,000,000 shall be for modernization of existing public housing projects pursuant to section 14 of the Act (42 U.S.C. 1437l), including up to $20,000,000 for the inspection of public housing units, contract expertise, and training and technical assistance, directly or indirectly, under grants, contracts, or cooperative agreements, to assist in the oversight and management of public and Indian housing (whether or not the housing is being modernized with assistance under this proviso) or tenant-based assistance, including, but not limited to, an annual resident survey, data collection and analysis, training and technical assistance by or to officials and employees of the Department and of public housing agencies and to residents in connection with the public and Indian housing program, or for carrying out activities under section 6(j) of the Act: Provided further, That of the total amount provided under this head, $400,000,000 shall be for rental subsidy contracts under the section 8 existing housing certificate program and the housing voucher program under section 8 of the Act, except that such amounts shall be used only for units necessary to provide housing assistance for residents to be relocated from existing federally subsidized or assisted housing, for replacement housing for units demolished or disposed of (including units to be disposed of pursuant to a homeownership program under section 5(h) or title III of the United States Housing Act of 1937) from the public housing inventory, for funds related to litigation settlements, for the conversion of section 23 projects to assistance under section 8, for public housing agencies to implement allocation plans approved by the Secretary for designated housing, for funds to carry out the family unification program, and for the relocation of witnesses in connection with efforts to combat crime in public and assisted housing pursuant to a request from a law enforcement or prosecution agency: Provided further, That of the total amount provided under this head, $4,350,862,000 shall be for assistance under the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437) for use in connection with expiring or terminating section 8 subsidy contracts, such amounts shall be merged with all remaining obligated and unobligated balances heretofore appropriated under the heading "Renewal of expiring section 8 subsidy contracts": Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, assistance reserved under the two preceding provisos may be used in connection with any provision of Federal law enacted in this Act or after the enactment of this Act that authorizes the use of rental assistance amounts in connection with such terminated or expired contracts: Provided further, That the Secretary may determine not to apply section 8(o)(6)(B) of the Act to housing vouchers during fiscal year 1996: Provided further, That of the total amount provided under this head, $610,575,000 shall be for amendments to section 8 contracts other than contracts for projects developed under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, as amended; and $209,000,000 shall be for section 8 assistance and rehabilitation grants for property disposition: Provided further, That 50 per centum of the amounts of budget authority, or in lieu thereof 50 per centum of the cash amounts associated with such budget authority, that are recaptured from projects described in section 1012(a) of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Amendments Act of 1988 (Public Law 100–628, 102 Stat. 3224, 3268) shall be rescinded, or in the case of cash, shall be remitted to the Treasury, and such amounts of budget authority or cash recaptured and not rescinded or remitted to the Treasury shall be used by State housing finance agencies or local governments or local housing agencies with projects approved by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development for which settlement occurred after January 1, 1992, in accordance with such section: Provided further, That of the total amount provided under this head, $171,000,000 shall be for housing opportunities for persons with AIDS under title VIII, subtitle D of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act; and $65,000,000 shall be for the lead-based paint hazard reduction program as authorized under sections 1011 and 1053 of the Residential Lead-Based Hazard Reduction Act of 1992: Provided further, That the Secretary may make up to $5,000,000 of any amount recaptured in this account available for the development of performance and financial systems.

Of the total amount provided under this head, $624,000,000, plus amounts recaptured from interest reduction payment contracts for section 236 projects whose owners prepay their mortgages during fiscal year 1996 (which amounts shall be transferred and merged with this account), shall be for use in conjunction with properties that are eligible for assistance under the Low Income Housing Preservation and Resident Homeownership Act of 1990 (LIHPRHA) or the Emergency Low-Income Housing Preservation Act of 1987 (ELIHPA): Provided, That prior to August 15, 1996, funding to carry out plans of action shall be limited to sales of projects to non-profit organizations, tenant-sponsored organizations, and other priority purchasers: Provided further, That of the amount made available by this paragraph, up to $10,000,000 shall be available for preservation technical assistance grants pursuant to section 253 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987, as amended: Provided further, That with respect to amounts made available by this paragraph, after August 15, 1996, if the Secretary determines that the demand for funding may exceed amounts available for such funding, the Secretary (1) may determine priorities for distributing available funds, including giving priority funding to tenants displaced due to mortgage prepayment and to projects that have not yet been funded but which have approved plans of action; and (2) may impose a temporary moratorium on applications by potential recipients of such funding: Provided further, That an owner of eligible low-income housing may prepay the mortgage or request voluntary termination of a mortgage insurance contract, so long as said owner agrees not to raise rents for sixty days after such prepayment: Provided further, That an owner of eligible low-income housing who has not timely filed a second notice under section 216(d) prior to the effective date of this Act may file such notice by April 15, 1996: Provided further, That such developments have been determined to have preservation equity at least equal to the lesser of $5,000 per unit or $500,000 per project or the equivalent of eight times the most recently published fair market rent for the area in which the project is located as the appropriate unit size for all of the units in the eligible project: Provided further, That the Secretary may modify the regulatory agreement to permit owners and priority purchasers to retain rental income in excess of the basic rental charge in projects assisted under section 236 of the National Housing Act, for the purpose of preserving the low and moderate income character of the housing: Provided further, That the Secretary may give priority to funding and processing the following projects provided that the funding is obligated not later than September 15, 1996: (1) projects with approved plans of action to retain the housing that file a modified plan of action no later than August 15, 1996 to transfer the housing; (2) projects with approved plans of action that are subject to a repayment or settlement agreement that was executed between the owner and the Secretary prior to September 1, 1995; (3) projects for which submissions were delayed as a result of their location in areas that were designated as a Federal disaster area in a Presidential Disaster Declaration; and (4) projects whose processing was, in fact or in practical effect, suspended, deferred, or interrupted for a period of twelve months or more because of differing interpretations, by the Secretary and an owner or by the Secretary and a State or local rent regulatory agency, concerning the timing of filing eligibility or the effect of a presumptively applicable State or local rent control law or regulation on the determination of preservation value under section 213 of LIHPRHA, as amended, if the owner of such project filed notice of intent to extend the low-income affordability restrictions of the housing, or transfer to a qualified purchaser who would extend such restrictions, on or before November 1, 1993: Provided further, That eligible low-income housing shall include properties meeting the requirements of this paragraph with mortgages that are held by a State agency as a result of a sale by the Secretary without insurance, which immediately before the sale would have been eligible low-income housing under LIHPRHA: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, subject to the availability of appropriated funds, each unassisted low-income family residing in the housing on the date of prepayment or voluntary termination, and whose rent, as a result of a rent increase occurring no later than one year after the date of the prepayment, exceeds 30 percent of adjusted income, shall be offered tenant-based assistance in accordance with section 8 or any successor program, under which the family shall pay no less for rent than it paid on such date: Provided further, That any family receiving tenant-based assistance under the preceding proviso may elect (1) to remain in the unit of the housing and if the rent exceeds the fair market rent or payment standard, as applicable, the rent shall be deemed to be the applicable standard, so long as the administering public housing agency finds that the rent is reasonable in comparison with rents charged for comparable unassisted housing units in the market or (2) to move from the housing and the rent will be subject to the fair market rent of the payment standard, as applicable, under existing program rules and procedures: Provided further, That up to $10,000,000 of the amount made available by this paragraph may be used at the discretion of the Secretary to reimburse owners of eligible properties for which plans of action were submitted prior to the effective date of this Act, but were not executed for lack of available funds, with such reimbursement available only for documented costs directly applicable to the preparation of the plan of action as determined by the Secretary, and shall be made available on terms and conditions to be established by the Secretary: Provided further, That, notwithstanding any other provision of law, effective October 1, 1996, the Secretary shall suspend further processing of preservation applications which do not have approved plans of action.

Of the total amount provided under this head, $780,190,000 shall be for capital advances, including amendments to capital advance contracts, for housing for the elderly, as authorized by section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, as amended, and for project rental assistance, and amendments to contracts for project rental assistance, for supportive housing for the elderly under section 202(c)(2) of the Housing Act of 1959; and $233,168,000 shall be for capital advances, including amendments to capital advance contracts, for supportive housing for persons with disabilities, as authorized by section 811 of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act; and for project rental assistance, and amendments to contracts for project rental assistance, for supportive housing for persons with disabilities as authorized by section 811 of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act: Provided, That the Secretary may designate up to 25 percent of the amounts earmarked under this paragraph for section 811 of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act for tenant-based assistance, as authorized under that section, which assistance is five-years in duration: Provided further, That the Secretary may waive any provision of section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959 and section 811 of the National Affordable Housing Act (including the provisions governing the terms and conditions of project rental assistance) that the Secretary determines is not necessary to achieve the objectives of these programs, or that otherwise impedes the ability to develop, operate or administer projects assisted under these programs, and may make provision for alternative conditions or terms where appropriate.

PUBLIC HOUSING DEMOLITION, SITE REVITALIZATION, AND REPLACEMENT HOUSING GRANTS

For grants to public housing agencies for the purposes of enabling the demolition of obsolete public housing projects or portions thereof, the revitalization (where appropriate) of sites (including remaining public housing units) on which such projects are located, replacement housing which will avoid or lessen concentrations of very low-income families, and tenant-based assistance in accordance with section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 for the purpose of providing replacement housing and assisting tenants to be displaced by the demolition, $380,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall award such funds to public housing agencies based upon, among other relevant criteria, the local and national impact of the proposed demolition and revitalization activities and the extent to which the public housing agency could undertake such activities without the additional assistance to be provided hereunder: Provided further, That eligible expenditures hereunder shall be those expenditures eligible under section 8 and section 14 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437f and l): Provided further, That the Secretary may impose such conditions and requirements as the Secretary deems appropriate to effectuate the purposes of this paragraph: Provided further, That the Secretary may require an agency selected to receive funding to make arrangements satisfactory to the Secretary for use of an entity other than the agency to carry out this program where the Secretary determines that such action will help to effectuate the purpose of this paragraph: Provided further, That in the event an agency selected to receive funding does not proceed expeditiously as determined by the Secretary, the Secretary shall withdraw any funding made available pursuant to this paragraph that has not been obligated by the agency and distribute such funds to one or more other eligible agencies, or to other entities capable of proceeding expeditiously in the same locality with the original program: Provided further, That of the foregoing $380,000,000, the Secretary may use up to .67 per centum for technical assistance, to be provided directly or indirectly by grants, contracts or cooperative agreements, including training and cost of necessary travel for participants in such training, by or to officials and employees of the Department and of public housing agencies and to residents: Provided further, That any replacement housing provided with assistance under this head shall be subject to section 18(f) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended by section 201(b)(2) of this Act.

FLEXIBLE SUBSIDY FUND

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

From the fund established by section 236(g) of the National Housing Act, as amended, all uncommitted balances of excess rental charges as of September 30, 1995, and any collections during fiscal year 1996 shall be transferred, as authorized under such section, to the fund authorized under section 201(j) of the Housing and Community Development Amendments of 1978, as amended.

RENTAL HOUSING ASSISTANCE

(RESCISSION)

The limitation otherwise applicable to the maximum payments that may be required in any fiscal year by all contracts entered into under section 236 of the National Housing Act (12 U.S.C. 1715z–1) is reduced in fiscal year 1996 by not more than $2,000,000 in uncommitted balances of authorizations provided for this purpose in appropriations Acts: Provided, That up to $163,000,000 of recaptured section 236 budget authority resulting from the prepayment of mortgages subsidized under section 236 of the National Housing Act (12 U.S.C. 1715z–1) shall be rescinded in fiscal year 1996.

PAYMENTS FOR OPERATION OF LOW-INCOME HOUSING PROJECTS

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

EXTEND ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS FROM THE RESCISSION ACT

SEC. 201. (a) PUBLIC AND INDIAN HOUSING MODERNIZATION.—

(1) EXPANSION OF USE OF MODERNIZATION FUNDING.—Subsection 14(q) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended to read as follows:

"(q)(1) In addition to the purposes enumerated in subsections (a) and (b), a public housing agency may use modernization assistance provided under section 14, and development assistance provided under section 5(a) that was not allocated, as determined by the Secretary, for priority replacement housing, for any eligible activity authorized by this section, by section 5, or by applicable Appropriations Acts for a public housing agency, including the demolition, rehabilitation, revitalization, and replacement of existing units and projects and, for up to 10 percent of its allocation of such funds in any fiscal year, for any operating subsidy purpose authorized in section 9. Except for assistance used for operating subsidy purposes under the preceding sentence, assistance provided to a public housing agency under this section shall principally be used for the physical improvement, replacement of public housing, other capital purposes, and for associated management improvements, and such other extraordinary purposes as may be approved by the Secretary. Low-income and very low-income units assisted under this paragraph shall be eligible for operating subsidies, unless the Secretary determines that such units or projects do not meet other requirements of this Act.

"(2) A public housing agency may provide assistance to developments that include units for other than units assisted under this Act (except for units assisted under section 8 hereof) ('mixed income developments'), in the form of a grant, loan, operating assistance, or other form of investment which may be made to—

"(A) a partnership, a limited liability company, or other legal entity in which the public housing agency or its affiliate is a general partner, managing member, or otherwise participates in the activities of such entity; or

"(B) any entity which grants to the public housing agency the option to purchase the development within 20 years after initial occupancy in accordance with section 42(i)(7) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended.

"Units shall be made available in such developments for periods of not less than 30 years, by master contract or by individual lease, for occupancy by low-income and very low-income families referred from time to time by the public housing agency from its central or site-based waiting list. The number of such units shall be:

"(i) in the same proportion to the total number of units in such development that the total financial commitment provided by the public housing agency bears to the value of the total financial commitment in the development, or

"(ii) not be less than the number of units that could have been developed under the conventional public housing program with the assistance involved, or

"(iii) as may otherwise be approved by the Secretary.

"(3) A mixed income development may elect to have all units subject only to the applicable local real estate taxes, notwithstanding that the low-income units assisted by public housing funds would otherwise be subject to section 6(d) of the Housing Act of 1937.

"(4) If an entity that owns or operates a mixed-income project under this subsection enters into a contract with a public housing agency, the terms of which obligate the entity to operate and maintain a specified number of units in the project as public housing units in accordance with the requirements of this Act for the period required by law, such contractual terms may provide that, if, as a result of a reduction in appropriations under section 9, or any other change in applicable law, the public housing agency is unable to fulfill its contractual obligations with respect to those public housing units, that entity may deviate, under procedures and requirements developed through regulations by the Secretary, from otherwise applicable restrictions under this Act regarding rents, income eligibility, and other areas of public housing management with respect to a portion or all of those public housing units, to the extent necessary to preserve the viability of those units while maintaining the low-income character of the units, to the maximum extent practicable.".

(2) APPLICABILITY.—Section 14(q) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended by subsection (a) of this section, shall be effective only with respect to assistance provided from funds made available for fiscal year 1996 or any preceding fiscal year.

(3) APPLICABILITY TO IHAS.—In accordance with section 201(b)(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, the amendment made by this subsection shall apply to public housing developed or operated pursuant to a contract between the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development and an Indian housing authority.

(b) ONE-FOR-ONE REPLACEMENT OF PUBLIC AND INDIAN HOUSING.—

(1) EXTENDED AUTHORITY.—Section 1002(d) of Public Law 104–19 is amended to read as follows:

"(d) Subsections (a), (b), and (c) shall be effective for applications for the demolition, disposition, or conversion to homeownership of public housing approved by the Secretary, and other consolidation and relocation activities of public housing agencies undertaken, on, before, or after September 30, 1995 and before September 30, 1996.".

(2) Section 18(f) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence:

"No one may rely on the preceding sentence as the basis for reconsidering a final order of a court issued, or a settlement approved by, a court.".

(3) APPLICABILITY.—In accordance with section 201(b)(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, the amendments made by this subsection and by sections 1002 (a), (b), and (c) of Public Law 104–19 shall apply to public housing developed or operated pursuant to a contract between the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development and an Indian housing authority.

CONVERSION OF CERTAIN PUBLIC HOUSING TO VOUCHERS

SEC. 203. (a) IDENTIFICATION OF UNITS.—Each public housing agency shall identify any public housing developments—

(1) that are on the same or contiguous sites;

(2) that total more than—

(A) 300 dwelling units; or

(B) in the case of high-rise family buildings or substantially vacant buildings; 300 dwelling units;

(3) that have a vacancy rate of at least 10 percent for dwelling units not in funded, on schedule modernization programs;

(4) identified as distressed housing that the public housing agency cannot assure the long-term viability as public housing through reasonable revitalization, density reduction, or achievement of a broader range of household income; and

(5) for which the estimated cost of continued operation and modernization of the developments as public housing exceeds the cost of providing tenant-based assistance under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 for all families in occupancy, based on appropriate indicators of cost (such as the percentage of total development cost required for modernization).

(b) IMPLEMENTATION AND ENFORCEMENT.—

(1) STANDARDS FOR IMPLEMENTATION.—The Secretary shall establish standards to permit implementation of this section in fiscal year 1996.

(2) CONSULTATION.—Each public housing agency shall consult with the applicable public housing tenants and the unit of general local government in identifying any public housing developments under subsection (a).

(3) FAILURE OF PHAS TO COMPLY WITH SUBSECTION (a).—Where the Secretary determines that—

(A) a public housing agency has failed under subsection (a) to identify public housing developments for removal from the inventory of the agency in a timely manner;

(B) a public housing agency has failed to identify one or more public housing developments which the Secretary determines should have been identified under subsection (a); or

(C) one or more of the developments identified by the public housing agency pursuant to subsection (a) should not, in the determination of the Secretary, have been identified under that subsection;

the Secretary may designate the developments to be removed from the inventory of the public housing agency pursuant to this section.

(c) REMOVAL OF UNITS FROM THE INVENTORIES OF PUBLIC HOUSING AGENCIES.—

(1) Each public housing agency shall develop and carry out a plan in conjunction with the Secretary for the removal of public housing units identified under subsection (a) or subsection (b)(3), over a period of up to five years, from the inventory of the public housing agency and the annual contributions contract. The plan shall be approved by the relevant local official as not inconsistent with the Comprehensive Housing Affordability Strategy under title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992, including a description of any disposition and demolition plan for the public housing units.

(2) The Secretary may extend the deadline in paragraph (1) for up to an additional five years where the Secretary makes a determination that the deadline is impracticable.

(3) The Secretary shall take appropriate actions to ensure removal of developments identified under subsection (a) or subsection (b)(3) from the inventory of a public housing agency, if the public housing agency fails to adequately develop a plan under paragraph (1), or fails to adequately implement such plan in accordance with the terms of the plan.

(4) To the extent approved in appropriations Acts, the Secretary may establish requirements and provide funding under the Urban Revitalization Demonstration program for demolition and disposition of public housing under this section.

(5) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, if a development is removed from the inventory of a public housing agency and the annual contributions contract pursuant to paragraph (1), the Secretary may authorize or direct the transfer of—

(A) in the case of an agency receiving assistance under the comprehensive improvement assistance program, any amounts obligated by the Secretary for the modernization of such development pursuant to section 14 of the United States Housing Act of 1937;

(B) in the case of an agency receiving public and Indian housing modernization assistance by formula pursuant to section 14 of the United States Housing Act of 1937, any amounts provided to the agency which are attributable pursuant to the formula for allocating such assistance to the development removed from the inventory of that agency; and to the tenant-based assistance program or appropriate site revitalization of such agency.

(C) in the case of an agency receiving assistance for the major reconstruction of obsolete projects, any amounts obligated by the Secretary for the major reconstruction of the development pursuant to section 5 of such Act,

(6) CESSATION OF UNNECESSARY SPENDING.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, if, in the determination of the Secretary, a development meets or is likely to meet the criteria set forth in subsection (a), the Secretary may direct the public housing agency to cease additional spending in connection with the development, except to the extent that additional spending is necessary to ensure decent, safe, and sanitary housing until the Secretary determines or approves an appropriate course of action with respect to such development under this section.

(d) CONVERSION TO TENANT-BASED ASSISTANCE.—

(1) The Secretary shall make authority available to a public housing agency to provide tenant-based assistance pursuant to section 8 to families residing in any development that is removed from the inventory of the public housing agency and the annual contributions contract pursuant to subsection (b).

(2) Each conversion plan under subsection (c) shall—

(A) require the agency to notify families residing in the development, consistent with any guidelines issued by the Secretary governing such notifications, that the development shall be removed from the inventory of the public housing agency and the families shall receive tenant-based or project-based assistance, and to provide any necessary counseling for families; and

(B) ensure that all tenants affected by a determination under this section that a development shall be removed from the inventory of a public housing agency shall be offered tenant-based or project-based assistance and shall be relocated, as necessary, to other decent, safe, sanitary, and affordable housing which is, to the maximum extent practicable, housing of their choice.

(e) IN GENERAL.—

(1) The Secretary may require a public housing agency to provide such information as the Secretary considers necessary for the administration of this section.

(2) As used in this section, the term "development" shall refer to a project or projects, or to portions of a project or projects, as appropriate.

(3) Section 18 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 shall not apply to the demolition of developments removed from the inventory of the public housing agency under this section.

STREAMLINING SECTION 8 TENANT-BASED ASSISTANCE

SEC. 204. (a) "TAKE-ONE, TAKE-ALL".—Section 8(t) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is hereby repealed.

(b) EXEMPTION FROM NOTICE REQUIREMENTS FOR THE CERTIFICATE AND VOUCHER PROGRAMS.—Section 8(c) of such Act is amended—

(1) in paragraph (8), by inserting after "section" the following: "(other than a contract for assistance under the certificate or voucher program)"; and

(2) in the first sentence of paragraph (9), by striking "(but not less than 90 days in the case of housing certificates or vouchers under subsection (b) or (o))" and inserting ", other than a contract under the certificate or voucher program".

(c) ENDLESS LEASE.—Section 8(d)(1)(B) of such Act is amended—

(1) in clause (ii), by inserting "during the term of the lease," after "(ii)"; and

(2) in clause (iii), by striking "provide that" and inserting "during the term of the lease,".

(d) APPLICABILITY.—The provisions of this section shall be effective for fiscal year 1996 only.

PUBLIC HOUSING/SECTION 8 MOVING TO WORK DEMONSTRATION

SEC. 206. (a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this demonstration is to give public housing agencies and the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development the flexibility to design and test various approaches for providing and administering housing assistance that: reduce cost and achieve greater cost effectiveness in Federal expenditures; give incentives to families with children where the head of household is working, seeking work, or is preparing for work by participating in job training, educational programs, or programs that assist people to obtain employment and become economically self-sufficient; and increase housing choices for low-income families.

(b) PROGRAM AUTHORITY.—The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall conduct a demonstration program under this section beginning in fiscal year 1996 under which up to 30 public housing agencies (including Indian housing authorities) administering the public or Indian housing program and the section 8 housing assistance payments program may be selected by the Secretary to participate. The Secretary shall provide training and technical assistance during the demonstration and conduct detailed evaluations of up to 15 such agencies in an effort to identify replicable program models promoting the purpose of the demonstration. Under the demonstration, notwithstanding any provision of the United States Housing Act of 1937 except as provided in subsection (e), an agency may combine operating assistance provided under section 9 of the United States Housing Act of 1937, modernization assistance provided under section 14 of such Act, and assistance provided under section 8 of such Act for the certificate and voucher programs, to provide housing assistance for low-income families, as defined in section 3(b)(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, and services to facilitate the transition to work on such terms and conditions as the agency may propose and the Secretary may approve.

(c) APPLICATION.—An application to participate in the demonstration—

(1) shall request authority to combine assistance under sections 8, 9, and 14 of the United States Housing Act of 1937;

(2) shall be submitted only after the public housing agency provides for citizen participation through a public hearing and, if appropriate, other means;

(3) shall include a plan developed by the agency that takes into account comments from the public hearing and any other public comments on the proposed program, and comments from current and prospective residents who would be affected, and that includes criteria for—

(A) families to be assisted, which shall require that at least 75 percent of the families assisted by participating demonstration public housing authorities shall be very low-income families, as defined in section 3(b)(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937;

(B) establishing a reasonable rent policy, which shall be designed to encourage employment and self-sufficiency by participating families, consistent with the purpose of this demonstration, such as by excluding some or all of a family's earned income for purposes of determining rent;

(C) continuing to assist substantially the same total number of eligible low-income families as would have been served had the amounts not been combined;

(D) maintaining a comparable mix of families (by family size) as would have been provided had the amounts not been used under the demonstration; and

(E) assuring that housing assisted under the demonstration program meets housing quality standards established or approved by the Secretary; and

(4) may request assistance for training and technical assistance to assist with design of the demonstration and to participate in a detailed evaluation.

(d) SELECTION.—In selecting among applications, the Secretary shall take into account the potential of each agency to plan and carry out a program under the demonstration, the relative performance by an agency under the public housing management assessment program under section 6(j) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, and other appropriate factors as determined by the Secretary.

(e) APPLICABILITY OF 1937 ACT PROVISIONS.—

(1) Section 18 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 shall continue to apply to public housing notwithstanding any use of the housing under this demonstration.

(2) Section 12 of such Act shall apply to housing assisted under the demonstration, other than housing assisted solely due to occupancy by families receiving tenant-based assistance.

(f) EFFECT ON SECTION 8, OPERATING SUBSIDIES, AND COMPREHENSIVE GRANT PROGRAM ALLOCATIONS.—The amount of assistance received under section 8, section 9, or pursuant to section 14 by a public housing agency participating in the demonstration under this part shall not be diminished by its participation.

(g) RECORDS, REPORTS, AND AUDITS.—

(1) KEEPING OF RECORDS.—Each agency shall keep such records as the Secretary may prescribe as reasonably necessary to disclose the amounts and the disposition of amounts under this demonstration, to ensure compliance with the requirements of this section, and to measure performance.

(2) REPORTS.—Each agency shall submit to the Secretary a report, or series of reports, in a form and at a time specified by the Secretary. Each report shall—

(A) document the use of funds made available under this section;

(B) provide such data as the Secretary may request to assist the Secretary in assessing the demonstration; and

(C) describe and analyze the effect of assisted activities in addressing the objectives of this part.

(3) ACCESS TO DOCUMENTS BY THE SECRETARY.—The Secretary shall have access for the purpose of audit and examination to any books, documents, papers, and records that are pertinent to assistance in connection with, and the requirements of, this section.

(4) ACCESS TO DOCUMENTS BY THE COMPTROLLER GENERAL.—The Comptroller General of the United States, or any of the duly authorized representatives of the Comptroller General, shall have access for the purpose of audit and examination to any books, documents, papers, and records that are pertinent to assistance in connection with, and the requirements of, this section.

(h) EVALUATION AND REPORT.—

(1) CONSULTATION WITH PHA AND FAMILY REPRESENTATIVES.—In making assessments throughout the demonstration, the Secretary shall consult with representatives of public housing agencies and residents.

(2) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 180 days after the end of the third year of the demonstration, the Secretary shall submit to the Congress a report evaluating the programs carried out under the demonstration. The report shall also include findings and recommendations for any appropriate legislative action.

(i) FUNDING FOR TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE AND EVALUATION.—From amounts appropriated for assistance under section 14 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 for fiscal years 1996, 1997, and 1998, the Secretary may use up to a total of $5,000,000—

(1) to provide, directly or by contract, training and technical assistance—

(A) to public housing agencies that express an interest to apply for training and technical assistance pursuant to subsection (c)(4), to assist them in designing programs to be proposed for the demonstration; and

(B) to up to 10 agencies selected to receive training and technical assistance pursuant to subsection (c)(4), to assist them in implementing the approved program; and

(2) to conduct detailed evaluations of the activities of the public housing agencies under paragraph (1)(B), directly or by contract.

EXTENSION OF MULTIFAMILY HOUSING FINANCE PROGRAM

SEC. 208. (a) The first sentence of section 542(b)(5) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992 (12 U.S.C. 1707 note) is amended by striking "on not more than 15,000 units over fiscal years 1993 and 1994" and inserting "on not more than 7,500 units during fiscal year 1996".

(b) The first sentence of section 542(c)(4) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992 (12 U.S.C. 1707 note) is amended by striking "on not to exceed 30,000 units over fiscal years 1993, 1994, and 1995" and inserting "on not more than 10,000 units during fiscal year 1996".

FORECLOSURE OF HUD-HELD MORTGAGES THROUGH THIRD PARTIES

SEC. 209. During fiscal year 1996, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development may delegate to one or more entities the authority to carry out some or all of the functions and responsibilities of the Secretary in connection with the foreclosure of mortgages held by the Secretary under the National Housing Act.

RESTRUCTURING OF THE HUD MULTIFAMILY MORTGAGE PORTFOLIO THROUGH STATE HOUSING FINANCE AGENCIES

SEC. 210. During fiscal year 1996, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development may sell or otherwise transfer multifamily mortgages held by the Secretary under the National Housing Act to a State housing finance agency in connection with a program authorized under section 542 (b) or (c) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992 without regard to the unit limitations in section 542(b)(5) or 542(c)(4) of such Act.

TRANSFER OF SECTION 8 AUTHORITY

SEC. 211. Section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by adding the following new subsection at the end:

"(bb) TRANSFER OF BUDGET AUTHORITY.—If an assistance contract under this section, other than a contract for tenant-based assistance, is terminated or is not renewed, or if the contract expires, the Secretary shall, in order to provide continued assistance to eligible families, including eligible families receiving the benefit of the project-based assistance at the time of the termination, transfer any budget authority remaining in the contract to another contract. The transfer shall be under such terms as the Secretary may prescribe.".

DOCUMENTATION OF MULTIFAMILY REFINANCINGS

SEC. 212. Notwithstanding the 16th paragraph under the item relating to "administrative provisions" in title II of the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1995 (Public Law 103-327; 108 Stat. 2316), the amendments to section 223(a)(7) of the National Housing Act made by the 15th paragraph of such Act shall be effective during fiscal year 1996 and thereafter.

FHA MULTIFAMILY DEMONSTRATION AUTHORITY

SEC. 213. (a) On and after October 1, 1995, and before October 1, 1997, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall initiate a demonstration program with respect to multifamily projects whose owners agree to participate and whose mortgages are insured under the National Housing Act and that are assisted under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 and whose present section 8 rents are, in the aggregate, in excess of the fair market rent of the locality in which the project is located. These programs shall be designed to test the feasibility and desirability of the goal of ensuring, to the maximum extent practicable, that the debt service and operating expenses, including adequate reserves, attributable to such multifamily projects can be supported with or without mortgage insurance under the National Housing Act and with or without above-market rents and utilizing project-based assistance or, with the consent of the property owner, tenant-based assistance, while taking into account the need for assistance of low- and very low-income families in such projects. In carrying out this demonstration, the Secretary may use arrangements with third parties, under which the Secretary may provide for the assumption by the third parties (by delegation, contract, or otherwise) of some or all of the functions, obligations, and benefits of the Secretary.

(1) GOALS.—The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall carry out the demonstration programs under this section in a manner that—

(A) will protect the financial interests of the Federal Government;

(B) will result in significant discretionary cost savings through debt restructuring and subsidy reduction; and

(C) will, in the least costly fashion, address the goals of—

(i) maintaining existing housing stock in a decent, safe, and sanitary condition;

(ii) minimizing the involuntary displacement of tenants;

(iii) restructuring the mortgages of such projects in a manner that is consistent with local housing market conditions;

(iv) supporting fair housing strategies;

(v) minimizing any adverse income tax impact on property owners; and

(vi) minimizing any adverse impact on residential neighborhoods.

In determining the manner in which a mortgage is to be restructured or the subsidy reduced, the Secretary may balance competing goals relating to individual projects in a manner that will further the purposes of this section.

(2) DEMONSTRATION APPROACHES.—In carrying out the demonstration programs, subject to the appropriation in subsection (f), the Secretary may use one or more of the following approaches:

(A) Joint venture arrangements with third parties, under which the Secretary may provide for the assumption by the third parties (by delegation, contract, or otherwise) of some or all of the functions, obligations, and benefits of the Secretary.

(B) Subsidization of the debt service of the project to a level that can be paid by an owner receiving an unsubsidized market rent.

(C) Renewal of existing project-based assistance contracts where the Secretary shall approve proposed initial rent levels that do not exceed the greater of 120 percent of fair market rents or comparable market rents for the relevant metropolitan market area or at rent levels under a budget-based approach.

(D) Nonrenewal of expiring existing project-based assistance contracts and providing tenant-based assistance to previously assisted households.

(b) For purposes of carrying out demonstration programs under subsection (a)—

(1) the Secretary may manage and dispose of multifamily properties owned by the Secretary as of October 1, 1995 and multifamily mortgages held by the Secretary as of October 1, 1995 for properties assisted under section 8 with rents above 110 percent of fair market rents without regard to any other provision of law; and

(2) the Secretary may delegate to one or more entities the authority to carry out some or all of the functions and responsibilities of the Secretary in connection with the foreclosure of mortgages held by the Secretary under the National Housing Act.

(c) For purposes of carrying out demonstration programs under subsection (a), subject to such third party consents (if any) as are necessary including but not limited to (i) consent by the Government National Mortgage Association where it owns a mortgage insured by the Secretary; (ii) consent by an issuer under the mortgage-backed securities program of the Association, subject to the responsibilities of the issuer to its security holders and the Association under such program; and (iii) parties to any contractual agreement which the Secretary proposes to modify or discontinue, and subject to the appropriation in subsection (c), the Secretary or one or more third parties designated by the Secretary may take the following actions:

(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, and subject to the agreement of the project owner, the Secretary or third party may remove, relinquish, extinguish, modify, or agree to the removal of any mortgage, regulatory agreement, project-based assistance contract, use agreement, or restriction that had been imposed or required by the Secretary, including restrictions on distributions of income which the Secretary or third party determines would interfere with the ability of the project to operate without above market rents. The Secretary or third party may require an owner of a property assisted under the section 8 new construction/substantial rehabilitation program to apply any accumulated residual receipts toward effecting the purposes of this section.

(2) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development may enter into contracts to purchase reinsurance, or enter into participations or otherwise transfer economic interest in contracts of insurance or in the premiums paid, or due to be paid, on such insurance to third parties, on such terms and conditions as the Secretary may determine.

(3) The Secretary may offer project-based assistance with rents at or below fair market rents for the locality in which the project is located and may negotiate such other terms as are acceptable to the Secretary and the project owner.

(4) The Secretary may offer to pay all or a portion of the project's debt service, including payments monthly from the appropriate Insurance Fund, for the full remaining term of the insured mortgage.

(5) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary may forgive and cancel any FHA-insured mortgage debt that a demonstration program property cannot carry at market rents while bearing full operating costs.

(6) For demonstration program properties that cannot carry full operating costs (excluding debt service) at market rents, the Secretary may approve project-based rents sufficient to carry such full operating costs and may offer to pay the full debt service in the manner provided in paragraph (4).

(d) COMMUNITY AND TENANT INPUT.—In carrying out this section, the Secretary shall develop procedures to provide appropriate and timely notice to officials of the unit of general local government affected, the community in which the project is situated, and the tenants of the project.

(e) LIMITATION ON DEMONSTRATION AUTHORITY.—The Secretary may carry out demonstration programs under this section with respect to mortgages not to exceed 15,000 units. The demonstration authorized under this section shall not be expanded until the reports required under subsection (g) are submitted to the Congress.

(f) APPROPRIATION.—For the cost of modifying loans held or guaranteed by the Federal Housing Administration, as authorized by this subsection (a)(2) and subsection (c), $15,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 1997: Provided, That such costs shall be as defined in section 502 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, as amended.

(g) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary shall submit to the Congress every six months after the date of enactment of this Act a report describing and assessing the programs carried out under the demonstrations. The Secretary shall also submit a final report to the Congress not later than six months after the end of the demonstrations. The reports shall include findings and recommendations for any legislative action appropriate. The reports shall also include a description of the status of each multifamily housing project selected for the demonstrations under this section. The final report may include—

(1) the size of the projects;

(2) the geographic locations of the projects, by State and region;

(3) the physical and financial condition of the projects;

(4) the occupancy profile of the projects, including the income, family size, race, and ethnic origin of current tenants, and the rents paid by such tenants;

(5) a description of actions undertaken pursuant to this section, including a description of the effectiveness of such actions and any impediments to the transfer or sale of multifamily housing projects;

(6) a description of the extent to which the demonstrations under this section have displaced tenants of multifamily housing projects;

(7) a description of any of the functions performed in connection with this section that are transferred or contracted out to public or private entities or to States;

(8) a description of the impact to which the demonstrations under this section have affected the localities and communities where the selected multifamily housing projects are located; and

(9) a description of the extent to which the demonstrations under this section have affected the owners of multifamily housing projects.

ASSESSMENT COLLECTION DATES FOR OFFICE OF FEDERAL HOUSING ENTERPRISE OVERSIGHT

SEC. 216. Section 1316(b) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992 (12 U.S.C. 4516(b)) is amended by striking paragraph (2) and inserting the following new paragraph:

"(2) TIMING OF PAYMENT.—The annual assessment shall be payable semiannually for each fiscal year, on October 1 and April 1.".

MERGER LANGUAGE FOR ASSISTANCE FOR THE RENEWAL OF EXPIRING SECTION 8 SUBSIDY CONTRACTS AND ANNUAL CONTRIBUTIONS FOR ASSISTED HOUSING

SEC. 217. Arlington, New Jersey, in accordance with House Report 103–715, shall be available for a grant to that city for water and sewer improvements.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

SEC. 301. None of the funds provided in this Act may be used within the Environmental Protection Agency for any final action by the Administrator or her delegate for signing and publishing for promulgation of a rule concerning any new standard for radon in drinking water.

SEC. 302. None of the funds provided in this Act may be used during fiscal year 1996 to sign, promulgate, implement or enforce the requirement proposed as "Regulation of Fuels and Fuel Additives: Individual Foreign Refinery Baseline Requirements for Reformulated Gasoline" at volume 59 of the Federal Register at pages 22800 through 22814.

SEC. 303. None of the funds appropriated to the Environmental Protection Agency for fiscal year 1996 may be used to implement section 404(c) of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended. No pending action by the Environmental Protection Agency to implement section 404(c) with respect to an individual permit shall remain in effect after the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 304. None of the funds appropriated under this Act may be used to implement the requirements of section 186(b)(2), section 187(b) or section 211(m) of the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7512(b)(2), 7512a(b), or 7545(m)) with respect to any moderate nonattainment area in which the average daily winter temperature is below 0 degrees Fahrenheit. The preceding sentence shall not be interpreted to preclude assistance from the Environmental Protection Agency to the State of Alaska to make progress toward meeting the carbon monoxide standard in such areas and to resolve remaining issues regarding the use of oxygenated fuels in such areas.

SEC. 305. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Environmental Protection Agency shall: (1) transfer all real property acquired in Bay City, Michigan, for the creation of the Center for Ecology, Research and Training (CERT) to the City of Bay City or other local public or municipal entity; and (2) make a grant in fiscal year 1996 to the recipient of the property of not less than $3,000,000 from funds previously appropriated for the CERT project for the purpose of environmental remediation and rehabilitation of real property included in the boundaries of the CERT project. The disposition of property shall be by donation or no-cost transfer and shall be made to the City of Bay City, Michigan or other local public or municipal entity.

Further, notwithstanding any other provision of law, the agency shall have the authority to demolish or dispose of any improvements on such real property, or to donate, sell, or transfer any personal property or improvements on such real property to members of the general public, by auction or public sale, and to apply any funds received to costs related to the transfer of the real property authorized hereunder.

For the cost of direct loans, $2,155,000, as authorized by section 319 of the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.): Provided, That such costs, including the cost of modifying such loans, shall be as defined in section 502 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, as amended: Provided further, That these funds are available to subsidize gross obligations for the principal amount of direct loans not to exceed $25,000,000.

In addition, for administrative expenses to carry out the direct loan program, $95,000.

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses, not otherwise provided for, including hire and purchase of motor vehicles (31 U.S.C. 1343); uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 5901–5902; services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, but at rates for individuals not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the rate for GS–18; expenses of attendance of cooperating officials and individuals at meetings concerned with the work of emergency preparedness; transportation in connection with the continuity of Government programs to the same extent and in the same manner as permitted the Secretary of a Military Department under 10 U.S.C. 2632; and not to exceed $2,500 for official reception and representation expenses; $168,900,000.

OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL

For necessary expenses of the Office of the Inspector General in carrying out the provisions of the Inspector General Act of 1978, as amended, $4,673,000.

EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT PLANNING AND ASSISTANCE

For necessary expenses, not otherwise provided for, to carry out activities under the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended, and the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973, as amended (42 U.S.C. 4001 et seq.), the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.), the Earthquake Hazards Reduction Act of 1977, as amended (42 U.S.C. 7701 et seq.), the Federal Fire Prevention and Control Act of 1974, as amended (15 U.S.C. 2201 et seq.), the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended (50 U.S.C. App. 2061 et seq.), sections 107 and 303 of the National Security Act of 1947, as amended (50 U.S.C. 404–405), and Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1978, $203,044,000.

EMERGENCY FOOD AND SHELTER PROGRAM

There is hereby appropriated $100,000,000 to the Federal Emergency Management Agency to carry out an emergency food and shelter program pursuant to title III of Public Law 100–77, as amended: Provided, That total administrative costs shall not exceed three and one-half per centum of the total appropriation.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE FUND

For activities under the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973, and the National Flood Insurance Reform Act of 1994, not to exceed $20,562,000 for salaries and expenses associated with flood mitigation and flood insurance operations, and not to exceed $70,464,000 for flood mitigation, including up to $12,000,000 for expenses under section 1366 of the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended, which amount shall be available until September 30, 1997. In fiscal year 1996, no funds in excess of (1) $47,000,000 for operating expenses, (2) $292,526,000 for agents' commissions and taxes, and (3) $3,500,000 for interest on Treasury borrowings shall be available from the National Flood Insurance Fund without prior notice to the Committees on Appropriations.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISION

The Director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall promulgate through rulemaking a methodology for assessment and collection of fees to be assessed and collected beginning in fiscal year 1996 applicable to persons subject to the Federal Emergency Management Agency's radiological emergency preparedness regulations. The aggregate charges assessed pursuant to this section during fiscal year 1996 shall approximate, but not be less than, 100 per centum of the amounts anticipated by the Federal Emergency Management Agency to be obligated for its radiological emergency preparedness program for such fiscal year. The methodology for assessment and collection of fees shall be fair and equitable, and shall reflect the full amount of costs of providing radiological emergency planning, preparedness, response and associated services. Such fees will be assessed in a manner that reflects the use of agency resources for classes of regulated persons and the administrative costs of collecting such fees. Fees received pursuant to this section shall be deposited in the general fund of the Treasury as offsetting receipts. Assessment and collection of such fees are only authorized during fiscal year 1996.

GENERAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION

CONSUMER INFORMATION CENTER

For necessary expenses of the Consumer Information Center, including services authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, $2,061,000, to be deposited into the Consumer Information Center Fund: Provided, That the appropriations, revenues and collections deposited into the fund shall be available for necessary expenses of Consumer Information Center activities in the aggregate amount of $7,500,000. Administrative expenses of the Consumer Information Center in fiscal year 1996 shall not exceed $2,602,000. Appropriations, revenues, and collections accruing to this fund during fiscal year 1996 in excess of $7,500,000 shall remain in the fund and shall not be available for expenditure except as authorized in appropriations Acts.

NATIONAL AERONAUTICS AND SPACE ADMINISTRATION

HUMAN SPACE FLIGHT

For necessary expenses, not otherwise provided for, in the conduct and support of human space flight research and development activities, including research; development; operations; services; maintenance; construction of facilities including repair, rehabilitation, and modification of real and personal property, and acquisition or condemnation of real property, as authorized by law; space flight, spacecraft control and communications activities including operations, production, and services; and purchase, lease, charter, maintenance, and operation of mission and administrative aircraft; $5,456,600,000, to remain available until September 30, 1997.

SCIENCE, AERONAUTICS AND TECHNOLOGY

For necessary expenses, not otherwise provided for, in carrying out mission support for human space flight programs and science, aeronautical, and technology programs, including research operations and support; space communications activities including operations, production, and services; maintenance; construction of facilities including repair, rehabilitation, and modification of facilities, minor construction of new facilities and additions to existing facilities, facility planning and design, environmental compliance and restoration, and acquisition or condemnation of real property, as authorized by law; program management; personnel and related costs, including uniforms or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901–5902); travel expenses; purchase, lease, charter, maintenance, and operation of mission and administrative aircraft; not to exceed $35,000 for official reception and representation expenses; and purchase (not to exceed thirty-three for replacement only) and hire of passenger motor vehicles; $2,502,200,000, to remain available until September 30, 1997.

OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL

For necessary expenses of the Office of the Inspector General in carrying out the provisions of the Inspector General Act of 1978, as amended, $16,000,000.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

Notwithstanding the limitation on the availability of funds appropriated for "Human space flight", "Science, aeronautics and technology", or "Mission support" by this appropriations Act, when any activity has been initiated by the incurrence of obligations for construction of facilities as authorized by law, the amount available for such activity shall remain available until expended. This provision does not apply to the amounts appropriated in "Mission support" pursuant to the authorization for repair, rehabilitation and modification of facilities, minor construction of new facilities and additions to existing facilities, and facility planning and design.

Notwithstanding the limitation on the availability of funds appropriated for "Human space flight", "Science, aeronautics and technology", or "Mission support" by this appropriations Act, the amounts appropriated for construction of facilities shall remain available until September 30, 1998.

Notwithstanding the limitation on the availability of funds appropriated for "Mission support" and "Office of Inspector General", amounts made available by this Act for personnel and related costs and travel expenses of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration shall remain available until September 30, 1996 and may be used to enter into contracts for training, investigations, cost associated with personnel relocation, and for other services, to be provided during the next fiscal year.

The unexpired balances of prior appropriations to NASA for activities for which funds are provided under this Act may be transferred to the new account established for the appropriation that provides funds for such activity under this Act. Balances so transferred may be merged with funds in the newly established account and thereafter may be accounted for as one fund to be available for the same purposes and under the same terms and conditions.

Upon the determination by the Administrator that such action is necessary, the Administrator may, with the approval of the Office of Management and Budget, transfer not to exceed $50,000,000 of funds made available in this Act to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration between such appropriations or any subdivision thereof, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes, and for the same time period, as the appropriation to which transferred: Provided, That such authority to transfer may not be used unless for higher priority items, based on unforeseen requirements, than those for which originally appropriated: Provided further, That the Administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration shall notify the Congress promptly of all transfers made pursuant to this authority.

NATIONAL CREDIT UNION ADMINISTRATION

CENTRAL LIQUIDITY FACILITY

During fiscal year 1996, gross obligations of the Central Liquidity Facility for the principal amount of new direct loans to member credit unions as authorized by the National Credit Union Central Liquidity Facility Act (12 U.S.C. 1795) shall not exceed $600,000,000: Provided, That administrative expenses of the Central Liquidity Facility in fiscal year 1996 shall not exceed $560,000.

NATIONAL SCIENCE FOUNDATION

RESEARCH AND RELATED ACTIVITIES

MAJOR RESEARCH EQUIPMENT

For necessary expenses in carrying out major construction projects, and related expenses, pursuant to the purposes of the National Science Foundation Act of 1950, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1861–1875), $70,000,000, to remain available until expended.

ACADEMIC RESEARCH INFRASTRUCTURE

For necessary expenses in carrying out an academic research infrastructure program pursuant to the purposes of the National Science Foundation Act of 1950, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1861–1875), including services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109 and rental of conference rooms in the District of Columbia, $100,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 1997.

EDUCATION AND HUMAN RESOURCES

For necessary expenses in carrying out science and engineering education and human resources programs and activities pursuant to the purposes of the National Science Foundation Act of 1950, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1861–1875), including services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109 and rental of conference rooms in the District of Columbia, $599,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 1997: Provided, That to the extent that the amount of this appropriation is less than the total amount authorized to be appropriated for included program activities, all amounts, including floors and ceilings, specified in the authorizing Act for those program activities or their subactivities shall be reduced proportionally.

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary salaries and expenses in carrying out the purposes of the National Science Foundation Act of 1950, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1861–1875); services authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109; hire of passenger motor vehicles; not to exceed $9,000 for official reception and representation expenses; uniforms or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901–5902); rental of conference rooms in the District of Columbia; reimbursement of the General Services Administration for security guard services; $127,310,000: Provided, That contracts may be entered into under salaries and expenses in fiscal year 1996 for maintenance and operation of facilities, and for other services, to be provided during the next fiscal year.

OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL

For necessary expenses of the Office of Inspector General in carrying out the provisions of the Inspector General Act of 1978, as amended, $4,490,000, to remain available until September 30, 1997.

NATIONAL SCIENCE FOUNDATION HEADQUARTERS RELOCATION

For necessary support of the relocation of the National Science Foundation, $5,200,000: Provided, That these funds shall be used to reimburse the General Services Administration for services and related acquisitions in support of relocating the National Science Foundation.

NEIGHBORHOOD REINVESTMENT CORPORATION

PAYMENT TO THE NEIGHBORHOOD REINVESTMENT CORPORATION

For payment to the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation for use in neighborhood reinvestment activities, as authorized by the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation Act (42 U.S.C. 8101–8107), $38,667,000.

SELECTIVE SERVICE SYSTEM

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses of the Selective Service System, including expenses of attendance at meetings and of training for uniformed personnel assigned to the Selective Service System, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 4101–4118) for civilian employees; and not to exceed $1,000 for official reception and representation expenses; $22,930,000: Provided, That during the current fiscal year, the President may exempt this appropriation from the provisions of 31 U.S.C. 1341, whenever he deems such action to be necessary in the interest of national defense: Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated by the Act may be expended for or in connection with the induction of any person into the Armed Forces of the United States.

TITLE IV

CORPORATIONS

Corporations and agencies of the Department of Housing and Urban Development which are subject to the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended, are hereby authorized to make such expenditures, within the limits of funds and borrowing authority available to each such corporation or agency and in accord with law, and to make such contracts and commitments without regard to fiscal year limitations as provided by section 104 of the Act as may be necessary in carrying out the programs set forth in the budget for 1996 for such corporation or agency except as hereinafter provided: Provided, That collections of these corporations and agencies may be used for new loan or mortgage purchase commitments only to the extent expressly provided for in this Act (unless such loans are in support of other forms of assistance provided for in this or prior appropriations Acts), except that this proviso shall not apply to the mortgage insurance or guaranty operations of these corporations, or where loans or mortgage purchases are necessary to protect the financial interest of the United States Government.

RESOLUTION TRUST CORPORATION

OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL

For necessary expenses of the Office of Inspector General in carrying out the provisions of the Inspector General Act of 1978, as amended, $11,400,000.

TITLE V

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 501. Where appropriations in titles I, II, and III of this Act are expendable for travel expenses and no specific limitation has been placed thereon, the expenditures for such travel expenses may not exceed the amounts set forth therefor in the budget estimates submitted for the appropriations: Provided, That this section shall not apply to travel performed by uncompensated officials of local boards and appeal boards of the Selective Service System; to travel performed directly in connection with care and treatment of medical beneficiaries of the Department of Veterans Affairs; to travel performed in connection with major disasters or emergencies declared or determined by the President under the provisions of the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act; to travel performed by the Offices of Inspector General in connection with audits and investigations; or to payments to interagency motor pools where separately set forth in the budget schedules: Provided further, That if appropriations in titles I, II, and III exceed the amounts set forth in budget estimates initially submitted for such appropriations, the expenditures for travel may correspondingly exceed the amounts therefor set forth in the estimates in the same proportion.

SEC. 502. Appropriations and funds available for the administrative expenses of the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Selective Service System shall be available in the current fiscal year for purchase of uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901–5902); hire of passenger motor vehicles; and services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

SEC. 503. Funds of the Department of Housing and Urban Development subject to the Government Corporation Control Act or section 402 of the Housing Act of 1950 shall be available, without regard to the limitations on administrative expenses, for legal services on a contract or fee basis, and for utilizing and making payment for services and facilities of Federal National Mortgage Association, Government National Mortgage Association, Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, Federal Financing Bank, Resolution Trust Corporation, Federal Reserve banks or any member thereof, Federal Home Loan banks, and any insured bank within the meaning of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Act, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1811–1831).

SEC. 504. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 505. No funds appropriated by this Act may be expended—

(1) pursuant to a certification of an officer or employee of the United States unless—

(A) such certification is accompanied by, or is part of, a voucher or abstract which describes the payee or payees and the items or services for which such expenditure is being made, or

(B) the expenditure of funds pursuant to such certification, and without such a voucher or abstract, is specifically authorized by law; and

(2) unless such expenditure is subject to audit by the General Accounting Office or is specifically exempt by law from such audit.

SEC. 506. None of the funds provided in this Act to any department or agency may be expended for the transportation of any officer or employee of such department or agency between his domicile and his place of employment, with the exception of any officer or employee authorized such transportation under title 31, United States Code, section 1344.

SEC. 507. None of the funds provided in this Act may be used for payment, through grants or contracts, to recipients that do not share in the cost of conducting research resulting from proposals not specifically solicited by the Government: Provided, That the extent of cost sharing by the recipient shall reflect the mutuality of interest of the grantee or contractor and the Government in the research.

SEC. 508. None of the funds provided in this Act may be used, directly or through grants, to pay or to provide reimbursement for payment of the salary of a consultant (whether retained by the Federal Government or a grantee) at more than the daily equivalent of the rate paid for Level IV of the Executive Schedule, unless specifically authorized by law.

SEC. 509. None of the funds in this Act shall be used to pay the expenses of, or otherwise compensate, non-Federal parties intervening in regulatory or adjudicatory proceedings. Nothing herein affects the authority of the Consumer Product Safety Commission pursuant to section 7 of the Consumer Product Safety Act (15 U.S.C. 2056 et seq.).

SEC. 510. Except as otherwise provided under existing law or under an existing Executive order issued pursuant to an existing law, the obligation or expenditure of any appropriation under this Act for contracts for any consulting service shall be limited to contracts which are (1) a matter of public record and available for public inspection, and (2) thereafter included in a publicly available list of all contracts entered into within twenty-four months prior to the date on which the list is made available to the public and of all contracts on which performance has not been completed by such date. The list required by the preceding sentence shall be updated quarterly and shall include a narrative description of the work to be performed under each such contract.

SEC. 511. Except as otherwise provided by law, no part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be obligated or expended by any executive agency, as referred to in the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 401 et seq.) for a contract for services unless such executive agency (1) has awarded and entered into such contract in full compliance with such Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder, and (2) requires any report prepared pursuant to such contract, including plans, evaluations, studies, analyses and manuals, and any report prepared by the agency which is substantially derived from or substantially includes any report prepared pursuant to such contract, to contain information concerning (A) the contract pursuant to which the report was prepared, and (B) the contractor who prepared the report pursuant to such contract.

SEC. 512. Except as otherwise provided in section 506, none of the funds provided in this Act to any department or agency shall be obligated or expended to provide a personal cook, chauffeur, or other personal servants to any officer or employee of such department or agency.

SEC. 513. None of the funds provided in this Act to any department or agency shall be obligated or expended to procure passenger automobiles as defined in 15 U.S.C. 2001 with an EPA estimated miles per gallon average of less than 22 miles per gallon.

SEC. 514. Such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 1996 pay raises for programs funded by this Act shall be absorbed within the levels appropriated in this Act.

SEC. 515. None of the funds appropriated in title I of this Act shall be used to enter into any new lease of real property if the estimated annual rental is more than $300,000 unless the Secretary submits, in writing, a report to the Committees on Appropriations of the Congress and a period of 30 days has expired following the date on which the report is received by the Committees on Appropriations.

SEC. 516. (a) PURCHASE OF AMERICAN-MADE EQUIPMENT AND PRODUCTS.—It is the sense of the Congress that, to the greatest extent practicable, all equipment and products purchased with funds made available in this Act should be American-made.

(b) NOTICE REQUIREMENT.—In providing financial assistance to, or entering into any contract with, any entity using funds made available in this Act, the head of each Federal agency, to the greatest extent practicable, shall provide to such entity a notice describing the statement made in subsection (a) by the Congress.

SEC. 517. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to implement any cap on reimbursements to grantees for indirect costs, except as published in Office of Management and Budget Circular A–21.

SEC. 518. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for any program, project, or activity, when it is made known to the Federal entity or official to which the funds are made available that the program, project, or activity is not in compliance with any Federal law relating to risk assessment, the protection of private property rights, or unfunded mandates.

SEC. 519. In fiscal year 1996, the Director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall sell the disaster housing inventory of mobile homes and trailers, and the proceeds thereof shall be deposited in the Treasury.

SEC. 520. Such funds as may be necessary to carry out the orderly termination of the Office of Consumer Affairs shall be made available from funds appropriated to the Department of Health and Human Services for fiscal year 1996.

This Act may be cited as the "Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996".

CHAPTER 11

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 1101. In administering funds provided herein for domestic assistance, the Secretary of any involved department may waive or specify alternative requirements for any provision of any statute or regulation that the Secretary administers in connection with the obligation by the Secretary or any use of the recipient of these funds; except for the requirement related to civil rights, fair housing and nondiscrimination, the environment, and labor standards, upon finding that such waiver is required to facilitate the obligation and use of such funds would not be inconsistent with the overall purpose of the statute or regulation.

SEC. 1102. No part of any appropriation contained in this title shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

This title may be cited as the "Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act of 1996".

TITLE III—MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

SEC. 3001. The President may make available funds for population planning activities or other population assistance pursuant to programs under title II and title IV of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1996, Public Law 104-107, notwithstanding the provisions of section 518A of such Act, if he determines and reports to the Congress that the effects of those restrictions would be that the demand for family planning services would be less likely to be met and that there would be a significant increase in abortions than would otherwise be the case in the absence of such restrictions.

SEC. 3002. Section 308(d) of the Interjurisdictional Fisheries Act of 1986 (16 U.S.C. 4107(d)) is amended—

(1) in the heading, by striking "GRANTS" and inserting "ASSISTANCE";

(2) in paragraph (1), by striking "award grants to persons engaged in commercial fisheries, for uninsured losses determined by the Secretary to have been suffered" and inserting "assist persons engaged in commercial fisheries by providing direct assistance to those persons or by providing indirect assistance to those persons through assistance to agencies of States and political subdivisions thereof and to nonprofit organizations, for projects or other measures designed to alleviate harm that the Secretary determines was incurred";

(3) in paragraph (3), by striking "a grant" and inserting "direct assistance to a person";

(4) by striking "gross revenues annually," in paragraph (3) and inserting "net annual revenue from commercial fisheries,";

(5) by striking paragraph (4) and inserting the following:

"(4) Assistance may not be provided under this subsection as part of a fishing capacity reduction program in a fishery unless the Secretary determines that—

"(A) adequate conservation and management measures are in place in that fishery; and

"(B) adequate measures are in place to prevent the replacement of fishing capacity eliminated by the program in that fishery."; and

(6) in paragraph (5), by striking "for awarding grants" and all that follows through the end of the paragraph and inserting "for providing assistance under this subsection.".

SEC. 3003. BONNEVILLE POWER ADMINISTRATION REFINANCING.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—

For the purposes of this section—

(1) "Administrator" means the Administrator of the Bonneville Power Administration;

(2) "capital investment" means a capitalized cost funded by Federal appropriations that—

(A) is for a project, facility, or separable unit or feature of a project or facility;

(B) is a cost for which the Administrator is required by law to establish rates to repay to the United States Treasury through the sale of electric power, transmission, or other services;

(C) excludes a Federal irrigation investment; and

(D) excludes an investment financed by the current revenues of the Administrator or by bonds issued and sold, or authorized to be issued and sold, by the Administrator under section 13 of the Federal Columbia River Transmission System Act (16 U.S.C. 838k);

(3) "new capital investment" means a capital investment for a project, facility, or separable unit or feature of a project or facility, placed in service after September 30, 1996;

(4) "old capital investment" means a capital investment the capitalized cost of which—

(A) was incurred, but not repaid, before October 1, 1996, and

(B) was for a project, facility, or separable unit or feature of a project or facility, placed in service before October 1, 1996;

(5) "repayment date" means the end of the period within which the Administrator's rates are to assure the repayment of the principal amount of a capital investment; and

(6) "Treasury rate" means—

(A) for an old capital investment, a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration prevailing market yields, during the month preceding October 1, 1996, on outstanding interest-bearing obligations of the United States with periods to maturity comparable to the period between October 1, 1996, and the repayment date for the old capital investment; and

(B) for a new capital investment, a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration prevailing market yields, during the month preceding the beginning of the fiscal year in which the related project, facility, or separable unit or feature is placed in service, on outstanding interest-bearing obligations of the United States with periods to maturity comparable to the period between the beginning of the fiscal year and the repayment date for the new capital investment.

(b) NEW PRINCIPAL AMOUNTS.—

(1) PRINCIPAL AMOUNT.—Effective October 1, 1996, an old capital investment has a new principal amount that is the sum of—

(A) the present value of the old payment amounts for the old capital investment, calculated using a discount rate equal to the Treasury rate for the old capital investment; and

(B) an amount equal to $100,000,000 multiplied by a fraction whose numerator is the principal amount of the old payment amounts for the old capital investment and whose denominator is the sum of the principal amounts of the old payment amounts for all old capital investments.

(2) DETERMINATION.—With the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury based solely on consistency with this section, the Administrator shall determine the new principal amounts under this subsection (b) and the assignment of interest rates to the new principal amounts under subsection (c).

(3) OLD PAYMENT AMOUNTS.—For the purposes of this subsection, "old payment amounts" means, for an old capital investment, the annual interest and principal that the Administrator would have paid to the United States Treasury from October 1, 1996, if this section had not been enacted, assuming that—

(A) the principal were repaid—

(i) on the repayment date the Administrator assigned before October 1, 1994, to the old capital investment, or

(ii) with respect to an old capital investment for which the Administrator has not assigned a repayment date before October 1, 1994, on a repayment date the Administrator shall assign to the old capital investment in accordance with paragraph 10(d)(1) of the version of Department of Energy Order RA 6120.2 in effect on October 1, 1994; and

(B) interest were paid—

(i) at the interest rate the Administrator assigned before October 1, 1994, to the old capital investment, or

(ii) with respect to an old capital investment for which the Administrator has not assigned an interest rate before October 1, 1994, at a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration prevailing market yields, during the month preceding the beginning of the fiscal year in which the related project, facility, or separable unit or feature is placed in service, on outstanding interest-bearing obligations of the United States with periods to maturity comparable to the period between the beginning of the fiscal year and the repayment date for the old capital investment.

(c) INTEREST RATE FOR NEW PRINCIPAL AMOUNTS.—As of October 1, 1996, the unpaid balance on the new principal amount established for an old capital investment under subsection (b) bears interest annually at the Treasury rate for the old capital investment until the earlier of the date that the new principal amount is repaid or the repayment date for the new principal amount.

(d) REPAYMENT DATES.—As of October 1, 1996, the repayment date for the new principal amount established for an old capital investment under subsection (b) is no earlier than the repayment date for the old capital investment assumed in subsection (b)(3)(A).

(e) PREPAYMENT LIMITATIONS.—During the period October 1, 1996, through September 30, 2001, the total new principal amounts of old capital investments, as established under subsection (b), that the Administrator may pay before their respective repayment dates shall not exceed $100,000,000.

(f) INTEREST RATES FOR NEW CAPITAL INVESTMENTS DURING CONSTRUCTION.—

(1) NEW CAPITAL INVESTMENT.—The principal amount of a new capital investment includes interest in each fiscal year of construction of the related project, facility, or separable unit or feature at a rate equal to the one-year rate for the fiscal year on the sum of—

(A) construction expenditures that were made from the date construction commenced through the end of the fiscal year, and

(B) accrued interest during construction.

(2) PAYMENT.—The Administrator is not required to pay, during construction of the project, facility, or separable unit or feature, the interest calculated, accrued, and capitalized under subsection (f)(1).

(3) ONE-YEAR RATE.—For the purposes of this section, "one-year rate" for a fiscal year means a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration prevailing market yields, during the month preceding the beginning of the fiscal year, on outstanding interest-bearing obligations of the United States with periods to maturity of approximately one year.

(g) INTEREST RATES FOR NEW CAPITAL INVESTMENTS.—The unpaid balance on the principal amount of a new capital investment bears interest at the Treasury rate for the new capital investment from the date the related project, facility, or separable unit or feature is placed in service until the earlier of the date the new capital investment is repaid or the repayment date for the new capital investment.

(h) CREDITS TO ADMINISTRATOR'S REPAYMENT TO THE UNITED STATES TREASURY.—The Confederated Tribe of the Colville Reservation Grand Coulee Dam Settlement Act (Public Law No. 103-436; 108 Stat. 4577) is amended by striking section 6 and inserting the following:

"SEC. 6. CREDITS TO ADMINISTRATOR'S REPAYMENT TO THE UNITED STATES TREASURY.

"So long as the Administrator makes annual payments to the tribes under the settlement agreement, the Administrator shall apply against amounts otherwise payable by the Administrator to the United States Treasury a credit that reduces the Administrator's payment, in the amount and for each fiscal year as follows: $15,860,000 in fiscal year 1997; $16,490,000 in fiscal year 1998; $17,150,000 in fiscal year 1999; $17,840,000 in fiscal year 2000; $18,550,000 in fiscal year 2001; and $4,600,000 in each succeeding fiscal year.".

(i) CONTRACT PROVISIONS.—In each contract of the Administrator that provides for the Administrator to sell electric power, transmission, or related services, and that is in effect after September 30, 1996, the Administrator shall offer to include, or as the case may be, shall offer to amend to include, provisions specifying that after September 30, 1996—

(1) the Administrator shall establish rates and charges on the basis that—

(A) the principal amount of an old capital investment shall be no greater than the new principal amount established under subsection (b);

(B) the interest rate applicable to the unpaid balance of the new principal amount of an old capital investment shall be no greater than the interest rate established under subsection (c);

(C) any payment of principal of an old capital investment shall reduce the outstanding principal balance of the old capital investment in the amount of the payment at the time the payment is tendered; and

(D) any payment of interest on the unpaid balance of the new principal amount of an old capital investment shall be a credit against the appropriate interest account in the amount of the payment at the time the payment is tendered;

(2) apart from charges necessary to repay the new principal amount of an old capital investment as established under subsection (b) and to pay the interest on the principal amount under subsection (c), no amount may be charged for return to the United States Treasury as repayment for or return on an old capital investment, whether by way of rate, rent, lease payment, assessment, user charge, or any other fee;

(3) amounts provided under section 1304 of title 31, United States Code, shall be available to pay, and shall be the sole source for payment of, a judgment against or settlement by the Administrator or the United States on a claim for a breach of the contract provisions required by this Part; and

(4) the contract provisions specified in this Part do not—

(A) preclude the Administrator from recovering, through rates or other means, any tax that is generally imposed on electric utilities in the United States, or

(B) affect the Administrator's authority under applicable law, including section 7(g) of the Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act (16 U.S.C. 839e(g)), to—

(i) allocate costs and benefits, including but not limited to fish and wildlife costs, to rates or resources, or

(ii) design rates.

(j) SAVINGS PROVISIONS.—

(1) REPAYMENT.—This subchapter does not affect the obligation of the Administrator to repay the principal associated with each capital investment, and to pay interest on the principal, only from the "Administrator's net proceeds," as defined in section 13 of the Federal Columbia River Transmission System Act (16 U.S.C. 838k(b)).

(2) PAYMENT OF CAPITAL INVESTMENT.—Except as provided in subsection (e), this section does not affect the authority of the Administrator to pay all or a portion of the principal amount associated with a capital investment before the repayment date for the principal amount.

SEC. 3004. Of the amounts made available under the Federal Transit Administration's Discretionary Grants program for Kauai, Hawaii in Public Law 103-122 and Public Law 103-311, $3,250,000 shall be transferred to and administered in accordance with 49 U.S.C. 5307 and made available to Kauai, Hawaii.

SEC. 3005. (a) SURFACE TRANSPORTATION PROGRAM.—Notwithstanding section 133 of title 23, United States Code, for fiscal year 1996 and each subsequent fiscal year, the State of Vermont may obligate funds apportioned to the State for the surface transportation program established under section 133 of the title for—

(1) construction, reconstruction, rehabilitation, resurfacing, restoration, and operational improvements for railroads, including any such construction or reconstruction necessary to accommodate other transportation modes;

(2) all eligible activities under section 5311 of title 49, United States Code, and publicly owned rail passenger terminals and facilities, including terminals and facilities owned by the National Railroad Passenger Corporation;

(3) capital costs for passenger rail services; and

(4) beginning in fiscal year 1997, operating costs for passenger rail services.

(b) CONGESTION MITIGATION AND AIR QUALITY IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM.—Notwithstanding section 149 of title 23, United States Code, for fiscal year 1996 and each subsequent fiscal year, the State of Vermont may obligate funds apportioned to the State for the congestion mitigation and air quality improvement program established under the section for a transportation project or program that—

(1) is for an area in the State described in the matter preceding paragraph (1) of section 149(b) of the title; and

(2) will have air quality benefits through construction of, and operational improvements for, intercity passenger rail facilities, operation of intercity passenger rail trains, and acquisition of rolling stock for intercity passenger rail service, except that not more than 50 percent of the amount received by the State for a fiscal year under this subsection may be obligated for operating support.

CHAPTER 2—OFFSET FOR SPENDING

SUBCHAPTER A—URANIUM ENRICHMENT

SEC. 5101. SHORT TITLE.

This subchapter may be cited as the "USEC Privatization Act".

SEC. 5102. DEFINITIONS.

In this subchapter:

(1) AVLIS.—The term "AVLIS" means atomic vapor laser isotope separation technology.

(2) CORPORATION.—The term "Corporation" means the United States Enrichment Corporation and, unless the context requires otherwise, includes the private corporation and any successor to the private corporation following privatization.

(3) GASEOUS DIFFUSION PLANTS.—The term "gaseous diffusion plants" means the Paducah Gaseous Diffusion Plant at Paducah, Kentucky, and the Portsmouth Gaseous Diffusion Plant at Piketon, Ohio.

(4) HIGHLY ENRICHED URANIUM.—The term "highly enriched uranium" means uranium enriched to 20 percent or more of the uranium-235 isotope.

(5) LOW-ENRICHED URANIUM.—The term "low-enriched uranium" means uranium enriched to less than 20 percent of the uranium-235 isotope, regardless of whether the uranium is derived from highly enriched uranium.

(6) LOW-LEVEL RADIOACTIVE WASTE.—The term "low-level radioactive waste" has the meaning provided in section 2(9) of the Low-Level Radioactive Waste Policy Act (42 U.S.C. 2021b(9)).

(7) PRIVATE CORPORATION.—The term "private corporation" means the corporation established under section 5105.

(8) PRIVATIZATION.—The term "privatization" means the transfer of ownership of the Corporation to private investors.

(9) PRIVATIZATION DATE.—The term "privatization date" means the date on which 100 percent of the ownership of the Corporation will have been transferred to private investors.

(10) PUBLIC OFFERING.—The term "public offering" means an underwritten offering to the public of the common stock of the private corporation pursuant to section 5104.

(11) RUSSIAN HEU AGREEMENT.—The term "Russian HEU Agreement" means the Agreement Between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the Russian Federation Concerning the Disposition of Highly Enriched Uranium Extracted From Nuclear Weapons, signed at Washington on February 18, 1993.

(12) SECRETARY.—The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Energy.

(13) SUSPENSION AGREEMENT.—The term "Suspension Agreement" means the Agreement to Suspend the Antidumping Investigation on Uranium From the Russian Federation, as amended.

(14) URANIUM ENRICHMENT.—The term "uranium enrichment" means the separation of uranium of a given isotopic content into 2 components, 1 having a higher percentage of a fissile isotope and 1 having a lower percentage.

SEC. 5103. SALE OF THE CORPORATION.

(a) AUTHORIZATION.—The Board of Directors of the Corporation, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall transfer the interest of the United States in the United States Enrichment Corporation to the private sector in a manner that—

(1) provides for the long-term viability of the Corporation;

(2) provides for the continuation by the Corporation of the operation of the gaseous diffusion plants;

(3) provides for the protection of the public interest in maintaining a reliable and economical domestic source of uranium mining, enrichment and conversion services; and

(4) to the extent not inconsistent with the purposes of paragraphs (1), (2), and (3), secures the maximum proceeds to the United States.

(b) PROCEEDS.—Proceeds from the sale of the interest of the United States in the Corporation shall be deposited in the general fund of the Treasury.

SEC. 5104. METHOD OF SALE.

(a) AUTHORIZATION.—The Board of Directors of the Corporation, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall transfer ownership of the assets and obligations of the Corporation to the private corporation established under section 5105 (which may be consummated through a merger or consolidation effected in accordance with, and having the effects provided under, the law of the State of incorporation of the private corporation, as if the Corporation were incorporated thereunder).

(b) BOARD DETERMINATION.—The Board, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall select the method of transfer and establish terms and conditions for the transfer that will provide the maximum proceeds to the Treasury of the United States and will provide for the long-term viability of the private corporation, the continued operation of the gaseous diffusion plants, and fulfillment of the public interest in maintaining reliable and economical domestic uranium mining and enrichment industries.

(c) ADEQUATE PROCEEDS.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall not allow the privatization of the Corporation unless, before the sale date, the Secretary of the Treasury determines that the method of transfer will provide the maximum proceeds to the Treasury consistent with the principles stated in section 5103(a).

(d) APPLICATION OF SECURITIES LAWS.—Any offering or sale of securities by the private corporation shall be subject to the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77a et seq.), the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a et seq.), and the provisions of the Constitution and laws of any State, territory, or possession of the United States relating to transactions in securities.

(e) EXPENSES.—Expenses of privatization shall be paid from Corporation revenue accounts in the United States Treasury.

SEC. 5105. ESTABLISHMENT OF PRIVATE CORPORATION.

(a) INCORPORATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Board of Directors of the Corporation shall establish a private for-profit corporation under the laws of a State for the purpose of receiving the assets and obligations of the Corporation at privatization and continuing the business operations of the Corporation following privatization.

(2) INCORPORATORS.—The Board of Directors of the Corporation may serve as incorporators of the private corporation and shall take all steps necessary to establish the private corporation, including the filing of articles of incorporation consistent with this subchapter.

(3) OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES.—An officer or employee of the Corporation (including a member of the Board of Directors) acting in accordance with this section on behalf of the private corporation shall be considered to be acting in an official capacity as an officer or employee of the Corporation for purposes of section 205 of title 18, United States Code.

(b) STATUS OF THE PRIVATE CORPORATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The private corporation shall not be an agency, instrumentality, or establishment of the United States, a Government corporation, or a Government-controlled corporation.

(2) OBLIGATIONS.—Except as otherwise provided by this subchapter, financial obligations of the private corporation shall not be obligations of, or guaranteed as to principal or interest by, the Corporation or the United States, and the obligations shall so plainly state.

(3) CLAIMS AGAINST THE UNITED STATES.—No action under section 1491 of title 28, United States Code, shall be allowable against the United States based on actions of the private corporation.

(c) APPLICATION OF POST-GOVERNMENT EMPLOYMENT RESTRICTIONS.—Beginning on the privatization date, the restrictions stated in subsections (a) through (d) of section 207 of title 18, United States Code, shall not apply to the acts of an individual done in carrying out official duties as a director, officer, or employee of the private corporation, if the individual was an officer or employee of the Corporation (including a director) continuously during the 45 days prior to the privatization date.

(d) DISSOLUTION.—If the privatization does not occur, the Corporation shall provide for the dissolution of the private corporation not later than 1 year after the date of the private corporation's incorporation unless the Secretary of the Treasury, on the Corporation's request, agrees to delay the dissolution for an additional year.

SEC. 5106. TRANSFERS TO THE PRIVATE CORPORATION.

Concurrent with privatization, the Corporation shall transfer to the private corporation—

(1) the lease of the gaseous diffusion plants under section 5107;

(2) all personal property and inventories of the Corporation;

(3) all contracts, agreements, and leases under section 5108(a);

(4) the Corporation's right to purchase power from the Secretary under section 5108(b);

(5) such funds in accounts of the Corporation held by the Treasury or on deposit with a bank or other financial institution as are approved by the Secretary of the Treasury; and

(6) all of the Corporation's records, including all of the papers and other documentary materials, regardless of physical form or characteristics, made or received by the Corporation.

SEC. 5107. LEASING OF GASEOUS DIFFUSION FACILITIES.

(a) TRANSFER OF LEASE.—Concurrent with privatization, the Corporation shall transfer to the private corporation the lease of the gaseous diffusion plants and related property for the remainder of the term of the lease in accordance with the terms of the lease.

(b) RENEWAL.—The private corporation shall have the exclusive option to lease the gaseous diffusion plants and related property for additional periods following the expiration of the initial term of the lease.

(c) EXCLUSION OF FACILITIES FOR PRODUCTION OF HIGHLY ENRICHED URANIUM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall not lease to the private corporation any facilities necessary for the production of highly enriched uranium.

(2) ACCESS TO FACILITIES.—Subject to the requirements of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2011 et seq.), the Secretary may grant the Corporation access to facilities necessary for the production of highly enriched uranium for purposes other than the production of highly enriched uranium.

(d) DOE RESPONSIBILITY FOR PREEXISTING CONDITIONS.—The payment of any costs of decontamination and decommissioning, response actions, or corrective actions with respect to conditions existing before July 1, 1993, at the gaseous diffusion plants shall remain the sole responsibility of the Secretary.

(e) ENVIRONMENTAL AUDIT.—For purposes of subsection (d), the conditions existing before July 1, 1993, at the gaseous diffusion plants shall be determined from the environmental audit conducted under section 1403(e) of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2297c–2(e)).

(f) TREATMENT UNDER PRICE-ANDERSON PROVISIONS.—Any lease executed between the Secretary and the Corporation or the private corporation, and any extension or renewal of the lease, under this section shall be considered to be a contract for purposes of section 170d. of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2210(d)).

(g) WAIVER OF EIS REQUIREMENT.—The execution or transfer of the lease between the Secretary and the Corporation or the private corporation, and any extension or renewal of the lease, shall not be considered to be a major Federal action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment for purposes of section 102 of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4332).

SEC. 5108. TRANSFER OF CONTRACTS.

(a) Transfer of Contracts.—Concurrent with privatization, the Corporation shall transfer to the private corporation all contracts, agreements, and leases, including all uranium enrichment contracts, that were—

(1) transferred by the Secretary to the Corporation under section 1401(b) of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2297c(b)); or

(2) entered into by the Corporation before the privatization date.

(b) Nontransferable Power Contracts.—The Corporation shall transfer to the private corporation the right to purchase power from the Secretary under the power purchase contracts for the gaseous diffusion plants executed by the Secretary before July 1, 1993. The Secretary shall continue to receive power for the gaseous diffusion plants under the contracts and shall continue to resell the power to the private corporation at cost during the term of the contracts.

(c) Effect of Transfer.—

(1) In general.—Notwithstanding subsection (a), the United States shall remain obligated to the parties to the contracts, agreements, and leases transferred under subsection (a) for the performance of the obligations of the United States under the contracts, agreements, or leases during their terms. Performance of the obligations by the private corporation shall be considered performance by the United States.

(2) Amendment.—If a contract, agreement, or lease transferred under subsection (a) is terminated, extended, or materially amended after the privatization date—

(A) the private corporation shall be responsible for any obligation arising under the contract, agreement, or lease after any extension or material amendment; and

(B) the United States shall be responsible for any obligation arising under the contract, agreement, or lease before the termination, extension, or material amendment.

(3) Reimbursement.—The private corporation shall reimburse the United States for any amount paid by the United States under a settlement agreement entered into with the consent of the private corporation or under a judgment, if the settlement or judgment—

(A) arises out of an obligation under a contract, agreement, or lease transferred under subsection (a); and

(B) arises out of an action of the private corporation between the privatization date and the date of a termination, extension, or material amendment of the contract, agreement, or lease.

(d) Pricing.—The Corporation may establish prices for the Corporation's products, materials, and services provided to customers on a basis that will allow the Corporation to attain the normal business objectives of a profitmaking corporation.

SEC. 5109. LIABILITIES.

(a) Liability of the United States.—

(1) Uranium enrichment enterprise.—Except as otherwise provided in this subchapter, all liabilities arising out of the operation of the uranium enrichment enterprise before July 1, 1993, shall remain the direct liabilities of the Secretary.

(2) Corporation liabilities.—Except as provided in paragraph (3) or in a memorandum of agreement entered into by the Corporation and the Office of Management and Budget prior to the privatization date, all liabilities arising out of the operation of the Corporation between July 1, 1993, and the privatization date shall remain the direct liabilities of the United States.

(3) Depleted uranium.—All liabilities arising out of the disposal of depleted uranium generated by the Corporation between July 1, 1993, and the privatization date shall become the direct liabilities of the Secretary.

(4) Consent.—Any stated or implied consent for the United States, or any agent or officer of the United States, to be sued by any person for any legal, equitable, or other relief with respect to any claim arising out of, or resulting from, the privatization of the Corporation is hereby withdrawn.

(5) Adjudication.—

(A) In general.—To the extent that any claim against the United States under this section is required under law to be presented to a Federal agency or official for adjudication or review, the claim shall be presented to the Department of Energy in accordance with procedures established by the Secretary.

(B) Liability.—Subparagraph (A) does not impose on the Department of Energy liability to pay any claim presented under subparagraph (A).

(6) Attorney general.—The Attorney General shall represent the United States in any action seeking to impose liability under this subsection.

(b) Liability of the Corporation.—Notwithstanding any provision of any agreement to which the Corporation is a party, the Corporation shall not be considered to be in breach, default, or violation of any agreement because of the transfer of the agreement to the private corporation under section 5108 or any other action the Corporation is required to take under this subchapter.

(c) Liability of the Private Corporation.—Except as provided in this subchapter, the private corporation shall be liable for any liabilities arising out of the private corporation's operations after the privatization date.

(d) Liability of Officers and Directors.—

(1) In general.—No officer, director, employee, or agent of the Corporation shall be liable in any civil proceeding to any party in connection with any action taken in connection with the privatization if, with respect to the subject matter of the action, suit, or proceeding, the person was acting within the scope of the person's employment.

(2) Exception.—This subsection shall not apply to claims arising under the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77a et seq.), the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a et seq.), or the Constitution or laws of any State, territory, or possession of the United States relating to transactions in securities.

SEC. 5110. EMPLOYEE PROTECTIONS.

(a) Contractor Employees.—

(1) In general.—Privatization shall not diminish the accrued vested pension benefits of employees of the Corporation's operating contractor at the 2 gaseous diffusion plants.

(2) Termination.—If the private corporation terminates or changes the operating contractor at either or both of the gaseous diffusion plants, the plan sponsor or other appropriate fiduciary of the pension plan covering employees of the prior operating contractor shall arrange for the transfer of all plan assets and liabilities relating to accrued pension benefits of the plan's participants and beneficiaries from the plant to a pension plan sponsored by the new contractor or the private corporation or to a joint labor-management pension plan.

(3) Obligations.—In addition to any obligations arising under the National Labor Relations Act (29 U.S.C. 151 et seq.), any employer (including the private corporation if it operates a gaseous diffusion plant without a contractor or any contractor of the private corporation) at a gaseous diffusion plant shall—

(A) abide by the terms of any unexpired collective bargaining agreement covering employees in bargaining units at the plant and in effect on the privatization date until the stated expiration or termination date of the agreement; or

(B) if a collective bargaining agreement is not in effect on the privatization date, have the same bargaining obligations under section 8(d) of the National Labor Relations Act (29 U.S.C. 158(d)) as the employer had on the day before the privatization date.

(4) New employer.—If the private corporation replaces the corporation's operating contractor at a gaseous diffusion plant, the new employer (including the new contractor or the private corporation if it operates a gaseous diffusion plant without a contractor) shall—

(A) offer employment to nonmanagement employees of the predecessor contractor to the extent that the employees' jobs still exist or the employees are qualified for new jobs; and

(B) abide by the terms of the predecessor contractor's collective bargaining agreement until the agreement expires or a new agreement is signed.

(5) Plant closing or mass layoff.—In the event of a plant closing or mass layoff (as the terms are defined in section 2(a) of the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act (29 U.S.C. 2101(a))) at either of the gaseous diffusion plants, the Secretary shall treat any adversely affected employee of an operating contractor at either plant who was an employee at the plant on July 1, 1993, as a Department of Energy employee for purposes of sections 3161 and 3162 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1993 (42 U.S.C. 7274h and 7274i).

(6) Health benefits.—

(A) In general.—The Secretary and the private corporation shall cause the post-retirement health benefits plan provider (or its successor) to continue to provide benefits for eligible persons, as described under subparagraph (B), employed by an operating contractor at either of the gaseous diffusion plants in an economically efficient manner and at substantially the same level of coverage as eligible retirees are entitled to receive on the privatization date.

(B) Eligible persons.—Persons eligible for coverage under subparagraph (A) are—

(i) persons who retired from active employment at 1 of the gaseous diffusion plants on or before the privatization date as vested participants in a pension plan maintained by the Corporation's operating contractor or by a contractor employed prior to July 1, 1993, by the Department of Energy to operate a gaseous diffusion plant; and

(ii) persons who are employed by the Corporation's operating contractor on or before the privatization date and are vested participants in a pension plan maintained by the Corporation's operating contractor or by a contractor employed prior to July 1, 1993, by the Department of Energy to operate a gaseous diffusion plant.

(C) Retired prior to July 1, 1993.—The Secretary shall fund the entire cost of post-retirement health benefits for persons who retired from employment with an operating contractor prior to July 1, 1993.

(D) Retired after July 1, 1993.—The Secretary and the Corporation shall fund the cost of post-retirement health benefits for persons who retire from employment with an operating contractor on or after July 1, 1993, in proportion to the retired person's years and months of service at a gaseous diffusion plant under the management of the Secretary and the Corporation, respectively.

(7) JURISDICTION.—

(A) LABOR SUIT.—Any suit under this subsection alleging a violation of an agreement between an employer and a labor organization shall be brought in accordance with section 301 of the Labor Management Relations Act, 1947 (29 U.S.C. 185).

(B) UNFAIR LABOR PRACTICE.—Any charge under this subsection alleging an unfair labor practice violative of section 8 of the National Labor Relations Act (29 U.S.C. 158) shall be pursued in accordance with section 10 of the National Labor Relations Act (29 U.S.C. 160).

(C) OTHER SUITS.—Any suit alleging a violation of any provision of this subsection, to the extent the suit does not allege a violation of the National Labor Relations Act (29 U.S.C. 151 et seq.), may be brought in any district court of the United States having jurisdiction over the parties, without regard to the amount in controversy or the citizenship of the parties.

(b) FORMER FEDERAL EMPLOYEES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—

(A) ELECTION.—An employee of the Corporation that was subject to the Civil Service Retirement System (referred to in this section as "CSRS") or the Federal Employees' Retirement System (referred to in this section as "FERS") on the day before the privatization date shall elect—

(i) to retain the employee's coverage under either CSRS or FERS, as applicable, in lieu of coverage by the Corporation's retirement system; or

(ii) to receive a deferred annuity or lump-sum benefit payable to a terminated employee under CSRS or FERS, as applicable.

(B) THRIFT SAVINGS PLAN.—An employee that makes an election under subparagraph (A)(ii) shall have the option to transfer any balance in the employee's Thrift Savings Plan account to a defined contribution plan under the Corporation's retirement system, consistent with applicable law and the terms of the Corporation's defined contribution plan.

(2) PAYMENT.—The Corporation shall pay to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund—

(A) such employee deductions and agency contributions as are required by sections 8334, 8422, and 8423 of title 5, United States Code, for employees that elect to retain their coverage under either CSRS or FERS under paragraph (1);

(B) such additional agency contributions as are determined necessary by the Office of Personnel Management to pay, in combination with the sums under subparagraph (A), the normal cost (determined using dynamic assumptions) of retirement benefits for any employee that elects to retain the employee's coverage under CSRS under paragraph (1), with the concept of normal cost being used consistently with generally accepted actuarial standards and principles; and

(C) such additional amounts, not to exceed 2 percent of the sum of the amounts under subparagraphs (A) and (B), as are determined necessary by the Office of Personnel Management to pay the cost of administering retirement benefits for employees that retire from the Corporation after the privatization date under either CSRS or FERS, for survivors of the employees, and for survivors of employees of the Corporation that die after the privatization date (which amounts shall be available to the Office of Personnel Management as provided in section 8348(a)(1)(B) of title 5, United States Code).

(3) PAYMENT TO THRIFT SAVINGS FUND.—The Corporation shall pay to the Thrift Savings Fund such employee and agency contributions as are required by section 8432 of title 5, United States Code, for any employee that elects to retain the employee's coverage under FERS under paragraph (1).

(4) HEALTH BENEFITS.—An employee of the Corporation that is subject to the Federal Employee Health Benefits Program (referred to in this section as "FEHBP") on the day immediately preceding the privatization date and that elects to retain coverage under either CSRS or FERS under paragraph (1) shall have the option to receive health benefits from a health benefit plan established by the Corporation or to continue without interruption coverage under the FEHBP in lieu of coverage by the Corporation's health benefit system.

(5) PAYMENT TO EMPLOYEE HEALTH BENEFITS FUND.—The Corporation shall pay to the Employee Health Benefits Fund—

(A) for employees that elect to retain coverage under FEHBP under paragraph (4), such employee deductions and agency contributions as are required by subsections (a) through (f) of section 8906 of title 5, United States Code; and

(B) for employees that elect to retain coverage under FEHBP under paragraph (4), such amounts as are determined to be necessary by the Office of Personnel Management under paragraph (6) to reimburse the Office of Personnel Management for contributions under section 8906(g)(1) of title 5, United States Code.

(6) GOVERNMENT CONTRIBUTION.—The amount required under paragraph (5)(B) shall be sufficient to pay the Government contributions for retired employees that retire from the Corporation after the privatization date under CSRS or FERS, for survivors of the retired employees, and for survivors of employees of the Corporation that die after the privatization date, with the amount prorated to reflect only the portion of the total service of the employees that was performed for the Corporation after the privatization date.

SEC. 5111. SECURITIES AND OWNERSHIP LIMITATIONS.

(a) SECURITIES LIMITATIONS.—No director, officer, or employee of the Corporation may acquire directly or indirectly any securities, or any rights to acquire any securities, of the private corporation on terms more favorable than the terms offered to the general public—

(1) in a public offering designed to transfer ownership of the Corporation to private investors;

(2) under any agreement, arrangement, or understanding entered into before the privatization date; or

(3) before the election of the directors of the private corporation.

(b) OWNERSHIP LIMITATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Immediately following the consummation of the transaction or series of transactions under which 100 percent of the ownership of the Corporation is transferred to private investors, and for a period of 3 years thereafter, no person may acquire, directly or indirectly, beneficial ownership of securities representing more than 10 percent of the total votes of all outstanding voting securities of the Corporation.

(2) APPLICATION.—Paragraph (1) does not apply to—

(A) an employee stock ownership plan of the Corporation;

(B) a member of the underwriting syndicate that purchases shares in stabilization transactions in connection with the privatization; or

(C) in the case of shares beneficially held in the ordinary course of business for others, a commercial bank, broker-dealer, or clearing agency.

SEC. 5112. URANIUM TRANSFERS AND SALES.

(a) TRANSFERS AND SALES BY THE SECRETARY.—The Secretary may not provide enrichment services or transfer or sell any uranium (including natural uranium concentrates, natural uranium hexafluoride, or enriched uranium in any form) to any person except as provided in this section.

(b) RUSSIAN HEU.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—

(A) TRANSFER.—On or before December 31, 1996, the United States Executive Agent under the Russian HEU Agreement shall transfer to the Secretary without charge title to an amount of uranium hexafluoride equivalent to the natural uranium component of low-enriched uranium derived from at least 18 metric tons of highly enriched uranium purchased from the Russian Executive Agent under the Russian HEU Agreement.

(B) QUANTITY.—The quantity of such uranium hexafluoride delivered to the Secretary shall be based on a tails assay of 0.30 U^{235}.

(C) RUSSIAN ORIGIN.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, uranium hexafluoride transferred to the Secretary under this paragraph shall be considered to be of Russian origin.

(2) SALE OF URANIUM HEXAFLORIDE.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 7 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall sell, and receive payment for, the uranium hexafluoride transferred to the Secretary under paragraph (1).

(B) TIME OF SALE.—Uranium hexafluoride shall be sold under subparagraph (A)—

(i) at any time for use in the United States for the purpose of overfeeding;

(ii) at any time for end use outside the United States;

(iii) in 1995 and 1996 to the Russian Executive Agent at the purchase price for use in matched sales pursuant to the Suspension Agreement; or

(iv) in calendar year 2001 for consumption by end users in the United States not earlier than January 1, 2002, in volumes not to exceed 3,000,000 pounds U_3O_8 equivalent per year.

(3) DELIVERY.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—With respect to all enriched uranium delivered to the United States Executive Agent under the Russian HEU Agreement on or after January 1, 1997, the United States Executive Agent shall, on request of the Russian Executive Agent, enter into an agreement to deliver concurrently to the Russian Executive Agent an amount of uranium hexafluoride equivalent to the natural uranium component of the uranium hexafloride.

(B) PERIOD COVERED.—An agreement entered into under subparagraph (A) may pertain to any deliveries due during any period remaining under the Russian HEU Agreement.

(C) QUANTITY.—The quantity of uranium hexafluoride delivered to the Russian Executive Agent under this paragraph shall be based on a tails assay of 0.30 U^{235}.

(D) TITLE.—Title to uranium hexafluoride delivered to the Russian Executive Agent under this paragraph shall transfer to the Russian Executive Agent on delivery of the uranium hexafloride to the Russian Executive Agent, with the delivery to take place at a North American facility designated by the Russian Executive Agent.

(E) RUSSIAN ORIGIN.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, uranium hexafluoride delivered to the Russian Executive Agent under this paragraph shall be considered to be of Russian origin.

(F) SALE.—Uranium hexafluoride delivered under this paragraph may be sold to a person or entity for delivery and use in the United States only as permitted in paragraphs (5) through (7).

(4) AUCTION.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—If the Russian Executive Agent does not enter into an agreement to take delivery of the natural uranium component of any low-enriched uranium under paragraph (3) within 90 days after the date on which the low-enriched uranium is delivered to the United States Executive Agent, or at the request of the Russian Executive Agent, the United States Executive Agent shall engage an independent entity through a competitive selection process to auction an amount of uranium hexafluoride or U_3O_8 (if the conversion component of the hexafluoride has previously been sold) equivalent to the natural uranium component of the low-enriched uranium.

(B) PERIOD COVERED.—An agreement with an independent entity under subparagraph (A) may pertain to any deliveries due during any period remaining under the Russian HEU Agreement.

(C) SALE IN LOTS.—The independent entity shall sell the uranium hexafluoride to persons in 1 or more lots to maximize the proceeds from the auction.

(D) PROCEEDS.—The independent entity shall pay to the Russian Executive Agent the proceeds of the auction less reasonable transaction and administrative costs.

(E) QUANTITY.—The quantity of uranium hexafluoride auctioned shall be based on a tails assay of 0.30 U^{235}.

(F) TITLE.—Title to uranium hexafluoride auctioned under this paragraph shall transfer to the buyer of the material on delivery of the material to the buyer.

(G) RUSSIAN ORIGIN.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, uranium hexafluoride auctioned under this paragraph shall be considered to be of Russian origin.

(5) DELIVERY WITHIN THE UNITED STATES.—

(A) BAN PRIOR TO JANUARY 1, 1998.—Except as provided in paragraphs (6) and (7), uranium hexafluoride delivered to the Russian Executive Agent under paragraph (3) or auctioned under paragraph (4) may not be delivered for consumption by end users in the United States either directly or indirectly prior to January 1, 1998.

(B) ON OR AFTER JANUARY 1, 1998.—On or after January 1, 1998, uranium hexafloride may be delivered for consumption by end users in the United States only in accordance with the following schedule:

Year	Annual Maximum Deliveries to End Users (millions lbs. U_3O_8 equivalent)
1998	2
1999	4
2000	6
2001	8
2002	10
2003	12
2004	14
2005	16
2006	17
2007	18
2008	19
2009 and each succeeding year	20.

(6) MATCHED SALE.—Uranium hexafluoride delivered to the Russian Executive Agent under paragraph (3) or auctioned under paragraph (4) may be sold at any time as Russian-origin natural uranium in a matched sale pursuant to the Suspension Agreement. Uranium hexafloride sold in a matched sale shall not be counted against the annual maximum deliveries set forth in paragraph (5)(B).

(7) OVERFEEDING.—Uranium hexafluoride delivered to the Russian Executive Agent under paragraph (3) or auctioned under paragraph (4) may be sold at any time for use in the United States for the purpose of overfeeding in the operations of enrichment facilities.

(8) NO RESTRICTION ON SALE OF CONVERSION COMPONENT.—Nothing in this subsection shall restrict the sale of the conversion component of uranium hexafluoride.

(9) RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE SECRETARY OF COMMERCE.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Commerce shall have responsibility for the administration and enforcement of the limitations in this subsection.

(B) ENFORCEMENT.—The Secretary of Commerce may require any person to provide such certifications or information or to take such action as may be necessary to enforce limitations in this subsection.

(C) CUSTOMS SERVICE.—The United States Customs Service shall maintain and provide any information required by the Secretary of Commerce and shall take any action requested by the Secretary of Commerce that is necessary for the administration and enforcement of the uranium delivery limitations in this subsection.

(10) REPORT BY THE PRESIDENT.—The President shall monitor the actions of the United States Executive Agent under the Russian HEU Agreement and shall report to the Congress not later than December 31 of each year on the effect the low-enriched uranium delivered under the Russian HEU Agreement is having on domestic uranium mining, conversion, and enrichment industries and the operation of the gaseous diffusion plants. The report shall include a description of actions taken or proposed to be taken by the President to prevent or mitigate any material adverse impact on the industries or any loss of employment at the gaseous diffusion plants as a result of the Russian HEU Agreement.

(c) TRANSFERS TO THE CORPORATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall transfer to the Corporation without charge up to 50 metric tons of enriched uranium and up to 7,000 metric tons of natural uranium from the Department of Energy's stockpile, subject to the restrictions stated in paragraph (2).

(2) RESTRICTIONS.—The Corporation shall not deliver for commercial end-use in the United States—

(A) any of the uranium transferred under this subsection before January 1, 1998;

(B) more than 10 percent of the uranium (by uranium hexafluoride equivalent content) transferred under this subsection or more than 4,000,000 pounds, whichever is less, in any calendar year after 1997; or

(C) more than 800,000 separative work units contained in low-enriched uranium transferred under this subsection in any calendar year.

(d) INVENTORY SALES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In addition to the transfers authorized under subsections (c) and (e), the Secretary may, from time to time, sell natural and low-enriched uranium (including low-enriched uranium derived from highly enriched uranium) from the stockpile of the Department of Energy.

(2) CONDITIONS.—Except as provided in subsections (b), (c), and (e), no sale or transfer of natural or low-enriched uranium shall be made unless—

(A) the President determines that the material is not necessary for national security needs;

(B) the Secretary determines that the sale of the material will not have an adverse material impact on the domestic uranium mining, conversion, or enrichment industry, taking into account the sales of uranium under the Russian HEU Agreement and the Suspension Agreement; and

(C) the price paid to the Secretary will not be less than the fair market value of the material.

(e) GOVERNMENT TRANSFERS.—Notwithstanding subsection (d)(2), the Secretary may transfer or sell enriched uranium—

(1) to a Federal agency if the material is transferred for the use of the receiving agency without any resale or transfer to another entity and the material does not meet commercial specifications;

(2) to any person for national security purposes, as determined by the Secretary; or

(3) to any State or local agency or nonprofit, charitable, or educational institution for use other than the generation of electricity for commercial use.

SEC. 5113. LOW-LEVEL WASTE.

(a) RESPONSIBILITY OF DOE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, at the request of a generator of low-level radioactive waste, shall accept for disposal low-level radioactive waste (including depleted uranium that is ultimately determined to be low-level radioactive waste) generated by—

(A) the Corporation as a result of the operations of the gaseous diffusion plants or as a result of the treatment of the wastes at a location other than the gaseous diffusion plants; or

(B) any person licensed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to operate a uranium enrichment facility under sections 53, 63, and 193 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2073, 2093, and 2243).

(2) REIMBURSEMENT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (3), the generator shall reimburse the Secretary for the disposal of low-level radioactive waste pursuant to paragraph (1) in an amount equal to the Secretary's costs, including a pro rata share of any capital costs.

(B) MAXIMUM REIMBURSEMENT.—The amount of reimbursement under subparagraph (A) for the disposal of waste shall not be more than an amount equal to that which would be charged by commercial, State, regional, or interstate compact entities for disposal of the waste.

(3) LOW-LEVEL RADIOACTIVE WASTE.—If depleted uranium is ultimately determined to be low-level radioactive waste, the generator shall reimburse the Secretary for disposal of the depleted uranium pursuant to paragraph (1) in an amount equal to the Secretary's costs, including a pro rata share of any capital costs.

(b) AGREEMENTS WITH OTHER PERSONS.—Subject to subsection (a), the generator may enter into agreements for the disposal of low-level radioactive waste with any person authorized by law to dispose of the waste.

(c) State or Interstate Compacts.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no State or interstate compact shall be liable for the treatment, storage, or disposal of any low-level radioactive waste (including mixed waste) attributable to the operation, decontamination, or decommissioning of any uranium enrichment facility.

SEC. 5114. AVLIS.

(a) Exclusive Right To Commercialize.—On completion of a royalty agreement with the Secretary, the Corporation shall have the exclusive commercial right to deploy and use any AVLIS patent, process, or technical information owned or controlled by the Government.

(b) Transfer of Related Property to Corporation.—

(1) In general.—To the extent requested by the Corporation and subject to the requirements of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2011 et seq.), the President shall transfer without charge to the Corporation all right, title, or interest in and to property owned by the United States under control or custody of the Secretary that is directly related to and materially useful in the performance of the Corporation's purposes regarding AVLIS and alternative technologies for uranium enrichment, including—

(A) any facility, equipment, or material for research, development, and demonstration activities; and

(B) any other facility, equipment, material, process, patent, technical information of any kind, contract, agreement, or lease.

(2) Exception.—A facility, parcel of real estate, improvement, or item of equipment related to the gaseous diffusion or gas centrifuge uranium enrichment programs of the Secretary shall not transfer under paragraph (1)(B).

(3) Expiration of transfer authority.—The President may not transfer property under this subsection on or after the privatization date.

(c) Liability for Patent and Related Claims.—With respect to any right, title, or interest provided to the Corporation under subsection (a) or (b), the Corporation shall have sole liability for any payment made or award granted under section 157b.(3) of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2187(b)(3)) or for any settlement or judgment involving a claim for alleged patent infringement. Any royalty agreement under subsection (a) shall provide for a reduction of royalty payments to the Secretary to offset any payment, award, settlement, or judgment under this subsection.

SEC. 5115. APPLICATION OF CERTAIN LAWS.

(a) OSHA.—

(1) Compliance.—As of the privatization date, the private corporation shall be subject to and comply with the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 (29 U.S.C. 651 et seq.).

(2) Agreement.—The Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration shall, not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, enter into a memorandum of agreement to govern the exercise of authority over occupational safety and health hazards at the gaseous diffusion plants, including inspection, investigation, enforcement, and rulemaking relating to the hazards.

(b) Antitrust Laws.—For purposes of the antitrust laws, the performance by the private corporation of a matched import contract under the Suspension Agreement shall be considered to have occurred prior to the privatization date if, at the time of privatization, the contract has been agreed to by the parties in all material terms and confirmed by the Secretary of Commerce under the Suspension Agreement.

(c) Energy Reorganization Act Requirements.—

(1) Employee protection.—The private corporation and the private corporation's subcontractors shall be subject to section 211 of the Energy Reorganization Act of 1974 (42 U.S.C. 5851) to the same extent as an employer is subject to the section.

(2) Compliance with safety regulations.—With respect to the operation of the facilities leased by the private corporation, section 206 of the Energy Reorganization Act of 1974 (42 U.S.C. 5846) shall apply to the directors and officers of the private corporation.

SEC. 5116. AMENDMENTS TO THE ATOMIC ENERGY ACT.

(a) Repeal.—

(1) In general.—Chapters 22 through 26 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2297 through 2297–7) are repealed effective as of the privatization date.

(2) Table of contents.—The table of contents of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. prec. 2011) is amended effective as of the privatization date by striking the items relating to the sections repealed by paragraph (1).

(b) NRC Licensing.—

(1) Production facility.—The second sentence of section 11v. of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2014(v)) is amended by striking "or the construction and operation of a uranium enrichment production facility using Atomic Vapor Laser Isotope Separation technology".

(2) Licensing.—Section 193 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2243) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(f) Limitation.—No license or certificate of compliance may be issued to the United States Enrichment Corporation or its successor under this section or section 53, 63, or 1701 if the Commission determines that—

"(1) the Corporation is owned, controlled, or dominated by an alien, a foreign corporation, or a foreign government; or

"(2) the issuance of the license or certificate would be inimical to—

"(A) the common defense and security of the United States; or

"(B) the maintenance of a reliable and economical domestic source of enrichment services.".

(3) Application for certificate of compliance.—Section 1701(c) of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2297f(c)) is amended by striking paragraph (2) and inserting the following:

"(2) Periodic application for certificate of compliance.—The Corporation shall apply to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for a certificate of compliance under paragraph (1) periodically, as determined by the Commission, but not less often than every 5 years. The Commission shall review the application, and any determination made under subsection (b)(2) shall be based on the results of the review.".

(4) Licensing of technologies.—Section 1702(a) of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2297f–1(a)) is amended—

(A) by striking "other than" and inserting "including"; and

(B) by striking "sections 53 and 63" and inserting "sections 53, 63, and 193".

(c) Judicial Review of NRC Actions.—Section 189 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2239) is amended by striking subsection b. and inserting the following:

"b. Judicial Review.—The following Commission actions shall be subject to judicial review in the manner prescribed in chapter 158 of title 28, United States Code, and chapter 7 of title 5, United States Code:

"(1) Any final order entered in any proceeding of the kind specified in subsection a.

"(2) Any final order allowing or prohibiting a facility to begin operating under a combined construction and operating license.

"(3) Any final order establishing by regulation standards to govern the Department of Energy's gaseous diffusion uranium enrichment plants, including any plant leased to a corporation established under the USEC Privatization Act.

"(4) Any final determination under section 1701(c) relating to whether a gaseous diffusion plant, including any plant leased to a corporation established under the USEC Privatization Act, is in compliance with the Commission's standards governing the gaseous diffusion plants and all applicable laws.".

(d) Civil Penalties.—Section 234a. of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2282(a)) is amended—

(1) by striking "any licensing provision of section 53, 57, 62, 63, 81, 82, 101, 103, 104, 107, or 109" and inserting "any licensing or certification provision of section 53, 57, 62, 63, 81, 82, 101, 103, 104, 107, 109, or 1701"; and

(2) by striking "any license issued thereunder" and inserting "any license or certification issued thereunder".

(e) References to the Corporation.—After the privatization date, all references in the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2011 et seq.) to the United States Enrichment Corporation shall be deemed to be references to the private corporation.

SEC. 5117. AMENDMENTS TO OTHER LAWS.

(a) Definition of Government Corporation.—As of the privatization date, section 9101(3) of title 31, United States Code, is amended by striking subparagraph (N), as added by section 902(b) of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 (Public Law 102–486).

(b) Definition of the Corporation.—Section 1018(1) of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 (42 U.S.C. 2296b–7(1)) is amended by inserting ", or a successor to the United States Enrichment Corporation" before the period.

Subchapter B—Nuclear Regulatory Commission Annual Charges

SEC. 5201. NUCLEAR REGULATORY COMMISSION ANNUAL CHARGES.

Section 6101(a)(3) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 2214(a)(3)) is amended by striking "September 30, 1998" and inserting "September 30, 2002".

Subchapter C—Strategic Petroleum Reserve

SEC. 5301. SALE OF WEEKS ISLAND OIL.

(a) Sale.—Notwithstanding section 161 of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act (42 U.S.C. 6241), the Secretary of Energy shall draw down and sell in fiscal year 1996, $292,000,000 worth of oil formerly contained in the Weeks Island Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

(b) Proceeds.—The proceeds from the sale described in subsection (a) shall be included in the budget baseline required by the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 and shall be counted as an offset to discretionary budget authority and outlays for the purposes of section 251(a)(7) of that Act, if the President designates that the proceeds should be so counted, notwithstanding section 257(e) of that Act.

CHAPTER 3—SPENDING DESIGNATION

SEC. 5501. EMERGENCY DESIGNATION.

Congress hereby designates all amounts in this entire title as emergency requirements for all purposes of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985: Provided, That these amounts shall only be available to the extent an unofficial budget request for a specific dollar amount that includes designation of the entire amount of the request as an emergency requirement as defined in the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 is transmitted by the President to Congress.

DORGAN (AND CONRAD) AMENDMENTS NOS. 3468–3469

Mr. DORGAN (for himself and Mr. Conrad) proposed two amendments to amendment No. 3466 proposed by Mr. Hatfield to the bill H.R. 3019, supra; as follows:

Amendment No. 3468

On page 740, line 6, strike "$32,000,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$34,800,000".

On page 740, line 8 after the word "nature" add a comma and insert "and to protect natural resources in the Devils Lake Basin in North Dakota".

Amendment No. 3469

On page 734, line 23, strike "$15,000,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$25,000,000".

On page 735, line 1, strike "$1,500,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$2,500,000".

DOLE (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 3470

Mr. HATFIELD (for Mr. Dole, for himself, Mr. Hatch, Mr. Gregg, and Mr. Hollings) proposed an amendment to amendment No. 3466 proposed by Mr. Hatfield to the bill H.R. 3019, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

Sec. 117. The definition of "educational expenses" in Section 200103 of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994, Public Law 103-322 is amended to read as follows:

"educational expenses" means expenses that are directly attributable to—

(A) a course of education leading to the award of the baccalaureate degree; or

(B) a course of graduate study following award of a baccalaureate degree, including the cost of tuition, fees, books, supplies, transportation, room and board and miscellaneous expenses.

HOLLINGS (AND INOUYE) AMENDMENT NO. 3471

Mr. HATFIELD (for Mr. Hollings for himself and Mr. Inouye) proposed an amendment to amendment No. 3466 proposed by Mr. Hatfield to the bill H.R. 3019, as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

"Sec. 411. Section 235 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1990 and 1991 (Public Law 101-246) is amended by inserting "Tinian," after "Sao Tome,".

NOTICE OF HEARING

COMMITTEE ON RULES AND ADMINISTRATION

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I wish to announced that the Committee on Rules and Administration will meet in SR-301, Russell Senate Office Building, on Wednesday, March 13, 1996, at 9:30 a.m., to receive testimony on campaign finance reform.

For further information on this hearing, please contact Bruce Kasold at 224-3448.

AUTHORITY FOR COMMITTEE TO MEET

SUBCOMMITTEE ON SOCIAL SECURITY AND FAMILY POLICY

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, the Finance Committee requests unanimous consent for the Subcommittee on Social Security and Family Policy to hold a hearing on Social Security and future retirees on Monday, March 11, 1996, beginning at 10 a.m. in room SD-215.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

WHY THE "LEAST DANGEROUS" BRANCH IS ALSO THE BEST

• Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, I confess, I am not a regular reader of Legal Times, though my staff is, and they call articles to my attention.

But a longtime friend, Gene Callahan, sent me the first of a series of monthly columns that will be written by our former House colleague, Abner Mikva, who has also served on the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington, DC and served as Counsel to the President.

His perspective should be of interest.

Judging by his first column, which I ask to be printed in the Record, it should be viewed by many more people than those who read the Legal Times, with all due respect to that readership.

His first column speaks with pride about the Federal judiciary but also has some suggestions for improvement there, suggestions that, in part, involve the legislative branch of Government.

I urge my colleagues to read Abner Mikva's first column.

The text of the column follows:

[From the Legal Times, Feb. 5, 1996]

Why the "Least Dangerous" Branch Is Also the Best

(By Abner J. Mikva)

Early last month, while the two political branches of government yielded to the elements and closed down for the blizzard, the Supreme Court of the United States was doing business as usual. It may have looked like a hot-dog trick to some, but Chief Justice William Rehnquist was making a point worth making: While the rest of government is perceived as sick and wanting, the judiciary, like the Energizer bunny, keeps on going.

Now that I am a disinterested observer (except for my pension, which as far as I know has no contingencies based on behavior), I find that the federal judiciary works amazingly well.

It always has been the least dangerous branch, but for a good period of its history that was because the federal judiciary did not have many demands upon it. This is no longer true. In almost every session of Congress, some new tasks are put to the federal courts. Everything from voting rights to carjacking is now considered appropriate for federal court jurisdiction.

At the same time, while the total judicial appropriation is still a small blip in the federal budget, it has been increasing exponentially. As with other rapaid growth, inevitably some money is not spent wisely.

The biggest single extravagance is Congress-driven: Should we have a federal courthouse at every crossroads in America? If the federal courts have selective and limited jurisdiction, should not the parties and their lawyers be required to come to the population centers of the country to litigate? But I remember from my days in Congress that it was a feather in the cap of a member if he or she could deliver a new courthouse (and a new judge) to some small town in the state.

Meanshile, the U.S. Courts of Appeals allow their judges to live wherever they want to within the circuit, providing chambers, equipment, and staff just to service those judges who would rather live in a bucolic place than in the big city to which the appellate court should limit its activities. (When I raised both these matters as a member of the U.S. Judicial Conference, I was met with the icy resistance of incumbent judges who like things the way they are.)

Even accounting for these blemishes (and others that I don't recount here), the federal courts are the most efficient institutions in our government. They perform their designated functions admirably. The appellate process provides a self-corrective device that fixes most of the mistakes and excesses of the lower courts. The judges really do preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States. And the reasons are pretty obvious.

First and foremost, there is the careful selection method employed to choose federal judges. There was a saying when I went to law school that the A students became law professors, the B and C students made a lot of money as practitioners, and the D students became judges. But that was never applicable to federal judges, and certainly is not true today. The large number of academicians who become federal judges indicates that legal ability is an important perrequisite for appointment. (On the Supreme Court alone, there are three former full-time law professors: Justices Antonin Scalia, Ruth Bader Ginsburg, and Stephen Breyer.)

The whole process is the closet thing that we have to a meritocracy in government. While U.S. senators have a large voice in deciding who become district judges, the candidate is subject to merit review in the first instance by the local bar associations, the local press, and all the other gauntlets that a judicial aspirant has to traverse. After finishing that section of the obstacle course, the would-be judge has to pass a full field investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and a thorough vetting by the American Bar Association. Then, and only then, is the name sent to the president with the recommendation that he nominate. If the president agrees, then, and only then, is the name sent up to the Senate for confirmation.

Appointments to the Courts of Appeals are even more difficult. While the senators may not have as much say in choosing the nominee, they weigh in heavier in the confirmation process. (I still have bumps on my head from my own confirmation battle, which took more than six months and aged me many times that period. I had the National Rifle Association—a formidable opponent—on my case.)

Many are the casualties who could describe how tortuous is the path. Some bad press, a few disgruntled colleagues or clients, an over-exuberant writing—any of these can derail someone who would like to be a judge. Not all such derailments are fair or pretty, but they do provide a thorough preview of who is being appointed to the federal bench. The result is a bench both competent and clean.

There are exceptions, of course, but they are rare, compared to those of the other two branches of government. Indeed, one of the exceptions, Judge Alcee Hastings, was removed from the bench by Congress after his colleagues deemed his conduct inappropriate to judicial service. A jury had previously found him not guilty of criminal conduct in the matter, and the people of the sovereign state of Florida have since elected him to Congress.

There are other reasons why the judicial branch performs so well. The Judicial Conference, the governing body for the federal judiciary, is right for the task. Contrary to what Judge William Schwarzer wrote recently in Legal Times ("Governing the Federal Judiciary," Dec. 11, 1995, Page 24), the very fact that the judges in the conference do rotate, are not expert bureaucrats, and are not all from Washington, D.C., is a plus. I have had a close-up view of the workings of the other two branches, and neither has any systems as efficient as the 25 circuit and district judges who, along with the chief justice, make policy for the federal judiciary.

Another ingredient in the judicial success formula is the law clerks. The clerks, who come in for a year or two, are very bright, respectfully irreverent, and full of enthusiasm. Again, the rotation of clerks is a plus, and I worry that more and more judges are using career law clerks.

Senior status is another idea that works. The notion that a judge can semi-retire, still perform useful service, and open up a slot for a younger and more vigorous person is almost too good to be true.

That judges are as independent as they say they are is one of the most important reasons for the success of the judicial branch. This makes it all the more disturbing that some of my former colleagues, both on the bench and in Congress, think that Congress should exercise more vigorous oversight of the performance of judges. Sen. Charles Grassley (R-Iowa) wants judges to fill out time sheets so that he can decide whether they are working hard enough. Judge Laurence Silberman thinks that there are too many judges authorized on the D.C. Circuit, and testified to urge Congress not to fill an empty slot.

Given all the serious problems that other institutions of government have, both in their performance and in the way they are perceived, it is distressing that some would rather tinker with the judiciary. But then, there have always been those who would rather fix something that is not broken than do the serious lifting involved in real government reform.

RECOGNIZING THE IMPORTANCE OF INTERNATIONAL FAMILY PLANNING ON INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S DAY

• Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, today, I speak in honor of International Women's Day, which was last Friday, March 8, on an issue of tremendous importance to women and families around the world—U.S. funding for international family planning programs.

The United States has traditionally been a leader in international family planning assistance, and has had unrivaled influence worldwide in setting standards for these programs. An estimated 50 million families around the globe use family planning as a direct result of U.S. population assistance programs.

Unfortunately, passage of the continuing resolution on January 26 came at a terrible price to U.S. population assistance programs. Time and time again during consideration of the foreign operations appropriations bill, the Senate resisted the efforts of the House to restore the Mexico City policy and to impose restrictions on funding for United Nations Population Fund [UNFPA]. Finally, opponents to family planning in the House unveiled a new, ugly strategy—slashing population assistance in the continuing resolution [CR]. Tragically, the need to avoid another Government shutdown led many Members to vote for the CR and accept what was understood to be an extremely painful funding cut. It was only later that the truly insidious nature of this provision became apparent, when it became known that this provision would simply devastate—if not obliterate—U.S.-funded international family planning programs.

Under the terms of the CR, none of the funds appropriated for international family planning can be spent until July 1. After this date, funding may be provided at 65 percent of the fiscal year 1995 level, appropriated on a monthly basis of 6.7 percent for 15 months. As a result, U.S. population assistance expenditures could drop from $547 million last year, to only $72 million during fiscal year 1996 This means a loss of revenue to the program of $475 million.

The Alan Guttmacher Institute, Planned Parenthood, and other population groups predict that as a result of these cuts, at a minimum, seven million couples in developing countries who would have used modern contraceptives will be left without access to family planning. Four million more women will experience unintended pregnancies. We can also expect 1.9 million more unplanned births, often to families living in terrible poverty and who cannot afford another child; 1.6 million more abortions and countless miscarriages; 8,000 more women dying in pregnancy and childbirth, including those from unsafe abortions; and 134,000 infant deaths.

It appears that supporters of these funding cuts are unaware that current law prohibits the use of any U.S. funds for abortion-related activities. This is not about encouraging abortion. It is about preventing unwanted pregnancies and preventing abortions. It is about helping women to space their children, so that they and their children are healthier, because children born within 2 years of their mother's last birth are twice as likely to die in infancy than those born after a longer interval. It is about families being able to support themselves and emerge from terrible poverty. It is about preventing maternal and infant death. It is an issue that should unite Members on both sides of the abortion debate.

Because of the CR, organizations that provide family planning services with U.S. funds are already determining which of their programs will have to be cut or eliminated. For example, a local affiliate of international planned parenthood in Brazil estimates that 250,000 couples who rely on its services will lose access to family planning and related health care. In Peru, a country that is among the poorest in Latin America and where 90 percent of women surveyed say they want to prevent or delay another pregnancy, more than 200,000 couples will lose services. Families in these extremely poor countries cannot afford to lose vital U.S. family planning assistance.

As a conferee for the State Department reauthorization bill, I worked hard to prevent the inclusion of House language reinstating the Mexico City policy and restrictions on UNFPA funding. Thankfully, we prevailed and the House capitulated on this front. Now it is time to take this important battle to take the next step and undue the harm caused by the House appropriators.

I am pleased to say that my distinguished colleague from Oregon, Senator HATFIELD, who has been such a champion in fighting for international family planning throughout his career, included language in the omnibus appropriations bill which would restore funding for U.S. population assistance. The Hatfield provision would nullify the funding cuts in the CR if the President certifies that they will lead to a significant increase in abortions. I applaud Senator HATFIELD for his outstanding leadership on the Appropriations Committee and for his dedication to this very important issue.

The United States has been a model nation on international family planning issues, and other countries look to our example. The implications of the cuts to U.S. aid contained in the CR are far broader than one might think.

If other countries follow our lead, the impact will be devastating to the health of women and families of developing nations.

So, in honor of International Women's Day, I urge my colleagues to support the restoration of funding for international family planning. Hanging in the balance are the lives, the health, and the economic survival of women, children, and families throughout the world.●

HONORING MATTHEW EISENFELD

● Mr. DODD. Mr. President, it is with great sadness that I rise today following the death of Matthew Eisenfeld of West Hartford in the terrorist bombing in Israel. The four most recent terrorist attacks have not only threatened the fragile peace in this region, but also resulted in the death of one of our own. Matthew was a bright and caring individual who spoke out for peace in the Middle East—and his voice ultimately will not be silenced unless we give into those who use vicious acts of violence to derail efforts for peace in this region.

Throughout his short life, Matthew had a strong impact on the lives of the people he met. Clearly, he was a fine student with a good heart. He dedicated himself to others and worked hard to learn and follow the teachings of the Jewish faith.

It seems ironic that at the time of his death, Matthew was working on a haggadah, the traditional book of freedom and liberation read at Passover. He truly believed that the land of Israel that he loved so much would one day be at peace.

Following the assassination of Prime Minister Yitzak Rabin, Matthew was asked to speak at a memorial service for the slain leader. His message was full of hope that the Middle East peace process would continue. Even in the dark days immediately following the death of the Prime Minister, Matthew stood up and called on those gathered not to give up hope and stressed the necessity of continuing the work of Mr. Rabin.

We have now lost another decent and caring man whose life was a testament to peace. This is a tragedy not only for Matthew's family and friends, but also for the countless number of people who could have met Matthew and learned from him if this senseless act of hate had not occurred. We must remember Matthew's love of humanity and continue to work to spread his message of peace and hope. Soundly condemning these senseless acts of violence while rededicating ourselves to the peace process, is the finest way to honor Matthew Eisenfeld's life and the other innocent men and women who have lost their lives in these terrible bombings.●

WANTED: JOBS OF LAST RESORT

● Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, one of the things I have stressed repeatedly on the floor of the Senate is that without having a jobs component for people of limited skills, welfare reform is a sham. It is public relations for those of us who hold public office, not help for people on welfare and not help for the taxpayers.

Recently, Prof. Sheldon Danziger and Peter Gottschalk had an item on the New York Times op-ed page, titled "Wanted: Jobs of Last Resort." I ask that it be printed in the RECORD. I highly recommend it to my colleagues.

The article follows:

WANTED: JOBS OF LAST RESORT

(By Sheldon Danziger and Peter Gottschalk)

Members of the National Governors' Association were on Capitol Hill yesterday, once again pressing their case for welfare reform. The group has captured glowing reviews from both President Clinton and Congressional Republicans for a package of proposals that would favor block grants to the states over a guarantee of Federal aid.

Liberal Democrats in the House have criticized the plan, saying its cuts in Federal spending are simply too hard on the poor. But they have not given enough attention to what is perhaps the plan's most problematic feature: It would end welfare recipients' entitlement to cash assistance—after as little as 21 months in Connecticut—even for those who, though diligently searching for work, cannot find anyone to hire them.

These provisions assume that anyone who really wants to work can find a job. And no one would dispute that any welfare reform proposal should require recipients to make a serious effort to find employment. But the proposal must be more realistic about the current demand for low-skilled workers, which has dropped steadily over the last two decades.

To take just one small but alarming example, the number of high school dropouts who are employed has steadily dropped since 1970—while the number of employed college graduates has risen by more than 40 percent.

Economists of all political persuasions have documented the increased extent of insecurity among American workers. Moderate economic growth since the early 1980's has on average raised our living standards, but low-skilled workers have seen the least benefit. The lack of jobs that pay adequately obviously bodes even worse for people trying desperately to get off welfare. Today, 45 percent of women who leave welfare find themselves back on it within a year.

The decline in demand for less-skilled workers is not so much the fault of Republicans or Democrats as it is of the changing economy. Real wages for low-skilled workers steadily diminished under Presidents Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan and George Bush, just as they continue to erode today. But these Administrations do share responsibility for the extent of the hardship. Government simply has not adapted its policies to deal with an economy in which the number of industrial jobs is shrinking.

The consensus among most Democrats and Republicans that welfare should be transformed from a cash-based to a work-based safety net is a promising development. But it will not be fulfilled by the governors' compromise unless their plan provides emergency help for people who have tried to find work and can't. Low-wage public service jobs of last resort would be the best way to provide such help.

The governors can improve their plan, which they hope will form the basis of Federal legislation, by requiring that states offer unsuccessful job seekers the kind of work-based safety net that Gov. John Engler has proposed for Michigan.

His proposal allows recipients who cannot find employment to perform community service in return for continued cash assistance. This provision is important in an economy in which the trend toward downsizing shows no sign of slowing, and it will be critical during any future recession. The National Governors' Association would be wise to include Mr. Engler's work-for-your welfare community service idea in its proposals.●

FOREIGN CURRENCY REPORTS

TOM DASCHLE AND BOB DOLE,
Democratic Leader and Republican Leader, Feb. 27, 1996.

MEASURE PLACED ON THE CALENDAR—H.R. 497

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I understand there is a bill due for its second reading.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 497) to create the National Gambling Impact and Policy Commission.

Mr. LOTT. I object to further proceedings on this matter at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill will be placed on the calendar.

ORDERS FOR TUESDAY, MARCH 12, 1996

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it stand in adjournment until the hour of 9:30 a.m., Tuesday, March 12; further, that immediately following the prayer, the Journal of proceedings be deemed approved to date, no resolutions come over under the rule, the call of the calendar be dispensed with, the morning hour be deemed to have expired, and the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day. I further ask unanimous consent that the Senate begin a period for the transaction of morning business until the hour of 10 a.m. with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each with the following exception: Senator FEINSTEIN for 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I further ask that at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, the Senate resume consideration of the omnibus appropriations bill, H.R. 3019; further, that the Senate recess from the hours of 12:30 to 2:15 for the weekly policy conferences to meet.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

BALANCED BUDGET DOWNPAYMENT ACT, II

Mr. LOTT. I might say, Mr. President, I had hoped we would be able to make more progress today. I know the distinguished chairman of the Appropriations Committee was here at the appointed hour and made an opening statement on this appropriations bill. I do know that there have been a couple of amendments that have been laid down. We are going to have to make real progress on this legislation tomorrow because we are facing a deadline on the continuing resolution this coming Friday. So if we are going to avoid that problem, we are going to have to either complete the amendments and complete final passage on this omnibus appropriations bill or take some other action to avoid the threat by President Clinton last week that we would have a shutdown. So I urge my colleagues and the leadership to work together to get an agreement on a list of amendments, how those amendments will be brought forward; that we have some sort of reasonable limit on the number of amendments that are offered so we can complete this legislation hopefully by tomorrow night or certainly sometime early in the day on Wednesday so we can allow this bill to go to conference. There will have to be a conference between the two bodies, and I am sure that will take some time, too.

PROGRAM

Mr. LOTT. For the information of all Senators, the Senate will resume consideration of the continuing resolution at 10 a.m. on Tuesday. Additional amendments are expected to be offered, and it is still hoped that we may complete action during tomorrow's session.

Under a previous order, there are two consecutive cloture votes beginning at 2:15 p.m. on Tuesday. The first will be on invoking cloture on the D.C. appropriations conference report, to be followed by a vote on invoking cloture to proceed to the Whitewater resolution. Additional votes can be expected during Tuesday's session of the Senate.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 9:30 A.M. TOMORROW

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 4:22 p.m., adjourned until Tuesday, March 12, 1996, at 9:30 a.m.

WITHDRAWAL

Executive message transmitted by the President to the Senate on March 11, 1996, withdrawing from further Senate consideration the following nomination:

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

LINDA COLVIN RHODES, OF PENNSYLVANIA, TO BE DEPUTY COMMISSIONER OF SOCIAL SECURITY FOR THE TERM EXPIRING JANUARY 19, 2001, WHICH WAS SENT TO THE SENATE ON AUGUST 10, 1995.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

SENATE COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate on February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. This title requires all such committees to notify the Office of the Senate Daily Digest—designated by the Rules Committee—of the time, place, and purpose of the meetings, when scheduled, and any cancellations or changes in the meetings as they occur.

As an additional procedure along with the computerization of this information, the Office of the Senate Daily Digest will prepare this information for printing in the Extensions of Remarks section of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on Monday and Wednesday of each week.

Meetings scheduled for Tuesday, March 12, 1996, may be found in the Daily Digest of today's RECORD.
